A man from the outside world of realities describes the life of Arkansas as follows: Long days of doing nothing beget little energy. Little food is needed, and less new clothing. In the fall and winter the crops are gathered and turned over to the merchant who holds the mortgage. To sum up the labor of years: I was on the place yesterday, and found an old double log-house, so nearly rotted down that it is propped up all around; the windows were without glass, the door-frames were without doors, the children could pass out between the logs in any direction, the lady and a friend were sitting in the "gallery," a space between the two cabins, on splint chairs, contentedly "dipping" snuff, while the lord and master, in dirty, begrimed clothes, sat under a tree doing nothing, but looking happy as the day is long. Fences rotted down, and lean pigs with "pokes" on them, two sorry-looking horses trying to pick a living from the short grass, and little children, half a dozen or more, with but a single garment on, were listlessly playing in the shade. The lands, originally poor, with but two or three inches of soil on the prairies, were worn out and abandoned.

Paganini Outdone.

I reached the city of Cologne, writes a correspondent, by steamer down the Rhine at 6 in the afternoon. This gave me an hour before dark in which to visit the great cathedral, whose lofty spires had been before me since twenty miles away. Then I had an hour for dinner, which I ate with great zest at the Hotel du Dom, nearly opposite the cathedral. Two hours and a half were then left before I was to take the night express for Brussels. What should I do in that two hours and a half? The porter to whom I addressed this question said I had better go around to the Cafe Chantant for an hour. So I told at Sutter's run. They had heard about the Centennial exhibition, and Philadelphia with its historical spots, was the "Mecca" to which the ambitions of their declining years pointed. They started some weeks ago, one from California and the other from Oregon, and first visited the New Orleans exposition, where they learned the liberty hall had been sent. "We wanted," said the youngest of the two men, "to kiss the bell that had proclaimed liberty to all the land; but when we asked the attendant to grant us this favor he told us to 'walk off; the bell is all broke up now with so much kissing.'" Later in the day the two Argonauts were seen gazing with great interest upon a waistcoat that the Father of his Country had once worn.—Philadelphia Record.

Crematoriums are not the innovations many people seem to suppose. Cremation societies have been in existence in London for twenty years. The English makers would not, or could not, come up to the American lightness and finish."

—JUDICIAL—

SALE OF FARM LAND,

In the Township of Otonabee,

within six miles of the Town of Peterborough

Under and by virtue of a judgment of the High Court of Justice for Ontario, and in the Chancery Division thereof, made in the action of HARTLEY et al., vs. BEAVIS et al., and dated the Fourth day of September, A.D., 1885, there will be offered for sale, with the approval of the Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature at Peterborough, at his Chambers, in the said Town of Peterborough on at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon, the following valuable farm property viz:—

Saturday, 7th day of Nov'r, 1885

The West Half of Lot Number 29, in the 10th Concession of the said Township of Otonabee.

containing one hundred acres more or less.

Upon the said property there are about 25 acres of hardwood land, the remainder thereof being cleared and under cultivation.

There are upon the said premises two barns and a log dwelling house, with woodshed attached, and a never-failing well. One of said barns is frame, 40 feet x 30 feet; the other a pest barn, 50 feet x 37 feet; the said dwelling house is 20 feet x 20 feet. The soil is clay or clay loam, and well adapted for raising wheat and other grains, and the property is situated in a first-class farming locality, within six miles of the Town of Peterborough.

The said premises will be sold subject to a lease now existing between Thomas Heatherly and John Heatherly, the Lessees therein mentioned, which has one year to run from 1st March, 1886, at a yearly rental of $180.00 per annum, and which said lease contains a provision that the purchaser of said premises may determine the said lease upon giving to the Lessees one month's notice in writing, and paying to said Lessees the value of any crops then upon said premises, and what ever ploughing he may have done on said premises; and a reasonable sum to pay the expenses of removal from said premises. Said lands shall also be sold subject to the condition that the current year's rent, due upon the 29th Feb'y, 1886, shall be paid to the now owners of said lands.

TERMS:

Ten per cent of the purchase money to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of the sale, and the balance of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter without interest.

Other terms and conditions will be the standing conditions of the Court.

For other terms and particulars, apply gratis to Messrs. Hatton & Wood, Barristers, Peterborough, or E. A. Peck, Esquire, Barrister, Peterborough.

Dated at Peterborough, this 29th Sept., 1885.

Philharmonic Society.

The second meeting of the Philharmonic Society for rehearsal will be held this evening at Mr. J. S. Parker's rooms, over Hartley's music store, Hunter street. A large attendance of members is requested.

Polo at the Lansdowne.

One of the principal attractions of the Thanksgiving holiday will be the grand Polo match in the evening at the Lansdowne Rink between the Port Hope club and another good team. This exciting event should draw a good audience.

Filling Up.

The utility of the Nicholls hospital is being daily developed. A patient was admitted last week and another has since taken advantage of the institution. By the time the medical staff is thoroughly organized there will no doubt be sufficient patients there to render their duties something more than a sinecure.

Beecher on the Hills.

After eighteen months' indefatigable exertion, the energetic secretary of Otonabee Lodge, I. O. O. F., had, yesterday evening, the satisfaction of receiving a letter from Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, announcing that that great orator will be in Peterborough early in February, to deliver one of his brilliant lectures. The people of the town are to be congratulated on the magnificent literary treat in store for them.

Wages of Farm Labourers.

From the annual report of the Ontario Bureau of Industries, just to hand, it is seen that the wages of farm labourers in the county of Peterborough for the years 1883-84 were as follows: per year, with board, in 1884, $174: in 1883, $178. Wages per year without board, in 1884, $257; in 1883, $274. The average monthly wages of farm servants was, with board, in 1884, $19.74; in 1883, $20.60; without board in 1884, $28.71; in 1883, $31.11. The average weekly wages of female domestic servants was, in 1884, $1.68; in 1883, $1.60.

MIKADO IS COMING.

No Delay About It.

In the EXAMINER of Saturday last was reported the total destruction by fire of a store at Frazerville, owned by Mr. Josiah Robertson, of this town. Mr. Robertson was insured for $1,000 with the agency of Mr. W. H. Hill and on Tuesday that amount was promptly paid him by that gentleman. Mr. Hill has an enviable reputation for energy, foresight and promptitude, and is doing a large business. He has recently undertaken a new branch of business in the insurance of plate glass, and has also become the agent of the old reliable Hand-in-Hand Company, for which, there is no doubt, he will accumulate a large quantity of business.

Dr. Tassie's ex-Pupils at Upper Canada College.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," applies to teachers as aptly as to apple trees. The success of the ex-pupils of Dr. Tassie, Principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, at Upper Canada College is practical evidence of the excellent nature of the instruction imparted by him. The following is the record of the positions won by Dr. Tassie's ex-pupils at the examination held last June, the results of which have, however, just now been made public:—B. Morton Jones, on entering the 5th Form, obtained one residuary exhibition for classics and one for modern languages, one prize for English composition and one prize for form examination. Chas. Gosling, entering the same form, one (1st), general proficiency prize, one form examination prize, one special prize, and one for English composition. Bertie Jory, H. C. Thader, D'Arcy McMahon and Thos. Ernest McCondon obtained honorable mention in various subjects. An "exhibition" entitles a boy to free tuition and a certain annual sum. The examiners were outside University men.

Dictionary and scribbling book for 10 cents—biggest value ever seen—at Sailsbury's.

Attend Stapleton's auction sale of oil paintings, etc., to-night, at the store opposite Grand Central hotel.

St. Luke's Missionary Meeting.

The annual missionary meeting will be held in St. Luke's Church this evening. Addresses will be delivered by Rev. Septimus Jones, of the Church of the Redeemer, Toronto, and others.

Ladies are particularly invited to attend Stapleton's auction sale of oil paintings, steel engravings and water colors at the store opposite Grand Central hotel. Sale every afternoon and evening this week. Charles Stapleton, auctioneer.

The Nicholls Hospital Staff.

On Saturday last, a list was published in the EXAMINER of medical men eligible to act on the staff of the Nicholls Hospital, and who will be requested to do so. The name of Dr. Kincaid, which was the first on the list, was inadvertently omitted in making the report. We understand that Dr. Kincaid will have the honor of being the first to take charge of the Hospital, he being first on the roster for attendance.

Lecture on the Treatment of the Sick.

Miss Caroline Peck, daughter of Mr. A. E. Peck of Ashburnham, and a Graduate of Bellevue Hospital, N. Y., lectured to a large and interested audience of ladies last evening in the School House of St. John's Church. The chair was taken by Rev. J. W. R. Beck, Rector of Peterborough. Miss Peck's lecture was a clever and highly instructive discourse on the treatment of the sick, and abounded in information that cannot fail to be of value to all that heard her.

MIKADO IS COMING.

Beavis v. G.T.R.

This cause celebre still drags on wearily, adjournment after adjournment being made at the Police Court, to suit the convenience of one or other of the parties to it. Mr. Beavis thinks it would be well if the G.T.R. would buy his property adjacent to their track, and they could then bar the entrance way with cars, or do anything they pleased with it. The case is going on to-day, Mr. Biggar of Belleville, being present on behalf of the G. T. R., while Mr. Beavis' case is in the hands of Mr. E. B. Edwards.

The Nicholls Hospital.

A meeting of the Board of Trustees for the Nicholls Hospital was held last evening at the office of Messrs. Poussette and Roger, on Water street. In addition to the transaction of routine business, a resolution was passed instructing the secretary to insert in the newspapers, the requisite notice of application to the government for an act incorporating the hospital. The following committees were appointed. On property, Messrs. Jas. Stratton, Davidson and Manson. Supplies.—Messrs. Flavelle and McClelland. The Chairman and Secretary of the Board will be ex-officio members of these committees.

How the Canadian Cockneys test Fire Hose.

London, Ont., has recently made a purchase of fire hose, and the fire department there have been making a test of it, that would no doubt make the agents hair stand on its end. The London Advertiser says that each length is subjected to a pressure of 320 pounds. Out of twenty lengths tested in this way on Tuesday, five leaked and one burst outright. It is not stated what brand of hose was purchased. It would be well for the Fire, Water, and Light Committee to take a hint from their Lo Forest city contemporaries and make a severe test of all new hose purchased any time in the future.

Demolition.

A large number of workmen were busily engaged yesterday and to-day in tearing out the floors and ceilings and razing the walls of the building on George street, just north of Mr. T. Manxies' book store. Workmen are also excavating at the back of the building and getting ready to lay in the foundations of the new double store that Mr. G. A. Cox, the owner of the premises, is going to erect in place of the old building. So large is the staff of workmen employed that it is expected that the new building will be up almost before the dust, caused by the falling debris of the old one has been dissipated. December 1st is spoken of as the date when the new premises will be completed if the weather is favorable

Peterborough Harmony Club.

A number of gentlemen possessed of musical taste and ability met last evening at the rooms of Mr. Alick Elliott for the purpose of organizing a vocal and instrumental musical society. Their efforts gave birth to what will be known in future as the Peterborough Harmony Club. Officers were elected as follows:—President, Mr. Alex. Elliott; Secretary and Treasurer, W. Lech, jr.; Musical Conductor, Prof. Heathfield. The following members were enrolled last evening:—Messrs. T. Rush, T. Dunne, M. Dunne, M. Tierney, C. C. Hampshire, W. Sanderson and W. Lech, and others will be added, although the club is a strictly private organization and members will only be admitted by invitation. The orchestra will comprise the following members:—Prof. Doucet, 1st violin; P. E. S. Cooper, 2nd; W. A. Sanderson, cornet; C. C. Hampshire, violoncello; W. Lech, pianist. The club will practice every Wednesday evening at Mr. Elliott's rooms, part songs, glees and classical music being what they will principally undertake. They evidently believe in taking time by the forelock, for they held quite a successful practice before breaking up last evening.

Mr. Charles Stapleton's auction sale of oil paintings, steel engravings and water colors opens this evening at the store opposite the Grand Central hotel. Come and see the grand display.

Entrance Examination.

The next examinations for admission to the Peterborough Collegiate Institute will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 21st, 22nd and 23rd.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. F. C. Hyde, piano and organ tuner, is in town for a few days, and is prepared to do first class work. All work guaranteed. Leave orders at D. Smart's.

Orange Entertainment.

This evening being the anniversary of the attempt by the infamous Guy Fawkes to blow up the British Houses of Parliament, the Orangemen will celebrate the failure of the plot and capture of the miscreant by a grand entertainment to be given in their spacious hall over China Hall, at the corner of Simcoe and George streets. The programme comprises a number of choice readings, solos, quartettes and an exhibition of [illegible] sword feats by Professor Reid, late fencing master of the Toronto and Montreal fencing clubs. Mr. D. Galletly, who won such renown by his Scotch vocalism at Toronto recently, will also be one of the performers. Tickets 25c., which admit lady and gentleman, or gentleman only.

Beware of Burglars.

As the cold weather creeps on, the danger from sneak thieves, robbers and burglars increases. During the summer this gentry has fared pretty well on the tramp, but the bad roads and cold weather shut off that avenue to support and they flock to centres of population where their spoil is more concentrated, more come-at-able, and the epidemic of thievery breaks out. Toronto is undergoing a severe attack and her streets are not safe at night at all and very often not in day time. Snatching satchels from ladies is a favorite daylight pastime, and at night "holding up" gentlemen obtains. Guelph has been also favored with a visit of burglars and there is a possibility of Peterborough also receiving the attention of sneak thieves and burglars. The police should, and, doubtless, will, keep a sharp look out, but the citizens should help protect themselves by seeing that the doors and other entrances to their premises are securely fastened, especially after night fall. Old Tommy Tusser's terse saw, "safe bind, safe find," has been knocking about for over three hundred years, but it has lost none of its force, and our citizens may escape loss by heeding it.

What We May Expect.

Professor Reid to astonish the boys at the Orange Hall with his sword feats and ventriloquism.

And Davie Galletely to charm them with his singing.

The Harmony Club to be a grand success.

The Philharmonic Society's practice this evening.

The young ladies who attended St. John's School House last night to have learned a few wrinkles that will be useful in the sick room.

Missionary meeting at St. Luke's School House this evening.

The Mikado.

Moderate winds, partly cloudy weather, not much change in temperature.

We Would Like to Know.

Whether cow owners are getting wise and keeping their cattle at home.

If Peterborough, with its "Daniel," Philharmonic and Harmony Club, is not a pretty musical town.

Why the Finance Committee could not get together a quorum last night.

Whether any of the ladies who attended Miss Peck's lecture last evening will volunteer as hospital nurses.

When it's going to snow.

If it would not be a good idea to make the tramps who stay here over night scrape the street crossings before leaving in the morning.

If its true that the G. T. R. contemplated a reduction in their employes' wages.

What They are Saying.

I'm president of the Harmony Club.—Alick.

And I'm secretary and carry the boodle, and play the piano.—Willie Lech.

I'm conductor, and will show Schuch, of the Toronto Harmony Club, how he should have managed.—Professor Heathfield.

I've had a pretty easy time lately, but Beavis and the G. T. R. are making me suffer now.—His Worship at the Police Court.

Hastings.

TERRIBLE THRESHING-MILL FATALITY.

HASTINGS, Nov. 4.—This morning, as Andrew Pickens, of Percy, was engaged in cutting bands, whilst threshing on the farm of James Smith, the table on which he stood slipped and he fell head first into the cylinder. His head was severed form his body and his body otherwise horribly mangled. Deceased was 30 years of age and leaves a wife to mourn his untimely end.

On Thursday of last week, a man named McCarthy, who lives about a mile east of Havelock was engaged with a neighbour in driving some cattle to Havelock. They had a team of horses and wagon with them; a son of Mr. McCarthy's aged about 14 had the team of horses in charge following the cattle. The men's attention being directed wholly to the cattle were not aware that a few yards behind them the boy was lying in the wagon struggling in the agonies of death. Such was the case, the irregular movement of the horses indicating that something was wrong, the man McCarthy went back and was horrified to find his son in convulsions which terminated in death.—Star.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1885.

A Private School.

Mr. J. Carlon, a Classical Honor man of Trinity College, Cambridge, England, announces his intention of opening a private school for pupils of all ages and both sexes. He will also make a speciality of preparing pupils for the Matriculation Examinations at the Universities and Royal Military and other colleges, and for the Civil Service; and, being well up in the branches of study required in these examinations, will no doubt be able to afford valuable aid to aspirants in the direction indicated.

A Good Idea.

The Lindsay Post has the following item:—

"A contemporary says that the Ontario Government has issued orders for the photographing of a number of the public buildings of this province, the photographs to be sent to the Intercolonial Exhibition. Surely they will not forget to include in the list the unique and striking Queen Ann style high school buildings in Lindsay. They are an ornament to the town, a credit to the province, and would give the English people an opportunity to see the class of edifice which we sometimes build in which to educate our children. A ground plan should also be shown and a specification giving details of the beautiful wooden battlements pock-marked with putty. By all means send the photograph."

It would be a good idea, too, if they included a photograph of the Ontario House of Parliament to give our English friends an idea of the kind of barns our laws are made in.

MIKADO IS COMING.

Mr. Philip Gallan, M. P.

DUBLIN, Nov. 5.—Mr. Philip Callon, who is now a member of Parliament for Louth has announced that he is a candidate for re-election, and Mr. Parnell opposes his nomination. Mr. Callan is a Home Ruler and has always voted with the Irish party on any important division, but it is claimed that he is now insubordinate. Nobody worked harder that Phillip Callan for the success of the Irish party in Parliament, and his loyalty to Ireland has always been undoubted. He was the whip of the Irish contingent in the expiring Parliament and the overthrow of the Liberal Government was largely due to his skill and adroitness. If he be elected he will be the only Home Ruler who will go into the new Parliament unbound by Mr. Parnell's ironclad oath.

Exports of live stock from Montreal last week, 634; previous week, 1214; total export of cattle to date this year, 58,651, or 4278 more than in 1884.

Two hundred and eight packages of oil which arrived at Halifax, N. S., from the Standard Oil Co., New York, were seized the other day for non-payment of customs.

James McQuirk, aged 40, a farmer living on the 10th con. of East Nissouri, was found dead hanging to a rope in his own stable on Monday evening last. He was unmarried, but was in financial difficulties.

The Quebec Gazette of June 14, 1810, states that on that day "the fruit trees of every species between here and Montreal are as destitute of leaves as in the middle of winter, and many forest trees are in the same condition."

The schooner Pathfinder, sixty-six tons, owned at Halifax, N.S., has been purchased by a party belonging to Victoria, B.C., and is to be taken to that place by way of the Straits of Magellan, South America, a distance of about twenty thousand miles.

Montreal customs officers charge that four or five of the leading wholesale liquor and wine firms in that city have been surreptitiously withdrawing liquor from casks in bonded warehouses for some years past. One firm, it is said, has swindled the government out of duties amounting to $70,000, and the total amount of the swindles is said to be $150,000.

Campbellford.

Mr. Joseph Sloggett, of the township, recently lost four young cattle, which suddenly became sick and died. The animals' ailment took the form of swelling, and it is supposed they were poisoned, probably by eating something with their food. A short time ago Mr. Sloggett lost a cow and a horse, both of which died suddenly. Fortune is not favoring him in the early days of his wedded life.—Herald.

Dummer.

It is our sad duty this week to chronicle the sudden death of Mr. M. J. Barrie, a highly respected resident of the township of Dummer, which event took place on Sunday last. The deceased was only ill for a few days, and his sudden death has cast a gloom over the neighborhood. The remains were taken to Peterborough on Tuesday for interment in the family plot in the Little Lake Cemetery. Deceased was only in his 35th year. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved relatives.—Register.

MIKADO IS COMING.

Man.

Man is the concise yet comprehensive title of a new monthly Magazine, published at Ottawa, under the editorial supervision of Dr. Edward Playter, assisted by a corps of the first writers in Canada. It is really a very handsome publication, and is very able and spirited, and contains a nice variety of well balanced reading matter. Dr. Playter is one of our best writers, and a good and well conducted journal may confidently be expected from him. Man has been very favorably noticed by the press of the various Provinces. Canvassers are wanted in every locality. See advertisement in another column.

Norwood.

On Saturday night last the bar of the Brennan House was entered by some person or persons unknown, and three decanters, sundry flasks, etc., and $3 in cash, stolen. An entrance was effected by raising an outside window and bending the bars. A decanter, several bottles (all empty) and a corkscrew were found on the corner of Colborne and Peterborough streets the next morning.

On Friday evening last, at five o'clock, a man employed in Brown's steam saw mills, had an altercation with the proprietor, and immediately after the latter's departure commenced smashing the windows. A warrant was got out for his arrest, and constable Hill had the man safely lodged in the county jail, Peterborough, twenty miles distant, at fifteen minutes to seven, exactly one hour and three quarters after the damage had been committed.—Register.

Hastings.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Our Hastings correspondent furnishes particulars of the terrible accident, additional to the telegraphic despatch published in the DAILY EXAMINER of Thursday:—

On Monday morning last a horrible accident happened at the farm of James Smith, about two miles east of Hastings, on the Campbellford road, by which Andrew Pickens lost his life in an awfully sudden manner. He was standing on the platform of a threshing machine, watching the cleaning up of the floor, &c., when he felt the platform vibrate under him, and, in springing forward to save himself, he pitched head foremost into the machine mill, which soon severed his head and arm from his body and otherwise fearfully mangled his poor frame. He leaves a young wife, to whom he was married only last January.

Parliamentary Candidates in Britain.

The total number of candidates who have been chosen by Parliamentary associations or offered themselves in Great Britain is 1,106, of whom 907 have appeared in England, 53 in Wales, and 146 in Scotland. Four hundred and eighty-seven Liberals, 418 Conservatives and two home rulers appear in England; 32 Liberals and 21 Conservatives in Wales, and 97 Liberals and 49 Conservatives in Scotland; 408 members of the last Parliament seek election; 112 Liberals and 34 Conservatives for their present seats which have been preserved; 98 Liberals and 104 Conservatives for their present seats, as remodelled, and 41 Liberals, 22 Conservatives and 2 Home Rulers for constituencies connected with those they have represented. Three of the present members are to be put forward for more than one constituency—Mr. Gladstone for Midlothian and Shipley, Lord Randolph Churchill for Central Birmingham and South Paddington, and Mr. Bradlaugh for Northampton and East Finsbury. In 14 English and 1 Scotch constituency there is not a Liberal candidate, and in 44 English, 7 Welsh and 22 Scotch there are no Conservative candidates.

Cotton for England.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 5.—The Wandle, the first steamship of the line established between this port and Liverpool, left this afternoon with 4,000 bales cotton.

King Milan's March.

So Far and No Further, Says the Czar.

VIENNA, Nov. 5.—King Milan continues to actively prepare for war, and is making arrangments in the event of hostilities breaking out to advance from Pirot to Sofia, the capital of Bulgaria. The Servian premier, M. Garachanini, is preparing to cross the Timok River, which divides Bulgaria and Servia, with a strong force into the Widdin district. The first conflict between the Servian and Bulgarians will probably be brought on by an attempt to prevent the advance of King Milan and his force on the road to Sofia. Widdin will be attacked by the force under Mr. Garachanini only in case King Milan defeats Prince Alexander. Russia expect that the Servians will be victorious. If Servia succeeds in taking Sofia and Widdin, Russia will intervene and insist that King Milan withdraw behind the Servo-Bulgarian frontier, following the lines as indicated by the treaty of San Stefano.

Montreal's Malady.

The Disease Abating.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—The official returns of the health office this morning show 36 smallpox deaths in the city yesterday—5 in Cote St. Louis, 4 in Ste. Cunegonde, and 2 in St. Henri.

At the civic board of health to-day Dr. Laberge's report of the work done yesterday showed 49 cases reported and verified.

About 305 houses are reported placarded in the city, whereas there are 700 houses infected.

In the recorder's court to-day Eli Gagnon, who has caused the health authorities so much trouble on Rolland lane, was charged with resisting and firing upon the police in the execution of their duty. He was held over to the grand jury in bonds of $200 in himself and two securities of $100 each. At the police court the son of Eugene Gagnon, aged 21 years, was charged with resisting the police and shooting with intention to kill. He was committed to the court of queen's bench and bail taken, himself in $400 and two securities of $200 each.

An Attack on Mayor Beaugrand.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—Le Monde publishes this evening an exceedingly violent article against Mayor Beaugrand for having removed Gagnon's children to the smallpox hospital. It says that by his action he has brought shame and disgrace on the city, and that he is responsible for the death of Gagnon's child by his barbarous and inhuman conduct. It finishes by saying Montreal has the smallpox and Mayor Beaugrand and it is a question which is the worst. The Mayor has entered an action of ten thousand dollars damages against Le Monde.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 17.]

Alexander McLachlan.

"Call it not vain; they do not err
Who say that when the poet dies,
Mute Nature mourns her worshipper,
And celebrates his obsequies."
—SCOTT, Lay of the Last Minstrel.

Mr. McLachlan has wielded an industrious pen for so many years and has produced so much that is really excellent, that the task we have set ourselves, to cull a few specimens of his handiwork for the benefit of our readers, is no easy one. There is so much that is good that the abundance is embarrassing.

And yet how unaccountable it is that his works should not be better known and more highly valued by his countrymen? We have seen already that competent critics bear the highest testimony to his productions. One writer comparing him with Sangster says. "In strong human sympathy, in subtle appreciation of character, in deep, natural pathos, and in those gushes of noble and manly feeling which awaken the responsive echoes of every true heart, McLachlan is peerless." Another whose attention was drawn to his works by a notice in the Scottish-American Journal, says, after a careful perusal of one volume, "Here we have to do with a man who has escaped, in a large measure, from conventionalities and cant; who lives somewhat at the heart of nature with her eternal verities; and who, in the expression of his thoughts and feelings, 'pipes but as the linnets sing'—as naturally, nearly, and as sweetly. There is nothing that sounds unreal or hollow in his song; it comes as from the heart, and is, for the most part, strong and healthful in its tendencies."

This is the cool judgment of an experienced critic, yet to-day in hardly a town in Canada could you find a copy of the poet's works! Truly a prophet is not without honor save in his own country and in the age in which he lives.

We have said he was born at Johnston, in Renfrewshire, close by the classic "Braes o' Gleniffer" and the "bonny wood of Craigielee," so sweetly described by Tannahill. Here amid the beauties of nature he drank in that poetic thought and feeling which afterwards burst into such glorious song. He describes in many poems, those early days, and shows by his descriptive power, he was a close observer of men and things. "The wee laddie's summer day," "the Hie Craig-rock" and "I wiuna gang Hame," all describe the neighborhood where the poet was brought up, and faithfully deliniate the natural glories of the scene. One verse runs thus:—

"The burnie brattled down the brae
In her ain blithe merry din,
And lept the rocks in a cloud of spray.
And roared in the boiling linn;
And churned hersel' unto silver white,
Into bubbles green and gay,
And rumbled round in her wild delight
'Neath the rainbow's lovely ray:
And swirled and sank and rose to the brim,
Like the snow-drift on the lee,
And then in bells o' the rainbow's rim
She sang awa' to the sea."

The same power of description is seen in a poem "to a humming bird" of which we give a single verse:—

Hush thee, hush thee! not a word.
'Tis the lovely humming bird,
Like a spirit of the air
Coming from we know not where!
Bursting on our raptured sight
Like a vision of delight,
Circled in a radiant ring,
O, thou glory on the wing!
Thou'rt no thing of mortal birth,
Far too beautiful for earth,
But a thing of happy dreams;
Something fall'n from out the sky
To delight men's heart and eye,
In this weary world of ours
Wandering spirit of the flowers!

It is evident from McLachlan's poetry that his life has not been free from sorrow and heavy trial. Many of his pieces indicate severe mental struggles, intense doubt and scepticism. At times he speaks as a fatalist would, and his theology is so strongly Calvinistic that he almost denies the power of the will. But these are his dark and trying days; expressed in his own striking way thus:—

"I pondered long on this weary life,
And I cried 'Are we what we seem?
Or sail we here in a phantom ship
In search of a vanished dream?
From deep to deep, from doubt to doubt,
While the night still deeper grows;
Who knows the meaning of this life?'
When a voice replied, 'Who knows?'

Shall it always be a mystery?
Are there none to lift the veil?
Knows no one aught of the land we left,
Of the port to which we sail?
Poor ship-wrecked mariners driven about
By every wind that blows;
Is there a haven of rest at all
And the voice replied, 'Who knows?'

Oh! why have we longings infinite,
And affections deep and high,
And glorious streams of immortal things,
If they are but born to die?
Are they will-o'-wisps that gleam
Where the deadly nightshade glows?
Be they end in dust and ashes all?
And the voice still cried, 'Who knows?'"

Such words as these show plainly the darkness and gloom of the poet's soul, the deep despair into which he was cast by reflection on the mystery of life and its surroundings. Fortunately the cloud lifted, a better day dawned, the hope of immortality is no longer a phantom, the dark shadows disappear. And in that hour his song is:—

"We hoped against hope through the woeful past,
But faith's superseded by knowledge at last;
We stumble no longer 'twixt doubt and despair,
For we know there's a region surpassingly fair,
We know that the Summer-land's shining up there."

"Indian Summer" is a very charming idyl, but we can only quote the last stanza. It will, however, compare very favourably with Mrs. Moodie's well-known description of this delightful season:—

"O Indian Summer, there' in thee
A stillness, a serenity,
A spirit pure and holy,
Which makes October's gorgeous train
Seem but a pageant light and vain,
Untouched by melancholy!

But who can paint the deep serene—
The holy stillness of thy mien—
The calm that's on thy face,
Which makes us feel, despite of strife
And all the turmoil of our life,
Earth is a holy place.

Here in the woods, we'll talk with thee—
Here in thy forest sanctuary
We'll learn thy simple love;
And neither poverty nor pain,
The strife of tongues, the thirst for gain
Shall ever vex us more.

In his noble "Address to the Deity" we have such earnest thought and sublime conception, and at the same time such reverence and awe, that it will, in our judgment, compare favourably with anything of the kind to be found in the English language. We will give one or two verses only:—

"From out thy wrath the earthquakes leap,
And shake the world's foundation deep,
Till nature groans;
In agony the mountains call,
And ocean bellows throughout all
Her frightened zones.

But when Thy smile its glory sheds,
The lilies lift their lovely heads,
And the primrose rare.
And the daisy, decked with pearls,
Richer than the proudest earls,
On their mantles wear.

And old Nature's heart rejoices,
And the rivers lift their voices,
And the sounding sea.
And the mountains old and hoary,
With their diadems of glory,
Shout, Lord to Thee."

There are many poems of quite a different style in the volumes Mr. McLachlan has published. "The Backwoods Philosopher" and "Old Adam" are of rare excellence. "Whip-poor-will," a simple, tender and expressive gem, we must give entire, and with it we close, for the present, these excerpts, though many mellifluous stanzas remain, for which we would fain find room. Listen to this sweet idyl:—

There is a lonely spirit,
Which wanders through the wood,
And tells its mournful story
In every solitude;
It comes abroad at eventide,
And hangs beside the rill,
And murmurs to the passer-by
"Whip-poor-will."

O, 'tis a hapless spirit,
In likeness of a bird!
A grief that cannot utter
Another woeful word;
A soul that seeks for sympathy,
A woe that won't be still,
A wandering sorrow murmuring
"Whip-poor-will."

The Quebec Liberals.

Resolutions Passed at the Montreal Convention.

The liberal convention held at Montreal, last Thursday night, adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas, every federal union should rest upon a perfect equality between the different states or provinces joined together.

Whereas, in every well organized federation the general constitution should guarantee to each state or province an autonomy complete and absolute and revenues sufficient for the maintenance of its local institutions;

Whereas, the British North American of 1867 has proved, especially in the last few years, difficult of application with respect to those two essential points and as these difficulties have already resulted in disputes that are to be regretted and such as to endanger the existence of the Canadian federation;

Whereas, the insufficiency of the revenues of certain provinces, the arbitrary exercise of the right of disallowance of provincial acts and the adoption of certain federal measures which have necessiated the intervention of the imperial authorities, have created a general uneasiness which in the public interest should be dissipated as soon as possible;

Whereas, several provinces, with a view to ameliorate their financial embarrassments have from time to time asked the federal authorities for better terms, and as these demands are of a nature to diminish the prestige and endanger the independence of local governments;

Whereas, it is necessary exactly to define the powers to thoroughly guarantee the autonomy and to permanently assume the revenues of each province.

Whereas, it is by united action, based upon a previous understanding between all the provinces that this result can be most securely obtained.

Be it resolved: That the Reform association of Montreal affirms the necessity of a revision of the constitution of 1867 in such manner as will terminate the arbitrary control of the federal government over provincial legislation, better define the respective powers of the Dominion and the provinces, and assure to the provinces sufficient resources to render it unnecessary for them to make periodical raids upon the federal treasury.

It was also resolved that the Liberal party of the province owes its gratitude to Hon. Mr. Mercier and to his associates for the zeal, devotion and ability shown in the defence of popular rights in the legislature of Quebec.

Placing the Blame on the Right Shoulders.

I have seen the jolly, youthful, excitable, nervous, go-ahead Mayor in his official chamber. I have seen the phlegmatic government bureaucrat. I have listened to French excitement and to English abuse. In other words, the whole story from both standpoints has been told, and it would really appear to an unprejudiced observer that the responsibility for the rebellion and for all the bloodshed in the Northwest rests upon the Government of Sir John Macdonald.—Montreal Correspondent N. Y. Herald.

How Philadelphians Get Their Frogs.

A short, thick-set man, dressed in a suit of faded jeans which terminated in rubber top-boots, yesterday crept softly along the bank of a slimy ditch in "The Neck," clutching in one hand a slender pole, from which dangled a short line, and supporting with the other a large sack slung to his belt, the contents of which wriggled and squirmed in a way unpleasantly suggestive of snakes.

"What are you hunting for?"

"Frogs!" was the hoarsely-whispered answer, and the hand supporting the sack was raised as a signal.

The reporter stopped and the frog fisherman took a step nearer the ditch and softly lowered his pole. The end of the line disappeared among the flags, there was a moment of silence, the pole darted to one side, was suddenly jerked upward, and with a surprised "chunk" an immense green bullfrog lay sprawling in the road at the fisherman's feet. Before froggie could gather his faculties and hop away the man seized him, opened his sack, and thrust his slimy captive in among the mass.

"Do you eat them?"

"Sometimes; not often," was the answer. "They are very good. I could sell more than I catch, though."

"Where do you sell them?"

"My wife. She does the selling—has regular customers. I do not ask for names when the money comes."

He unclosed the squirming sack, laid aside his pole, and, seated under the spreading branches of a big willow tree, chatted for an hour. Philadelphia is a good market for the frog-hunters. There are about fifty who follow it regularly as a profession. During the season they make enough to live comfortably through the winter. An expert fisherman will catch from five to twenty-five dozen per day. The early morning and evening are the best fishing hours. The implements necessary to pursue the calling successfully are a pair of high-topped boots, a belt and sack, and a pole and line. Affixed to the end of the line is a grapnel made by soldering the shanks of three or four fishhooks together. Armed with this and equipped as above, the fisherman is ready.

Stagnant ditches are the hunting grounds, and they are found in abundance in "The Neck," along the Delaware River on both sides, and among the swamps and bogs of interior New Jersey. A frog fisherman must have a supple wrist and a quick eye. He uses no bait, but steals quietly along the ditch, rod in hand, carefully scrutinizing every secluded spot. When he spies a frog he noiselessly lowers his pole until the grapnel touches froggie. Then with a combined side and upward jerk he impales the frog on one of the sharp hooks. In removing the hook care is taken not to injure the game, for dead frogs are of no use. The result of a day's hunt is confined in a large tank at the home of the fisherman, where they are fed on corn-meal until sold. Large restaurants are the principal purchasers. Prices vary according to the size of the frog. The smallest bring 25 cents per dozen; the largest $3 per dozen. The season lasts from May until September.

WIT AND HUMOR.

The classes in carpentering which were recently established in a Cleveland public school have proved not to interfere with the regular studies, and the boys have not only developed a taste for hard work, but by their standing show that training the hands is an actual help in other school work.

Mr. Beecher says that when he spoke of the Chinese question in California, some of the newspapers mocked at him; privately the editors admitted that he was right. When he talked to the farmers, he found that they did not like the change. They said it was a hard thing for them that they could not get cheap labor.

For making pets of the brute creation, the English people beat the world. Horses are idolized by both sexes, and next in popular esteem comes the canine race. Every man of the world has his sporting dog, and every fashionable woman her favorite pug. As for cats, these are so much liked, particularly in London.—London Correspondence.

A New York doctor has been reading a paper on dreams before a medical society of that city, in which he stated that dreams differ according to the food taken into the stomach of the sleeper. "Thus," he says, "if a man sleeps with his stomach full of corned beef and other solids his dreams will be very different from what they would be if he had the same stomach distension from eating food of less gravity."

At a marriage celebration the bride was requested to sign her name in the register at the sacristy. Excitement caused her fingers to tremble; she took the pen, signed, and made an enormous ink-blot. "Must I do it over again?" she blushingly asked her husband. "No, I guess that will do, but ——" "Oh, don't scold me! I will pay more attention next time!"—French Fun.

Jim Webster, a hard-looking colored man, was brought to a justice in Austin for stealing some money from the house of Col. Jones, one of the most respectable citizens. Said the judge very impressively to Jim, "Don't you know that no good can come from stolen money—that there is a curse on it?" "Boss, I didn't know Col. Jones stole that money. I allus 'spected him ob bein an hones' man. White folks am gettin' to be mighty onreliable nowadays.'"

Just before the war, an Arkansas negro ran away and when captured and asked by an officer why he left home he replied: "I knows what I left fur." "Did the overseer whip you?" "Not particular, sah." "Then why did you leave?" "Wall, sah, da had a mowin' blade ter grin', an' wuz gwineter to make me turn de grin'stone." "I don't blame you," said the officer; "go on away. I shall not attempt to stop you."—Arkansaw Traveler.

"Please, mum," said Bridget, "I've come to give yez notice." Mrs. Beaconhill: "Why, Bridget, what do you mean? Haven't you more privileges than most domestics?" Bridget; "P'r'aps I have, mum, but iver since I've been here I've noticed that all the magazines go into the parlor, an' it's not intil iverybody in the house has rid 'em that we sees wan of them in the kitchin. All my fri'nds be talkin' of the issays, an' the stories, an' the papers, an' I feels like a fool not to be able to talk intilligintly wid me company!"

There is a doctor in this town who is too parsimonious to enjoy good health. He eats about one square meal a day, and tries to make himself believe he gets two more, but he don't, for breakfast and supper are merely a sham.

Not contented with starving himself and family he has just hit on a new scheme to starve his horse and yet make the poor animal think it is his own fault that he don't get fatter.

In the back of the part of the manger, where the corn is put, he has set a square piece of looking-glass, which he keeps brightly polished. He puts in about four ears of corn and of course the poor horse sees the reflection and braces himself for a good square meal, fondly imagining that he is getting eight. As he eats the corn off the cobs, the fictitious ears also disappear, and eight cobs appear to his astonished eyes. He then wonders how he can have gotten away with eight ears and yet feel no more weight in his stomach. This conundrum, added to the light feed, is wearing the poor animal away so fast that if the doctor don't make a change ere long, he will go around killing his patients on foot.—Evansville Argus.

—JUDICIAL—

SALE OF FARM LAND,

In the Township of Otonabee,

within six miles of the Town of Peterborough

Under and by virtue of a judgment of the High Court of Justice for Ontario, and in the Chancery Division thereof, made in the action of HARTLEY et al., vs. BEAVIS et al., and dated the Fourth day of September, A.D., 1885, there will be offered for sale, with the approval of the Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature at Peterborough, at his Chambers, in the said Town of Peterborough on

at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon, the following valuable farm property viz:—

The West Half of Lot Number 20, in the 10th Concession of the said Township of Otonabee, containing one hundred acres more or less.

Upon the said property there are about 25 acres of hardwood land, the remainder thereof being cleared and under cultivation.

There are upon the said premises two barns and a log dwelling house, with woodshed attached, and a never-failing well. One of said barns is frame, 40 feet x 30 feet; the other a post barn, 50 feet x 37 feet; the said dwelling house is 30 feet x 20 feet. The soil is clay or clay loam, and well adapted for raising wheat and other grains, and the property is situated in a first-class farming locality, within six miles of the Town of Peterborough.

The said premises will be sold subject to a lease thereof to Samuel Heatherly and John Heatherly, the Lessees therein mentioned, which has one year to run from 1st March, 1886, at a yearly rental of $159.60 per annum, and which said lease [illegible] premises may determine the said lease upon giving to the Lessees one month's notice in writing, and paying to said Lessees the value of any crops then upon said premises, and whatever ploughing he may have done on said premises; and a reasonable sum to pay the expenses of removal from said premises. Said lands shall also be sold subject to the condition that the current year's rent, due upon the 28th Feby., 1886, shall be paid to the now owners of said lands.

TERMS:

Ten per cent of the purchase money to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of the sale, and the balance of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter without interest.

Other terms and conditions will be the standing conditions of the Court.

For other terms and particulars, apply gratis to Messrs. Hatton & Wood, Barristers, Peterborough, or E. A. Peck, Esquire, Barrister, Peterborough.

Dated at Peterborough, this 29th Sept., 1885.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Mr. Charles Stapleton's auction sale of oil paintings, steel engravings and water colors opens this evening at the store opposite the Grand Central hotel. Come and see the grand display.

Philharmonic Society.

The unfavorable weather last evening kept many members of this organization from attending the regular practice then held, but those who were present held a meeting.

Dufferin Literary Association.

The debate of this association hold their weekly meeting this evening, when they will discuss the question of independence as connected with the future of the Dominion.

"At Home."

The Ladies' Aid of the George Street Methodist Church will give an "At Home" in the Lecture Room of the Church, on Thanksgiving evening, November 12th. Go and enjoy yourself.

The First Visit.

Dr. Kincaid, the first of the staff to take charge of the Nicholls Hospital, paid hist initial visit to that institution this morning. He found everything running smoothly and the two patients progressing favorably.

Entertained by the Pastor.

A few evenings ago the choir of the Murray street Baptist Church, after having practised, were invited by Rev. A. H. Munro to the pastor's parlor, where, much to their surprise, they found that he had provided for them an elegant little collation. After ample justice had been done to the pastor's good fare, he entertained his guests most agreeably for the remainder of the evening, exhibiting a collection of interesting objects to them, and otherwise making the time pass pleasantly. The choir greatly appreciated Mr. Munro's delicate hospitality.

MIKADO IS COMING.

A Novel Heating Apparatus.

The William Hamilton Manufacturing Company have made a new departure, and are this winter manufacturing stoves of original and improved design for heating houses, halls, churches, etc., where a strong radiating power and facility to keep up an equable tempature is required. The heater is the invention of Rev. Mr. Gee, of Norwood, who has shown great ingenuity and knowledge of the law of heat in its design. The heater consists of a shell or cylinder of wrought iron about two feet in diameter and four feet in length, and having at one end a grate two feet wide for burning wood. On the upper side of this wrought iron cylinder or drum are affixed five smaller cylinders, or heating pipes, communicating with the main cylinder, and when the fire is made the heat rises through a damper arrangement into these, passing from one to the other in such a way as to secure a radiation of the heat. The stove is built into a brick arch, and being of wrought iron emits none of the disagreeable gases common to stoves of cast iron. Last year the firm constructed five of these novel stoves, and this year are building quite a large number of them. Seven of them are in use in the village of Norwood and vicinity. The attention of Mr. D. W. Dumble having been drawn to their superior heating qualities and the principals on which they are manufactured, he recommended them to the trustees of George Street Methodis Church, who are taking out their cast iron heater and replacing it with a large one of the Hamilton pattern, made entirely of steel, which is being constructed for them. Persons who have used the Hamilton Heaters are loud in their praise of their economical qualities and the steady even heat which they diffuse. There is every prospect of their becoming greatly in demand. The building committee of the St. Andrews Church are considering the advisability of heating their new church with one of these stoves. They will no doubt become very popular, and meet the demand which their merit deserves.

Attend Stapleton's auction sale of oil paintings, etc., to-night, at the store opposite Grand Central hotel.

Oysters, Oysters!

Ladies are particularly invited to attend Stapleton's auction sale of oil paintings, steel engravings and water colors at the store opposite Grand Central hotel. Sale every afternoon and evening this week. Charles Stapleton, auctioneer.

MIKADO IS COMING.

Expected Home.

The party of deer stalkers who, a week ago last Saturday, left the Oriental hotel for the wild fastnesses of the primeval forest beyond Buckhorn, are expected to return laden with spoils to-day. When Jim McIntyre, Sim Morrison and Professor Reid, who had had enough of the fun a week ago returned, the party had slain five antlered monarchs of the wood, and if the party have kept on at the rate they started, venison will be a drug on the provision market to-morrow. Herb. Kent returns with the party, and telephone subscribers may expect to hear his delicately modulated "hello" reverberating through their instruments on Monday.

Conscience Coin.

Conscience makes cowards of us all and sometimes makes men honest—in a way. Some two years ago, when Mr. Thos. E. Bell was salesman of Cherry Grove cheese factory, Smith, a cheese was stolen from the factory. Every effort was made to trace the missing cheese, but without success. The amount representing its value was set down in the profit and loss account, and no more was thought of the matter. A day or two ago, however, Mr. Bell received a letter with an enclosure of $10, and an explanatory note to the effect that the cheese was taken by way of a lark, and that the $10.00 would not only cover the cost of the missing property—$6—cheese was ten cents per pound at the time—but the balance would be an equivalent for the trouble and expense the salesmen and officials of the factory had been put to.

Week of Prayer.

For twenty years the Young Men's Christian Association throughout the world have observed the week following the second Sabbath in November as a week of prayer and effort in behalf of young men. The Peterborough Y. M. C. A. cordially invite the entire Christian public to unite with them this year as usual, both in public and in private, in the observance of this season. A public union meeting will be held on Sunday, Nov. 8th, at 3.15 p.m., in the school room of the George street Methodist Church. The Y.M. C.A. work throughout the world will be presented by Messrs. J. W. Flavelle, Sheriff Hall and Geo. E. Williams. Special meetings for young men will be held during the week as follows:—

Tuesday, Nov. 10th—Bible class; Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D.

Thursday, Nov. 12th—Rev. A. H. Munro.

Friday, Nov. 13th—Rev. I. Tovell.

Saturday, Nov. 14th—Rev. E. F. Torrance, M.A.

These meetings will all begin at eight o'clock.

The meetings will be made as interesting as possible and all young men are urged to attend.

The Orange Concert.

A Highly Pleasant and Creditable Entertainment.

The steadily pelting rain storm that prevailed last evening, making the home fireside the most desirable place for the lover of comfort, did not deter a large audience from assembling at the Orange concert held in the hall at the corner of Simcoe and George streets, and those who braved the storm to attend it were well repaid, for no more thoroughly enjoyable musical entertainment has ever been given in town. Mr. J. B. McWilliams made a model chairman, and the programme was entered upon without any unnecessary delay. The opening number was a quartette, "Cousin Jedediah," in which the parts were creditably sustained by the Misses Logan and Stephens and Messrs. Galletly and Moore. An exhibition of ventriloquism, by Prof. Reid, followed, the mimicry being exceedingly good. Mr. D. D. Galletly then gave the song "Kitty Tyrell" in his usual happy style, meeting with loud applause. Prof. Reid recited "The Moneyless Man" very creditably, after which Miss Logan and Miss Stephens sang a very pretty duet, "In the Starlight, in which their well-trained and carefully controlled voices showed to great advantage. The first part of the entertainment terminated by Mr. Galletly singing that gem of Irish song, "The Harp that Once Through Tara's Hall," which he rendered with deep pathos and great musical expression.

Part 2 was opened with a duet by Miss Logan and Mr. Galletly, "Rachel and Reuben." This was undoubtedly the piece de resistance of the evening, and elicited a vociferous encore, to which the favored lady and gentleman responded by singing "The Hunting Tower." "The Raven," a pleasing quartette, taken by Misses Logan and Stephens and Messrs. Galletly and Moore, was the next number, after which Master Roland McWilliams recited "The Widow's Mite" in a manner that greatly redounded to his credit. Miss Stephens and Mr. Galletley next gave the duet "All's Well," which, like its predecessor, was excellently rendered. Prof. Reid then gave his clever exhibition of dexterity in the use of the sword, which excited much admiration, and the programme was concluded by the quartette, "The Last Rose of Summer," sung by Misses Stephens and Logan and Messrs. Moore and Galletly. The audience dispersed after "God Save the Queen," in which all heartily joined, had been sung. The gentlemen upon whom the management devolved, and the ladies and gentlemen who lent their musical abilities, are to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment.

Binding for the People.

To-day there were sent out from the EXAMINER Bindery, to different parts of the district, 90 volumes of various works, the binding of which had been completed there during the last few days.

Go Thou, Etc.

The EXAMINER office has had gas laid on in all its departments, and henceforth the fitful oil lamps and the battered coal oil can will be relegated to the dust bin. It will now be in order for our ———, but nuff sed. Mr. William Drury made a first-rate job of putting in the EXAMINER fixtures.

Healthy for the Hotels.

During the past few days there has been quite an influx of travel to Peterborough and the leading hotels are doing a rushing business. Every room at the Oriental was filled last night, and applicants for quarters had to seek them elsewhere. Mac smiles genially and thinks attending to the wants of his patrons better fun than freezing in the tent 40 miles beyond Buckhorn.

He states that the new Idiot Asylum is under construction at Orillia, the contract being let for $100,000. Dr. Beaton was here three years ago with the Orillia curlers and expresses great astonishment at the remarkable progress the town has made during the interval. He greatly admired the excellent character of the public and residence buildings and thought the prospects of the town for becoming a city at an early date were very bright.

Mind Reading.

A New Livery Stable.

The genial face of Billy McGregor will soon be missed from behind the bar of the Oriental hotel, he and his brother being about to open out a livery and boarding stable on Chambers street. They will start with an entirely new stock of buggies and carriages, and being both experienced and careful horsemen, any animals intrusted to their charge are sure to be well looked after. Their establishment will be opened about the middle of this month.

Horticultural Society.

A meeting was held at the Bank of Toronto on Friday afternoon of the directors of the Horticultural Society. Mr. James Stevenson, who has had in charge the disbursements of moneys in connection with the improvements of the Court House Park, submitted a detailed statement of the receipts and expenditures of the past season in that connection. The amount expended foots up to $1,292.76, which sum Mr. Stevenson paid out of his private funds. The amount paid in to the Treasurer from all sources to date was $435, so that a balance of $857.76 is due to Mr. Stevenson. That gentleman, with his accustomed liberality has made a present of the fountain, which cost $250, and a further donation of $250 to the society, which reduces the balance due to him to about $257.

The Treasurer, Mr. F. J. Lewis, also submitted his financial statement of the Horticultural Society, as follows:—

Cash on hand January 1st, 1885	$143.56
Total amount of receipts,	602.56
Total	$746.10
Total amount of expenditures,	$644.50
Balance on hand,	$101.60

A committee, consisting of Messrs. Dumble, Stevenson and Lewis were appointed to raise money by subscription or otherwise to clear off the debt due Mr. Stevenson on account of expenditures on the Court House Park.

A Public Spirited Citizen.

"Go Thou and do Likewise."

A year ago the beautiful slope of lawn, with fine flower plots, tidy walks, trim turf, and sparkling fountain, known and admired as Court House Park, was a dreary expanse of indifferent meadow land and thicket. The Peterborough Horticultural Society, a year ago took the matter in hand, and appointed a committee to wait upon the county and town councils, to solicit from both a grant of money, and from the first, authority to control the Park. The county council not only turned over the enclosure to the Society, but made an annual grant for three years of $75 per year. The Town Council gave a grant of $200 per year for the same period. The society took the matter in hand in earnest, and during the past season, not only these grants have been expended but an additional sum sufficient to bring the total outlay up to $1,292.76. Of this amount $435 was composed of the above grants, and the $110 contributed by different and others. This left a balance of something like $955 to be provided by the society. The results show that the expenditure made under the superintendence of Mr. Stevenson, was carefully and judiciously effected, and to his practical knowledge, administrative ability and sound judgment, the present beautiful condition of Court House Park is largely due. And not only this. But at the meeting of the directors of the society held yesterday, the latter had to consider provision for the adverse balance of $857 expended beyond the actual funds available. The difficulty as well as the amount was greatly reduced by Mr. James Stevenson generously contributing $250. This in addition to the cost of the fountain, in the Park, $250 the free gift of Mr. James Stevenson, makes $500 cash, out of twelve hundred odd expended, contributed by this gentleman in one season. The balance of the $847—$347—will have to be raised by private contributions, or otherwise, and the example set by Mr. Stevenson should make this a matter of but little difficulty. The generosity displayed by him is purely unselfish, for he has, at great expense, fitted up one of the finest private grounds in the town for his own enjoyment; he has been moved by a desire to maintain the credit of the town, and to contribute to the pleasure of his fellow citizens. There are many gentlemen able to emulate the action of Mr. Stevenson in the directions detailed above, and it is to be hoped they will need no further suggestions to go and "do likewise."

MIKADO IS COMING.

Honorably Acquitted.

Some time since the EXAMINER reported the arrest on a charge by the postal authorities, under somewhat mysterious circumstances, of Mr. D. Sills, a Baillieboro storekeeper. He was tried at the Cobourg assizes yesterday, and honorably acquitted.

What We May Expect.

Sermon to young men at Charlotte street church to-morrow evening.

Ditto at the Baptist church by Rev. A. H. Munro.

The young men to wait for their girls at the door as usual.

St. Paul Parker to make a marked improvement in St. Luke's choir.

A meeting of the council on Tuesday evening.

The people of Peterborough to say that Mr. James Stevenson is a public benefactor.

And think of him when they stroll in Court House Park next summer.

Strong winds or moderate gales from the east and south, mostly cloudy weather, with occasional rain.

We Would Like to Know.

Who was the bold hunter that fell out of the canoe.

And if he didn't find it cool bathing.

If we are really going to have that Opera House at last.

Why the farmers don't display more alacrity in helping to level off the exhibition grounds.

And if they wont be more lively about exhibition time next year.

What will be the subject under consideration at the next council meeting.

When the streets will be clear of mud again.

How the Dufferin debaters will finally decide the independence question.

What They are Saying.

Though through wild northern woods after deer we may roam, we have made up our minds that there's no place like home.—The returned hunters.

To be honest, my friends, I feel called on to own, 'tis time this fair Canada stood up alone.—Paul Eastwood.

I've studied the question and ne'er yet have seen any reason why we should go back on the Queen.—J. H. Long.

'Tis a question on which some more knowledge we seek, suppose we discuss it all over next week.—The Dufferin debaters.

Not a tramp, nor a drunk, not e'en a stray cow; barring putting out tan bills, we've nothing to do.—Pidgeon and Adams.

Personal.

Mr. W. Craddock, of Toronto, in about two weeks will open a store in Harper's new premises on Charlotte street, for the sale mill furnishings and supplies.

Mr. W. Brown and wife, who have been visiting in this vicinity, will leave for their home in San Francisco this evening. They go via GTR., C.B. & Q. and U.P. railways.

Sermon to Young Men.

Rev. A. H. Munro will preach a special sermon to young men in the Baptist Church to-morrow evening. At the close a special collection in aid of the Peterborough Y. M. C. A., will be taken up.

George Street Church.

The services to-morrow will be conducted by the Rev. J. Tovell. The Sacrament will be given at the close of the morning sermon. In memoriam sermon in the evening of the late Mrs. Allen. Special quarterly collections taken at both services.

Salvation Army.

A grand Convention of officers in connection with the above army, will be held in Peterborough, on Tuesday next, 10th inst. In the evening, a grand muster for barracks will take place, at 7 o'clock, after which an officers' experience and salvation meeting in their barracks, Water street, at 8 o'clock. A meeting of the Executive Board will be held on Wednesday morning at 9 a. m. In the afternoon the Rev. Mr. Baxter, President of the Blue Ribbon Gospel Army, London, Eng., will deliver an address on the "Power of Truth and Prayer." A jubilee will be held in the Opera House in the evening, when a good programme will be presented and short addresses will be delivered by the Hon. Sidney Smith, Rev. Mr. Baxter, officers and others. On Thanksgiving Day a series of meetings will be held as follows:—9 o'clock, consecration; 3 o'clock, thanksgiving service; 8 o'clock, a farewell officers and friends; 11 o'clock, holiness meeting and all night of prayer. The public are cordially invited to all public meetings.

A Truculent Wolf.

There was exhibited at the Hub Shaving Parlour last night the skin of a gigantic wolf measuring from tail to snout seven feet. This is its history. Yesterday afternoon there returned to town a hunting party composed of Messrs. James Chatten and two sons, Thomas and Henry, Fred. Cookson, Jas. Bryne, John Smith, Wm. Scully and Fred. Robinson. While one of the hounds was following four deer, on a hot scent, the party heard the sound of an encounter with wolves. The huntsmen, with five other hounds in leash, were close at hand. The hounds were at once slipped, but before they could reach the scene James Chatten had drawn bead on the wolf and brought him down, the other wolves scampering away. When the spot was reached the hound was found to be horribly mangled, and died almost immediately. After this the dogs refused to run deer, and the party, after three weeks' work, only got three animals, and these were secured before the hound was killed. They bagged, however, a large amount of other game and had, barring the wolf encounter, a pleasant outing.

MIKADO IS COMING.

The French in Madagascar.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Advices from Tamatave say the French have shot a spy who was under British protection; that the Hovas are increasing their defences; that the French shell them daily, and that there is much sickness and great mortality among the troops.

Dominion Doings.

The Traders Bank of Canada has opened a branch at Hamilton.

The Bishop of Saskatchewan has received $300 for Emmanuel College from the people of Hamilton.

A spurious $5 bill on the Bank of British North America is being circulated in the northern counties.

Mark O'Neil, of Renfrew, who recently visited Montreal, returned home, and is now laid up with smallpox.

Patrick Doyle was fined $6 and costs in Hamilton for pulling the bandage off John Blake's vaccinated arm.

Brantford customs collections for October show a decrease of $6,000 compared with the corresponding month last year.

The Paper Hunt Club of Guelph is in full blast. It is more humane than chasing a fox, but two or three men and horses get hurt every run just the same.

London, Ont., customs collections show an increase in October of $3,203.59 compared with the same month last year. The Inland Revenue collections showed a decrease of $1,266.61.

There are now about thirty women confined in Kingston penitentiary. They are quiet and apparently contented. This is the only institution in Canada where women are kept over two years.

Mr. James Stewart has made an offer of 25 cents in the dollar, secured, for the plant of the Montreal Times. The liabilities are about $12,000. The offer has been taken under consideration.

Major John Hooper, an agent of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York, took his departure from Montreal the other day, leaving liabilities amounting to $18,000, which will probably be met in fall.

Alex. Ramstadler, of Berlin, stole a ride on a Grand Trunk express. He jumped off when she was going at the rate of fifteen miles an hour. He got his head cut, and to console him he got fined $2.60 and costs at Guelph.

A new edifice is to be built on the present site of St. Mark's Roman Catholic church, Prescott.

THE EASTERN WARCLOUD.

For the last two months the telegraph despatches have been full of references to the "Balkan crisis," "the Eastern question reopened" the "status quo ante," and a good deal more that has not been very intelligible to persons not particularly conversant with the circumstances. Now that a war, which if started may end, Heaven knows where, is imminent, it will be interesting to sketch the origin of the trouble and the involved circumstances. On the 18th of last September, the people of Philippopolis, the capital of Eastern Roumelia, revolted against Turkish rule. They deposed their Governor and proclaimed union with Bulgaria, another tributary principality, lying north of, and separated from Roumelia by the Balkan mountains. The revolt was a surprise to all the European powers, and as it was a plain infraction of the Treaty of Berlin, it could not be overlooked by them. In 1877 Russia advanced almost to the gates of Constantinople, and the "Sick Man" was glad to consent to the Treaty of San Stefano, which provided for the formation of a Great Bulgaria, which was to include the territory now known as Eastern Roumelia, and even parts of Macedonia. But this was giving Russia two great leverage, as regarded the "balance of power," and the great powers, headed by England, assembled in general conference at Berlin in July 1878. Here more map making was indulged in, the result of the deliberation of the conference being that Bulgaria was limited to the regions between the Balkans and Roumania, on the north, and her position defined as an "automatic and tributary principality," under the suzerainty of the Sultan of Turkey, being allowed, however, a prince of its own selection, subject to the consent of the suzerian and the powers. Prince Alexander of Battenburg was chosen. South of Bulgaria, on the southern flank of the Balkans, Eastern Roumelia was also formed, with a Christian Governor-General, appointed by the Porte, with its own gendarmerie and militia. The latter condition enabled the Roumelians last September easily able to accomplish a decided and bloodless revolution. The new situation being as has been said, a plain infraction of the Treaty of Berlin, the signatory powers could not but enter their protest. Under the treaty, the Porte was permitted to throw troops into Bulgaria "if the internal or external security of the province should be threatened." But she hesitated, and the chance for crushing Roumelia passed by. Meantime Prince Alexander, with suspicious alacrity, reaffirmed his allegiance to the Porte, at the same time making the most complete military preparations in his power. Now two new actors appeared on the scene. Greece and Servia insisted on the restoration of the status quo ante, which is merely another way of saying "as you were"—under the Berlin treaty, and both powers went at war preparations, each in its own most vigorous little manner. The subjects of King George, of Greece, are egging him on because they want a slice of Macedonia, and King Milan, of Servia, whose principality was made independent of Turkey by the Berlin treaty, risks dethronement if he resists the inclination of his subjects for war. In the meantime a general conference has been called to consider the question, and a good deal will depend upon its action. It has decided upon a basis of discussion which will not at all be likely to please either of the revolutionary states, for it virtually seems to restore the status quo, and even while the diplomats are trying to over-reach each other, the dogs of war may be let slip, and, in such case, there is no knowing where the matter will cease, for both Austria and Russia are interested and are suspected of entertaining some deep designs in the matter. The conference will either patch up a precarious peace or the eastern question with all its possibilities for a tremendous war will be re-opened.

To-day's despatches indicate no subsidence of the war fever. Indeed, the outlook is growing more warlike. Servia and Bulgaria have both practically declined to obey the request of the conference of the Powers to disarm; and Russia and Austria are said to be mobilizing and putting on a war footing their forces along the frontier nearest the disturbed country. The Emperor William's protest against Greece's warlike attitude has only elicited the reply that the King will be powerless to control his subjects if the union of Bulgaria and Roumelia is confirmed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Knoxonian," in the Canada Presbyterian, turns the tables quite effectively on those ministers who are ready at the shortest notice to hold up holy hands of horror at the shortcomings of the party press. He gives some instructive examples of strong language and violent denunciation, from the controversial writings of two divines, which certainly discounts most of what ordinarily appears in political warfare.

J. Barr Plumb is to be made Minister of Finance. The only fitness he has ever shown for the position is his familiarity with poetic numbers. In view of J. Barr's appointment Riel has taken to writing poetry, hoping, no doubt, that he will have a sympathetic friend in the Cabinet. If his verses are as bad as Plumb's, all doubt of the justice of hanging him is removed.

Deficit Material.

To show that there is good cause for Sir Leonard Tilley's champion deficit the Globe adduces the following startling facts:—

Purchase of the Tory press with immigration pamphlets	$ 51,000
Cabinet expenses and cab hire of Ministers	29,904
Superannuations	255,367
Annual interest on cost of rebellion	100,000
Extra annual cost of governing North-west in consequence of the rebellion	500,000
Gift to Exchange Bank	200,000
Extra sessional idemnity	144,000
Probable annual cost of Franchise Act	400,000
Salary of Deputy Speaker Daly	2,000
Section B extras	760,000
Onderdonk extras	(unknown)

"Little Sweethearts."

BY JOHN READE, F.R.S.C.

I hear there is a wonderful little picture coming out that will be admired all over the continent, it is entitled "Little Sweethearts."

To me it is one of those charming creations with which one cannot help falling in love at first sight; nor does the impression depart on closer acquaintance. With simple directness, in language that all the world can understand, the artist has told his story—a story of a young romance which, nevertheless, is as old as humanity itself. He has depended for effect on no accessories of luxury or ornament. All his creative thought and sympathetic insight and magic skill of craft have been centred on the two youthful figures which gave the picture its name. What charming "little sweethearts" they are! The handsome boy, with his peach-like skin and bronzed complexion, with the half-forgotten love offering of strawberries in one brown hand, while the other rests carelessly on the shoulder of the little maid, on whose face he gazes so fondly; and the little maid herself, with her wreath of amber hair, the eyes half arch, half tender, and the sweetly smiling lips, conscious of the just uttered assurance of the old rhyme:

"If you love me as I love you Nothing shall ever part us two."

The whole conception is admirable, and not less so is the execution in reproduction as in the orginal. There is nothing artificial, nothing adventitious. The manly beauty of the boy lover, the lovely witchery of the girl's face, manner and expression, are set off by noalien finery. His dress is that of the peasant class to which he belongs. Her sole ornament is a small cross pendant from a ribbon round her neck. Gesture, look, tone, combine most eloquently to impart the meaning of the scene. Nothing trival or far-fetched diverts atttention from the main motive. The sombre background of cloudy sky, seen through interlacing branches, makes more empathic the bright joyousness of the young forms and faces. Though there is no doubt of the boy's affection or of the girl's love and faith, neither of them can have as yet begun to take life au serieux. The reflection may suggest a touch of pathos in connection with a love-making that takes no thought of to-morrow, as the possibilties of that morrow obtrude themselves on the mind of the experienced beholder. To those who have passed the season of "love's young dream," it is like a glimpse of a far-off world long since left behind; the world which they knew before the years of wild romantic worship, of passion and conflict with life's stern realities. It brings back the guilelessness of an age too candid either to wilfully deceive or to fear deceit—an age when everything, animate and inanimate, still bore the seal of the Creator's sanction and was seen to be good; when at each returning dawn the though recurred:—

"How good is man's life—the mere living; how fit to employ
All the heart and the soul and the senses for ever in joy."

Joy in its association with love—the true romantic association—is what to me the picture suggests. To be sure, every picture, like every word, has a distinct message for each individual. No two persons look at it from the same point of view. There are some pictures, notwithstanding, that appeal to the general heart of mankind and can hardly be interpreted amiss. The "Little Sweethearts" is one of them; it speaks to the world at large in a language that would be quite intelligible in Babel itself. That fastidious sensibility or rather sensitiveness which special culture is expected to confer is, fortunately, not needed for its appreciation. All normally constituted persons of fair education and delicacy of thought have sufficiently developed the instincts of art and taste to enable them to seize its significance and rejoice in its beauty. The artistic wonder can be secured by subscribers to the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal. It is not for sale. Send a postal card for particulars.

LETTER FROM DENVER.

PICTURES OF TWO NEWSPAPER MEN IN THE FAR WEST.

Col. Donan, Boomer of Dakota—Dan De Quille, Who Knows More About Mines Than Any Other Journalist.

[Special Correspondence.]

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 24.—Dakota points with pride to her No. 1 hard wheat, a million bushels to the acre, more or less. Her blizzards beat creation. But the product for which Dakota is most of all noted is Col. P. Donan. Where he has not been heard of in these United States Methodist preachers and circuses do not go.

He is not quite native to the wheat territory, however. Dakota was the making of him, but it did not born him. Mississippi did that. His father was a Presbyterian minister. History has not recorded the date of his birth. In point of fact, being a bachelor, Col. Donan does not tell how old he is. His hair, if you were to see it under his wild western hat, is not yet gray, nor his eyes dimmed by envious time. We read, however, in a sketch of his life, that he entered the Confederate service "as a boy" in 1861. So that it appears he is not too utterly young any more, but just old enough.

From being a Confederate soldier he turned newspaper man. For some years "after the war" he continued to fight on paper as one of the most rampant unreconstructed rebels of his time. He prided himself on it. He edited several bitterly [illegible] papers. Then, about 1877, a change of his life says that he became "disgusted by the failure of the south and northern people to stand up to the pledges he had made for them," and he shook the dust of "my section" off his feet, and came north.

He announced himself "for northern civilization" in a letter to The Chicago Times of May 1, 1879. He went to the northwest and, with all the energy of a fiery, untamed soul he began to glorify Dakota and the railroads running thitherwards. From his "beautiful bonanza farm" at Devil's lake, in that fine young territory, he sends booms that echo round the world.

"Dakota," says Col. Donan, "is the sole remaining quarter section of paradise in this western world. It is no uncommon thing for a whole Dakota family to sit on one end of a potato while the other is roasting in the fire. * * * * We hatch our own wild geese, of such dimensions that eastern and southern tenderfeet are liable to mistake them for winged hippopotami, on lakes of never-freezing rose water and eologne. We wall up for wells the holes from which we pull, with steam derricks and 1,800-horse power engines, our radishes and beets, and make cowsheds and circus tents of our turnip rinds. We put rockers under our empty pea-pods and use them for cradles."

COL. DONAN.

[Photographed by Falk, New York.]

Col. Donan's eloquence is only equaled by his modesty.

He is a whole brass band himself when he undertakes to toot the horn of Dakota's greatness. He has been a correspondent of many papers of the country. He was editor of The Deadwood Pioneer, in the Black Hills, a while. In 1881 he took charge of The Argus, in Fargo, Dakota, and made it hum. After he went to Dakota he became so throughly reconstructed that he was sent as a Republican delegate to congress.

Whenever a talented man fully identifies himself with the interests of one of the new western states and territories, they don't care what his politics is or has been. They send him to congress anyhow.

While in charge of The Argus he is said to have accomplished great feats in editing. From the sketch of his life before mentioned one read:

"The night that the telegraph announced the death of President Garfield, Col. Donan was routed from his sleep, and while a printer held a lamp he sat on the edge of [illegible] his night clothes (we regret there is no picturograph of this scene) and wrote an editorial which was copied throughout the United States and commented on as one of the most affecting tributes brought out by that occasion."

The colonel piloted an excursion of southerners to Dakota on one occasion "to educate them." Another time, when "200 gallant Methodist preachers" came together to hold a conference in Fargo, Col. Donan welcomed them at the railway station with a brass band and carriages. Yet, again, a party of young ladies visited Dakota. Concerning this occasion, we cannot do better than to quote from the pleasing and instructive sketch to which we are already so much indebted.

"This score or more of charming young ladies, who had never before been permitted absence from the side of their mothers, were cheerfully placed in his charge, the matrons knowing how careful and attentive the colonel could be, and how devoted he ever is to the fair sex, who seem to return the admiration without stint."

The colonel is not, however, as devoted to the fair sex as he might be or ought to be. Why is he a bachelor? Indeed, he has published a screed on the subject, which does not look as though he was going to be married soon, either.

One February he sent a valentine through the press to the "girls of America," urging them to come to Dakota and get husbands. He said: "Girls of the woman-crowded, old-maid-accumulating older states, here you are needed; here you are at a premium; here you are sure of a dozen husbands apiece if you want them." It is said he received several hundred letters in answer from women everywhere, who wanted to be married. One accomplished girl declared she would be very grateful to him if he would get her a husband. It ought to have melted a heart of stone, but still the colonel did not offer to sacrifice himself.

In person he is slender and very tall. He has a pair of the longest, limberest lower extremities to be found this side of a daddy-long-legs. He twists them about constantly. [illegible] He says he has spurs that he would like to go through life dancing a jig.

Dan De Quille.

The countenance in the accompanying illustration does not look like that of a funny writer. It rather reminds one of Thackeray's lines:

"He shows you when his mask is off
A face that's anything but gay."

W. W. WEIGHT.

Yet it is the portrait of a man whom some good judges consider to be quite the equal of Mark Twain in humor. His real name is W. W. Wright. He and Mark Twain were reporters on The Virginia Enterprise together. Mark was never a thin skinned man, as far as other people were concerned, or a very kindly one. Moreover, he never failed to look out for No. 1. He used to play awkward jokes on his brother reporter which were little short of brutal. De Quille had the finer nature of the two, as may be seen from the thin, sensitive face. He can write anything from a ghost story to a funny column in a newspaper. There is a subtle pathos in his more imaginative writing that is quite wanting in the efforts of his brother humorist. But Mark Twain has been successful. Dan de Quille has not. This is a strange world.

De Quille is, beyond doubt, the best informed mining journalist in the United States. On this subject he is absolute authority. A private letter of his has come into my hands. It is so simple, so modest, that I give it here. A faint gleam of melancholy plays about it, hinting at what no words of the writer mention, of disappointments, of rebuffs that downed a sensitive man, of failures that may be after all only successes wrong side out. Mr. Wright says:

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev., Oct. 21, 1885.

I have just received your letter of Sept. 28, asking for my photograph and a slight sketch of my mundane pilgrimage. I enclose a photograph of myself—old and gray. All men desire to live long, yet no one wishes to be old; though if we live long we must become old. As regards a sketch of my life, I may make the answer made by Jacob of old to Pharaoh: "Few and evil have the days of the years of my life been, and have not attained unto the days of the years of the life of my fathers in the days of their pilgrimage." Other than this there is little to say. I was born in Knox county, O., May 9, 1829. On my father's side my people were Quakers. They "came over" with William Penn, and settled in Philadelphia. From Philadelphia they went into the state of Virginia, and settled in London county. From Virginia they moved into Ohio, when that state was a wilderness and still infested by bands of roaming Indians. In 1835 I went from Ohio to Muscatine county, Ia., and left Iowa in 1857 for California. I mined in Nevada county, Cal., till 1860, meantime prospecting through all the southern camps of that state, and crossing the Sierra Nevada mountains to Mono lake by way of the Yosemite falls. In the spring of 1860 I came to the Comstock silver mines, Virginia City, Nev., and have since resided here. In 1861 I became connected with The Territorial Enterprise as local and mining editor. I have been engaged on The Enterprise ever since until about eight months ago, since which time I have been writing for various papers on both sides of the continent—Bohemianizing, in fact. I began writing letters and sketches in Iowa for local papers, and for two or three years while in California wrote many sketches and letters for The Golden Era, Nevada City Journal and other papers. Of perils by "flood and field," and ups and downs of fortune, I shall say nothing. That I am still in the harness should be pretty good evidence that I have carried off nobody's silver mine.

Yours respectfully, DAN DE QUILLE.

With this letter I close the sketch of two famous far western newspaper men.

Ay, a' ae oo!

It has been said that the Scottish dialect is peculiarly powerful in its use of vowels, and the following dialogue between a shopman and a Customer has been given as a specimen. The conversation may relate to a pair of Blankets hanging at Alexander's store door.

CUS.—(inquiring the material—oo? (wool?)

SHOP.—Ay, oo? (Yes, of wool).

CUS.—A' oo? (All wool?)

SHOP.—Ay, a' oo. (Yes, all wool.)

CUS.—A'ne oo? (All same wool?)

SHOP.—Ay, a' ae oo. (Yes, all same wool).

Alexander has got the best variety of all Wool Flannels and Blankets he has ever shown, and at prices that will effect sales every time. Call and see his prices or send for samples.

The Daily Examiner.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Mr. Charles Stapleton's auction sale of oil paintings, steel engravings and water colors opens this evening at the store opposite the Grand Central hotel. Come and see the grand display.

A Reminiscence.

An ancient resident says that the lot where the two stores on George street have just been torn down is the site of the first law office ever opened in Peterborough, which was carried on by the late George Hall, afterwards Judge Hall. It was a mere shanty.

Charlotte Street Church.

The quarterly services of this church will take place to-morrow. Love-feast at 9.30 a. m., and the Lord's supper at the close of the regular morning service. The pastor, Rev. F. H. Wallace, M. A., B. D., will preach both morning and evening. The evening sermon will be specially to young men on "Manhood."

Compliments from Cobourg.

The following extract is from a letter received from Cobourg this morning, and is only one of the many flattering notices of the binding done in the EXAMINER bindery, that are being received daily:—"The books came to hand last week in good condition; the work is satisfactory in all respects and does credit to your establishment. I shall take pleasure in recommending your bindery to my friends."

MIKADO IS COMING.

Two Weeks in the Wilderness.

A party of mighty hunters, laden with nine deer, struck town last night, having spent the last two weeks freezing in camp in the northern wilderness. They were J. Clancy, M. McFadden, H. Kent, L. Kent, town; and W. Wilson, Chatham. They don't entertain a remarkably high idea of deer stalking as carried on up there, the plan being to drive the animals into the water and shoot them in a defenceless state. The greatest excitement is to see them, chased by the hounds, dash out of the woods and plunge, perhaps from a high cliff, into the water, where the hunter follows them in a canoe and gets his shot at them. Getting them ashore and to camp gives the nimrod plenty of exhilarating exercise, and in spite of the unfavorable weather the party all look and feel the better of their two weeks in the wilderness.

Rev. S. A. Dyke.

This gentleman, who is one of the best known and highly respected ministers of the Baptist denomination, has many friends in Peterborough, who will be sorry to learn that he has resigned his position in Toronto and is about to remove to Colorado. Mr. Dyke preached his farewell sermons on Sunday last to large audiences. At a meeting held on Monday, an illuminated address of a highly complimentary character was presented to himself, and a silver tea-service to Mrs. Dyke. Mr. Dyke has been one of the most useful men that the Baptists of Ontario have ever had in their ranks. He organized the Parliament street Baptist church in 1872 with a membership of 33, and left it over 200 strong, and during his pastorate there he started the Lewis street interest, and built the neat little church which now stands on the Kingston road at the head of Lewis street. When he became pastor of College street in 1876, the membership was less than 100; there are now on the roll upwards of 260. And the new church at Doverecourt road has received not only its largest accessions from the College street church, but Mr. Dyke was instramental in securing the fine lot on which the church stands, and the first subscription of $600 towards its funds. In 1880 and 1881 he received leave of absence from the church to canvas for the endowment fund of Woodstock College, and succeeded in raising a subscription list of over $80,000, some $50,000 of which has already been paid. We wish him both happiness and success in his new field of labor.

To Subscribers.

Subscribers to the DAILY EVENING EXAMINER will greatly oblige us by reporting promptly any neglect in the delivery of their paper.

MIKADO IS COMING.

Musical Appointment.

Mr. J. S. Parker, organist of St. Paul's Church, has undertaken the training of the choir of St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham.

Levelling the Exhibition Grounds.

Thursday last was the day appointed upon which a number of farmers from the country were to send in teams and men for the purpose of farther levelling off the exhibition grounds. The only farmers who sent in their teams, however, were Messrs. Jas. Davidson, Jos. Redmond, R. Vance, Wm. Rutherford, Wm. Collins, C. W. Fitzgerald and J. J. Bennett. These, however, applied themselves to the work with so much energy that they succeeded in taking about two feet off the knoll on which the main tent stood at the last exhibition, leaving a level site for the main building to be erected on. It is a matter of wonder that so little interest is manifested in this work by the agriculturalists who reap the benefit of the association, and were it not for the enthusiasm of the townspeople and a few of the more enterprising farmers, the efforts being put forth to make a success of the Central Exhibition, that enterprise would not have a very bright look out.

The regular weekly meeting of the Dufferin Literary Association was held last evening in the rooms of the Mechanics' Institute, the Honorary President of the Association, Mr. D. W. Dumble, gracing the chair. As previously announced the debate of the evening was on the following resolution:—

"Resolved, that Canadian independence is preferable to our present system." The debate, which was led on the affirmative side by Mr. P. Eastwood, and the negative by Mr. J. H. Long, President of the Association, was a protracted and spirited one, indeed, so much interest did the subject evoke that it was decided to continue the debate at the next meeting of the Association. After the debate had been concluded the meeting was addressed by the chairman, who gave the young Ruperts some valuable hints as to the preparation of their speeches.

Mind Reading.

An Opera House for Peterborough.

A new opera house has been regarded by some as one of the most pressing public wants of Peterborough, but although much talk has at different times been indulged in with regard to the erection of such an edifice, nothing tangible has ever come of it. Lovers of the drama will therefore be glad to learn that at last there is a good prospect of the speedy erection of an Opera House that will equal, if not surpass that of any town of similar size in Canada. For some time past the Freemasons have felt the want of a hall, and putting their heads together and consulting with an enterprising capitalist, the idea was mooted of a joint Masonic hall and opera house. A number of meetings have been held in connection with the matter, and it is almost a certainty now that building operations will soon be commenced on the lot adjoining the Oriental Hotel, on Hunter Street. Indeed, plans have been already prepared by Mr. J. E. Belcher for the building. The building will consist of two handsome modern stores on the ground floor, between which will be the arcade or entrance to the opera house, which will also be on the ground floor. Above these stores will be offices, and on the third floor will be the Masonic hall. The theatre will be connected with the Oriental Hotel, close to which it will stand; this will be a great convenience for the members of the troupes playing in it. The matter is now brought almost to a focus, with every prospect of the plan being carried out.

A Prairie Farmer.

Mr. C. W. Nicholls, who left Peterborough about a year ago, to make a home for himself in Nebraska, is paying a visit to his friends in town, and called at the EXAMINER office this morning. Mr. Nicholls has a farm of 320 acres in Gage County, Nebraska, not far from the county town of Beatrice, which he describes as a rapidly growing little city. Of this farm Mr. Nicholls has 215 acres under good cultivation, the staple crop raised being corn, which in all parts of the Western States is the principal product of the soil, and of which he raised 4000 bushels during last season. He says that stock raising is carried on to a large extent, and some wheat is also grown. He speaks very favorably of the climate, which he says is milder than our own, and freer from rain. He has built for himself a large two-story house, from the upper windows of which may be seen no less than eighty farm houses dotting the surface of the surrounding country. The land is mostly rolling prairie and tree planting is extensively carried on; trees growing very rapidly, groves only ten years old attaining an average height of fifty feet. Mr. Nicholls has himself planted three thousand trees, box, elder, cottonwood, black walnut and soft maple. He is quite pleased with his new home and speaks favorably of it as a field for emigration, though all the land is taken up, and now sells at from $25 an acre upwards. An excellent arrangement he says prevails to deter land speculators from holding large quantities. The land that has never been cultivated is assessed just as highly as that in the most advanced state of improvement. After spending a few weeks with his friends here, Mr. Nicholls will return to his prairie home.

No Time Like the Present.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, is the time to turn your advocacy into practice by encouraging home manufacture. Do not follow the example of the grangers, when you have an establishment here of which Toronto, nor even Montreal, can boast of a better. No exemption or bonus has ever been asked, this being the 25th winter season since established. Extra efforts have been made to reduce prices of selected furs to the low prices of wholesale make of goods, made for a sell. A quarter of a century of successful manufacture is the best guarantee that one can give of his goods, of which most people can not know much about the make-up, for outward look is but a poor show of inner quality.

2d-2w WM. LECH.

Mind Reading.

What Is It?

A hint in the EXAMINER last evening that we would like to know the proper pronunciation of MIKADO, brought us such a voluminous mail this morning that we have only just got through with its perusal. Our esteemed friend, Mickey Houlaghan, who [illegible] ruption of "Mickey, do," a term which originated in Japan, when a son of Brian Boru was Tycoon of that country. Another communication, which has a delicate odour of Frangipani, and is written in an elegant angular hand, tells us that the writer, who took two courses of Italian lessons from an Italian Count, who kept a peanut stand on Yonge street, Toronto, states that the correct way of pronouncing the word is Mi-kah-do, with the emphasis on the "kah." Our own dude correspondent, whose school taxes having been paid by a noted philanthropist, has acquired a good idea of foreign languages, and especially Japanese, is strong in his conviction that it should be called Mi-kaw-do, while yet another correspondent will have it Mi-kay-do. We are inclined to side with the young lady who makes it Mi-kah-do; but at all events, as the individual is soon coming, a solution of the mystery is at hand.

Supposed Elopment.

Considerable gossip and excitement has been raised in a locality not more than 100 miles from Peterborough town hall, by the suspicious actions of a young lady and gentleman, well known in society, and who for some time past are known to have been keeping up a clandestine intimacy—the cause of the secresy being an intense dislike for the young man entertained by the young lady's paternal parent, who, by the way, is one of the wealthiest men in his district. On the other hand, the young man who secretly aspires to the heart, hand, and, it is to be presumed, fortune of the young lady, though in every way a jolly young fellow, is the owner of nothing more tangible than several very long tailors' bills, a liquidation of which would afford those importunate tradesmen unbounded satisfaction. A few days ago a rumour was circulated that the young couple were about to defy the parental authority and elope, a rumour which is certainly strengthened by circumstance since observed. On Thursday evening, while the rain was pelting down in such a merciless fashion as to keep people with a due regard to the perils and pains of rheumatism at home, our pair of lovers were noticed making their way up George street, keeping well in the shadow, and turning neither to right or left till Hunter street was reached. Here they turned and made their way to D. Belleghem's furniture store, where they spent some time in earnest conversation with Mr. B., and from the way he smiled as they went out of the door and tramped off through the rain, it was evident that Dan. had taken a good order. "Foolish young people," some will say. Well, at all events they had sense enough to know where the best and cheapest furniture in town was to be had, and if they are as wise in everything else, nothing but happiness will follow their married life, even if the old man does kick a bit.

Sunday Sermons.

The Young Men Remembered in a Pair of Pulpits—Sermons to Young Men by Rev. F. H. Wallace and Rev. A. H. Munro—Funeral Sermon of the Late Mrs. Allen—Synopses of Rev. Mr. Torrance on the Lord's Prayer.

On Sunday evening special addresses were delivered to young men from the pulpits of the Charlotte street Methodist and the Murray street Baptist churches. In the former the pastor chose as his subject, taking his text from the 2nd verse of the 2nd chapter of the first book of Kings: "I go the way of all the earth; be thou strong, therefore, and show thyself a man." The charge of David to Solomon showed the anxious solicitude of a father for his son, that that son should be worthy of his inheritance, just as the fathers of to-day who had fought the battles of life, were anxious to see their sons worthily fill the places in life, in which Providence had placed them, and "show themselves men." The elements of true manhood were defined to be power, prudence and piety; if a man possessed these he would be sure to "show himself a man." The power referred to was of two kinds, the power to do and the power to resist. The tendency of the world to form its estimate of men from appearances was scathingly treated. That young man was truly ignoble who regarded fine clothes as a sufficient ground for claiming respect—who set up a standard of manhood, not from God's, but the tailor's standpoint. No man could be a true gentleman who was not first a true man; no outward appearance could make anybody a gentleman. The true man was no society exquisite, but a man who had the power to do something useful. There was work for every man to do; he owed the world work. An idle man defrauded society of its dues. Young men were urged to develop their power to do something. Then places would seek them instead of their seeking the place. They would have reserved seats in the temple of success, which no other could occupy. The power to resist was a most important quality. The true man was like John the Baptist, no "reed shaken with the wind," but firm and strong, self-reliant and self-contained; a man with opinions of his own, with views of right and wrong which enabled him to take a straight course. The true man needed will power as well as men intellectual power. He was not vacillating, but possessed pluck and perseverance. Prudence was another element of true manhood. Wisdom was needed, that a man might understand things and avoid mistakes and wrong steps. Without these he was like a ship at sea without pilot or captain. Persons lacking these qualities often stood well when buttressed by home influences and Christian associations, but when they attempted to stand alone in the world, they fell. It was no sign of manhood to throw off the restraints enjoined by the laws of God and of a pious home. The importance of prudence in selecting pursuits and associates was most dealt with. Recreations and sports were all right in their place, so were the small talk of society, so were politics, and a thousand other things, but they should not be made the chief object of life, which should be to glorify God. There were a thousand forms of serving God. Young men were urged to have something definite to do, and also to do it in the fear of God. They should be prudent, they should be thoughtful. The thoughtfulness of youth was often viewed with indulgence, but this wrong; old men might afford to be thoughtless—they had no future to speak of, but a young man's whole life depended on the opportunities of a moment. The only proper place to be thoughtless was a death bed—everything should be in readiness for that. The third essential element in the highest type of manhood was piety. Faith in God and good were important elements of character. It was easy to stifle the early faith of youth, but not easy to rekindle it. It was no mark of manhood to rashly reject what could not be understood. It was manly to face the fact that there was a limit to our reasoning powers, and to trust in and have reverence for God. This was the only true manhood. The manliest thing in the world was to be a true Christian. The importance of faithfulness men to God was dwelt upon. "We were stewards of God's bounty grace and mercy—we had a great responsibility, and we must give a full and strict account. The men who realized this would be men of honor, generosity and courage, men of pith and power, men, who could be depended on. A clear, clever, pointed and powerfully illustrated sermon was closed by an exhortation to young men to cultivate the requisites of true manhood as indicated; then would the world have a noble race of men—preachers who would preach the truth without fear of their salaries, lawyers who would not lie for gain, doctors who would be as anxious to cure patients as to secure them, politicians who would think more of their country than of their own pockets, and men in all spheres and places of life who would be men of power, men of purity, and, in a word, men of God.

MANHOOD,

IN MEMORIAM.

The sermon preached at George-street Methodist Church last evening by Rev. I. Tovell was a tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Allan, a recently deceased member of that church. Mr. Tovell took as his text the 28th verse of the 8th chapter of Romans, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His promise." The love of God, he said, was a thing of great importance; Jehovah, the great I Am, was the great dispenser of reward and punishment, but above all He was the God of love, He loved us and, therefore, it was our bounden duty to love Him. But there was in the carnal mind an "enmity to God," which prevented the natural man from loving Him. But, to those who loved Him, all things worked together for good. There was no doubt of the fact that there was a superintending prudence and nations—the patriarchs of old had no doubt of this, and took it as a fact, because they had it always before their eyes. "I will guide thee with mine eye" was God's own language, and even, too, recognized a guiding hand. Shakespeare said, "There is a divinity that shapes our end, rough hew them how we will." The omnipresent Jehovah was superintending the lives of those who loved him. But there were times in the lives of men when it seemed hard to believe this on account of the staggering blows sometimes received in the dispensations that at times overtook them, and they were even led to doubt if they really could have loved God, thinking if they had, these misfortunes would not have overtaken them. Jacob, in the morning of life, might have subscribed to the text when, in spite of his deception, everything seemed to go well with him, but at the noon of life, when the bloody coat of his son Joseph was brought to him, he felt the fires of God's wrath and was led to cry out, "I shall go down to my grave weeping."

WATCHING OVER THE AFFAIRS OF MEN

THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN THE TIME

to ask him if all things worked together for good to those who loved God. But the morning of joy broke again when he was ushered into the presence of his son and discovered that he who was mourned as lost was the saviour of his father and even the brothers who had sold him into captivity. But the trouble was that we lived too much in the present and forgot that life was a long distance into the future. The poet Cowper, who, after suffering from transient insanity was again threatened with it, sat down in pain and anguish, but with a calm confidence in God and wrote the grand old hymn sung by many generations in the Christian Church, beginning, "God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform." Job was a wonderful illustration of God's wondrous way of working, yet how he was tried by affliction, though in the end he was more than ever highly blest. As St. Paul said, "These things that seem to be grievous, work out the peaceable fruits of good living," and that was the way to look at these things. If an infidel were asked if he could joy in tribulation he would answer with scorn, "no, nor can anyone else." That was because he did not understand the discipline of love and providence. How different who gloried in his tribulations and infirmities. But God's will must be known before a man could understand and use such an expression. What was the will of God? It was as far as our moral and spiritual character was concerned, sanctification and purification from the presence of sin.

THE LANGUAGE OF ST. PAUL

After further enlarging on the text, Mr. Tovell went on to speak of the lately deceased lady whom he described as a devoted and careful wife, a loving anxious mother, and a true Christian. Her death was unexpected, for though she had been battling against disease, she was expected to recover. But it was not so ordered by providence; she was taken from hence in the prime of life to be a citizen with those who were in the city of life worshipping before Jehovah's throne. The lesson of her death was "Prepare to meet thy God." To the bereaved family she left behind there was a word of consolation in the text. All things, even such a sore stroke as this, worked together for good to those who loved God; His purpose could not be seen now, but in the future would be understoood.

"Quit ye like Men."

Last evening Rev. Mr. Munro preached an eloquent and practical sermon to young men in the Murray Street Baptist Church, choosing as his text the 13th verse of the 16th Chapter of I Corinthians—"Quit ye like men"—in other words—be manly—a short resume of which is given below:—

All admire something we call manliness in regard to which there is no universal agreement. Men erect monuments to great heroes, yet we go not far to see persons who regard such, not as heroes—not even as ordinary persons, but as great monsters. The whole structure of the opinion of the world as to great heroes is continually changing. To the savage, the highest conception of heroism is the stoical endurance of torture. The love of physical strength and skill is very ancient. Sampson was a popular judge. Homer admired the strong Achilles more than the wise Nestor, and it is not a favourable sign of our times that leading newspapers devote more space to sports than to education, science, art. Athletics properly cultivated are good for body and mind, yet skill in these is not essential to true manliness. Another conception of manliness is courage, bravery. Mere courage is not manliness. The most courageous animal is not the lion or tiger, but the bull dog. Yet anatomists say that the brain of the bull dog is the smallest in proportion yet discovered. This courage is merely bad temper and indifference to danger. Courage is essential to manliness, yet not the desire to gratify pride, vanity, wilfulness at any cost, but the calm, intelligent resolution of a brave heart and loyal spirit to do and defend the right, cost what it may. The manly man must resolve in his own soul and keep it, that with freedom of spirit in reason and conscience he will live a noble life. So surely as he does this, come trials which will put to the test such resolutions, starting and maintaining a conflict in his soul between all that is good and noble and true, and all that is bad, mean and selfish. The source from which this true conception of manliness is to be derived is the Lord Jesus Christ—the perfect man—and it is to be regretted that great injury has been done by presenting Jesus in forms to excite sympathy and pity, and not in those which tend to suggest dignity, beauty and moral force—conception, which ought to be most vividly impressed. The speaker portrayed the manliness of Christ, when in the temple at Jerusalem, at the age of 12, it flashed into his soul that he was the Messiah—the one of whom Moses and all the prophets had written—to be the great sacrifice—to toil and suffer and for the people who inflicted death on him, that at last the blindness, hatred and wickedness of the world should be dissipated. He accepts the duty and yet, without flinging off his parents, goes down from thence to Nazareth subject to his parents. The speaker then exhibited the manliness of Christ in success, when, with the whole nation at His feet, under the excitement and captivation of success, in proportion as His popularity grew, His plainness and outspokenness increased, His denunciations became more severe against those who kept others in spiritual bondage and in face of Jewish hate and prejudice, relates the story of the good Samaritan. He also exhibited the manliness of Christ in failure, when he knew what future would bring forth, when the multitude had hurried from Him and the powerful were conspiring against Him, His steadfastness in the garden of Gethsemane, when He cried in agony, "My God! My God! hast Thou forsaken Me?" Yet even in despair, He was never more hopeful, never more tender to to His disciples, concentrating hope and energy. Must it not be admitted that there is nothing more noble and grand than the Lord Jesus Christ meeting failure. It was the example inspiration of Christ that inspired the early Christians, and such men as Luther, Carey, Clarkson, Livingstone. The speaker impressed on his hearers to emulate the manliness of Christ and to seek early for that pardon, and that heaven which He had prepared.

Sermons on the Lord's Prayer.

For several Sunday mornings past Rev. E. F. Torrance, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, has been preaching sermons on the Lord's Prayer, taking up the various petitions and analysing and explaining them in a manner that was exceedingly helpful to seekers after truth. He yesterday devoted both morning and evening sermons to a resume of these discourses, taking up in the morning the preface to the Lord's Prayer and the first four petitions, and in the evening the remainder of the prayer. These sermons with those previously preached on the same subject by Mr. Torrance, were remarkable for the clear and analytic manner in which the Lord's prayer was dealt with, and were the evident outcome of careful study of and profound reflection on the prayer which our Saviour put before His disciples as a model to be followed.

The excellent singing by the choir, under the leadership of Mr. J.S. Parker, is a marked and pleasing feature of all the services at St. Paul's Church, and yesterday they surpassed themselves, although the musical services were severe in their simplicity.

Russian Intrigue.

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Nov. 7.—A Russian dragoman has been making a tour of the Roumelian villages trying to foment an agitation against Prince Alexander in favor of Russia, under promise that Russia will give the Roumelians a prince of their own religion. It is also alleged that a military attache has tried to stir the army to revolt.

Deeming Mutineers.

SOFIA, Nov. 7.—The court martial in the case of a number of Montenegrin volunteers in the Bulgarian army sentenced the leader of the mutiny, a Russian, to death and another to penal servitude. The Russian consul here has interferred for their protection.

Russia Not Hostile.

ST PETERSBURG, Nov. 7.—The Noveo Vremya says it has been learned that Prince Alexander, intended to dismiss the Russian officers in his service, but that Russia recalled them, and the relations thus forestalled in Russian interests are closely united with those of Bulgaria. Russia however, is not hostile to Prince Alexander.

A RATIONAL VIEW.

The London Advertiser thus sensibly discourses upon the proposal of the Toronto News to enforce one language in this country.—Over the greater portion of Quebec the French language is used to the exclusion of every other, as the English is with us, and proceedings in the courts of justice conducted in English alone would be as absurd as they would be here it conducted in French. What the News proposes shall be tried in Canada, the Russians have tried in Poland. Everybody has read of the arbitrary conduct of the Russian government in introducing the Russian as the tongue in which all official proceedings must be conducted. Everyone knows the undying enmity that has been engendered in the breast of every Pole towards his conquerors. Does our local contemporary support the News' proposition? It knows right well that the government which it supports so ardently, and which rewards it so handsomely, will not venture to give effect to such policy. The News speaks about one language and one flag and a common patriotism. Austria tried the system which finds so much favor with the News, after the revolution of 1848 The Austrian experiment came to an end at Sadowa in 1866. It cost Austria her supremacy in Germany and the total loss of her Italian possessions. It very nearly led to the disruption of the empire. Why should our contemporary stop at language? Why does it not add religion, and propose to make us all one in faith as well?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Thompson, the new Minister of Justice, is said to have made a report to the Council, favoring the despatch of Riel to an asylum.

Her Majesty the Queen has been so gracious as to officially and formally congratulate the people of Canada on the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the people of Canada formally acknowledge her kindness.

Deducting surpluses, the net deficit for the five years of Liberal rule was but $2,664,533, or, as the St. John Telegraph points out, but a little more than the admitted deficit—much less than the real deficit—of the past fiscal year.

Hon. Thos. White, at a meeting in Manitou Man., stated that the census would be taken next year, that, in view of the increased representation, a redistribution of constituencies would be likely to follow, and that a general election was not likely to come on until 1887. Mr. White will visit the Northwest again next year.

The Calgary Tribune gathers from Hon. Thos. White's remarks at that place, that he will advocate as the policy of his Department municipal local option regarding the liquor traffic in the Northwest. Prohibition is now the law of the Territories. Mr. White proposes to substitute the license system, or the Scott Act, for the enforcement of which the Government of which he is a member, last session refused to provide.

Cardinal Manning on Popular Education.

The Tablet of next Saturday will contain an unsigned article by Cardinal Manning, in which he says he is convinced that no system of popular education which is not based upon the visible facts of religious divisions and which does not provide for full liberty of conscience can adapt itself to the Kingdom. The fact that England is denominational cannot be masked or ignored, much less suppressed by force or fraude.

Who May Vote.

The different classes of persons entitled under the amended provincial franchise to vote for the election of members of the Ontario provincial legislature, are as follows:

Every householder.

Residents, owners, tenants and occupants assessed for $200 in cities and towns, or for $100 in villages and townships.

Sons, grandsons, step-sons and sons-in-law of landholders (owners or tenants), assessed in cities and towns for $400, or in villages and townships for $200.

Persons earning incomes of $250, part of which may be paid as rent or board.

Indians who do not reside with the tribes, and have the same qualifications as whites.

One man can have only one vote in the province.

The following classes of persons are eligible to vote for members of the House of Commons:—

Owners of real property worth $300 in cities, $200 in towns, or $150 in counties.

Tenants of property at a rental of $20 a year and upwards.

Occupants of property worth $300 in cities, $200 in towns, or $150 in counties.

Persons earning incomes of $300 a year, in money or money's worth

Son, grandson, stepson, or son-in-law, or owner of real property of sufficient value to qualify two voters.

Fishermen who own boats, nets, etc., together worth $150.

Every Liberal should, suggests the St. Thomas Journal, study the assessment rolls and voters' lists in the light of these qualifications, and see not only that his own name is inscribed thereupon, but that his Liberal neighbour's is also inscribed.

BAKERS' FLOUR:

In a circular addressed to the Public some months ago, I called particular attention to the above grade of FLOUR, claiming for it unusual excellence; since then the Public have endorsed this claim with the result of a very large increase in my sale of Flour.

I still think it is unequalled by any, of a similar grade, offered in Town, and respectfully solicit a still larger share of trade.

Some French Weather.

The great French weather prophet, Capt. DeLauncy, has prepared a fine dish of weather for next year. He predicts unceasingly severe earthquakes and a lot of cyclones, together with the appearance of a great comet, to be followed by an epidemic which will carry away thousands of people.

A Lake of Lager.

The drink bill of the United States annually amounts to over $1,000,000,000, more than is spent for bread, meat and education combined. No wonder their towns and cities are full of bulgrars. Chicago alone spent $22,000,000 on beer, just 1,055,000 barrels of beer consumed in that city last year, equal to a lake the size of the centre back of this town, 22 feet deep.—Com.

Blowing Up a Dog.

W. Russell, a well-to-do farmer, conceived the idea of killing a dog with dynamite. He procured a stick of the explosive, attached it to the dog's neck, lured the dog into a field, put a match to the fuse and ran towards the fence. To his dismay the dog, frightened by the hissing of the fuse, followed him, and Russell barely reached the top rail, with the dog at his heels, when the explosion occurred. Russell was somewhat injured by the concussion, and was completely covered with the remains of the cur.—World.

Wexford Nationalists.

DUBLIN, Nov. 5.—The Nationalists of Wexford, in convention to day, selected Messrs. Barry and John Redmond as their candidates for members of parliament in the election. Parnell, in a speech, said that coercion had been crushed out and the coercers hurled from power; that there was no longer any question of peddling municipal and others petty reforms, as Ireland's legislative independence was drawing near.

Promise v. Performance.

The Tory party promised the people of Canada:—	The record of their fulfilment of these promises is as follows:
To complete the Pacific Railway at a cost of $46,500,000.	An incomplete Pacific Railway at a cost of $153,000,000.
An annual expenditure not more than $22,000,000	An expenditure for 1885 of $30,327,935.
No deficits.	A deficit of $2,357,469.
"Canada for the Canadians."	A loss of population four times greater than ever occurred before.
A decrease in Departmental salaries.	An increase in Departmental salaries from $545,331, in 1878, to $725,487 in 1884.
A decrease in Departmental contingencies.	An increase in Departmental contingencies from $158,174 in 1878 to $203,108 in 1884.

The Eastern Conference.

The Position the Principalities will Occupy at the Meeting—Evidences of Russian Displeasure with Bulgaria.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Thus far Servia and Bulgaria have omitted to comply with the demand of the Powers that they disarm their forces pending the settlement of the Balkans question by the conference of ambassadors. The only attention paid to the demand has been the explanation that the military movements indulged in have been merely of a strategetic and cautionary character without any belligerent purpose. Nobody is deceived by this pretext, but it serves to gain time. There is reason to believe Russia and Austria are mobilizing their forces along their respective frontiers nearest to the disputed territory. The degree of representation to be allowed the directly interested principalities at the coming conference is now announced by the Powers. The delegates will be admitted to open sessions as representatives of Bulgaria, Roumelia, and Servia. They will be allowed to speak upon all propositions put forward, but will have no vote. It is likely that secret sessions will be held, from which these delegates will be excluded. The principal function of the delegates will be to furnish information when required in detail on the matters that come before conference. The hostile attitude of Russia toward Prince Alexander has reached its final expression in the formal expurgation of the Prince's name from the list of Russian army officers.

A Surprise.

She had scorned me that season at Newport,
Her reserve was massive and part;
But I really believe she'd responded
When she met, later on, at Detroit.

I was cruising just then with the squadron,
My yacht was the pride of the fleet,
And for style, though I say it who shouldn't,
My new sailor togs couldn't be beat.

When we met she was charming and gracious,
Arm-and-arm with the old Commodore,
"Why, I didn't know you were a sailor,"
Said she, "when I met you before."

Then the Commodore patted my shoulder—
The old man thought I hadn't fault—
"Oh, yes," he declared, "I assure you
Our old friend here is quite an old salt."

Well she knew, this young beauty malicious,
How she tangled my heart in her mesh!
"Eat-ce possible!" she exclaimed, "how delicious!
Why, I thought he was awfully fresh!"

Autumn Alligator-Hunting.

The men who hunt alligators for their hides and teeth are now reaping a rich harvest. The hunters receive $1 apiece for all hides four feet long and upward.

Two young men killed fifty alligators in one week recently in this neighborhood. They begin hunting as soon as it becomes thoroughly dark. Their hunting outfit consists of a bull's-eye lantern, in camp language called "look 'em up," a double-barreled shotgun, or "kill 'em sure," and a hatchet, with which they split the alligator's skull, to which they give the very expressive name of "dynamite." The man who is to do the shooting for the night fastens the lantern to his forehead, and takes his place in the bow of a small boat. His partner paddles the boat cautiously along the stream, while the man in the bow keeps a sharp lookout for alligators' eyes, which, under favorable circumstances, he can "shine" with his lantern at a distance of 200 yards. As soon as they discover a pair of eyes they paddle cautiously up to within a couple of feet of the alligator's head and discharge a load of buckshot into it. As soon as the shot is fired the paddler catches the alligator by the jaws, which he holds together with one hand while he cleaves the skull open with his hatchet.

Sometimes the alligators retain considerable power of action. When such is the case it is rather exciting work getting them into the boat. Sometimes very large alligators turn the boat over. If an alligator is not handled at once after being wounded, he sinks to the bottom and is lost.

I asked one of the hunters, who has killed more than 1,000 alligators, what was the size of the largest one he ever killed, and he told me 13½ feet long. He said that his father killed one on the St. John's River 17½ feet long, the head of which, when placed in a flour barrel, projected two inches over the top. He sold it to a museum for $65.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Grant in the White House.

Among the specially notable entertainments given by President and Mrs. Grant while they lived in the Executive Mansion in Washington, were: A state dinner in honor of Prince Arthur of England, in 1870; an evening reception at which all the members of the diplomatic corps and prominent officials of our government were present in full dress, which was given early in June to Red Cloud, Spotted Tail, and other distinguished American Indians, who were received in the East Room and given a supper in the state dining-room; Miss Nellie Grant's wedding on the morning of May 21, 1874; the wedding reception of Colonel and Mrs. Fred Grant in October, 1874, which was an evening entertainment; an evening reception the same autumn in honor of Kalakau of the Sandwich Islands, and a dinner party also in his honor.

These were, of course, in addition to the usual evening receptions and state dinners during the sessions of Congress, of both of which President and Mrs. Grant gave many each year. The last state dinner President and Mrs. Grant gave in the White House was in honor of the President Elect and Mrs. Hayes, on March 3, 1878, when the oath of office as President was administered before dinner by Chief Justice Waite to President Hayes and Vice President Wheeler in the Blue parlor. That is the only time probably in the history of our government when two Presidents of the United States have been at the same table, for in no other case has one President taken the oath of office until the term of his predecessor had actually expired. It was at President Grant's suggestion that the oath as President was administered to his successor.

I met Mrs. Grant in the state dining-room that day just before the dinner occurred, she having come in to see if the table was all right, and when I expressed some polite regrets that it was the last occasion when she would preside as mistress of the house, she said bravely: "Oh, no; I only think of how thankful I am to the people for keeping my husband here so long. We have been very happy here." But I was told next day that when, after the entertainment was over, the guests were saying good-by and Mrs. Robeson kissed her hand, Mrs. Grant broke down and wept. She said that in leaving the White House that it was the only home she had known for as long as eight years since she was married, and that is true up to this time. She has lived in no other place continually so long.—Miss Grundy in Philadelphia Press.

Bill Lang, a Toronto boatman and weather prophet, says that the muskrats have not yet begun to build, and that this is a sign of a mild and short winter. We are obliged to Mr. Lang, and shall at once lay in a double stock of coal, and put stoves in every room in the house. We know the extremeties muskrat prophets have brought us to before.

Taking a Holiday

The works of P. Hamilton having been temporarily shut down during the progress of overhauling and repairs to the machinery and plant, their employees are taking a little holiday. Frank Fairen, W. Rudkins and one or two others were observed making their way out of town this morning, armed to the teeth and laden with the creature comforts necessary to make a hunting expedition enjoyable at this somewhat chilly season of the year. They are expected to bring home a fat game bag and their friends are anticipating presents of game.

Mind Reading.

Hit 'em Again.

An irate resident of the north ward called at the EXAMINER office this morning to file a complaint against the authorities for their neglect to place a crossing at the intersection of Maple Avenue and George street. On Saturday evening he made the attempt to get over this slough. It was so dark that he could not see the length of his eye lashes; he stumbled on a stone imbedded in the mud, and went headlong, his body forming an arch, his feet in mud over his ankles, and his hands in mud up to his elbows. He decidedly objects to paying taxes for the privilege of taking nocturnal mud baths, and asserts that if the authorities don't make some effort to give the residents of this region a crossing, something terrible will happen.

Welcome.

During the past summer Mr. S. B. Hayes, a civil service official living at Ottawa, passed through Peterborough on his return from a visit to the Southern States. Being favorably impressed by the beauty and convenient situation of the town, and at the same time desirous of securing a place of residence outside, but within convenient reach of the capital, he made some inquiries as to renting a house here. As a result of these he, together with his entire family and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Hayes, arrived here on Saturday, accompanied by all their household goods, and took up his residence on Brock street, near St. Andrew's church. Mr. Hayes will go down to Ottawa during the session of the Dominion Parliament, but at all other times Peterborough will be home to him. While heartily welcoming him to Peterborough, the EXAMINER hopes his new home will meet his most sanguine expectations, and that many others will recognize the beauties of the town of Peterborough in the same practical way that he has done.

Y. M. C. A. Social Meeting.

The members of the Y. M. C. A. hold a social meeting in their rooms to-night. Members are reminded of the same, and requested to attend.

Class in English Literature.

We would again call the attention to this class, which opens on Monday, November 16th, to be conducted by Mr. Barton Earl, in connection with the Y. M. C. A. Several prominent gentlemen are joining. Terms, $1.00 to members of the Association, $2.00 to other gentlemen.

Pool Tables.

It may be of interest to some to know that it has been decided in the Superior Court at Montreal that a pool table is liable to the tax imposed upon billiard tables under a proper by-law. The decision was given in the case of Vincelette v. DeMontigny by Judge Loranger.

Saved Army.

Officers from a distance are arriving to take part in the Officers Convention, on Tuesday, Council of War on Wednesday, and the Jubilee and thanksgiving services on Thursday, when an all-night prayer meeting will be held. Rev. Mr. Baxter, will be present and take part in the services.

Training Youthful Voices.

Mr. C. C. Hampshire, organist of St. John's, has formed a singing class for boys between and including the ages of nine and twelve. The terms, which are $1.00 for 20 lessons—two lessons per week—are very reasonable, and combined with the well-known ability of the teacher, should be made available by large numbers of lads who have musical abilities.

A New Idea.

A gentleman interested in the post office site at the southern end of the town, says that it being now quite certain that the post office will stand there, the Government propose to appease the wrath of the syndicate by putting a cheese factory on the Hunter street lot. Residents on Hunter street think that the idea is a good one, as the carrying capacity of St. John's creek might be put to good use in conveying the cheese to market, instead of flowing to no purpose but blocking their doorways.

Mind Reading.

Police Court.

Patrick Hanrahan was this morning charged before Police Magistrate Dumble with being a vagrant. When asked whether guilty or not, he said he was "laygal," whatever that may be construed to mean. Mr. Dumble evidently took it as an admission of the correctness of the charge, for he sentenced Patrick to six months at hard labor in the gaol.

David Wallace appeared in response to a summons issued at the instance of Mr. T. Bradburn, charging him with fraudulently removing his goods from a house on which rent was due by him. Mr. Masson, who appeared for defendant, asked for an adjournment, the summons having only been served just before court this morning. The case was accordingly enlarged.

Rev. Prophet Baxter.

Rev. Mr. Baxter, in his "Notes of a Second Advent Lecture Tour," published in the Christian Herald and Signs of the Times, thus refers to his visit to Peterborough:

"On two evenings in the ensuing week considerable numbers assembled in the Presbyterian church in Peterborough to hear what I had to say respecting the prophetic events accompanying Christ's speedy advent. The Rev. Mr. Torrance, a premillennial believer, kindly gave the use of the church, which is a large and handsome one, and opened the meetings with prayer. He was with Mr. Moody in the north of Scotland in 1875. Peterborough, containing 8,000 inhabitants, is on the Canadian Pacific Railway, between Ottawa and Toronto. It is a busy junction for three railways, and from the hotel I stayed at, the omnibus made 36 journeys every day to and from the various trains, between 4 a. m. and 11 p. m. The omnibus conductor of most Canadian hotels raises inside them a peculiar yell, like a Punch and Judy man, that can be heard in every room, just before going to each train. It is a mystery how small towns like Peterborough can support three daily two-cent newspapers. Its namesake, Peterborough, in England, has not one daily paper, though it contains double the population."

Rev. Mr. Baxter will be in town this week and address meetings of the Saved Army.

What They are Saying.

Peterborough's a town quite mysterious to me, it contrives every day to run newspapers three.—Rev. Millenium Baxter.

The P. O. will stand on my lot if you please, while the Syndicate site gets a factory for cheese.—Mr. Phelan.

The notion is good, when to ship cheese they seek, they can float on two boats way down St. John's creek.—Edg. Hartley.

We Would Like to Know.

Who was the drunken man that fell through the EXAMINER office window Saturday evening.

What that plug hat brigade are skirmishing around town after.

The names of the young men who disgrace themselves by shooting on the outskirts of the town on Sundays.

And if there is any reason why they should not be arrested.

What We May Expect.

A grand rally of the Saved Army on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

And Rev. Millenium Baxter to be present.

Another adjournment of the Scott Act scrutiny to-morrow.

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Society on Wednesday, not on Thursday as before stated.

Chancery sittings on Friday.

Moderate northwest and southwest winds generally fair, comparatively cool weather.

Thanksgiving Shooting.

Don't neglect to be at the shooting match at the quarry on Thanksgiving day, when a hundred geese and turkeys will be shot for. Rare good sport. First shot at 9:30 sharp.

The "At Home"

To be held Thanksgiving evening in the Lecture Room of George Street Methodist Church promises great attractions. There will be vocal and instrumental music, recitations, &c., and refreshments will be served. Admission, 25c.

Scott Act Investigation.

The examination into the appeal against the Scott Act voting, which was adjourned two weeks ago, was to have been resumed this morning, but His Honor Judge Dennistoun being absent from town was further adjourned till to-morrow morning.

Mind Reading.

Pole at the Lansdowne.

[illegible] disputed match with another good club at the Lansdowne Rink on Thanksgiving Day. The game being a novelty in Peterborough, will no doubt attract a large concourse of spectators. Admission, 15c.

Successful Hunters.

Mr. F. Scrimgeour, of Scott Scrimgeour, went out on a little hunting excursion this morning, and after a few hours returned to town laden with 225 geese, 175 turkeys, and 30 ducks. His method of hunting, though old, is not that commonly supposed to be practiced by sportsmen, though there are shrewd suspicions that many a fat game bag has been filled in the same way. The ammunition he made use of was hard cash, and the hunting ground farm yards. Still it was a good morning's work, and Mr. Scrimgeour must have done some lively travelling.

Personal.

Mr. Joseph Richardson, travelling agent in Canada for the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railway, is in town.

Mrs. John Wood left town for Philadelphia this morning, travelling over the G.T.R., Suspension Bridge and Erie, and Lehigh Valley roads.

Mr. Golborne has bought the George Shields farm, north of Lakefield, where he is erecting a dwelling house, and will in future reside.

Mr. William Wand, who has been visiting the old country for the benefit of his health and to see his father, has arrived safely home again. His trip seems to have benefitted him, for he is looking remarkably well.

Friends of Mr. Maurice Buck, who left Ennismore about a month ago to settle in Chippewa Falls, Minnesota, will be grieved to hear of his death, in that town last week. He was buried there a week ago last Saturday.

Mr. F. Elmhirst, Reeve of Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos, has purchased from the Golborne estate the grist mills at Apsley, and has engaged Mr. A. Dawson, formerly of Munro & Dawson, to run them for him. Mr. Dawson is an experienced miller, and the farmers of the back country may rely on him to turn out good grist for them.

The cry is "still they come." In another place will be found a record of how an Ottawa citizen has selected Peterborough as the most desirable place of residence in Ontario, and now the Port Hope Times informs us that Mr. M. Rosevear, of the township of Hope, has leased his farm, so that he may also come to live in Peterborough. The EXAMINER extends a hearty welcome to all. Don't be deterred by the difficulty of securing a house. If there are no vacant houses, some of our enterprising builders will put up one to order with the greatest expedition.

Mr. John Maclay, superintendent of agencies of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, is in town, the guest of the Oriental hotel. Mr. Maclay is an old newspaper man, having originated the first newspaper ever published in Huron County—some 25 years ago. His success as an insurance man counts for genius, for he has not only had to unlearn the modesty he acquired as a journalist, but to acquire the diamond-faced—well, assurance, that gives its name to the Life Insurance business.

Wools and Yarns of all the leading kinds and shades in best qualities. J. ERSKINE.

Pall Mall Gazette Guilty.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—In the Armstrong abduction case the jury found a verdict of guilty against Mr. Stead and Mrs. Jarrett, and acquitted Messrs. Bramwell Booth and Jacques, and Mrs. Maurey. All except Mr. Booth are held on a charge of indecent assault.

The Future Destiny of Burmah:

LONDON, Nov. 7.—It is understood that Lord Salisbury has received a dispatch from China to the effect that the annexation of Burmah to India will not be objected to by the Shan's Government. It is regarded here as certainty that Burmah will soon become part of British India.

Thebaw is Obstinate.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 7.—On receipt of the ultimatum of the Indian government King Thebaw called a council of his ministers, and also consulted the French and Indian consuls, who advised him to submit. King Thebaw, however, told his generals to prepare for probable fighting.

PETERBORO'. - PETERBORO'.

A few short months ago who would have thought that Hunter Street would be the business street of Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so, but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors, and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and will guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

WRECK OF THE ALGOMA.

Thirty-Three Lives Believed to Have Been Lost.

The Steamer Goes Ashore on Isle Royal in the Midst of a Blinding Snowstorm at 4 o'clock in the Morning.

OWEN SOUND STATION, Ont., Nov. 9.—The Canadian Pacific Railway company's steamer Algoma, which left Owen Sound Thursday, the 5th inst., went ashore in a blinding snowstorm and gale of wind on Isle Royal, Lake Superior, at 4 a.m., Saturday. About eight passengers and 25 of the crew are supposed to have been lost. Among the names of the saved thus far are Capt. John Moore, first mate Jos. Hastings, second mate Richard Simpson; and the passengers saved are W. J. Hull and W. B. McArthur; also wheelsman Henry Lewis, watchman John McNab, fireman W. McCauger; deck hands, R. Stephens, James Bolton, Daniel Langton; waiters, John McLean, George McColl and John McKenzie. Full particulars not yet received. Mr. Beatty, the manager of lake traffic, has sent out tugs from Port Arthur with instructions to search the island for any of those on board who may have got ashore, and to pick up and take care of any bodies that may be found. Tugs are now at the wreck.

DESCRIPTION OF THE ALGOMA.

The Algoma and the other two vessels of the C. P. R. fleet, the Athabasca and the Alberta, were built in 1883 by Aikin & Mansell and Chas. Connell Co., Glasgow. She made the trip across the ocean in excellent time, and weathered some severe storms. At Montreal she was cut in two, and towed through the St. Lawrence Canals and up Lake Ontario to Buffalo, where she was put together again. No provision for safety seems to have been omitted. The hull was built of shell plates of varying thicknesses, the frame having a moulded depth of 23 feet 3 inches. She was 270 feet long by 38 feet beam, and a depth of hold of 15 feet. The Plimsoll mark—a novelty on the Canadian lakes—allowed her to load to fifteen feet of water, on which it was estimated that she could carry two thousand tons dead weight of freight. The hold was divided into compartments by six watertight steel bulkheads, between which there was no communication. When the steamers were cut in halves they successfully stood the test of being towed up the lake against the bulkheads, and it was said that twenty feet of the bow might be knocked off without affecting the sea-worthiness of the vessel. The indicated horse-power of the engines was 1,700. The blades of the screw were bolted to the centre piece, so that an injury to one blade would not necessitate the removal of the whole screw. She carried two steel masts, with a full

SPREAD OF FORE AND AFT CANVAS.

She had two separate and independent sets of steering apparatus, each worked by steam. In all, there were fifteen separate engines on the boat, giving her the appearance of a huge factory. The compass was that invented by Sir William Thompson, and generally used on the ocean steamships. Electric signals conveyed the captain's directions to the engineer. She was announced to carry six large lifeboats, 600 life-preservers, and a liberal allowance of life-buoys. She was built and equipped according to the English Board of Trade regulations. The fine lines, raking chimneys, and generally smart appearance of the Algoma and her companions excited great admiration. She and her consorts were undoubtedly the fastest and best appointed craft on the lakes.

Latest From Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—Mr. C. W. Bunting, of Toronto, is here. He is said to be urging his appointment to the Senatorship made vacant by the death of the late Mr. Benson, of St. Catharines. Messrs. Rykert and McCallum, M.P.'s, are after the same position.

A deputation of brewers waited on the Government to-day to urge that blue ribbon beer be exempted from the operation of the Scott Act, and that a special order be made to that effect.

After interviewing all the Ministers in regard to the claims for losses sustained during the rebellion, Bishop Grandin, of the N. W. T., has left for Montreal. It is reported that some of the Ministers are opposed to entertaining claims for losses on the account of the destruction of church property by the troops or Indians.

A band of Wyoming Indians have had an encounter over the wife of the chief, and five of them were killed.

An Elevator Blockade.

Immense Centralization of wheat in Buffalo—an Uncertain Outlook.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 9.—The elevator blockade, which has lasted most of the time for a month, has put quite another face to the situation in Buffalo harbour. Not for several years has there been need of all the elevators, and there has been bitter complaint against them on account of the charges for those not in use, but to-day the last large elevator—"The Watson"—starts up, and there is not room enough yet. The nature of the market has conspired to centre an unusual amount of wheat here. New York does not want it, and West Duluth, especially, is hurrying her surplus forward before navigation closes, as rail rates from from that point are too high to ship it in winter. There is now 2,700,000 bushels of Duluth wheat here, and all will be sent here this fall that can be received. It is stated that 2,000,000 bushels are known, of those failed to come here because no storage could be had. Vessels, during the last few days, have waited nearly a week for an elevator. It is stated by the elevator authorities that they expect all the elevators to be needed next season, especially in the long storage venture succeeds as well as it has this season. There is talk of building one or more large ones, and Mr. Chandler J. Wells is reported as having decided on putting a large addition on his for next season. The trouble is that elevator men still fear a legislative regulation of rates, and dare not venture as they would otherwise.

Dominion Doings.

Prayers were offered on Sunday in all the Protestant churches of Toronto for the abatement of the smallpox in Montreal.

Seven detectives and policemen arrested a sailor in Montreal Monday night, when the mob, armed with bottles and knives, attacked them. The police escaped by drawing their revolvers.

Another case of smallpox, making the ninth discovered in Toronto, was reported on Monday.

A sanitary constable on duty on Ottawa street, Montreal, was attacked by a mob, who broke his arm.

The electricity for the lighting of Quebec, will be furnished by a 24 inch turbine wheel at Montmorenci Falls, where the head of water is 165 feet, giving 1,125 horsepower. The wheel makes 620 revolutions a minute.

Part of the dry goods store of Ball & Co., Thorold, Ont., was gutted by fire Monday morning; loss $9,000; covered by insurance.

Miss Lynch, a Montreal young lady who was burned by the upsetting of a lamp some days ago, died on Monday of her injuries.

Harris Vineberg, wholesale clothing merchant, Montreal, has compromised with his creditors at 40 cents on the dollar. Liabilities $20,000.

Some French Canadian citizens of Montreal propose to invite Mr. Bartholdi, the artist who designed the statute of Liberty, who is now in New York, accompanied by Mrs. Bartholdi, to visit Canada before they return to France.

Hugh Canthor, aged 35, was sent to gaol in Toronto on Tuesday last for drunkenness, and died on Sunday from the effects of his spree.

The grain elevator at the Great Western railway depot at Norwich, Ont., collapsed Friday night and is now a total wreck. About 15,000 bushels of grain were stored in the building, not half of its capacity. The foundation had become unsound. The loss is heavy. The building was owned by Wm. Merrill, of Norwich.

Driving the Last Spike.

On Saturday, Oct. 7th, the last spike was driven on the C. P. R. A dispatch gives the following particulars:—Tracklaying was commenced at six on Saturday morning on the last half mile of the Canadian Pacific Railway. At nine o'clock the last rails had been brought forward and measured for cutting to make connections. One rail was cut and placed and the other left until Mr. VanHorne and party arrived. Major Rogers made several blows with a heavy sledge on the last rail, helping to cut it. One hundred and twenty feet of rails were then taken up and left on lorries to be placed when VanHorne and party arrived. Immediately after the train made its appearance with the railway magnates aboard. The train drew close to the ends of the track and the party came forward. At twenty-two minutes past nine everything was in readiness to complete the connection. Hon. Donald A. Smith took the maul in hand to drive the last spike, and after missing it a few times, he drove it home amid cheers from all present. The guests among those present were Messrs. VanHorne, Sandford Fleming, Harris, of Blake Bros., Boston; Henry Abbott, manager of Lake Shore construction; J. M. Egan, James Ross, manager of construction; M. J. Haney, superintendent of British Columbia division; H. G. Taylor, master of Transportation; Major Rogers, H. L. Rogers, F. B. Brothers, Mr. Todd, and J. A. Hickey, Government Inspecting Engineer. After congratulations had been exchanged on the completion of the great work, the VanHorne special train passed over the connecting link, and departed for Port Moody, the present terminus of the road, where they will take a special steamer for Victoria. Chips from the last tie were carried away as momentoes by those present.

Montreal's Malady.

"A Mere Hopeful Outlook."

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—There are hopeful indications that the small-pox outbreak in Montreal is showing such decided signs of abatement as indicate that it will be soon disappearing as an epidemic. There is a marked decrease both in the number of cases reported, and also in the death rate. The deaths in November so far amount to 354. The following table shows the number of deaths since the outbreak:—

April	6
May	16
June	13
July	46
August	230
September	627
October	1,263
November	244
Grand total	2,995

The decrease in the death-rate during the past week, as compared with the three preceding weeks, is re-assuring, leading to the belief that the plague has about "burned itself out;" that the authorities have been able to control it, or both.

RIEL FURTHER RESPITED.

The Condemned Rebel to be Spared till Nov. 16th.

The Warrant not Received.

A Shantyman Wants the Job of Turning Him off.

REGINA, N. W. T., Nov. 9.—Riel is respited until the 16th inst. Preparations are being made for the execution then, although the warrant has not yet arrived.

The Warrant is Necessary.

BROADVIEW, N. W. T., Nov. 9.—Sheriff [illegible] He has been waiting instructions about Riel all day, but so far has received none. He is of opinion that as the Governor-General's warrant is necessary before the execution, Riel will be respited from day to day until instructions are received from Ottawa, either for the execution or of his sentence having been commuted.

A Hangman Ready.

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—Riel has been granted a further respite until Nov. 19. It was generally believed in official circles here that this further respite was given to enable the condemned man to prepare for death, and that the sentence will undoubtedly be carried out on the date mentioned.

About 1 o'clock a man looking like a shantyman, dressed in a woolen Jersey and cardigan jacket, entered the arrises court and stood up, apparently trying to attract his lordship's attention. When told to sit down by one of the constables he refused do so, saying he had come to hang Riel and was desirous of addressing the court on the subject. He was removed by a constable.

Don't Want to be Interviewed.

OTTAWA, Ont. Nov. 9.—Hon. Mr. Thompson, minister of justice, is confined to his room through a severe cold. The hon. gentleman has left instructions at the department that he shall not be disturbed by interviews, or under any other circumstance for the next few days. He has also ordered that the mails even shall not be sent to him.

The United States Cannot Interfere.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 9.—Major Edmond Mallet, of this city, the well known worker in the French cause in the United States and an intimate personal friend of Louis Riel, the Canadian revolutionist, had an interview with the President this afternoon and made a strong appeal for the interference of this Government to prevent the hanging of Riel by the Canadian authorities. The President heard the Major fully, and, after giving the matter thorough consideration, concurred with Mr. Bayard's opinion previously given, that it was not a case in which the United States Government could possibly interfere.

[The real hitch in the Riel matter is at Ottawa. Riel is safe to live so long as Sir John neglects to forward to the proper authorities in the Northwest the warrant for the execution of the death sentence pronounced upon him. The fate of Riel is in the hands of the Dominion Government at Ottawa.

The Eastern Crisis.

A Temporary Governor.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 9.—It is stated that the proposal has been made at the Balkan Conference to appoint a temporary governor of Roumelia, and to request Prince Alexander to withdraw, pending the settlement of the question. The Porte is arranging for a further loan of £800,000 from Baron Hirsch, owing to the heavy military expenses.

Charged with Bribery.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Dr. Strausky, the chief mover of the Roumelian revolution, and President of the Provincial Government at Philippopolis, has been forced to resign on the charge of bribery.

Inadequate Clothing.

BELGRADE, Nov. 9.—A tour of the Bulgarian frontier shows the Servian army is cheerful, but that the soldiers are suffering greatly on account of the inclement weather, having only thin clothing and inadequate tents.

Expression of Sympathy.

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Nov. 9.—Prince Alexander has received telegrams of sympathy from some of the European courts. Russia's action is supposed to have been intended to goad Prince Alexander to imprudence in order that there might be an excuse for a Russian invasion of Bulgaria.

The Czar's Fit of Anger.

VIENNA, Nov. 9.—It is stated that the Czar erased the name of Prince Alexander in a fit of anger, without consulting his Ministers, on hearing that Prince Alexander had handed to the British Consul, Mr. Lascelles, papers showing Gavrille Pasha's intrigues with Russia with the view that their publicity would justify a revolution.

CIVIL SERVICE NONSENSE.

An annual increase in the cost of the Dominion civil service shows that the bill passed by the present Government was a fraud, or that it has been fraudulently administered, or its provisions recklessly ignored. It was calculated to keep out incompetent nincompoops whose only recommendation was their political influence and to promote those who, by ability and faithful and efficient service, deserved promotion. Yet it has so signally failed in its object that one individual, who was fortunate enough to be appointed to one of the Departments recently through political influence, has been boasting that the examination was a farce, and that in the subject of arithmetic, he did not attempt to answer one question, yet he was passed through all right. There are now upward of 2,000 young men on the list who have passed the entrance examination, and are waiting for positions at Ottawa, and encouraged by promises held out by their political friends, will make no attempt to seek any other employment. The damaging effect on the youth of the country is apparent. There is no inducement for holders of or applicants for civil service positions to try to improve themselves. All ambition is repressed by the thought, that petty intrigue and dishonorable wire-pulling is a shorter road to political preferment than honest aims to excel, and a determination to render faithful service. The contagion of the example of corruption set by Sir John and his Cabinet is having a worse effect than the waste of the people's hard-earned taxes. It is infecting the moral heart of the youth of the country. Rotten statecraft will implant rotten principles in those who seek to occupy subordinate positions under a government, controlled by the application of such influences.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The output of coal in Cape Breton under the National Policy is 600,000 tons annually, but in 1873, under no tariff, it was 630,000 tons annually. Protection does not seem to protect in this case.

A Special Committee of the Toronto City Council will recommend to that body to petition the Ontario Legislature for the abolition of all exemptions from taxation, in accordance with the vote of the rate-payers at the last municipal elections.

For the fiscal year which closed on June 30th, there was as is already known a deficit of two millions and a half of dollars. For the first four months of the present fiscal year ending on November 1, the total revenue on account of the consolidated fund was $10,C55,453, while the expenditure was $10,956 316, leaving a deficit of $900,000, on one-third the fiscal year, or at the rate of $3,000,000 annually. The financial outlook of the Dominion is therefore gloomy.

The Toronto Trades and Labor Council, after a survey of the situation, has come to the conclusion that the "general outlook of the labor market in Canada for the ensuing winter is little to do and low wages." But, suggests the Hamilton Times, there will be no abatement in the endeavor of Dominion Government agent to induce workingmen to come to Canada. They consider that they must do something for their emoluments, that in that they take after Sir Charles Tupper who, only the other week, assured a meeting of Loudon Poor Law Guardians that Canada could give home and support to 200,000 of the waifs and strays of British cities, if they only could be shipped to our territories.

Mr. A. Campbell, inspector for West Bruce, delivered a sensible address at the late meeting in Kincardine on "Promotion Examinations." Among the objections to these examinations he referred to jealousy among schools and teachers, cramming instead of thorough teaching and loose examining. On the other hand they would stimulate teachers to greater effort, prevent teachers devoting too much time to hobbies, create a healthy rivalry among schools, rouse public opinion in favor of educational progress, place a higher value on the services of good teachers and aid teachers in avoiding difficulties on entering new schools. At the conclusion of Mr. Campbell's address a committee was appointed to confer with the committee already appointed by East Bruce on the subject and endeavor to introduce a perfect system of uniform promotion examinations into the County of Bruce.

Neither personal ease nor individual preoccupation should interfere with the work of getting upon the list every voter who can be relied upon to cast an honest ballot. In every office, in every work-shop, in many families, there are young men who have a right to vote under the new franchise, if they only knew it. Let these young men be coached in time, and when their names are once on the roll they will remain there for use when their ballots will be needed.

The Mail must be terribly disgusted at the mail-y fides of the informant who told that Hon. Mr. Blake intended to resign. Now that it sees that the rumour was a mere riot of leasing, or according to the revised version, lies, it feels humbled to the dust. The organ is so thoroughly ashamed of having said something decent about Hon. Mr. Blake, that it will probably register a vow to stick to the beaten track, and not depart from it to say a good word of a political opponent. When the Opposition leader was supposed by the Mail to be in harness about last July, he was "a moral poltroon," "an unscrupulous partizan," "a sham martyr," "a tinsel hero," "a man unworthy of the respect of any man with a particle of self respect." Yet when the Mail got wind of the rumour that Mr. Blake was about to retire from public life, the Tory organ unblushingly asserts, referring to Hon. Mr. Blake, "that no man in Canadian public life, past or present, has devoted higher talents to the public service, or exhibited a greater zeal or thoroughness in the discharge of the multifarious duties of a political leader and parliamentarian than Mr. Blake." This nauseating flattery was about as ill-timed, and in as ill-taste as the proposal of Sir John to honor Mr. S. H. Blake with the tinsel of a Q. C's. title. Now that the Mail knows that Hon. Mr. Blake is in public life to stay, it may regret its sycophantic utterances, but not be ashamed of them. It may require the taking of a sharp curve to go back on its own words, but the organ will be equal to the occasion.

Collapse of the N. P. Elephant.

The leading cartoon in Grip this issue shows the N.P. elephant smashed a la Jumbo by the "Hard Times" railroad train, and Sir Leonard weeping over the remains with great "resignation." Grip further supplies the following comments on its mastodontic cartoon:—"When the political orators were abroad in 1878, compassing the defeat of Mackenzie's stubborn revenue-tariff Government, Grip was moved, in a spirit of mirth, to picture the N.P. as an elephant. Glowing promises were made by the keepers of this economic mastodon as to the great things it would do if admitted to the arena of office. With one sweep of its trunk, we were told, it would annihilate hard times, and as long as it ambled round the ring everybody would be happy. We followed up the course of events in regular order. We pictured the triumph of the animal, as it rose majestically in all its grandeur upon the prostrate forms of the defunct administration, and subsequently showed it elaborately decorated from head to tail with tariff changes that were to do such great things for the country. Our readers can therefore understand the pain with which we have now to announce the demise of this political Jumbo. Yes, the N.P. is dead! Through no fault of its keeper, but simply in accordance with the nature of things, it got upon the track of the hard times train, and was incontinently knocked-out in the collision. It is dead! The hide will be stuffed and placed in the Museum at Ottawa, and the faithful keeper, Tilley, overcome with sorrow, has retired to the seclusion that a Lieutenant-Governorship grants."

Educational Notes.

Toronto music teachers met on Saturday and resolved on the formation of an association.

The high school buildings at Lindsay are reported by the inspector as unsuitable and unworthy of the town.

The smallpox epidemic is seriously interfering with educational work in Montreal. The public schools have not half their usual attendance. The high school and the University have not suffered nearly so much.

Henceforth there will be no grades in second class certificates. The distinction will be made by the teaching ability shown at the Normal. These important improvements were recommended months ago.

Sir Lyon Playfair, in his opening address at the meeting of the British Association at Aberdeen, severely criticised the English Government for not aiding more liberally the cause of secondary and higher education. He argued strongly in favor of a Minister of Education with a seat in the Cabinet, and appealed to the example of Germany and France.

The Grand Old Man.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Mr. Gladstone started to-day for Edinburgh in good health and spirits. In replying to an address at Chester the ex-Premier said:—"I am going to Midlothian, not to secure my election, but to teach and preach the necessity for united Liberal action." Great enthusiasm was displayed by a large crowd present. Large crowds assembled at the various stations on the line of the railway to welcome Mr. Gladstone as the special train bearing the ex-Premier and party stopped for a few minutes at the different points. Mr. Gladstone had an enthusiastic reception at Warrington, Preston and Carlisle, and in a short address said that he believed that the country was still true to Liberal principle.

Scheme to Keep British Manufacturers out of Ireland.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—It is proposed to form a vast federation comprising all representatives of organized labor in Ireland, for the purpose of keeping out of that country all goods of British manufacture with the exception of such articles as Ireland is unable to produce. The movement is warmly approved by Michael Davitt and a deputation is about to wait on Parnell to secure his approval and that of the National league.

My Little Man.

I know a little chap, whose face is brown with sun,
But through it shines the spirit that makes the boy a man.
A spirit strong and sturdy, a will to win its way;
It does me good to look at him and watch him day by day.

He tells me that his mother is poor and sews for bread,
"She's such a dear, good mother!" the little fellow said;
And then his eyes shone brighter—God bless the little man!
And he added: "Cause I love her I help her all I can."

Ah! that's the thing to do, boys, to prove the love you bear
To the mother who has kept you in long and loving care;
Make all her burdens lighter; help every way you can
To pay the debt you owe her, as does my little man.

The Wily Russians Plot

To Provoke a War with Turkey and Rob her of her Provinces—Probability of an Austro-Russian Unpleasantness.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A Belgrade despatch states that one of the men arrested for complicity in the conspiracy against King Milan has made confession in which he declares if the plot to place Karageorgivich on the Servian throne had succeeded the Prince intended to administer the Governmene entirely in in the interest of Russia. This was to be the first step toward Russian dominance in all the Slav states of the Balkan peninsula. At the same moment of the receipt of this information despatches came from Constantinople showing that the Porte has made known to the British ambassador its reasons for believing the Roumelian revolt was originally fomented by Russia, although Prince Alexander by a treacherous movement has temporarily secured for himself advantage of it. According to the Porte's advices Russia intended to make a prearranged revolt the excuse for bringing about another war with Turkey with the object of securing control of the Balkan States. The simultaneous announcement of this rumor from Belgrade and Constantinople, the two sources of information being apparently quite independent of each other, seems to give weight to the story. The already strained relations between Austria and Russia are not likely to be made more amicable by the publication of those evidences of Russian designs upon the provinces which Austria secretly regards as her legitimate future prey.

A Poser for Salisbury.

How His Retaliatory Tariff Would Work in the Case of Canada.

LONDON, Nov. 7—John Bright, speaking at Birmingham last evening, asked why the Conservatives did not try the experiment of protection on the British colonies instead of on foreign countries. He said the Canadian import duties on British goods were usually higher than on other European goods. But the colonies would soon severed their connection with England if the experiment were tried. If a few trades were protected, all others were equally entitled to protection. The suggestion of Lord Salisbury was so absurd that he (Bright) wondered at his proposing it.

History Repeats Itself.

The world moves, but very slowly; how slowly, we were shown, the other day, by a copy of the New York Sun of 1849. It was a very ancient and musty paper, looking its full age of 34 years; but had it been new and clean, it might have been handed to nearly any one and been read through and through without his discovering that the news in it was more than a century old.

The leading editorial is on "Our Navy," which department the Sun attacks vigorously as utterly unsatisfactory and inefficient, and consisting of a lot of "old tubs." The article might be reproduced to-day without the change of a word, and no one would detect the anachronism.

The foreign news is almost identical with that published in the Times-Democrat this morning, with only a few changes needed in the names. From Ireland comes the story of destitution and starvation—it was soon after the great Irish famine of plots against Great Britain, of revolutionary societies organized, and half-starved Irishmen being shipped to America by the British Government, seeking to stop the famine by depopulating the country.

In France it was during the days of the second republic—there is the same story of quarrels and abuse among the various factions of the Republicans, the same hostility of the Reds to the Conservative Republicans, and the same imperialistic plots against the government.

A revolution fills up the South American column, while home affairs consist of the usual damages to life and property from spring floods, and the usual exciting election news, with a large vote polled and big majorities for the Democracy.

The world certainly moves. During this period of thirty-four years the geography of Europe has been materially changed. Two united nations, Germany and Italy, have sprung into life. France has changed her government twice, and yet Europe has got around to pretty much the same condition she occupied then. In this country a mighty civil war has been waged, a race has been freed and made citizens, and the whole constitution of the country has been changed; and yet so does "history repeat itself" the Sun furnishes to-day pretty much the same news as in 1849.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WIT AND HUMOR.

An English lockmaker has constructed a key which he claims is capable of opening 22,000 patent lever locks, all of which differ in their wards or combinations. As described the key weighs three ounces, is nickel-plated, and is said to be the result of three years' labor on the part of the inventor in making drawings of the different wards and combinations.

The son of Charles Dickens, who was at first reported killed at Fort Pitt, but who has happily escaped, went to Manitoba some ten years since, and was made Inspector of the mounted police. He was afterward promoted to be Chief Inspector. He is described as a plucky, dashing officer, inheriting some of his father's literary tastes, but fonder of adventure and open air life.

Eleven years ago General Dargan, of Wadesboro, N. C., bought a five-year-old hen from a countryman and put her in a pen to fatten, but she began to shell out eggs so fast that the General concluded to keep her for a while, as he considered it too valuable a fowl to kill. She continued to live—is now sixteen, a hale, hearty, old hen—and lays an egg every other day.

George Lewis, a colored man living in Dooly County, Georgia, has a tame gopher or groundhog, which has made its home in a hole in his yard for four years. He has named it Tone, and in warm weather, when the children go to the hole and call him by his name he will crawl out and follow them all over the yard, eating from their hands and doing other funny tricks.

Little Emma came running into the parlor, where her mother was entertaining young Mr. Duder until Miss Mary could complete her toilet and come down-stairs, and cried out: "Oh, mamma! Johnny is dot Mary's teef and won't give 'em to her."

"Doctor, I want to thank you for your great patent medicine." "It helped you, did it?" asked the doctor, very much pleased. "It helped me wonderfully." "How many bottles did you find it necessary to take?" "Oh, I didn't take any of it. My uncle took one bottle, and I am his sole heir."—N. Y. Sun.

"No," said Mrs. Lookabout, "I don't like to have my husband drink; but then, you know, it's really necessary. Pray, how should I have found out, if he didn't, that Mrs. Brownjug's husband spends half his time in a grogshop, or that Mr. Tansy visits Julep's saloon three times a day just as regular as the day comes round?"—Boston Transcript.

Ethel—"Oh! isn't it lovely. The paper says that huge mastiffs are to be the pet dogs for young ladies this season." Eudora—"That's just too sweet for anything. Why, a mastiff is almost as big as a pony." Ethel—"Yes; won't it be lovely? When dear Alphonso gets tired promenading with me by moonlight alone I can lift him up and let him ride on the mastiff."

There are 50,000 skating-rinks in this country. On an average there are six falls a day in each rink, this makes a total of 30 ,000 falls a day throughout the country, or 1,800,000 falls a week. In the face of this showing the fall of Adam dwindles into insignificance. But the true American is by no means dismayed by these statistics. On the contrary, he exclaims: O, my country, with all thy falls I love thee still!—Boston Courier.

Lord Randolph Churchill will stand almost alone as a debater of spirit in the House of Commons, and is likely to have a hard time of it. A correspondent says of Gladstone: His supremacy is unquestioned, and though Lord Randolph, alone of his party, sometimes stands up to him, it is only in audacious expectation of the knockdown blow which he always gets. But who is there on the Tory side to match against debaters of the force of Sir Charles Dilke, Lord Hartington, Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Trevelyan, or Sir William Harcourt?

Destroyed Without Pain.

A good crop of hair is a great beauty, but a superfluous growth is an unsightly blemish. Everyone troubled with unnecessary hair should not fail to try a bottle of "Eureka"—Dorenwend's Hair Destroyer; it removes all superfluous hair without pain or disfigurement. English Synonyms.

The copiousness of the English tongue, as well as the difficulty of acquiring the ability to use its immense vocabulary correctly, is well exhibited in the following array of synonymous words, which, if not new, is yet a capital illustration of the nice distinctions which characterize so many of vocables. It is no wonder that we slip occasionally, even the wariest of us. A little girl was looking at the picture of a number of ships, when she exclaimed: "See what a flock of ships!" We corrected her by saying that a flock of ships is called a fleet, and that a fleet of sheep is called a flock. And here we would add, for the benefit of the foreigner who is mastering the intricacies of our language in respect to nouns of multitude, that a flock of girls is called a bevy, that a bevy of wolves is called a pack, and that a pack of thieves is called a gang, and that a gang of angels is called a host, and a host of porpoises is called a shoal, and a shoal of buffaloes is called a herd, and a herd of children is called a troop, and a troop of partridges is called a covey, and a covey of beauties is called a galaxy, and a galaxy of ruffians is called a horde, and a horde of rubbish is called a heap, and a heap of oxen is called a drove, and a drove of blackguards is called a mob, and a mob of whales is called a school, and a school of worshippers is called a congregation, and a congregation of engineers is called a corps, and a corps of robbers is called a band, and a band of locusts is called a swarm, and a swarm of people is called a crowd, and a crowd of gentlemen is called the elite, and the elite of the city's thieves and rascals is called the roughs.—San Francisco News Letter.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the Evening Examiner are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Mr. Charles Stapleton's auction sale of oil paintings, steel engravings and water colors opens this evening at the store opposite the Grand Central hotel. Come and see the grand display.

Prolific Potatoes.

On his return from the Northwest last fall Mr. Harry Long, confectioner, brought home with him samples of the mammoth potatoes grown in the soil of the prairies. He gave two to a gentleman in town who planted them and the resulting crop from the two potatoes filled four patent pails. They were of monstrous size and the gathering of them is described as like picking up an armful of bricks.

Mind Reading, Etc.

A good evening's entertainment is that announced for Friday, 20th Nov., in the Opera House. The programme will include Mr. John Miller, mind reading, Mr. Wm. Dixon, ventriloquism, Mrs. Chambers and Miss Stephens, soloists, and Prof. Parker, pianist. It is also expected to have a teacher of elocution as reader. Other names will be added to the programme. The entertainment is one of the Y.M.C.A. series. Tickets 25 and 35 cents. Reserved seat plan at A. L. Davis & Co.

Baptist Y. P. A., Meeting.

A meeting of the Young People's Association of Murray Street Baptist Church, will be held in the school room on Friday evening next, at 8 o'clock. A short paper will be read, followed by a discussion on the following subject. "Is it wise on the part of the state, to place a liberal education within the reach of all?"

The class for instruction in singing in the tonic-sol-fa method will be held as usual at 7:30.

Another County Heard From.

Mr. John Miller evidently thinks we are in straits with that terrible "Mikado," for he writes us from Kingston as follows:—"In regard to the pronunciation of "Mikado,' there should be no difficulty. I heard the word pronounced frequently in the Savoy Theatre, London, where the opera was produced under the direct guidance of Gilbert & Sullivan. Put the accent on the second syllable, Mik-ah-do. If put on in anything like a proper way, the opera is A 1." Although this conflicts somewhat with the opinion of our dude correspondent we are happy to have an opinion from outside, in fact we always did think the dude let on to know a great deal more than he really does. Henceforth be it Mik-ah-do.

Mind Reading.

Bon Voyage.

His Lordship Bishop Jamot, accompanied by his secretary, Rev. Father Bretherton, of Bracebridge, leaves town this evening on the first stage of his decennial visit to Rome. They will proceed to Toronto on the 5.15 train of the G. T. R., stopping there over night, and going on to Hamilton in the morning, from whence, on Thursday morning, they will go on to New York. They will there embark on the steamer Aurania, of the Cunard Line, on Saturday. The Examiner joins in the hearty wishes of a prosperous voyage, a pleasant tour, and a safe return for His Lordship and his secretary, that will follow him from so many homes in his diocese.

Looking for a Location.

Mr. E. H. Mylne, of the Smith's Falls Bolt Works, was in town to-day looking at the facilities offered by Peterborough as a location for his factory, which is to be removed from Smith's Falls. He had been in Toronto with the same object in view and called here on his return from that city. The establishment employs 45 hands at present. The object of the removal is, no doubt, to extend its capacity, and if located here the town could not fail to profit by it. Here is a chance for the town fathers to show that they are sincere in their protestations of desire to encourage new industries. If proper effort is put forth there should be a good chance of inducing the location of the Bolt Works here.

Wools and Yarns of all the leading kinds and shades in best qualities. J. Erskine.

Thanksgiving Shooting.

Don't neglect to be at the shooting match at the quarry on Thanksgiving day, when a hundred geese and turkeys will be shot for. Rare good sport. First shot at 9:20 sharp.

Stuart Rogers.

We understand that the Opera House has been secured for the 10th and 11th of December, for the renowned "Stuart Rogers," the great reciter and impersonator, who will give two of his novel and interesting entertainments on the above dates.

The "At Home."

To be held Thanksgiving evening in the Lecture Room of George Street Methodist Church promises great attractions. There will be vocal and instrumental music, recitation, &c., and refreshments will be served. Admission, 25c.

A Dangerous Hole.

The filling in of a trench on the corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie streets has sunken so as to leave a deep hole which will give any accommodating pedestrian, who may happen to step off to allow a party to pass on the walk, a dangerous and dirty tumble.

Something New.

The game of polo to be played at the Lansdowne rink on Thanksgiving day between Port Hope and a rival team, will be one of the leading attractions of the holiday. The game, which has never been played here, is said to be very exciting. Admission 15 cents.

Transatlantic Travellers.

Mr. Thomas Menzies, the agent for the G. T. R. and leading lines of Atlantic steamships, is daily selling tickets to all parts of the world. His Lordship Bishop Jamot and Rev. Father Bretherton, of Bracebridge, who leave for Rome this evening, secured their railway and steamship tickets from Mr. Menzies.

Young Men's Bible Study.

All young men having an hour to spare this evening cannot occupy it better than by attending the above class at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. The course of study now being pursued is one of great interest, and the Rev. F. H. Wallace, who conducts the class, is an able leader. The class begins at 8 o'clock.

Mind Reading.

Maple Avenue Crossing.

The ratepayer with the club, who called on us on Monday, feels a little conscience stricken for the violence of his language used on that occasion, for, when he returned home he found a gang of workmen putting down a crossing over the long-neglected space. It is now firmly laid in place, and will be a great accommodation to the residents of that vicinity. Another long-neglected place—corner of Water and McDonnell streets—is receiving attention in the way of a crossing.

Two Months with Big Bear.

There has been issued by the Times office, Parkdale, a handsome little volume of 140 pages, entitled, "Two Months in the Camp of Big Bear." It treats of the life and adventures of Theresa Gowanlock and Theresa Delaney, particular attention being paid to the details of the two months of wretched captivity suffered by these ladies in the camp of Big Bear. The book is gracefully written, and will be read with absorbing interest, especially by every Canadian woman, whose heart can sympathise with the misery that must have been felt by two refined ladies doomed to spend two months in the precincts of a camp of savages on the war path. The book will soon be placed on the market, when doubtless it will meet with rapid sale.

Police Court.

The case of Mr. T. Bradburn against David Wallace, for fraudulent removal of goods, was brought up at the Police Court again this morning. Mr. Masson for defendant, objected that by the statute under which the information was laid, Mr. Dumble had not the power of two magistrates as was requisite to secure conviction. The objection was noted and the case gone on with. It was charged that defendant had clandestinely removed his goods from the house belonging to Mr. Bradburn while they were under seizure for $45 rent due. Owing to informality on the part of the bailiff the case was dismissed with cost against the plaintiff.

Adam Dobbin, being without means of support was committed to gaol for 6 months.

What We May Expect.

The fortnightly pow-wow of the Town Council this evening.

A "Daniel" rehearsal this evening.

More adjournments of the Scott Act appeal investigation.

A massacre in Turkey to-day and to-morrow.

A large number of citizens to attend church on Thanksgiving Day.

And more to go shooting in the country.

Northwest and west winds; fair weather; not much change in temperature.

Personal.

Mr. Francis Hesston left town this morning for New York, via G. T. R.

Father Bretherton, parish priest of Bracebridge, who as secretary, will accompany Bishop Jamot on his decennial visit to Rome, arrived in town last evening.

His Honour Judge Dennistoun was in Toronto yesterday attending the Revising Barrister's convention. The ostensible object of the convention was to confer on the Franchise Act, with a view of arriving at a uniform method of carrying out its provisions.

Mind Reading.

Received with Thanks.

Rev. E. Duff desires to acknowledge with the thanks receipt of a roll of flannel for the Hazelbrae Home, from Mr. W. Brodie.

Removing the Fence.

Mr. Nesbitt, governor of the gaol, is taking down the fence at the south side of the Court House Park. It was to be taken down in the spring, but as the snow drifts against it in winter, at times making the sidewalk on Brock street impassable, Mr. Nesbitt thought it as well to remove it now and save the labor of keeping clear the sidewalk when the snow comes on.

Scott Act Appeal.

The investigation into this appeal was continued at the Judge's chambers this morning, but very little further progress was made. Mr. C. A. Weller, counsel for the appellants, endeavored to keep a straight face while reading Mr. William's letter in reference to the examination, and suggesting that His Hon. should commit Mr. Williams for contempt, staying further proceeding until that matter was settled. The effort, however, was too great, and he relapsed into a broad grin as he concluded. His Honor smiled too, and said that although the letter in question was a very improper one, it hurt nobody, and was hardly a ground for commitment for contempt. An adjournment was finally made till Monday, for the purpose of securing the attendance of Dr. Ford, the Returning Officer.

The Servians Provoking a Conflict.

Pesth, Nov. 9.—Fifty Servians recently crossed the frontier near Tan and attacked a Bulgarian outpost guard of ten men. One of the Servians was killed. The attacking party subsequently retired. A party of Servians inspecting the Bulgarian frontier fired on the Bulgarian commander in the Kustendil district. The commander was not injured.

The Burmese Trouble.

Calcutta, Nov. 9.—Lord Dufferin received King Thebaw's reply to day.

Rangoon, Nov. 9.—Gen. Prendergast and his troops have been tranferred direct to the Irrawaddy. A flotilla of 3,000 men have started for Thayetmyo. King Thebaw has sent reinforcements to Miuhla and removed the pilots from the Upper Irrawaddy.

Suicide of an Octogenarian.

Florence, Ont., Nov. 9.—Capt. James Gordon, late of Bothwell, while visiting his son-in-law in the township of Zone, hanged himself this morning in the barn. He was over 80 years of age, and had become despondent from sickness and pain. His mind had evidently become deranged.

WEATHER NOTES.

It has been an old saying, that there never was an October without snow, but this year we had it earlier than usual, the first coming on the 4th, and in all on five days, to the depth of 1 inch. Rain fell on 16 days, to the depth of 3 22-100 inches, being slightly above the average. The heaviest storm was on the 13th, falling 1¼ inches. Fog on three mornings, and frost on 17 mornings, the coldest being on the 31st, the thermometer dropping to 18 degrees; and the warmest on the 11th, at sunset, the thermometer standing at sixty-two degrees, with an average for the month of 46 8-31. Wild geese were first seen going south on the 7th, being only three days later than last year, namely, the 4th in 1884. At sunrise the wind was blowing from the different points respectively, namely, southwest 4 days, south 4 days, east 6 days, northwest 4 days, west 3 days, north 2 days, northeast 4 days and southeast 4 days. Fall wheat in new and summer fallows looks well, but pea land and stubble land has not such a thrifty appearance.

Peterborough in the Past.

Interesting Reminiscences.

The Scottish American of November 4th, contains the following article respecting Peterborough, contributed by a former resident of the town. It will be of considerable interest to, especially, old residents:

"In the fall of 1833, while employed as a clerk in the importing and shipping house of Smith & Lindsay, Montreal, I received an offer of a situation to go to Peterborough, in Upper Canada, with an Irish gentleman who was about opening a store for the sale of general merchandise in that rising town. Railways were almost unknown on this continent at that time, and it took me nearly a week to reach that place. As neither my employer nor his family had arrived there, I took up my quarters at a tavern dignified with the name of Downer's Hotel. I shall never forget my first impressions of Peterborough. It was literally a new town, sprung up in the wilderness, and the stumps of the great trees that had been felled still encumbered the streets, and as there were no public lamps locomotion after dark was almost impossible.

My employer was a broken-down merchant from Strabane, in the north of Ireland, and having no means, but abundance of cheek, he succeeded in getting a good supply of stock of various kinds from the wholesale merchants of Montreal. He was an excellent business man, of good address, and we soon established a thriving trade with the farmers in the townships of Otonabee, Douro and Smith. The settlers in those townships were almost entirely composed of emigrants brought over from the counties of Cork and Tipperary by the Hon. Peter Robinson in 1826. They were a lot of people, so different from any I had ever seen or come into contact with; but as we dealt honestly with them, and never took any advantage of their ignorance, we soon gained their confidence, and had all their trade.

I had a variety of fellow clerks, of whom it is not neccessary for me to say anything except as touching one—John Kelly, a young Irish lad and a native of Dublin, where his father was a barrister in good standing. John had been employed by the Collector of Customs at Port Hope till the close of navigation, and our "boss" was induced by the Collector to make room for him in his store during the winter months. At first none of us did fancy him much; but after a time we found him to be a sociable and humorous fellow, and upon the whole very interesting company. He had studied at Trinity College, Dublin, was a good classical scholar, and was familiar with the works of Shakespeare, Byron and Moore. He was also an excellent mimic, and would imitate Dan O'Connell, Shiel, Jack Lawless and other eminent Irishmen of the period. Everything connected with a country store was entirely new to him; but he soon proved to be an apt salesman and made himself useful in each department.

John became very popular with the Irish emigrants, and never failed, whenever he had a chance, to give them for we had a cask always on tap to satisfy the cravings and thirst of the natives of the Emerald Isle. After Kelly had been with us a couple of months or so he began to display a fine new watch, and in an off-hand way he told us he had paid for it out of his savings while a clerk at Port Hope. Of course it was none of our business; but when it became known to the "boss" it led to an investigation, and the result was that the jeweller said it was bought on "tick," and not one dollar had been paid upon its account.

LOTS OF BLARNEY AND RYE WHISKY,

The "boss" lost no time in writing to his friend the Collector for the particulars of John's antecedents, and in a few days an answer came from that functionary conveying the unwelcome intelligence that Kelly was an unmitigated scamp, and that on one pretense or another he had managed to borrow various sums of money from the Collector's friends which had never been repaid. The "boss" was a decided man of action. He immediately settled with Kelly, made him return the watch to the jeweller, and next morning he left in the stage coach for Cobourg.

This was not all I saw of poor Kelly. About two years thereafter I noticed in a New York paper that a young man of that name, hailing from Canada, had been and was locked up in the Tombs. It transpired that he had forged a draft for two hundred pounds upon a bank in Wall street, purporting to be drawn at sight by the Hon. John Hamilton in favor of Kelly. The draft was well executed, written upon official paper and would have been paid on presentation provided he had brought some one known to the officers of the bank to identify him. At it was he got five pounds on account, and in a day or two thereafter he found a Dublin clergyman, a friend of his father, and when they presented themselves at the bank, expecting to get the balance of the cash, Kelly was arrested and committed as aforesaid. I went to see him on the day of his trial. He was extremely reticent, pled guilty, and was sent up to Sing Sing for two and a half years.

While I was a resident at Peterborough a steamboat ran daily during the season of navigation from Cleghorn's, south side of Rice Lake, and up the Otonabee river to the town landing, conveying merchandise and emigrants from the Old Country, who had landed at Quebec and Montreal. They were a miscellaneous crowd, mostly of the labouring class, mechanics, Glasgow weavers, impecunious bankrupts, with a sprinkling of half-pay officers and the younger sons of the gentry of the Three Kingdoms, the latter sent out by their relatives to seek their fortunes in the New World. Amongst the younger sons was an Irishman named Tom Higginbotham, possessed of [illegible], who upon making a survey of the "promised land," had no taste for "roughing it in the bush," and concluded to take up his abode at McFadden's Hotel, the principal hotel in the town. His father was a gentleman of fortune living in the north of Ireland, and whenever Tom ran short of funds he always applied to his father, who honoured his drafts. In the winter time, when the sleighing was good, he kept a pair of fast trotters, and was hand in glove with all the GAY GALLANTS AND PRETTY GIRLS OF PETERBOROUGH.

I had no particular acquaintance of Higginbotham, and when I left Peterborough in the Spring of 1835 he was still in his heyday of fun and frolic.

Several years afterwards, when living in New York, business called me to see a cooper, whose shop was in the Fourth Ward. Upon coming out of the cooperage, who should I meet but Tom Higginbotham, whose general appearance and outward man betokened extreme poverty. Evidently he was destitute of linen, for his old faded overcoat was buttoned close to his chin, and in his hand he carried a teapot, which like himself,

HAD SEEN BETTER DAYS.

He knew me at once, and upon my expressing surprise at his altered conditions and so forth, he told me he was obliged to leave Peterborough in consequence of the "ould man's" failing to honor his drafts, and being deeply in debt, especially to McFadden, he made a virtue of necessity, and fled to the "States." He went on to inform me that he was quartered in an obscure lodging house close by, and his mission at the moment with the "tay-pot" was for a supply of rum or whiskey for one of the "boorders." The poor fellow presented the very picture of poverty, and wanted to know if I could get something for him to do; anything to earn a living. I gave him my address, and in about a week he called to see me. He was clean shaved, and upon the whole looked much better than when I met him in Cherry street.

Luckily, during our interview in came a Scotch gentleman, whose wife carried on an extensive millinery store on Canal street. He was a great temperance man, and I took the liberty of introducing Higginbotham to his notice. His wife was in want of a man to press hats, and if Tom would undertake the job he would receive $5 every Saturday night. Tom accepted the situation, and next morning went to work at hat-pressing, and so as to be near his employers' establishment he changed his lodgings to Elm street. I saw him occasionally while thus employed, but after Christmas time I lost sight of him, and I was afraid he had returned to his old course of life, until one fine morning in the month of May, when he presented himself dressed up in elegant style—new silk hat, patent leather shoes, and all that sort of thing.

Upon my expressing great satisfaction at his altered condition he at once informed me that the "ould man" in the county of Cavan had died and his "share of the estate amounted to six thousand pounds," and said he, "I will sail for the ould sod to morrow, and I have called to thank you and bid you good-by. Only for you meeting me that day with the ould tay pot in my hand, God help me, I might be in the poorhouse or laid in Potter's Field, and by the same token," he continued, "I am married to one of the girls who worked in the millinery shop;" and addressing his better half, who was standing on the sidewalk, "come in Mary my dear and I will make you acquainted with the best friend I have met with in America." Accordingly, I shook hands with the lady, and wished them all manner of joy and happiness. And here endeth my acquaintance with Thomas Higginbotham.

The great 25 per cent. discount sale of beautiful New Millinery at Fair, Van Every & Co's still continues. The large variety of Hats, Bonnets, &c., at the exceeding low prices, warrants a speedy sale. Ladies should go early for first choice.

No Paper.

To-morrow being Thanksgiving Day and a general holiday, there will be no issue of THE EXAMINER.

Ladies' Bible Class.

The Rev. A. H. Munro will meet his class as usual to-morrow afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. Hall at 4 p. m. All are invited.

St. Paul's Church.

It is thought that the Thanksgiving services in St. Paul's Church to-morrow at 11 a.m., will be of unusual interest. The Rev. Mr. Little, of Bowmanville, will conduct the service. The choir will be present.

Organ Recital.

The third of a series of organ recitals in connection with the Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Church will be held on Friday evening, the 27th Nov. A good programme is being arranged for.

Scots who Hae.

The annual meeting of the St. Andrew's Society will be held this evening in the Council Chamber. Arrangements are in progress for a concert to be held on Saint Andrew's day, and it is expected that the famous Bairnsfather family of Scottish vocalists will be secured for the occasion. This family are said to be the equals of any living Scotch songsters, and the sons of bonnie Scotland may look forward to a rich treat.

Men Who Will Give Thanks.

What the People Think of the celebrated "Major" John Hopper, Montreal, manager of the Mutual Reserve Fund (Life) Association of New York, who, it is said by the Journal of Commerce, recently skipped, leaving a little balance of somewhere about $16,000. It is further asserted that the Mutual Reserve Fund (Life) Association has a lien on the "Major's" household effects. The "Major" has been a conspicuous figure in several assessment concerns that have collapsed. Wonder what proportion the people of this section have contributed to the many cheap plans of so-called Life Insurance, which so frequently offer something for nothing with the inevitable result always.

Congregational Thanksgiving.

The following services will be held in the various churches to-morrow. There will be services in St. John's Church at 11 a.m., and 7.30 p.m. The musical portion of the services will be a special feature, and at the morning service the anthem "O Lord how manifold are Thy works," will be rendered.

At St. Luke's, Ashburnham, there will be morning services at 10.30 and evening prayers at 7.30

At George Street Methodist Church a union Methodist service will be held at 11 a.m. Rev. F.H. Wallace, M.A., B.D., will preach the sermon.

There will also be services held at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church at 11 a.m., by Rev. Rev. Mr. Little.

Mind Reading.

"Daniel."

On Tuesday evening the fifth practice of the cantata "Daniel," was held at the fine hall of Otonabee Lodge. There was a good attendance, and considering the amount of practice previously had, the chorus under Prof. Miller's able management showed remarkable efficency. Due credit is to be given to Mr. Wm. Cluxton, the veteran musician of the town, whose experience enables him to give valuable suggestions and advice. Much credit for the smoothness of the practice is due to the excellent and judicious accompaniments furnished by Mr. C. C. Hampshire, organist of St. John's. If as much progress is made in the coming month as in the past the grand cantata of "Daniel" will be presented to the public of Peterborough in a manner to make it the musical event of the decade. Prof. Miller has excellent material and is making excellent use of it.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The annual observance of a day for general thanksgiving is a proper recognition of the Christian character of the country in which we live. The duty of our citizens who profess to be loyal and patriotic, is to keep this national holiday in commemoration of national mercies.

No doubt churches and individual Christians would observe in a proper spirit, their times of thanksgiving, without the intervention of the state. They would readily yield to Almighty God their offerings of worship and gifts for personal mercies, temporal and spiritual, social and religious.

But it does seem meet and right that in a Christian country such as ours, there should be some public recognition of God, as the giver of all our national mercies and the author of all good. Certainly we have much to be thankful for in this respect. Our national advantages and national blessings are very numerous. Upon no fairer land than ours does God's bright sunshine fall.

Our Dominion may be said at this moment to be in a measure, prosperous. The industrious and sober man can well support his family. Trade has been fairly brisk and the large deposits in our saving-banks show that a vast number of our mechanics and others are providing for the future. The possibilities of this noble heritage of ours are illimitable and overwhelming in their vastness. Canada has an area as large as the whole of Europe. She owns eight hundred millions of area of fertile land, that may be made a granary for the whole world. We enjoy a healthy and invigorating climate. We possess inexhaustible mineral stores laid up in the treasure vaults of the everlasting hills. We have broad lakes and majestic rivers, representing at least thirty thousand miles of navigable waters. And these are yet destined to be the throbbing arteries of our commercial life. We have an almost boundless extent of sea coast, with innumerable bays, gulfs and harbours, that swarm with the living treasures of the deep. We have magnificent harbours that open in two oceans, now united by rail.

"No pent up Utica confines our powers.
A vast unbounded continent is our."

And in addition to these great national blessings we have now peace, contentment and freedom, such as no country in the world can boast. The dark cloud of war and internal strife which shortly after the commencement of the year burst upon us so suddenly has been dispelled. At the expense of much lost, both of man and means, peace has been once more secured. Our brave defenders have shown their skill and their ability to defend their country; and their readiness to respond to the martial call, their willingness to endure hardships, and their valour in the hour of danger, have raised them greatly in their country's estimation and evoked most generous encomiums.

All these things should provoke our earnest thanksgivings. The earth too, has once more yielded her increase, and as we reflect upon this and all our other national mercies and favours, our people should indeed consider it a duty and a privilege to meet together to-morrow, to offer in their respective churches, the expression of their earnest gratitude to God for the numerous mercies He has generously bestowed upon them during the year now drawing to a close.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is announced that the Dominion Parliament will be called together in January. The late date on which the members are to assemble indicates that there is little government matter to be dealt with or perhaps more properly it shows that an attempt will be made to rush the session so that discussion of the sins of the government will be staved off.

Autumnal Strawberries.

A farmer of North Salem, Winchester county, New York, on Saturday, Nov. 7th, presented to a farmers' club a box of strawberries which he had that day picked from vines growing out of doors, being part of a third crop gathered this season. The vines were protected at night with hay which is removed at sunrise.

Fort Hope.

Under the heading "Suit Number One," the Guide has the following:—

"This (Tuesday) morning Mr. Preston swore out an information before Mr. Holland, Police Magistrate, against Col. J. Vance Graveley, Mayor of Cobourg, for perjury in connection with the late election in this riding. Col. Graveley is charged with taking the oath of ownership to certain lands in Hope, whereby he claimed to be entitled to vote, and it is alleged against him that he was not owner at the dates specified in the oath, and was not therefore entitled to vote at said election. The rumored issuance of the summons some days ago created no little interest, and we expect that excitement will be at fever heat on the date fixed for the preliminary examination, next Monday morning (Nov. 16th), at ten o'clock, at the Police Court room, here."

Educational Notes.

The Philadelphia board of public education has opened a manual training school for the instruction of boys in the use of mechanical tools. It is not intended to teach trades, but by the training of the hand, eye and perceptive faculties to acquire expertness in the use of tools and other appliances.

The next entrance examination will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 21st, 22nd and 23rd of Dec. Intending candidates should notify the Head Master of the Collegiate Institute or High School at which they desire to write by Dec. 1st. The subjects prescribed for entrance are the same as those for the fourth class in public schools with the exception of music, business forms and book keeping.

The Dundas County Teachers' Convention passed a resolution thanking the Minister of Education for his interest in the welfare of teachers, approving of the proposal to prescribe a course of reading for the teachers of the province, and lauding the Minister's action in establishing training institutes for high school assistants.

The American Teacher, an ably-conducted educational journal, thus summarizes the advantages of the Kindergarten system:—It furnishes an orderly method of the development of the child's faculties, it uses the child's natural desires for play and hand activity as a means of education, it recognizes the opportunity for moral growth in the child's acts, language and behavior, and by it the child is at once put into possession of its faculties and their use.

The following from the Educational Weekly expresses the opinion of nearly every educationist in this Province:—In one thing the present Minister of Education has shown more wisdom than any of his predecessors. He announced to the Provincial Association his expectations that when the new regulations, now under consideration, are brought into operation, no further changes will be necessary either in the school law or the departmental regulations for at least five years to come. Five years of peace and quiet, without the turmoil and disquiet which extensive alterations always make, would be as enjoyable and conducive to prosperity as novel and unexpected. Variety may be the spice of life, but it should be only a condiment and not a dietary article.

Dominion Doings.

J. B. King, of Oakville, was fined $50 and $13.20 costs, for violation of the Scott Act.

It is stated that Archbishop Tache has written to the Pope, asking his holiness to interfere in Riel's behalf.

Thomas Garred, plasterer, of London, Ont., has deserted his wife and family and eloped with a young girl from Delaware.

A deputation of brewers is at Ottawa to request the Government to exempt blue ribbon beer from the operation of the Scott Act.

The Dresden, Ont., Times speaks of the "facinorous" conduct of the fakirs at the fair recently held in that town. Facinorous is a good word.

The fifty miles extension of the M. & N. W. Railway from Minnedosa, Man., to within seven miles of Birtle has been completed and duly opened for traffic.

The Orillia Packet, undoubtedly one of the best local papers in the province, will celebrate its fifteenth anniversary by taking possession of a new office fitted throughout with the latest and very best machinery.

The school teacher market appears to be glutted. At a meeting of the School Board there were 150 applications for the six vacancies in Goderich public and ward schools. The short hours and long holidays are great attractions for the boys and girls. Many of those who enter the profession merely use it as a stepping stone to something better.

The new organ of St. Peter's Cathedral, London, was blessed Sunday by Bishops Burgess, of Detroit, and Carberry, of Hamilton.

J. K. Stewart, Grand Scribe of the Grand Division Sons of Temperance, contracted smallpox a few days ago on the train between Ottawa and Lachute, and is now in the hospital at Ottawa. His case is not considered a very serious one.

According to the Sherbrooke, Que., Examiner, the Chief of Police takes the visiting tramps out of the station at 4 o'clock in the morning, loads them into a buggy, and then horsewhips them. This may be the right way to serve tramps, but it looks a trifle irregular.

The Quest.

Oh! whither are you sailing, my bonny little maiden,
Oh! whither are you sailing across the ocean deep?
"While south the wind is veering, my bonny boat I'm steering,
And whether shade or sunshine, my onward course I keep."

And why are you thus sailing, my bonny little maiden,
Why are you thus sailing upon the bright blue sea?
"To see the Sphinx I'm going, while fresh the wind is blowing,
To ask her just to answer one question faithfully."

And after all this sailing, my bonny little maiden,
What riddle are you wanting the wise Sphinx to unlock?
"I want to know the reason, no matter what the season,
That little girls must always go to bed at 8 o'clock."

And while you thus are sailing, my bonny little maiden,
What is the store of precious freight your bark takes o'er the sea?
Replied the little maiden: "With flowers it is laden
That I have gathered for the Sphinx, if she will answer me."

May I go sailing with you, my bonny little maiden?
I'd like upon your bonny boat a passenger to be.
"Oh! yes, and we together, come fair or stormy weather,
Will sailing go to see the Sphinx across the wide blue sea."

—Wide Awake.

Plants Borrowed from the Indians.

Mr. Edward Eggleston's paper, in the May Century, on "The Aborigines and the Colonists," takes ground in opposition to the Indian idealists. Our food and culinary indebtedness to the Indian is described as follows:

The corn was planted as our farmers plant it, in hills three or four feet apart, with four or five grains in a hill. Beans grew about the stalk then as now, and pumpkins or squashes filled the intervening space.

The very names of our dishes are witnesses that the European-Americans learned many ways of cooking from the Indians. Pone, hominy, samp, succotash, and supawn are words borrowed from the aboriginal tongues; and the preparations of Indian corn which bear these names were served in wigwams, no doubt, for ages before the white man had ever seen the gay streamers and waving tassels of the maize-field. On a hot stone, or the bottom of an earthen vessel set before the fire, the aboriginal baked what the pioneer afterward baked on his hoe and called it hoe-cake; the toothsome southern "ash-cake" was also first made by the squaws, who shrouded it in husks before committing it to the fire. The Indians knew how to hull corn by applying lye. They celebrated the coming of the delicious green "roasting-ears" by a solemn feast. They nourished infants and invalids with maize-gruel, and they were before us with the merry pop-corn—"the corn that blossomed," as the Hurons called it.

But "our wild brethren and sisters" used Indian corn in ways unknown to us; it was their chief food, and they "put it through all its sauces." Jerusalem artichokes, dried currants, powdered mulberries, indeed, almost all other sorts of fruit and flesh,—were mixed with it. They cooked little doughnuts of meal by dropping them into maple syrup. One of their most useful preparations was probably that which, in Virginia, was called rockahominy, and in New England, mokick—simply parched corn pulverized, and carried in a pouch in journeying; it was mixed, before eating, with snow in winter and with spring water in summer. They used maize for many other things: of the meal they made poultices; with a bowl of mush, given by the bride to her new lord, some tribes celebrated marriages; by means of the grains of maize, to represent a penny or stiver, the savage cast up his accounts with the trader; grains of corn were sent as tickets to those who were bidden to a feast; and, by putting them into gourds and turtle-shells, rattles were made. The husks they braided for mats and wrought into baskets, into light balls for some of their games, into salt-bottles, and even shoes long before the white man took the hint and made of them chair-bottoms, floor-mats, and collars for horses. Maize was worshiped as a divinity. Children were kept in the field to watch the precious grain as it grew; but some of the tribes protected the thievish crow, because of the legend that a crow had brought them the first seed of the plant which supported their life on so many sides.

From the aborigines the settlers learned the use of other articles of food, such as the persimmon of the South, and the so-called ground-nut of the North. Penn found the savages eating baked beans, as white people do yet in Boston. The festoons of drying pumpkin in the frontierman's cabin are imitated from the Indians.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

It is popularly admitted everywhere that McGregor's Speedy Cure is the safest, most reliable and by far the cheapest remedy for Constipation, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Impure Blood, Loss of Appetite, and all similar troubles. It is not necessary to take a great quantity before any result is produced. A few doses will convince you of its merits. Trial bottle given free at J. McKee's drug store. d133eod-w44.

Connecticut's Kicking Equine.

In a big stable in Voluntown, in which are thirty horses, is the most famous kicking horse in the State. She is not, writes a Norwich, Conn., correspondent to the New York Sun, like ordinary horses that kick, but she has a talent for unique and finished kicking. Her owner keeps her because she is an equine curiosity. She kicks continually, and when there is no live thing to kick at, the neighbors say, she stars up nights paring off the top of the stall with her heels. One evening a few days ago, a Norwich-trout hunter, in prowling about the stable, unconsciously sauntered up toward the kicker to get a nearer view of a glass frame, over the stall, in which was a brown-paper placard, bearing the single word, in black ink, "Dangerous." He had just mastered the word when there was a couple of sharp reports, and a small splinter from the top board of the stall fell at his feet.

"Hi, there!" yelled a hostler, who was rubbing down a pair of team horses, "if you don't want to be kicked out of the town you'd better come away from that stall. That's the kicking horse."

"What! does she kick?" innocently inquired the visitor, as another explosion followed, which lowered the stall another sixteenth of an inch.

"Kick! waal—ruther! She kicks everything and everybody, and all the time."

"But how do you take care of her, then? Does she kick you?"

"Waal, not so much. She don't kick me oftener than four or five times a week; but she can spot a stranger every time. She's a sly one, though. Just look at her now!"

The mare had turned her arched neck, and her full, liquid eye, which shone a red violet in the glare of the stable lantern, beamed with benevolence, and a coaxing invitation to come up nearer.

"You orter seen her kick a feller from the village that come in here drunk the other night," remarked the hostler. "I told him to keep away, but he 'lowed he warn't afraid o' no kickin' horse, and he walked up to the stall and said, 'Soh! Sal! what's eatin' on ye?' Just then she fetched him one. She kicked him clean across the floor, eighteen foot, without touching ground, and landed him on the back of a cow in the opposite stall; and then the cow kicked him half way back. You see the cow warn't nigh so good a kicker as the mare. Waal, that feller was plumb-full when the horse lifted him, but when he got back from the cow he was the soberest man you ever see. He didn't say a word, but slid out of the stable quiet and went home. Next night he was in here again. He came in kind o' softly, and sneaked up where I was fixin' up the beddin' for a stall, and said in a whisper: 'Is that ar' spile-driver in here to-night?' 'If you mean that ar' kickin' hoss,' says I, 'you kin jest bet she is.' 'Hoss,' says he; that ain't no hoss—that's a mule,' them things in the army,' says he. 'It war just afore a battle, and she kicked me so fur to the rear that it took me two days to walk back. They war goin' to court-martial me: but the same mule got loose the night afore the trial was to come off, and kicked down the guard tent, and spiked two cannon with her heels. After that they believed my story.'"

The Norwich man slept in a neighboring hotel that night, and when he awoke the distant thuds that were [illegible] moonlight to [illegible] the kicking [illegible] in practice.

Wanted—An Apron and a Frying-Pan.

Thoroughly as canoeing has been studied, there are yet two secrets which no canoeist has ever fully mastered. Canoeists without number have tried to invent the perfect apron—an apron which will wrap so closely around the canoeist as to keep every drop of water out of the canoe, even in the heaviest sea, and yet will not confine him even for a second in the event of a capsize. No one has succeeded. The perfect apron is among the arcana of nature. Hope ever lures the canoeist on to new experiments in apron-making, but he never reaches the desired goal. Often he fancies that he has succeeded, but he always finds that his apron is not quite perfect, and that other men before him have tried precisely the same sort of apron and discarded it.

Then there is the perfect frying-pan, the bottom of which can be kept clean so that it will neither impart the taste of fish to all food cooked in it nor blacken whatever part of the canoe or of her stores it comes in contact with. The search for this frying-pan is like the search for the fountain of youth. Perhaps in another and a better world it may be found.—N. Y. Times.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Thanksgiving Praise Service.

There will be a praise service in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Thanksgiving Day, from 9.45 to 10.45 a.m., open to all. Ladies are cordially invited. Members are specially requested to attend.

Don't fail to attend Prof. Heartfield's Organ Recital at the Charlotte Street Church on Thanksgiving night.

Mind Reading.

It is a long time since Peterborough has had an opportunity of witnessing an exhibition of mind reading, and it is probable that large numbers will be present to see Mr. John Miller's powers in that line, at the Opera House, on Friday, 20th November, especially as such a good programme of music, reading and ventriloquism has been provided in connection with it.

Market Items.

There was a fairly attended market this morning. Owing to the bad state of the roads not a great deal of grain was brought in. The following prices ruled:—Barley, 50c to 81c; spring wheat, 80c to 88c; fall wheat, 80c to 86c; oats, 32c to 33c; rye, 50c 52c; peas, 60c to 63c. Hay was selling at $20 per ton. Butter in kegs, 13 and 14 cents.

For Thanksgiving Day.

A suggestion has been made to us which we think is a good one, and would commend it to our readers. It is, that in connection with our giving of thanks to-morrow, those in a position to do so, should invite one or more of the many young men away from home to take dinner or supper with their families. This expression of sympathy and kind ness would perhaps do more good than many sermons. Think about it and see if you don't know of some one to whom this bit of home life would be of benefit.

Mind Reading.

Butter.

Town residents will be glad to know that there is a prospect of butter being cheaper, a surprise when one considers that the supply is not equal to that of last year. For instance, Mr. John Doherty, on Saturday, Nov. 6th, 1885, weighed at the market scales 200 firkins of butter, while on Saturday, Nov. 7th, 1885, he weighed only one solitary tub. The reason given for the cheapness of butter this year is the generally low price of dairy products and the fact that dealers last year paid too high a figure and learned the caution which they are applying to the purchase of butter this year.

Picture Framing.

Any person passing the show window of A. L. Davis & Co.'s book store cannot fail to admire the splendid display of framed pictures that adorn it. These fine frames are turned out by the picture framing department in connection with the establishment. This department is unusually complete and a magnificent stock of moulding, gives patrons a wide range for selection. Frames are furnished, ranging in price from twenty-five cents to twenty-five dollars with promptness. A. L. Davis & Co.'s is the place to get a cheap or a valuable picture, promptly and suitably framed.

What Would You do With It?

"Tom," said one young printer to another the other day, "what would you do if somebody died and left you ten thousand dollars?"

"What would I do? Well, I'll tell you. I'd go to England and have a howling time, I'd see the Derby and Newmarket races, and do up Leicester Square and the theatres and just paint the city of London red until I had blown the whole boodle in and then I'd get a job sticking type in some newspaper office, that's what I'd do. What would you do if you'd ten thousand dollars?"

"I don't think I should blow it in like that,' was the reply. "I should just get a fine house built on Hunter street with lovely grounds, and a conservatory, and statuary all around everywhere, and the finest pictures and books I could get, and I'd have it beautifully furnished from top to bottom—I'd get Belleghem, on Hunter street, to do that part of the business—and then of course I'd get married and settle down, that would be better than fooling it away like you would."

And there the conversation dropped and the boys went on with their work.

A General Invitation.

Young men, spend your Thanksgiving evening at the "At Home" in the lecture room of George street Church. Doors open at seven.

Ladies are particularly invited to attend Stapleton's auction sale of oil paintings, steel engravings and water colors at the store opposite Grand Central hotel. Sale every afternoon and evening this week. Charles Stapleton, auctioneer.

Signs of Winter.

As the days get colder the number of tramps applying for lodging in the lockup increases. So far this week there have been five occupants of the tramps' quarters each night.

George Street "At Home."

The "at home" to be held to-morrow evening at George Street Methodist Church will be a most enjoyable entertainment, combing the social and musical in a delightful way, and will no doubt be largely attended.

Announcements for To-morrow.

Thanksgiving Day is always a quiet holiday, and no great preparations in the way of amusements have been made for to-morrow. There will be a turkey shoot at the quarry, and Polo matches in the afternoon and evening at the Lansdowne Rink.

A Bouncing Baby Girl.

On Tuesday evening, the wife of a gentleman residing on Stewart street presented her liege lord with a daughter weighing the unusual weight of 18½ lbs. Peterborough is thus entitled to the credit of producing the champion heavy weight infant.

No Time Like the Present.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, is the time to turn your advocacy into practise by encouraging home manufacture. Do not follow the example of the grangers, when you have an establishment here of which Toronto, nor even Montreal, can boast of a better. No exemption or bonus has ever been asked, this being the 25th winter season since established. Extra efforts have been made to reduce prices of selected furs to the low prices of wholesale make of goods, made for a sell. A quarter of a century of successful manufacture is the best guarantee that one can give of his goods, of which most people can not know much about the make-up, for outward look is but a poor show of inner quality.

2d-2w WM. LECH.

Are You Going?

"Are you going to the "At Home," in the George street Methodist church on Thanksgiving evening?" "To the "At Home!" "What is an "At Home?" "Why, it's just a social gathering, such as you would have at your own home. The rooms furnished as parlors, with sofas, easy-chairs, and such beautiful flowers. Tables covered with knick-nacks, stereoscopic views, engravings, books and newspapers, Grit and Tory. There will be vocal and instrumental music, recitations, and everything of that kind, and the refreshments will be of the choicest." "Well, but what does all this cost?" "Why, only 25 cents." "Then, I guess I'll go."

Remember the Organ Recital at the Charlotte Street Church to-morrow evening.

We Would Like to Know.

Where Tommy Beavis got such a tender conscience.

And if a license inspector can afford to keep one so tender.

If we have heard the last of by-law No. 503.

What We May Expect.

Family gatherings to-morrow.

A large crowd at the Parlor Roller Rink to-morrow afternoon and evening.

TOWN COUNCIL.

A Prolonged Pow-wow About Many Minor Matters.

By-Law 503 Again Sat On.

A meeting of the Town Council was held last evening; the Mayor in the chair; and the following members present, Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Green, Yelland, Douglass, Rutherford McNaughton and Hartley.

After the usual reading and confirmation of minutes, the following were read.

From the Waterworks company asking what the intentions of the town were in regard to placing hydrants on the Waterworks extension recently made.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From William Doherty asking remission of dog tax.—Granted when necessary declaration made.

From E. C. Dunlop and others asking for an electric light at the corner of Murray and Water streets.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From G. H. Wrighton asking remission of dog tax.—Granted when necessary declaration is made.

From W. Croft and others asking that an electric light be placed at the corner of Hunter and Water streets.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From Edward Flaherty asking remission of dog tax.—Granted when necessary declaration made.

From Seth Harris asking wood for his daughter.—Charity Committee.

From Messrs. Stevenson and Pousette re expenses during trip to Ottawa in reference to Trent Valley Canal. Ordered that the expenses be paid.

ACCOUNTS.

Grand Trunk Railway	$5.15
G. Gladman, culverts	9.87
Wright & Payton, well at smallpox hospital, etc.,	30.60
David Breeze, stove for smallpox hospital	25.40

Mr. Gladman's account was referred to the Finance Committee, the others ordered to be paid when certified.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee reported recommending that one of the electric lights on Hunter street be removed to the corner of Hunter and Water streets, and that the fire bell near Mr. Menzie's house be removed to the corner of Water and Edinburgh streets.

Mr. McNaughton thought that if the charge for electric lights on Hunter street was to be a general one, they should be placed further apart and some of the gas lamps dispensed with.

Mr. Green said there were only three electric lights on Hunter street, and one was going to be removed to the eastern part of the street. If Mr. McNaughton's suggestion were carried out it would only leave one light, which would not light the street from the Catholic Church to George street.

Mr. Kelly asked if there was not a petition asking for an electric light at the corner of Water and Murray streets, near and if the committee had done anything in that connection.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH,

Mr. Rutherford explained that the committee were in favor of making the change requested by the trustees of St. Paul's Church, but were awaiting a petition of the residents in that vicinity asking for it.

Mr. Douglass was opposed to making a general charge of the Hunter street electric light.

Mr. Green pointed out that the residents were paying for electric light and the town for gas, and money would be saved by moving the gas lamps and making the electric light a general charge.

On motion of Mr. Green, Mr. D. Belleghem was heard on behalf of the Hunter street residents. He said all they asked for on Hunter street was the same treatment accorded George street merchants. They had shouldered an expense that had been a benefit to the town for one year, and thought they had to have their petition granted.

Mr. Menzies said the report was all right in two particulars, but he did not know if the Gas Company could be asked to discontinue their gas light at a week or two of notice. He would move that the report be referred back to the committee for further consideration.

Mr. Douglass seconded the motion.

Mr. Cahill thought the report of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was very vague, and would BE BETTER RECONSIDERED.

He was not opposed to extending the electric light, but thought there should be a fair distribution. Residents on Simcoe Street would be very glad to have at the corner of that street and Aylmer, one of the gas lamps which Hunter street was so anxious to discard.

Mr. Hartley could not see why the electric light was wanted beyond Mr. Belleghem's on Hunter Street; west of that there were no stores.

Mr. Yelland thought the Presbyterian Church should get an electric light without extra charge. As regards the Hunter Street lights, they should be all on corners where they would do most good.

Mr. Kelly thought the committee should have taken some action about the lamp asked for on Court House hill by Rev. Mr. Beck, they should either have granted or refused it.

Mr. Rutherford explained that nothing had been said in the report about the removal of gas lamps, because they did not know where they should be placed.

The Mayor informed the Council that he had been

SERVED WITH A WRIT

by Mr. Hilliard, because the Council had not opened out Sperry Street as agreed upon with him in consideration of gravel having been taken from his pit.

Mr. Cahill said that this work like a great deal more that had been ordered by the Street and Bridge Committee, had not been done, he could not say why. He did not make a practice of interfering with the Street Inspector, but that official was not to blame, he had more work than he could well attend to, and Mr. Hilliard being away and no one urging the work on Sperry Street, while others were pressing him to do other word it had been left undone.

Mr. Rutherford thought both the Street Inspector and the Chairman of the Committee were to blame for non performance of this work on Sperry Street.

Mr. McNaughton took up the cudgels for the chairman of the committee so warmly that Mr. Rutherford called him to order.

Mr. Cahill moved that the street inspector be instructed to commence work on Sperry street, and that the treasurer be instructed to pay for the same out of any money available, and that he is hereby indemnified in so doing, provided Mr. Hilliard stays proceedings.—Carried.

MR. HILL'S DOG TAXES.

Mr. E. C. Hill was heard in reference to remission of dog taxes, and suggested that the council should supply tags for licensed dogs. Mr. Hill was granted the desired remission.

Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Hartley moved, that the market committee be empowered to make provision for better getting in and out of the butter market, and if possible to get the lower part of the building.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Yelland, seconded by Mr. Douglas, the taxes on the cab of Mr. Whitfield were referred to the Court of Revision.

MR. BRADBURN'S BILLIARD TABLES.

Mr. Rutherford inquired of the License Inspector whether the lessees of the billiard room above the council room had a license to run billiard tables.

Mr. Beavis said that Mr. Bradburn had the license, and that he could not swear there was no license existing for the tables.

Mr. Edmison on behalf of Mr. Bradburn, was heard in the matter, stating that Mr. Bradburn had taken out a license for the five tables in question. He had for a time allowed the lessees, Crevier & Phelan, to run the tables under his license, but had now removed that permission, consequently the tables were being illegally run.

A protracted discussion took place on this matter, Mr. Beavis being vehement in his protestations that he could not conscientiously swear that there was no license for the tables, and the matter was finally settled by a resolution moved by Mr. Rutherford, instructing Mr. Beavis to see that all persons running billiard tables were in possession of a license to do so.

OTHER MINOR MATTERS.

Mr. Hartley, seconded by Mr. Menzies, moved that the Street Inspector be instructed to have the bridge at the railway crossing on Antrim street raised.—Carried.

The Mayor reported in reference to a C.P.R. culvert on Townsend street. The company had signified their intention of at once putting in a cedar culvert if the town would renew it when necessary.

The Council expressed their willingness to do so.

The Mayor stated that Mr. Mylne, of Smith's Falls, had been in town and wanted to move his Bolt Works here and would like to know if any one would be willing to take stock in the concern. He now employed 45 hands and wanted to increase the number to 50 and to secure a better location than Smith's Falls.

Mr. Cahill thought it would be very desirable to encourage Mylne Bros. to come here. He thought a resolution should be passed offering to exempt him from taxes for ten years if he came here.

Mr. Rutherford moved the third reading of by-law 503, a by-law to grant certain exemption to manufacturing industries in the town of Peterborough. The motion was lost.

On motion of Mr. Cahill the Council adjourned for three weeks.

To Housekeepers.

Fair, Van Every & Co., have opened another large consignment of Grey and White Blankets, Cotton and Wool Comforters at such low prices as to warrant a quick sale.

PETERBORO', - PETERBORO',

A few short months ago who would have though that Hunter Street would be the business street o Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so, but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors, and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and will guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

THANKSGIVING.

How the Holiday was Spent.

Church Services—"At Home" at George Street—Organ Recital at Charlotte Street—Other Amusements.

Contrary to expectation Thanksgiving Day turned out mild and clear, and although during the latter part of the day there was a tendency to rain, none fell until after all the various entertainments of the day had concluded and the greater number of the holiday makers were safely in their beds. Thanksgiving Day would be nothing to many people without a gun, and to spend the day tramping "o'er moss and fell" in search of imaginary game that never turns up, returning home footsore and weary at night, is by many considered the only proper way of spending the holiday. Of this class many were to be seen early in the morning making their way out of town, with gun slung over shoulder and dog trotting alongside, and it it is safe to say that every gun capable of throwing a charge of shot from one side of the street to the other was brought into requisition. Later on in the morning the in large numbers made their appearance on the streets, showing that while by many it was being spent in pursuit of worldly pleasure, there was a large element among whom the true significance of the day was better understood, and who desired to return their thanks to a bountiful Providence for the many mercies showered upon this Dominion during the past year. At George street Church a largely attended Union Thanksgiving service was held, and after prayer an address suitable to the day was delivered by Rev. F. H. Wallace. At St. Paul's Church, too, divine service was held and largely attended, the sermon being preached by Rev. Mr. Little, of Bowmanville. Services were also held in St. John's Church and St. Luke's Ashburnham. The members of the Salvation Army and the saved warriors now attending the convention of the Saved Army also held services, and made the streets ring with their not too harmonious music on their way to and from them.

CHURCH GOING COMMUNITY

AMUSEMENTS OF THE DAY.

It seemed as if the majority of citizens were bent on passing the day in a very quiet manner, for there was little of the excitement and bustle generally incident to a holiday. During the afternoon large crowds of young men and women promenaded the leading streets, chatting, flirting, and exchanging salutations with friends. At the Lansdowne roller rink, both in the afternoon and evening, games of polo were played by two teams from Port Hope. The game, which did not attract very much interest, seems to be simply a game of shinny on wheels, the goals being a kind of inverted wire basket at each end of the rink. The game is played with curved sticks, like a lacrosse with the netting taken off and cut short. The game is rather exciting, falls being frequent, but the teams being both unknown locally the same interest did not attach to it that would have done had it been a game between a local team and visitors. The Parlour Rink, on Water street, received a large share of patronage from the young people, who skated merrily round in large numbers. A turkey shoot was carried on at the Quarries, and a large number of keen-eyed marksmen made their way thither intent on coming home laden with gobblers, and the crack of the rifle was heard there all day. Many who went out full of confidence in their ability to clean out the party came home empty-handed and crestfallen, but Messrs. J. Emerson, J. Stanger, D. Cameron, H. Evans, and R. Sherlock made such havoc with the bulls-eye that their families and friends may expect to dine off turkey for many days to come.

THE "AT HOME" AT GEORGE STREET.

But the most pleasing features of the day's amusement were to come in the evening. Attracted by the novelty of the title, "at home," a very large number of ladies and gentlemen of all ages were drawn to George street church parlor, where the ladies of the congregation had made such elaborate preparations for the reception of their Thanksgiving Day guests, that the latter got more than they bargained for, the affair being literally a surprise party to most of them as well as an "at home." The spacious school room had been cleared of its usual contents, and in their stead was tastefully draped with rich lace curtains and profusely furnished with round tables on which reposed picture books, stereoscopic views, curiosities, etc., and luxurious lounges and easy chairs so arranged as to afford the best opportunity for the tete-a-tete, of which the younger members of the community are so fond. The floor was covered with carpets and handsome rugs, distributed here and there, and in fact the school room was transformed into a large drawing room. The scene was so truly home-like that people could not fail to see the propriety of the title under which the entertainment was announced, and at once fall into the groove and make themselves "at home." In an adjoining room a large corps of indefatigable ladies were employed in ministering to the creature comfort of the guests; tables covered with choice refreshments being laid out, and tea and coffee served by their fair hands.

THE PROGRAMME.

The social element was of course the predominating feature of the entertainment, and a very pleasant feature indeed it was. Little groups comfortably seated on the capacious lounges or in chairs set around, conversed on the leading topics of the day, some of the younger members displaying a decided preference for such isolated nooks as could be found, in which they could indulge in softer whisperings unheard by the throng. But the management had also provided a musical programme of high merit, and at intervals the busy hum of conversation lulled, then hushed at the tinkle of the chairman's bell, and some lady or gentleman favored the audience with song or recitation. Toward the close, a most amusing impromptu debate was conducted, the debaters being kept in ignorance of the theme until standing on the platform confronting the audience. Its subject was: "Resolved, that it is the imperative duty of every married man to get up first in the morning, light the fire and put the kettle on." The affirmative was taken by Dr. Fife, Mr. A. Rutherford and Mr. D. W. Dumble, each of whom were allowed three minutes to advance their arguments. The first two gentlemen were convincing in the views they advanced, but Mr. Dumble's oration was literally unanswerable for the reason that he uttered not a word, although, if his dumb show may be taken as a criteron whereby to judge the argument he was supposed to be enforcing, the latter must have been most conclusive. The negative was taken by three lorn bachelors, Messrs. A. Clegg, W. Dixon and Scott, who struggled manfully to show that obvious reasons existed why the man should not perform these duties, but the vote taken at the close of the debate showed that all the husbands in the audience must needs hustle up and get the kettle boiled in the morning. This brought to a close an entertainment which, for originality of conception and clever carrying out is deserving of all praise. It is gratifying to know that it will produce quite a handsome little sum for the revenues of the church.

PROFESSOR HEATHFIELD ORGAN RECITAL.

Notwithstanding the counter attractions and a decided tendency towards rain in the evening, Charlotte Street Church was well filled by eight o'clock in the evening, large numbers of members of St. John's episcopal and St. Paul's Presbyterian churches being among the audience. The programme opened with an organ solo "Nocturne," Himmel, and "Gloria in excelsis," Mozart, in which made it evident that Mr. Heathfield was on his mettle and bound to surpass himself. These were followed by the grand chorus "We Praise thee O God" by Thomas. There were two solos in this which were taken with great skill by Miss Rush and Mrs. Chambers, who sang with great sweetness and expression. Mr. Craven followed with the solo "In native worth." This gentleman, whose musical ability is well known, was suffering from severe hoarseness, which somewhat detracted from the usualy high character of his singing. Miss Dugan then played the organ solo "Pleyel's Hymn," by Hayden, in a manner that showed her an accomplished and conscientious organist. Mrs. Chambers, always a favorite, won laurels new by the charming way in which she sang "The Way to Paradise," a beautiful solo to which her skilful execution added more beauty. The first half of the entertainment was terminated by the choir singing Haydin's magnificent chorus, "The Heavens are Telling," in which they excelled themselves.

Part two was opened by a solo which was most admirably rendered by Mr. Davis, after which the duet with chorus obligato, "I Waited for the Lord," was sung by Mrs. Chambers and Mrs. R. H. Dennistoun, two ladies whose singing together was greatly admired. After Mr. French had given "Before Jehova's Awful Throne" in grand style, the latter lady favored the audience with a solo, "Eve's Lamentation," which deepened the favorable impression already produced by her singing with Mrs. Chambers. Mr. Heathfield then gave another organ solo, amply redeeming the promise of great things given by his initial performance, and shewing himself a thorough master of the organ. Mrs. Chambers then gave the solo, "Judith," which had been specially requested, and which was heard with great delight by the audience. The proceedings were closed by Mozart's "Gloria Twelfth Mass," sung by the choir. The organ recital redounds to the credit of Mr. Heathfield, the choir and the ladies and gentlemen who assisted him.

Peterborough Kickers.

Though Peterborough Football team sustained one crushing defeat during the season they had the honor of contributing two players to the Ontario team, which played a draw yesterday with the team from Quebec, Toronto University being the only other club similarly honored. Messrs. C. A. Lawford and Carter were the two representatives, and the Toronto papers are unanimous and unsparing in their praise of the latter gentlemans playing.

Smallpox at Minden.

Smallpox is said to be raging at the village of Minden, where there are more than twenty cases at present. Dr. P. H. Bryce, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, who is at present in town, says that the outlook for the village is very gloomy, the people being very poor, without adequate medical attendance, and destitute of municipal funds to apply in the emergency. Residents are flying from the place, and it is rumored that a family of them yesterday passed through town in their retreat from the scourge.

Repairs and Renovation.

The raceway at Ashburnham, which has for some time been shut off during the progress of various repairs and improvements to buildings along it, was to-day filled again, and the water wheels are once more revolving. Considerable improvements have been effected in the Otonabee mills, the machinery having been overhauled and new flumes having been put in at William Wand's factory and at McFadden's sash and door factory. A flume has also been put in to provide for a prospective building, and the bridge opposite the Otonabee mills has been repaired and a new stone wall put on each side.

Mikado Tea.

During the past week our readers have been somewhat puzzled over the word, "Mikado." The secret is now out. It is the name of a celebrated Japan Tea, of which Messrs. Hawley Bros. have just received a large consignment. This tea is picked in the month of May, when the leaf is in its finest flavor. It is picked by the Mikado Trading Company, on their elevated tea plantations. Mikado brand of tea is guaranteed to be absolutely pure, of a rich olive shade, which is the natural color of the leaf when dry. It is sun-dried, by which process the color of the leaves is not changed, as in other brands of tea, where less trouble is taken to insure its absolute purity. This tea can be procured in one-half and one pound packages, and is sold at the uniform price of 45c. per pound.

Forestry.

On Wednesday evening H. W. Watson, P. C. R. of Court Peterborough, 29, C. O. F., and D. D. H. C. R. for this district, visited Lindsay and installed the following officers elect of Court Lindsay, No. 125, C. O. F., assisted by Mayor Wallace, Acting High Marshall:—

At the conclusion of the ceremony Bro. Watson presented the members of Lindsay Court with his photograph in a handsome and elaborate frame to be hung up in their new hall.

Chancery Sittings.

The Chancery Sittings opened this morning before Chief Justice Ferguson. The following is the docket:

Newell vs. Newell—Mr. T. M. Grover for the plaintiff; Messrs. Poussette & Roger for the defendants.

Bulmer vs. Brumell—Messrs. Dumble & Henry for the plaintiff; Mr. E. B. Edwards for the defendant.

Irwin vs. Sperry—Messrs. Wells, Gordon & Co., Toronto, for the plaintiff; Messrs. Dumble & Henry for the defendant.

Gilmour vs. Strong—Mr. H. B. Weller, Millbrook, for the plaintiff; Mr. W. A. Carrie, Millbrook, for the defendant.

Bogart vs. Township of Seymour—Mr. D. S. Lynch, Campbellford, for the plaintiff; Mr. A. L. Colville for the defendant.

The legal gentlemen present were Messrs. Wallace Nesbitt, W. Cassels and W. H. Lockhart Gordon, Toronto, Mr. W. A. Carrie, Millbrook, and Messrs. Dumble & Henry, Edwards, and Poussette town.

Newell vs. Newell was the first case to come before the court. This action is one in which plaintiff Samuel Newell endeavored to have set aside a deed which he had given to the defendant, his son, John Newell, on the ground of improvidence and want of legal advice. Before the plaintiff had given evidence, it became apparent that the difference between the parties was not great, and, with consent, judgement was arranged between counsel whereby defendant retained the land, undertaking to pay the plaintiff arrears of annuity amounting to $100, together with costs of suit. Messrs. E. Edwards and Grover for plaintiff, Poussette & Roger for defendant.

Bulmer vs. Bramwell was next taken up and is still in progress.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 12.]

Charles Sangster.

"A perfect judge will read each work of wit
With the same spirit that its author writ;
Survey the whole, nor seek slight faults to find
Where nature moves and rapture warms the mind.

POPE—Essay on Criticism.

There is a poetic sound in the very name of Charles Sangster which attracts our attention and raises our expectations. Certainly his productions will not disappoint us if we are on the look-out for merit and power. His muse has given much that is valuable and excellent to enrich the literature of his country, although, like other celebrities, he has not won wealth, nor has he even acquired that lasting distinction which his merit deserves. That, however, is due to his surroundings more than anything else. In almost any other country than Canada, Sangster would have met with the appreciation of which he is worthy. In his own land, we fear, cold neglect and disappointment have silenced his muse and stopped the rush of genial verse, which for so many patient years fell from his glowing pen.

Sangster was born at Point Frederick, Kingston, on the 16th of July, 1822. He is the grandson of one of the U. E. Loyalists, who served during the revolutionary war. His father was in very humble circumstances, serving in a subordinate capacity at one of the naval stations on the upper lakes. He died when the future poet was only in his second year. This event had, of course, a disastrous effect on Sangster's early career. His schooling was of a very imperfect kind, and not until he had almost reached man's estate, did he acquire a knowledge of general literature. At the age of 15 he left school to begin a life of drudgery and toil, driven thereto by force of circumstances, and in order to help support his widowed mother. For some time he obtained employment in the naval laboratory of Fort Henry where he assisted in making cartridges. With some of these very instruments of warfare Capt. Saudom, R.N., battered the windmill at Prescott, during the rebellion of 1837. For ten years Sangster laboured in a subordinate position in the Ordnance office Kingston, and then seeing no possible opportunity of bettering his position where he was, he gave up his situation and went to Amherstburg. Here for one short year he acted as editor for the Amherstburg Courier, a Conservative journal, but owing to the death of the publisher he returned to Kingston again; to seek his fortune. A post was vacant in the office of the Kingston Whig and Sangster was chosen to fill it. His duties were supposed to be those of a sub-editor, but his time was altogether occupied in keeping the books of the establishment and reading proofs—not very attractive work for a poet. However here he remained for many years, up to 1851, giving satisfaction to his employers and laying the foundation of whatever fame he has acquired as a versifier.

In February 1864, Sangster joined the staff of the Kingston Daily News as reporter and in this capacity he laboured for several years. His life has been a very quiet and uneventful one, giving us no opportunity to expatiate upon. He has been a faithful toiler all his days, and altho' his surrounding have been by no means congenial, nor at times altogether pleasant, he has been a careful student of literature and has cultivated his natural powers in no slight degree. He is one of those self-made, self-taught men, whose position in the world is steadily fought for and won step by step, by unflinching energy and courage, by unflagging zeal and perseverance, without the aid of friends and fortune. Some years ago Sangster received a situation in the post office at Ottawa, where he still remains. His appointment was a grateful recognition by our government of the claims of literature, and altho' not a lucrative one, is sufficient to keep the wolf from the door.

Sangster is justly regarded as the national poet of Canada, at an early age he began to cultivate the muse, his poem, written for his play fellows, being as far removed from poetry, as the sun is from Hades. Still he wrote on, "he lisped in numbers, for the numbers came." The genius of poetry, the harmony of rhythm and song were in his soul. As the passing years went by, they brought him experience, they taught him fine art, knowledge of what men had done, and the burning desire to imitate, and, if possible, out-do them. His style became less rugged, his mind became more cultivated, his powers expanded, he wrote steadily on, and by the constant exercise of his tireless pen, at last won a place in the temple of fame. In many newspapers and periodicals his contributions had an honored place, until his name and his works became familiar, and his reputation as a poet extended beyond the limits of his native country.

At the commencement, his poems appeared chiefly in the newspapers of Kingston, and in the Literary Garland, Barber's Magazine and the Anglo-American. His first volume was entitled "The St. Lawrence and the Saguenay and other Poems," but it was not distinguished for that artistic finish to which he attained in his next publication, "Hesperus and other Poems and Lyrics." This was published in 1860, and was favourably received by the press of Great Britain, the United States and Canada. The leading poem in his first volume abounds with false rhymes, false accent and false quantity, still the work contains very many poems which are extremely beautiful and full of poetic sentiment and fire. By the last work his fame was quite established, and he is fairly entitled to the honorable designation of the national poet of his native Canada.

We purpose supplying our readers with specimens from his volumes and criticisms thereon, on a future occasion, and we will [illegible] this article by reproducing Dewart's estimate of our author. He says: "Among those who have most courageously appealed to the reading public, and most largely enriched the poetic literature of Canada, the first place is due to Charles Sangster. The richness and extent of his contributions, the originality and descriptive power he displays, the variety of Canadian themes on which he has written with force and elegance, his passionate sympathy with the beautiful in nature, and the chivalrous and manly patriotism which finds an utterance in his poems, fully vindicate his claim to a higher place in the regard of his countrymen, than he has yet obtained. Alexander McLachlan has also evinced that he possesses in a high degree the gift of song. In the opinion of many, he is the sweetest and most intensely human of all our Canadian bards. As Sangster and McLachlan are quite unlike, and each possesses a strongly marked individuality of his own, any comparison between them is inappropriate, and might be unfair to them. In elaborate elegance and wealth of descriptive power, in the success with which he has treated Canadian themes, and in something of Miltonic stateliness and originality of style, Sangster has certainly no equal in this country."

Gladstone in Midlothian.

Gladstone's Midlothian campaign of 1880 is apparently going to be repeated in 1885 with even an increase of enthusiasm and triumph. The Grand Old Man has led the Scotch completely captive, and can do with them very much as he pleases, like one who skills well to play on an instrument. It is curious to see a quiet, sedate people like the canny Scots in such a whirlwind of excitement. Curious, but not unnatural. Their perfervidum ingenium very naturally and very properly comes to the front in such times of trial and crisis. They take to Gladstone with their whole hearts, and far more we are persuaded from their confidence in his singleness and simplicity of purpose and in his uniform uprightness of endeavor, than from admiration of his surpassing eloquence or wondering appreciation of his mighty intellectual power. They are unquestionably proud of him as a brother Scot. They are, no doubt, carried away by his eloquence, and subdued by his irresistible argument. But above all and before all, they are attracted by the personality of the man, by their belief in his perfect honesty, by their full confidence in his unmistakable integrity and unostentatious goodness.

Archdeacon Denison may think it decent to say that after knowing Gladstone for thirty-five years he would not trust him to the extent of a brass farthing. But the Scotch people have a very different opinion, and have come to quite an opposite conclusion.

The only danger in the present whirlwind of excitement is that Mr. Gladstone himself will be so carried away by the contagious enthusiasm on every side as to exert body, lungs and brain, so far above what prudence might dictate as to lay himself entirely aside long before this short, but most momentous campaign is over.

The temptation, for instance, to give a long speech on Monday upon arriving in Edinburg, was no doubt great, but the prudence of it was quite another thing. Mr. Gladstone's admirers, as well as himself, should remember that the most vigorous and the most thoroughly well preserved man of 76 has to husband his strength, and to remember the adage that frequently it is possible to do more by doing less.

Farmers, Beware!

The days of wooden nut megs have come and gone. The field has been taken by the hay fork fiend, who has reaped a rich harvest from the gullible agriculturist. The shoddy cloth peddler has filled the country with his wares, but the newest departure in that line has come to the front in the person of a man who goes through the country purchasing farms. The modus operandi is to contract in writing for the purchase of a farm, the purchaser to have the right to pay the money and take possession within a month. When the month has nearly expired, the would-be purchaser returns and demands immediate possession, when the farmer is not only unprepared to give immediate possession, but has in many cases rued his bargain. The would-be purchaser then offers to compromise for a sum of from two to five hundred dollars, and threatens suit if the contract is not fulfilled. A case of the kind has occurred in the neighborhood of Belleville, and our farming friends should be careful when they sign their names to any kind of document.

Daisies.

Rippling and tossing at every breath,
Of the random zephyr that passes by,
The daisies sway like a sea beneath
The deep blue vault of the cloud-flecked sky,
Over the billows of gold and white
Flicker the shadows and fall the light.

There's never a daisy in all the host
Was here in the summers of long ago,
And still the fancy that charms us most
Is a haunting whisper, sweet and low,
Stirring our hearts with its tender strain,
"Here are the daisies back again."

The same dear daisies we used to cull
When hands were tiny and hearts were gay,
Gathering them till our laps were full,
Many and many a summer day,
Softly repeating a magic rune,
Bringing the petals to time the tune.

And here in the midst of the white and gold,
Old as Eden yet ever new,
Is the same sweet story of gladness told
Under the sky so wide and blue,
Her face on the daisies shyly bent,
His eyes on her with a proud content.

There may be, far from this hushed retreat,
Din and tumult and sordid care;
Somewhere, perhaps, is the drum's harsh beat,
And women kneeling in tearful prayer:
There is only peace where to and fro
In the silent meadow the daisies blow

Mr. Gladstone in Scotland.

A Full Measure of Home Rule for Ireland Why a Liberal Majority Should be Returned.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—A London cable says: Yesterday was a field day in campaign work. Mr. Gladstone made the first speech of the series at Edinburgh to an immense crowd. Tickets of admission to the hall were eagerly sought for weeks ahead and those fortunate enough to possess them and who cared more for their pecuniary value than the privilege of hearing the "Grand Old Man," realized tidily. Mr. Gladstone's speech is generally interpreted as meaning a full measure of Home Rule for Ireland in the event of a Liberal success, though the ex-Premier was careful to implant the impression that no matter what the form of the future government might be it must be framed with a prudent care for the protection of and integrity of the Empire. This, he claimed, was one of the great points of difference between the Liberal party and their opponents, and on this point he appealed to the people to give the Liberal party a full measure of support.

No Bald Heads Any More.

Where there is the slightest sign of roots left, try a bottle of Dr. Dorenwend's "Hair Magic," and it will come in as thick as ever, it will likewise prevent falling of the hair and remove dandruff at once by several applications, and restore the color. Sold and manufactured by A. Dorenwend, Toronto, Canada. $1.00 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $5; sent on receipt of price to any address. Can also be obtained at J. D. Tully's drug store, agent for Peterborough.

Omemee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The fifth of November was celebrated here by the burning of Guy Fawkes and Riel in effigy and an address by the Rev. Dr. Smithett to the Orangemen at the re-opening of their hall, which has been handsomely fitted up.

It is our painful duty to announce the death and burial of Mr. John Mulloch, aged 74. The funeral was large and respectable. His six sons were present, all of whom are holding trustworthy positions as railway employees in the Midland district, the deceased being one of the section overseers of the Midland railway.

Messrs. Bradburn & Buntin, of Peterborough, are becoming quite popular as grain buyers here, and are shipping in large quantities.

The smallpox scare here is about over, people being satisfied that reports from Peterborough have been exaggerated.

The want of a sash, door factory is very much felt since the removal of Mr. John Kincaid. Our loss being your gain.

Those who have been disappointed from attending divine service in consequence of the unfavorable weather for some time past are delighted to have the privilege of reading Talmage's sermons contained in the EXAMINER.

Keene.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Sudden change of temperature. Queer how the same wind can blow hot and blow cold. Same with human nature.

Mrs. McMurchy and her sister, Miss Galon, are visiting at Mr. Thos Campbell's.

Mr. Young, our miller, is leaving us for a new field of enterprise, in Brighton township, we believe. We wish him all success, and shall miss the whole family very much.

The Dickson brothers (John and Adam) have leased the grist mill here belonging to H. H. Burnham, Esq., and will, no doubt, secure a large patronage.

Our new baker, Mr. Cunningham, is quite ill, and consequently will not begin operations so early as anticipated. We hope to see him around again soon.

Work on the curling and skating rink is progressing rapidly.

The "Glorious Fifth" and Guy Fawkes were duly celebrated last Thursday night, in spite of rain and darkness. Quite an imposing torchlight procession paraded our streets, and Guy was exhibited to an admiring public for some time before the final blaze. What a wonderful Phœnix Guy is, to be sure.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church here will not have the social this week, mentioned formerly. They purpose having a "necktie and apron" social in the Town Hall, on Friday evening, 20th instant. They expect an unusually pleasant time, and the fun and refreshments will amply repay the trifling outlay of admission and "necktie" fees.

We were somewhat premature in saying last week, that our village lads had passed Hallowe'en without mischief. Some of them at any rate, forgot good behavior and decency so far as to assail Mr. and Mrs. McAmus with gravel, throwing it upon them at intervals as they passed up High street late that night, on their return from arranging the materials, etc., for the next day's sacrament in the Methodist Church. It was most unmanly thus to attack in the dark, two old people who could not defend themselves. It is very strange that these lads never assail any but women, or helpless people who have neither strength nor means to repel or punish them. It speaks badly for the principles of the coming generation, that this should be so. However, Mr. McAmus will not be imposed upon—he offers suitable rewards for conviction, information, etc., and the offenders may expect stringent measures if discovered. It is a great pity that Keene should be noted for more youthful rowdyism than any place of five times its size in the county. There must be some cause. Who is responsible for this pitiable condition of affairs? Surely these lads have good stuff in them. Why not develop it, and give them a chance for better things, instead of driving them to seek nightly recreation in the public highways and by-ways, because there is no pleasant entertainment or employment that would be enjoyable at home. Let us see if we cannot find something to occupy their active minds, besides mischief and forbidden doings.

It has been whispered to us that our young lads are being tempted to love strong drink in a new and most dangerous manner. No doubt many parents feel easy if they think thier boys "are only up and down the street." They do not fear them, because they are not in the bar-rooms or near them. But, alas, the stolen pleasures are sweet, and the older lads (or lad) who can procure a flask or bottle of spirits, in some concealed manner, can also carry it among the boys, (and some of them such little ones), and treat all who will take it, to a draught of that which they put in their mouths to steal away their brains. No wonder that they are reckless what they do afterwards. Alas again, for the boys. If they can get the accursed dram on the Queen's highway, without money and without price, who shall save them? It is high time the Scott Act or some other law should end this wretched system of temptation which lays the foundation of habits and tastes that will surely end in the ruin of soul and body. The prohibition element in the great nation across our borders, is slowly but surely gaining ground. Ohio trebled her vote, and New York made evident progress in the late elections, though under adverse winds. A private letter from Orleans County, N. Y., says:—"We do not expect to gain much just now. If we hold our own against exasperated Republicans and fearful Democrats, we will do well enough this year. Ohio more than tripled her last fall's vote. There are going to be grand times and chances in this country for the next ten years." So we need not despair when a drinking nation like the above is gradually but surely submitting migh; to right.

Ay, a' ae oo!

It has been said that the Scottish dialect is peculiarly powerful in its use of vowels, and the following dialogue between a shopman and a Customer has been given as a specimen. The conversation may relate to a pair of Blankets hanging at Alexander's store door.

Cus.—(inquiring the material—oo? (wool?)

Shop.—Ay, oo! (Yes, of wool).

Cus.—A' oo? (All wool?)

Shop.—Ay, a' oo. (Yes, all wool.)

Cus.—A'ae oo? (All same wool?)

Shop.—Ay, a' ae oo. (Yes, all same wool).

Alexander has got the best variety of all Wool Flannels and Blankets he has ever shown, and at prices that will effect sales every time. Call and see his prices or send for samples.

Smith Street Bridge.

Contractor Thornton has got to work at Smith street bridge, and the work is now progressing rapidly. It is expected that the bridge will be made passable by traffic in about two or three weeks.

Vaccination for No. 4 Ward.

Residents of No. 4 Ward, having expressed a desire to avail themselves of the offices of the public vaccinator, Dr. Clarke will be at Mr. Hilliard's office from 3 p. m. till 4 p. m. and at the Auburn Woollen Mills from 4 to 5 to-day.

District Y. M. C. A., Conference.

Word has just been received fixing the date of the above conference at Port Hope, on the 25th and 26th November. It is expected that a good number will be present from Peterborough. Mr. Geo. E. Williams will open the topic "Why the Association work should be specially for young men."

Novel Entertainment.

It is a long time since Peterborough has had any exhibition of mind reading, and it is therefore expected that there will be a large attendance at the entertainment in the Opera House, on Friday 20th of November. Apart from the mind reading, a splendid programme has been prepared, consisting of music, readings, and ventriloquism.

Mind Reading.

A Joke on the Granger.

A couple of young men from town yesterday morning started out on a shooting excursion, and, like many another Thanksgiving Day sportsman, were returning in the evening tired, hungry, and with a game bag no thicker than a postage stamp. As they wearily plodded along they sighted in the distance ahead, near a farm house, a fine flock of tame turkeys, and one of them, with a flash of humor hardly to be expected of such a disappointed sportsman, hit on a plan to have some fun. He took his companion's already heavily loaded gun and rammed another charge of shot down it. The pair then approached the farm house, and seeing the farmer outside, said to him, "Say, boss, we've been out shooting all day and got nothing; now we want to take something home, what will you let us have a shot among your turkeys for?" The farmer hemmed and hawed, and at length the sportsman said, "Well, we'll give you $2 for a crack at them, and you can think it over while we go to the house and ask the missus for a drink of milk." And setting down the double charged gun against the wall, the pair made for the house. Then the granger grinned, and while they were in the house, slyly extracted a charge of shot from the gun and set it back where they had stood it. In a few minutes the hunters reappeared on the scene and asked if he had made up his mind. "Yes," said the farmer, but only one shot you mind, and outen that ar gun by the wall, and I'll take the tew dollars fust." The filthy lucre was paid, the hunters stipulating they should have all the turkeys killed by the shot, and the sportsman took his gun, aimed, fired, and down went six of the gobblers, while the farmer's hair stood upright. "Say, guvnor," said the sportsmen, as they gathered up their haul, "guess you didn't think that gun was double shotted, did you?" The farmer said nothing, but went into the house, kicked the cat, swore at his wife, and took a long pull out of a brown jug stopped with a corn cob which contained the only soother for a sorrow such as his.

A splendid assortment of Rattan and Reed Rockers, Easy Chairs and Tables at A. CLEGG'S.

Dufferin Literary Association.

The weekly meeting of the Dufferin Literary Society will be held in the rooms of the Mechanics' Institute this evening at 8 o'clock. A good debate upon the political future of Canada is expected.

Off to Nebraska.

A large party left town this morning per C.P.R., for Orleans Nebraska. The following are their names: Mr. J. P. Galvin and family, Mr. O'Connor and wife, and Mr. J. Kearns and wife, the party comprising ten members in all. They procured their tickets from Mr. A. Elliott's town agency of the C. P. R.

Peterborough's Contribution.

The educational system is to be duly illustrated at the Indian and Colonial Exhibition to be held in London next May, by means of photographs and sketches of the different educational institutions. It is desired that a photograph of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and other school buildings should be supplied for the exhibition. The photograph should be 14 inches x 16 or 18 inches in size, with a wide white margin for framing. Here is a chance to do a double stroke—present a specimen of good Peterborough photography—hard to beat anywhere and a picture of a fine pile of educational buildings. The Chairman must have been in collusion with a little bird, he got the repairs made to the Institute building just in time.

A Man Who Should be Thankful.

Last evening a couple of ladies who were crossing the railway track in the vicinity of W. Hamilton's foundry, noticed a man lying across the rails. A train had just come in sight, rapidly approaching, which, if the man were not removed, would cut him in two. The ladies endeavoured to arouse the man, who was in a drunken sleep, but could not succeed in doing so, while in the meantime the terrible train was drawing closer and closer, and must in a few moments thunder down on them. Failing in awakening him, the ladies seized on him and started to drag him off the track, succeeding in getting him off just in time to save his life at the imminent peril of their own, for the train in passing actually brushed their clothing. Who shall henceforth say that fear paralyzes action in the ladies. The rescued man should think of those ladies in his prayers next Thanksgiving day.

What They are Saying.

The "at home" was a great success.—Its promoters.

And we felt quite at home, too.—Those who went there.

And I scored a success, too.—Professor Heathfield.

I'm going to finish Smith street bridge up sudden.—Contractor Thornton.

There was something wrong with my rifle. The men who didn't win any turkeys.

'Twas all in your eye.—The men who did win turkeys.

Polo don't take in Peterborough.—The Port Hope Poloists.

You bet, we don't want any shinny on wheels.—Peterborough lacrosse players.

We Would Like to Know.

The name of the young man who didn't feel "at home" at George Street Church last evening.

And if it was because somebody wasn't there.

If any of the husbands who upheld the affirmative in the debate at the "at home" ever built a fire and boiled a kettle in their lives.

What was the matter with some of the crack shots who couldn't capture any turkeys yesterday.

If the Salvation Army and Saved warriors were not running opposition pretty strong last night on George street.

And if the scene could be considered edifying.

What We May Expect.

Mind reading.

Chancery sittings and Division Court.

The members of the P.A.A.A. to give a musical entertainment.

The Harmony Club to do ditto,

People who have bets that the Postoffice will stand on the faction lot to do some hedging.

The Dufferin debaters to throw a flood of light on the Canadian Independence question this evening.

St. Andrew's Society.

Annual Meeting—Election of Officers—Arrangements for St. Andrew's Day.

The annual meeting of the Saint Andrew's Society was held in the Town Council Chamber on Wednesday evening, the President, Mr. Duncan McLeod, in the chair. After the usual preliminaries the report of the revising committee was read and adopted. The reading of the reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were deferred to a future meeting, when the business of the year and the membership roll are expected to be more complete.

The President suggested the advisability of steps being taken towards renting a hall, so that social meetings among the members would be of more frequent occurrence, thus affording a better opportunity to members of becoming acquainted with each other and drawing more closely the bonds of brotherhood; a hall in which Scottish toast and song might be often heard and entertainments of a Scottish character held from time to time, and which wives, sweethearts, daughters and lady friends of members might grace by their presence. The suggestion met with the warm approval of the meeting.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The president then called upon the members to proceed with the election of officers for the ensuing year, and before retiring from the chair, rendered his thanks to the [illegible] for their kindness and co-operation during his two years' presidency, and expressed a hope that the incoming officers would be the recipients of the same courtesy and support at their hands, the success of the society being in a great degree dependent on the harmonious and concerted action of the members.

On motion of the president Mr. Cumming assumed the chairmanship during the progress of the nominations. The following officers were then elected:—

President, Mr. John Erskine: 1st Vice-President, Mr. Melville Millar; 2nd Vice-President, Dr. Massie; 3rd Vice-President, Mr. James Stewart; Treasurer, Mr. Thomas Menzies; Chaplains, Rev. E. F. Torrance, Rev. A. H. Munro, Rev. F. H. Wallace: Physicians, Drs. J. T. Halliday, R. W. Bell and Fife, town, and Dr. Massie, of Keene; Bard, Wm. Telford, Esq., Smith Township; Piper, Donald McDonald; Secretary, D. D. Galletly; Executive Committee, Stewart Masson, Convener; W. H. Robertson, Geo. Queen, E. K. Henderson, E. McDonald, C. C. Cameron, McMillan, E. Turner, W. Paterson, Jr., J. Paterson, W. Cumming, J. C. Lilly and Arch Moffat, Peterborough, and Messrs. Cumming, Ennismore; John Breckenridge, Westwood; W. K. Roseburgh, Norwood; David Rose, Dummer; Donald McFarlane, Keene; Jno. Cleghore, Otonabee; Joseph Tully, N. Monaghan; Thomas Russel, Douro, and Robert Graham, Lakefield. The President and all ex-presidents including all chaplains appointed and clergy of Scottish birth, to be ex-officio members of the executive.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

A committee consisting of Messrs. D. D. Galletley, D. McLeod, Cumming and Jas. Stewart was appointed to make arrangements for a grand Scottish Concert on St. Andrew's day, under the management of the famous Bairns father family of Scottish vocalists. It was further decided to secure the services of professors Reid and McGregor, champion swordsmen respectively of the United States and Canada, to give during the entertainment an exhibition of their skill with broadsword and foil. On motion of W. H. Robertson, the President, and Messrs. McDonald and Masson were appointed a committee to endeavor to secure special rates from the different railway companies, and if possible special trains from various points, so as to afford Scotsmen in the vicinity an opportunity of attending the entertainment.

On motion of Mr. W. H. Robertson, the matter of securing a hall for the St. Andrew's Society's gatherings was referred to the executive committee to make inquiries and report at a general meeting of the Society

The officers and committee expressed a hope that all Scotchmen and lovers of Scotland would attend the concert on St Andrews night, when a rich and varied entertainment would be offered, comprising mirth, music, and song, "a feast of reason and flow of soul," driving dull care to the north pole, "where Sandy sits wi the Newcastle grindstane."

The meeting then adjourned.

Crevier and Phelan's License.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

We were much surprised to read in the Morning Times, in its report of the council meeting last evening, that certain parties there stated that we had not a billiard license, and with their well-known zeal, desired the Council to have our rooms closed. Now sir, we, eight months ago, applied for a license for four tables. Our application was granted and we paid to the Town Treasurer $400 for the same, and have been openly running ever since. For some unaccountable reason Mr. Macdonald, the Town Clerk, had not time to write out the license, and each time afterwards when we asked for it, he answered he would make it out, that it didn't make any difference, and that we were perfectly safe without it so long as we paid the money. Now, after eight months, it appears Mr. Macdonald has written the license out in Mr. Bradburn's name and given it to him without our consent and without notifying us in any way.

One thing is certain the town has the license fees for our tables, and we shall insist on our rights as citizens, which we believe all fair and honest minded people will give us. We are Respectfully yours,

CREVIER & PHELAN.

Riel's Death Warrant.

Messenger Bearing the Dread Order on the Way to Regina.

A special despatch to the Mail reads as follows:

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13:—A special messenger from Ottawa passed Port Arthur this afternoon on his way to Regina, bearing the Governor-General's warrant for the execution of Louis Riel at Regina on Monday next. He will reach Winnipeg to-morrow morning, and Regina on Sunday morning. All the preparations for the execution have been completed.

THE DOOMED MAN'S BEARING.

Riel was made aware four days ago that the sentence of the court would be carried out on Monday. After the first reprieve he got it into his head that he was to be sent to the penitentiary, and his spiritual advisers could do nothing with him, his manner becoming insolent and at times exceedingly offensive. But when the news was broken to him on Monday evening last that he must prepare for death, he sobered down. It may be well to add that none of the alleged interviews said to have been held with him lately ever took place. The correspondents in this city of certain American and Canadian papers have been running a bogus news bureau for weeks back.

THE MEMBERS OF HIS FAMILY.

Riel's relations and friends at St. Vital, five miles from here, are aware that Monday will end all. They are naturally very much broken down. His poor old mother became crazed some months ago, during the rebellion, but to-day she is able to realize the dreadful position in which her son is placed. Joseph, the brother, who is a most respectable man, is in a dreadful state of mind. Riel's wife, whom he did not treat well during the rebellion, leaving her exposed to danger and to hunger, is reported to be nearly heart-broken; but the priests are with her and the other relatives, and everything that can be done will be done to comfort them. The Riel family have from the first scouted the idea that the prisoner was insane. They say he had delusions on religion and on the subject of his own importance, but that on all other matters he was not only sane, but exceedingly intelligent and clever. They have been deeply pained at the publication of the bogus interviews.

In connection with the above, the following special despatch to the Globe will be read with interest:

Bringing the Pressure on Sir John.

ST. MARTIN'S JUNCTION, P. Q., Nov. 13.—Sir Hector Langevin arrived here last night from Ottawa en route to Quebec, where, it is understood, he has gone to consult his friends, lay and clerical, as to what course he should take in the Riel case. In fact it is believed that Sir Hector's mission is to stir up such an agitation in favor of the rebel leader as will intimidate Sir John Macdonald into pardoning him. Sir Hector was met here by Messrs. Coursol, Girouard, Ouimet, Curran, Desjardins, Hurteau, Vanasse and other Conservative members for this district, who urged that Riel must be saved at all hazards. The members, it is understood, urged that Sir John should justify a commutation of Riel's sentence, on the ground that to impose the death penalty would disturb the peace of the country, and that a pardon in such a case was wise. A number of Tory members of Parliament have written to Sir John Macdonald, demanding that Riel be pardoned. One of those who interviewed Sir Hector last night intimated that as a result of Sir Hector's mission to Quebec a further respite would be granted to Riel.

Otonabee.

A farmer, on behalf of himself and others who require to use the road on the 6th line of Otonabee, desires to call the attention of the councillors to the urgent necessity there exists for removing the stones and generally putting this highway in repair. Will the representatives take heed of the wants of the people?

Bobcaygeon.

Some weeks ago the muskrats commenced building their houses. Operations have since been postponed, and this is said to be an indication of an open season.

Extensive repairs of the local works are now in progress. Mr. R. B. Rogers, Superintendent of the Trent works, inspected the canal on Tuesday. A stop-dam has been placed at the head of the canal, and a coffer-dam near the wharf. When the water was shut off quite a number of fish were left in the canal, and they were speedily despatched by the hogs. The locking is to be tightened and replanked. At the lower wharf great improvements are being made. The old dilapidated wharfing has been removed and will be replaced with a good breastwork.—Independent.

The Chancery Court.

Second Day.

BULMER VS. BRUMWELL.

The case of Bulmer vs. Brumwell occupied the attention of Chief Justice Ferguson until a late hour last evening. Its details are as follows: The plaintiff Bulmer, who for 25 years had been a tenant of defendant, John Brumwell, in 1883 made a fresh lease of the property from him at a rental of $400 per annum, Brumwell excepting a small lot of six acres which he reserved for his own purposes. A condition of the lease was that defendant should build a house for plaintiff, the latter undertaking to execute necessary excavations. They together selected a location and found that the field reserved by Brumwell was the eligible site. Brumwell made a plan which he submitted for aproval to plaintiff and built the house, Bulmer fulfilling his share of the contract. When completed, however, Brumwell took possession of it and occupied it, justifying his action by arguing that while under the terms of his lease Bulmer was compelled to do his share of the work in 1884, he was only bound to build the house at some time during the term of the lease. The suit was instituted for the purpose of securing the interpretation of the Court as to what were the terms of the lease, and for damages for non-erection of the house for the tenant. The Court held that defendant was bound to build the house in 1884, and believed the house then built was intended for the tenant, and ordered an amendment of the lease and that Brumwell should pay damages to be fixed by the Master in Chancery and all costs of the suit. Messrs. Dumble and Henry for plaintiff, E. B. Edwards for defendant.

IRWIN VS. SPERRY.

This was a suit sent down to try an issue on a contract, between plaintiff and defendant. The issue was abandoned and a consent decree entered dismissing the trial. Wells, Gordon and Sampson, Toronto, for plaintiff, Dumble and Henry for defendant.

Blairton Iron Mine.

We have been requested to publish the following letter.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I enclose you a report by Prof. Heys, of this city, of an iron mine on lot 19, in 1st concession of Belmont, about four miles from Blairton, some portions of which may be of interest to your readers.

I am trying to get capitalists interested so as to work the mine, and if possible, have a charcoal furnace put up at a suitable spot in connection therewith—such a furnace, if constructed with the latest improvements, could make the best quality of pig iron very cheaply, and this could be converted into steel on the spot at a small additional cost, by the new Clapp-Griffiths' converters.

Such an enterprize would employ a number of men and be a great benefit to the back country.

Most of the important points are noticed in the enclosed report, but should you wish to get further particulars for publication, I shall be happy to furnish them.

Yours truly,
T. D. LEDYARD.

Wanted Hanging.

SYCAMORE, Ill., Nov. 12. James Young, who was sent to the penitentiary for 10 years for burglary, has confessed to the murder of Hiram Paleu, a retired farmer, of Sandwich. He was brought into court and pleaded guilty. On being asked by Judge Killom if he understood the full import of his plea, and that he was liable to be hanged, Young replied that he was fully aware of it, and persisted in pleading guilty. "Then, sir," said the judge, "the court must say this is among the most astonishing cases on record. The idea of a man coming here and entering this plea is almost beyond belief, and the court will not enter the plea until it has taken some measures to ascertain your sanity and see whether you are responsible for your acts." Young protested that he knew what he was about.

Another Case of Bigamy.

A young man named Geo. D. Durphy is at present in goal in Hamilton. It appears Durphy was married about five years ago at Jackson, Mich., and removed to this city with his wife. Shortly after their arrival here, Durphy was convicted for stealing a watch, and sentenced to five years in the Central Prison. In the meantime his wife returned to her former home, and when his sentence expired he returned to this city. About three months ago he was again married to Miss Grey. To the latter he said nothing of his previous history. Everything went along all right until yesterday, when wife No. 1 made her appearance in the city, and Miss Grey then hearing a full account of her husband's former marriage, was much disconcerted. She called upon her father for advice, and he immediately laid a charge against the prisoner. Mr. Grey and his daughter have been residing in this country less than a year, and had no knowledge of Durphy's previous record. The prisoner is a carpenter by trade, and has always resided in Hamilton.

WHAT IS IT NOW?

In 1878 Sir Leonard Tilley was imposing his high taxation N. P. on the country with the assurance that the people could make themselves and the country prosperous and happy by taxing themselves. A Tory organ moralizes thus regarding that period: "The condition of this country at that time (1878) was appalling. Our very life's blood was sapped up. We were on the verge of bankruptcy and ruin." If we were on the verge of bankruptcy then, where are we now? After burdening the country with a grievous load of taxation, and after colluding with his fellow cabinet Ministers in squandering the money thus secured corruptly and recklessly, Sir Leonard deserts his post and drops into a Lieutenant-Governorship with nothing to do, at $10,000 per year. How he found the country in 1878 and how he leaves it now, is shown in the following comparative table of our financial position then and now.

	1878.	1884.	Estimated 1885.
Annual taxation	$ 17,641,496	$ 25,483,199	$ 25,000,000
Gross public debt	174,957,268	242,416,482	300,000,000
Interest on public debt	7,100,083	9,657,237	12,000,000

EDITORIAL NOTES.

His many friends will be glad to hear that Mr. Joseph Rymal, ex-M. P., whose health has been somewhat indifferent of late, is now himself again, and as happy and genial as ever.

The national conference of free traders and revenue reformers met in Chicago Thursday morning, two hundred delegates from all parts of the country being in attendance.

A report from Toronto says: Mr. Blake's health continues to improve. He will probably return to Canada between December 1st and 15th. His partners and clients wish him to remain until February and take the cases he expected to argue this month, but it is not likely that he will do so.

The Toronto Court of Revision last night refused to entertain the appeals against paying taxes, lodged by a number of clergymen, on the ground that the appellants were not in charge of churches, some of them, indeed, being engaged in secular work. Among the appellants were several college professors and superannuated ministers.

It is semi-officially announced that the writ for the election of a successor to Sir Leonard Tilley in St. John, N. B., will be issued at once. The Hamilton Times recalls the fact that the Government waited eight months before it issued the writ for the election of a successor to Hon. Mr. Burpee. Then it had to make arrangements for bribing and purchasing the loose fish in the constituency. It rushes in this second election hoping that the men bought a few days ago will stay purchased.

CASTAWAYS.

Wreck of the Soul on the Rock of Sin.

Sermon by the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., Preached in Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Dr. Talmage delivered a sermon on Castaways, at the Tabernacle, to a crowded audience. He gave out the familiar hymn, beginning, "Out on the ocean all boundless we ride," after which he read and expounded the tenth chapter of Acts. His text was:

"Lest that by any means when I have preached to others, I myself should be cast away."—I Corinthians, ix, 27.

The following is a complete report of the sermon:—

The apostle in the text indicates that some religious teachers may fail to reach the heaven to which they point others. Gown and surplice and cardinal's red hat are no security. Cardinal Wolsey, after having been petted by kings and having entertained foreign ambassadors at Hampton Court, died in darkness. One of the most eminent ministers that this country has ever known plunged into sin and died, his heart in post-mortem examination, found to have been not figuratively, but literally broken. O ministers of Christ, because we have diplomas of graduation, and hands of ordination on the head, and address consecrated assemblages, that is no reason why we shall necessarily reach the realm celestial. The clergyman must go through as the layman. The preacher may get his audience into Heaven, and he himself miss it. There have been cases of shipwreck where all on board escaped excepting the captain. Alas! if having preached for others, I myself should be a castaway. God forbid it!

THE SAME GATE OF PARDON

I have examined some of the commentaries to see what they thought about the word "castaway," and I find that they differ in regard to the figure used, while they agree in regard to the meaning. So I shall make my own selection and take it in a nautical and seafaring sense, and show you that men may become spiritual castaways, and how finally they drift into that calamity.

We are a seaboard town. You have all stood on the beach. Many of you have crossed the ocean. Some of you have many aged vessels in great stress of weather. There is a sea captain; and there is another; and yonder is another; and there are a goodly number of you who, though once you did not know the difference between a brig and a bark, and between a diamond knot and a sprit-sheet-sail knot, now you are as familiar with a ship as you are with your right hand, and, if it were necessary, you could take a vessel clear across the mouth of the Mersey without the loss of a single sail. Well, there is a dark night in your memory of the sea. The vessel became unmanageable. You saw it was scudding toward the shore. You heard the cry, "breakers ahead! Land on the lee bow!" The vessel struck the rock, and you felt the deck breaking up under your feet, and you were a castaway, as when the Hercules drove on the coast of California, as when the Portuguese brig went staving, splitting, grinding, crashing on the Goodwins. But whether you have followed the sea or not, you all understand the figure when I tell you that there are men who, by their sins and temptations, are thrown helpless! Driven before the gale! Wrecked for two worlds! Cast away! Cast away!

By talking with some sailors, I have found out that there are three or four causes for such a calamity to a vessel. I have been told that it sometimes comes from creating

FALSE LIGHTS ON THE BEACH.

This was often so in the olden times. It is not many years ago, indeed, that vagabonds used to wander up and down the beach, getting vessels ashore in the night, throwing up false lights in their presence and deceiving them, that they might despoil and ransack them. All kinds of infernal arts were used to accomplish this.

And one night on the Cornish coast, when the sea was coming in fearfully, some villians took a lantern and tied it to a horse and led the horse up and down the beach, the lantern swaying to the motion of the horse, and a sea captain in the offing saw it and made up his mind that he was not anywhere near the shore, for he said: "There's a vessel; that must be a vessel, for it's a movable light," and he had no apprehension until he heard the rocks grating on the ship's bottom and it went to pieces, and the villians on the shore gathered up the packages and the treasures that were washed to the land.

And I have to tell you that there are a multitude of souls ruined by false lights on the beach. In the dark night of man's danger, Religious Error goes up and down the shore, shaking its lanterns, and men look off and take that flickering and captivating light as the signal of safety, and the cry is, "Heave the main-topsail to the mast! All is well," when sudden destruction cometh upon them, and they shall not escape. So there are all kinds of lanterns swung on the beach—philosophical lanterns, educational lanterns, humanitarian lanterns. Men look at them and are deceived, when there is nothing but God's eternal lighthouse of the Gospel that can keep them from becoming castaways. Once, on Wolf Crag Lighthouse they tried to build a copper figure of a wolf with its mouth open, so that, the storms beating into it, the wolf would howl forth the danger to mariners that might be coming anywhere near the coast. Of course it was a failure. And so all new inventions for the saving of man's soul are unavailing. What the human race wants is light bursting forth from the cross standing on the great headlands—the light of pardon, the light of comfort.

THE LIGHT OF HEAVEN.

You might better go to-night and destroy all the great lighthouses on the dangerous coasts—the Barnegat Lighthouse, the Fastnet Rock Lighthouse, the Skerryvore Lighthouse, the Longship's Lighthouse, the Holyhead Lighthouse—than to put out God's great ocean lamp—the Gospel. Woe to those who swing false lanterns on the beach till men crash in and perish! Cast away! cast away!

By talking with sailors I have heard also that sometimes ships come to this calamity by the sudden swoop of a tempest. For instance, a vessel is sailing along in the East Indies, and there is not a single cloud on the sky, but suddenly the breeze freshens, and there are swift feet on the railings, and the cry is, "Way, haul away there!" but before they can square the booms and tarpaulin the hatchways the vessel is groaning and creaking in the grip of a tornado, and falls over into the trough of the sea, and, broadside-on, rolls onto the beach and keels over, leaving the crew to struggle in the merciless surf. Cast away! cast away.

And so I have to tell you that there are thousands of men destroyed through the sudden swoop of temptations. Some great inducements to worldliness, or to sensuality, or to high temper, or to some form of dissipation, comes upon them. If they had time to examine their Bible, if they had time to consult with their friends, if they had time to deliberate, they could stand it; but the temptation came so suddenly—a Euroclydon from the Mediterranean, a whirlwind of the Caribbean, and they perish. And so we often hear the oldest ory, "I hadn't seen my friend in a great many years. We were very glad to meet. He said I must drink, and he took me by the arm and pressed me along, and filled the cup until the bubbles ran over the edge, and in an evil moment all my good resolutions were swept away, and, to the outraging of God and my own soul, I fell." Or the second is, "I had hard work to support my family. I knew that by one false entry, by one deception, by one embezzlement, I might spring out free from all my trouble; but the temptation came upon me so forcibly I could not think. I did wrong, and having done wrong once could not stop." Oh, it is the first step that counts; the second is easier, and the third, and on to the last. Once having broken loose from the anchor, it is not so easy to tie the parted strands. How often it is that men perish for the reason that the temptation comes from some unexpected quarter, as vessels lie in Margate roads safe from south west winds, but the wind changing to the northwest, they are driven helpless, and go down. Oh that God would have mercy upon those upon whom there comes the sudden swoop of temptation, that they perish not, becoming for this world and the world to come, cast away! cast away!

ONE AWFUL SURGE OF TEMPTATION,

By talking with sailors, I have found out also that some vessels come to this calamity

THROUGH SHEER RECKLESSNESS.

There are 3,000,000 men who follow the sea for a living. It is a simple fact that the average of human life on the sea is less than twelve years. This comes from the fact that men by familiarity with danger sometimes become reckless—the captain, the helmsman, the stoker, the man on the lookout, becomee reckless, and in nine out of ten shipwrecks it is found out that some one was awfully to blame. So I have to tell you that men lose their souls through sheer recklessness. There are thousands of my friends in this house to-night who do not care where they are in spiritual things. They do not know whether they are sailing toward heaven or toward hell, and the sea is black with piratical hulks that would grapple them with hooks of steel, and blindfold them, and make them "walk the plank."

CASTAWAYS.

They do not know what the next moment may bring forth. Drifting in their theology. Drifting in their habits. Drifting in regard to all the future. No God, no Christ, no settled anticipation of eternal felicity; but all the time coming nearer and nearer to a dangerous coast. Some of them are on fire with evil habit, and they shall burn on the sea, the charred hulk tossed up on the barren beach of the lost world. Many of them with great troubles, financial troubles, domestic troubles, social troubles: but they never pray for comfort. With an aggravation of sin that stirs up the ire of God, they pray for no pardon. They do not steer for the lightship that dances in gladness at the mouth of heaven's harbor; reckless as to where they come out, drifting further from God, further from early religious influences, farther from their present happiness, further from heaven. And what is the worst thing about it is, that they are taking their families along with them; and if one perish, perhaps and the way one goes, the probability is they will all go. Yet no anxiety. As unconscious of danger as the passengers on board the Artic, one moment before the Vesta crashed into her. Wrapped up in the business of the store, not remembering that soon they must quit all their earthly possessions. Absorbed in their social position, not knowing that very soon they will have attended the last loves, and whirled in the last schottisch. They do not deliberately choose to be ruined.

THEY WILL ALL PERISH

Neither did the French frigate Medusa aim for the Arguin Banks, but there it went to pieces. O, ye reckless souls! I wish that to-night I could wake you up with some great perturbation. The perils are so augmented, the chances of escape are so few; you will die just as certainly as you sit there, unless you bestir yourself. I fear, my brother you are becoming a castaway. You are making no effort; you are putting forth no exertion for escape; you throw out no oar, you take no soundings, you watch no compass; you are not calculating your bearings while the wind is abaft, and yonder is a long line of foam bounding the horizon, and you will be pushed on toward it, and thousands have perished there, and you are driving in the same direction. Ready about! Down helm! Hard down! or in the next five minutes or four minutes or three minutes or two minutes or one minute you may be a castaway.

O, unforgiven soul, if you could see your peril before God to-night on account of your lifetime sin and transgression, there would be fifty men who would rush through this aisle crying for mercy, and there would be fifty who would rush through that aisle crying for mercy, and they would be as men are when they rush across the deck of a foundering ship, and there would be thousands of arms tossed up from the galleries; and as these Christian men rose up to help them, it would be as when a vessel drives on the rocks and on the shore, the command is, "Man the lifeboat! Man the lifeboat! Pull, my lads, pull! A steamer with 200 on board making the last plunge!"

WHY DOES YOUR CHEEK TURN PALE

and your heart pound, until listening you hear it? It is because, my dear brother, you realize that, owing to your lifetime sin and rejection of God's mercy, you are in peril, and I really believe there are thousands of people in this house this moment saying within themselves, "What shall I do?" Do? Do? Why, my brother do what any ship does when it is in trouble. Lift a distress-signal. There is a flash and a boom. You listen and you look. A vessel is in trouble. The distress-gun is sounded, or a rocket is set up, or a blanket is lifted, or a bundle of rags—anything to catch the eye of the passing craft. So if you want to be taken off the wreck of your sin, you must lift a distress-signal. Rise. Lift your hand. Cry out for mercy. The publican lifted the distress-signal when he cried, "God be merciful to me a sinner!" Peter lifted the distress-signal when he said, "Lord save me—I perish!" The blind man lifted the distress-signal when he said, "Lord, that my eyes may be opened!" The jailer lifted the distress-signal when he said, "What must I do to be saved?" And help will never come to your soul until you lift such a signal as these. You must make some demonstration, give some sign, make some heaven-piercing outcry for help, lifting the distress-signal for the Church's prayer, lifting the distress-signal for heaven's pardon. Pray! pray! The voice of the Lord to-night sounds in your ears, "In Me is thy help." Too proud to raise such a signal,

TOO PROUD TO BE SAVED.

There was an older sailor thumping about in a small boat in a tempest. Two large vessel had gone down. He felt he must die. The surf was breaking over the boat, and he said: "I took off my life-belt that it might be soon over, and I thought somewhat indistinctly about my friends on shore, and then I bid them good-bye like, and I was about sinking back and giving it up, when I saw a bright star. The clouds were breaking away, and there that blessed star shone down on me, and it seemed to take right hold of me; and, somehow—I cannot tell how it was—but somehow, while I was trying to watch that star, it seemed to help me and seemed to lift me." O, drowning soul! see you not the glimmer between the rifts of the storm-cloud? Would to God that that light might lay hold of you to-night!

"Death-struck, I ceased the tide to stem.
When suddenly a star arose;
It was the Star of Bethlehem!"

O, ye castaways! God is doing everything to save you.

Did you ever hear of Lionel Lukin? He was the inventor of the unsinkable lifeboat. All honor is due his memory by seafaring men, as well as by landsmen. How many lives he saved by his invention! In after-days that invention was improved, and one day there was a perfect life-boat, the Northumberland, ready at Ramsgate. The life-boat being ready, to test it the crew came out and leaped on the gunwale on one side to see if the boat would upset; it was impossible to upset it. Then, amid the hurrahs of excited thousands, that boat was launched, and it has gone and come, picking up a great many of the shipwrecked. But I have to tell you to-night of a grander launching, and from the dry docks of heaven. Word came up that a world was beating on the rocks. In the presence of the potentates of heaven the

LIFE-BOAT OF THE WORLD'S REDEMPTION

was launched. It shoved off the golden sands amidst angelic hosannas. The surges of darkness beat against its bow, but it sailed on, and it comes in sight to-night. It comes for you and comes for me. Soul! soul! get into it. Make one leap for heaven. In 1833 the Issb Ila came ashore off Hastings England. The air was filled with sounds—the hoarse sea trumpet, the crash of the axes, and the bellowing of the tornado. A boat from the shore came under the stern of the disabled vessel. There were women and children on board that vessel. Some of the sailors jumped into the small boat, and said, "Now, give us the children." A father who stood on the deck took his first-born and threw him to the boat. The sailors caught him safely, and the next, and next to the last. Still the sea rocking, the storm howling. "Now," said the sailors, "now the mother" [illegible]

The boat went ashore, but before it got to the shore the landsmen were so impatient to help the suffering people that they waded clear down into the surf, with blankets and garments, and promises of help and succor.

I have to hope to-night that a great many of the families here are going to be saved, and saved altogether.

GIVE US THAT CHILD FOR CHRIST,

that other child, that other. Give us the mother, give us the father, the whole family. They must all come in. All heaven wades in to help you. I claim this whole audience for God. I pick not out one man here nor one man there; I claim this whole audience for God. There are some of you who, thirty years ago, were consecrated to Christ by your parents in baptism. Certainly I am not stepping over the right bound when I claim you for Jesus. Then there are many here who have been seeking God for a good while, and am I not right in claiming you for Jesus? Then, there are some here who have been further away. I saw you come in to-night in clusters—two, three, four men together—and you drink, and swear, and you are bringing up your families without any God to take care of them when you are dead. And I claim you, my brethren; I claim all of you. You will have to come to-night to the throne of mercy. God's Holy Spirit is striving now with you irresistibly. You will have to pray some time; why not begin now, while all the ripe and purple clusters of Divine promise bend over into your cup, rather than postpone your prayer until your chances is past, and the night drops, and the sea washes you out, and forever and forever you become a castaway.

Fears of an Indian Rising in the West.

REGINA, Nov. 12.—The hopes that were entertained that the rebellion of this year was the last of the troubles in the Northwest seem to be doomed to disappointment. There is now little doubt that the early spring will see a much more serious outbreak than that of last March. This, however, will be confined to the Indians located in the Calgary, Fort McLeod and Wood Mountain districts. An alliance has been made between the various tribes, all of whom labour under the same difficulties, that is, want of sustenance and provisions, and the Blackfeet, Bloods, Piegans, Sioux, Assiniboines, Crees, and others, who have heretofore many of them have joined together and are preparing to destroy the ranches in the district south of the railway as soon as spring opens. The Indians from the reserves round Fort Pitt and Battleford are already away and joining with the tribes south, and they are also being reinforced by the Indians who crossed the line into the United States early last year, and who are being driven across the border by the Indian authorities on the other side. These latter are with ammunition, and are able to supply the Canadian Indians with what munitions of war they require. It is not likely that the rising will take the shape of an organized resistance of the authority of the Government, but will partake more of the nature of the bread riots which have been known in Europe.

MOST DETERMINED ENEMIES,

WELL ARMED AND SUPPLIED

It is no use disguising the fact that the Indians have not enough to eat, and that they are determined to obtain what they want at the expense of the ranchers near the base of the Rockies. They themselves say there is plenty to eat there, and plenty of opportunities to obtain it. There have already been some raids made, but the Mounted Police authorities have done all in their power to keep the truth from reaching the public ear, but in Regina they are matters of common conversation and well known. The Dominion Government with its has extended its posts and telegraph service to those points near the line where it was impossible to maintain them, and some time ago erected a post at Wood Mountain, and built at great expense a telegraphy line from Moosejaw to that place. This post has had to be abandoned in consequence of want of shelter, and difficulty of provisioning, and the expensive telegraph line has also been abandoned.

Calgary people who are now here state that the Indians make no secret of their intention to raid the ranches early next year.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Cornice Poles cheaper than ever. A nice line of Tapestry Curtains, Painted Window Shades, in new designs, at A. CLEGG'S.

Y. M. C. A. Meetings.

Special young men's meeting to night at 8 o'clock. Young men's meeting Sunday afternoon at 4. Song service (open to all) Sunday night at 8.30.

The Smallpox Hospital.

The smallpox hospital will be broken up on Monday next. The child's face is clean, but considerably marked. Dr. Job is at present disinfecting and fumigating the clothes and furniture.

Market Items.

There was a large market this morning, the square being well filled up with farmers waggons, and the hall in which the butter market is held, was crowded. The following prices ruled:—Butter, 18c. to 20c.; eggs, 20c. per doz.; chickens, 50c. per pair; turkeys, 70c.; apples, 70c. and upwards per bag; potatoes, 60c.

Telephone Extension.

This morning Mr. H. W. Kent and assistants are engaged in putting up a wire to the Nicholl's Hospital. The arms of the poles are so full that this wire has to be placed on the body of the pole. The Nicholl's Hospital instrument makes the 99th now in use in Peterborough, and Mr. Kent asserts that within a week the century will be completed.

A False Rumor and a Mistake.

It turns out that the rumor referred to in the EXAMINER last night to the effect that smallpox prevailed in Minden is entirely without foundation. A telegram from Dr. Curry, of that village, was received this morning, as follows, "Report unfounded, no smallpox here." Dr. Bryce, whose name was mentioned in connection with the matter in the item published last night, misunderstood the reporter of this paper who spoke to him about the matter, and thought he was referring to diphtheria, of which there are a number of cases in Minden, and it was in connection with that malady his remarks given in the EXAMINER were made. We regret the mistake being made and are heartily glad to hear that the report was wrong.

Injured by a Powder Explosion.

On Tuesday evening last a gunpowder explosion occurred at Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., by which Mr. Edward Tierney, a brother of Mr. M. Tierney, of this town, and several firemen were severely injured. A shed containing among other things three kegs of gunpowder took fire, and the firemen on arriving on the spot went to work unconscious of the presence of the explosive. When the fire reached it an explosion took place, demolishing the shed, and five of the firemen and a painter who was on the spot were badly burned by it. The injured men were at once removed, those most severely hurt to the 99th street hospital, and the others, among whom was Mr. Tierney, to their homes. Mr. Tierney was a member of the New York Fire Department, and attached to engine company No. 52.

Always Leading.

The bread-delivery van, made by Messrs. Porter Bros., for Mr. R. F. Foster, and now ready for use, is a splendid vehicle for the purpose. The box is of the usual form with a middle space on the driver's seat. From this space doors open into both front and rear compartments, while in the latter another large door opens behind, as well as a lid opening from the top. Each box is surrounded by a railing useful for holding baskets, etc. A canvas cover, supported by standards, covers the entire box, and the driver is, in time of storm, completely enclosed, except at the front. The platform running gear of this fine vehicle is painted vermillion and the box wine color. The gilt lettering is, very conspicuous and elegantly put on. Altogether, the van is a most superior turn-out, and if Mr. Foster makes bread to correspond in quality with the beauty of his express, he will have so large a patronage that he will require to have three or four like it.

Police Court.

Samuel Martin was charged before P. M. Dumble this morning with having been drunk and disorderly on the public streets. He was fined $2 and costs, or in default of payment 10 days in gaol.

The Churches.

Rev. I. Tovell will fill the pulpit of George street Methodist Church to-morrow morning and Rev. F. H. Wallace in the evening. The same gentlemen will preach at Charlotte street in the reverse order.

Prof. Burwash's Lecture.

Rev. Prof. Burwash writes: "The revival of the long silent tongues of Egypt and Assyria, to bear witness to the Bible, is the real subject of my lecture." The lecture will be given in the Baptist Church on Monday, 30th Nov., at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Admission free.

Advertising by Steam.

The irrepressible Belleghem is up to everything in the advertising line. He has now on view in his show window a beautiful little steam engine of about one colt-power, running at a lively rate of speed. The hundreds who pause to admire the little beauty can't help at the same time gazing on his fine stock of furniture.

Dufferin Literary Association.

The regular weekly meeting of the Dufferin Literary Association was held last evening in the Mechanic's Institute rooms, the President, Mr. J. H. Long, in the chair, and a large number of members present. The proceedings opened with a humourous reading by Mr. Ames, after which Mr. Long surrendered the chair to Mr. O'Meara, and the debate on the question of "Canandian Independence was resumed. Messrs. S. R. Armstrong, McIlmoyle and Ames upheld the affirmative, and Messrs. Long, Clegg and Packenham the negative. At its conclusion the chairman reviewed the debate at considerable length, and decided that the weight of argument rested with the affirmative. The topic of the debate next Friday evening will be "resolved that no barrier should be placed in the way of the admission of people of any country to the full right of Canadian citizenship." The argument will no doubt concentrate on the "Heathen Chinee" question.

What Never.

"Did you ever?"

"Well hardly ev—" respended Mr. Buffington, his wife shutting off his Pinafore gag by putting her pretty little hand across his mouth.

"Now John, when I tell you anything I don't want to have you making fun of me and firing off that horrid stale old Pinafore stuff at me; I want you to be serious, because it's a serious matter. You never——"

"What, never," broke in the incorrigible John, ducking to dodge the old hat his exasperated little wife, despairing of bringing him to reason, shied at him.

"Now, John, I do think you're real mean," said she almost crying, "here I've been all afternoon trying to tell you something, and you do nothing but poke fun at me." And the little woman was going off in a sulking fit.

"Well, love," said John in a mollifying tone, "what did you want to tell me, I'll listen all day rather than see you angry."

"I was going to tell you," said she that you never——"

"Hardly ever," ejaculated the irrepressible John.

"Well, hardly ever," she continued, "saw such lovely sets of parlour and dining room furniture as Mr. Belleghem on Hunter street has, and they are so cheap, too."

"Is that all," said John; "Why, of course, I didn't, everyone knows that, and we'll get that new set we want from him next week."

What We May Expect.

To hear the last of rebel Riel on Monday.
The close of navigation.
And the opening of skating and curling.
More prophecies of a mild winter.
Strong winds and moderate gales from the southwest and northwest; partly cloudy, cold weather, with a few snow flurries.

What They are Saying.

We have ninety-nine telephones going now, there will be an even hundred before a week. —Hello Kent.

Only three tramps in the lock-up last night. —Chief Johnston.

We carried the debate.—The independents of the Dufferin Literary Association.

No you didn't; it was the Chairman did it.—The negatives.

It don't matter as long as independence won.—Chairman O'Meara.

Carter, old boy, shake!—The foot ball men.

It was a grand game.—H. B. Carter.

We Would Like to Know.

If any of the members of the Dufferin Literary Association really believe in independence for Canada.

And how they will handle the "heathen Chinee" next week.

If it's true that a large consignment of dynamite may be expected in town any day.

And that a quantity has passed through town since Councillor Menzies' by-law was passed.

Mr. Earle at Lindsay

Mr. Burton Earle, English Master in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, had the honor of delivering his lecture, "The Post Reflects the Age," before the East Victoria Teachers' Institute at Lindsay. The Lindsay Post refers to it in these deservedly complimentary terms:—

"At the evening session Mr. B. Earle, of Peterborough, delivered a lecture entitled "The Post Reflects the Age," in which the lecturer reviewed the history of English poetry from the remotest period down almost to the present, and showed that in every period the writers were not only the product of the peculiar bent of mental activity at that time, but that their writings reflected accurately those peculiarities. He dwelt especially on the time of Chaucer, Shakespeare and Milton as being those periods in which the distinguishing characteristics are more prominent and hence more evidently manifested in their writings. At the conclusion a vote of thanks was tendered the speaker amid much enthusiasm for his able and instructive lecture."

The Black Knights Concur.

The following resolution was unanimously carried at a meeting of the Black Knights of Ireland on Wednesday evening, November 11th:—

"That, having heard read from the chair the following resolutions passed by L.O.L. No. 80:—

'That in the present condition of Ireland, we the assembled members of L.O.L. No. 80 believe it to be the duty of all Protestants to join together to oppose the advance of the so-called Nationalists (Parnellites) and to show a united front against sedition and anarchy.

'That this L.O.L., No. 80, sees with regret the obstacles that are being put forward to prevent the rebel Riel from paying the just penalty of his many crimes on the scaffold, and that this lodge is of opinion that no further respite should be granted him, but that he should suffer the extreme penalty of the law and be hanged in fulfilment of the sentence passed upon him.'

"We give the same our hearty commendation and support, and that copies of this resolution be sent to Sir John Macdonald, the Orange Sentinel, the Toronto Mail and Globe, and the local papers.

Letter from Hon John A. McCall, Commissioner taken of Old Line Companies in circulating Reported extracts from Report of Insurance Department.

INSURANCE DEPT., ALBANY, Sept. 15, 1885.

J. D. WELLS, Esq.,
(General Manager Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association Toronto.

DEAR SIR:—I have yours inclosing a printed circular containing extracts from the report made to this department after an examination of the affairs of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York. I believe it to be manifestly unfair to publish a document of this kind. The whole truth is contained in the full report and while the extracts referred to are exact copies from the report, yet it is but fair to the Company and to you as its agent, that competition should be made in a manly way and not by separating extracts which do not give all the information in the premises.

Yours respectively,

PETERBORO'. - PETERBORO'.

A few short months ago who would have though that Hunter Street would be the business street o Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors, and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and will guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

MIKADO TEA.

MIKADO is the name of the Plantation owned by the MIKADO TRADING COMPANY.

The Plantation formerly belonged to the Mikado, or King of Japan, and was cultivated for the exclusive use of the Royal household.

The Plantation was bought from the King on condition that sufficient Tea should be supplied to the Royal Family, as the King would use no other.

It is an acknowledged fact, that the Teas grown on this Plantation are, for Purity, Strength and Flavor, the finest in the world.

It is put up in Half and One Pound packages, and is sold at the exceeding low price of 45 cents per pound.

RIEL HANGED.

He Pays the Penalty of his Crime at 8.23.

He Dies Without a Struggle.

Keeping up His Courage to the Last.

No Farewell Speech.

Detail of Incidents Preceding the Execution.

(Special to the EXAMINER.)

REGINA, N. W. T., Nov. 16.—Extraordinary precautions were taken this morning against a possible escape or rescue of Riel, and no one was admitted to the barracks until 8:12, when Riel was discovered kneeling on the fatal scaffold with his spiritual advisers, saying mass. He appeared to have

COMPLETE SELF-POSSESSION,

responding to the service in a clear tone. The prisoner decided at the last moment not to make a speech, owing to the earnest solicitations of the priest attending him. After mass Riel walked toward the executioner, repeating his prayers to the last moment, the final words escaping, being

"MERCI JESU."

He died without a struggle. The body was taken in charge by the coroner, and the verdict usual to all executions rendered. Only twenty persons were admitted to the barracks to witness the execution.

The particulars respecting the scenes and incidents on Sunday will be read with interest.

REGINA, N.W.T., Nov. 15.—A special train with chief of Dominion Police Sherwood on board arrived here at 7.20 this evening. Chief Sherwood has the order for Riel's execution to morrow morning in his possession. The town is in a fever of excitement. Father Andre proceeds to the barracks immediately, to administer the last rites of the Church to Riel. Sheriff Chapleau received the order this evening. The execution will take place about 8 a.m., or 10 o'clock Toronto time.

HOW RIEL RECEIVED THE NEWS.

Riel received the formal intelligence at nine o'clock to-night in his cell in the guard-room of the Mounted Police barracks, three miles west of this city. The intelligence was conveyed to him in person by High Sheriff Chapleau. The scene was in many respects remarkable. The famous rebel's cell was immediately adjacent to the guard-room of the troops doing night patrol duty, fully fifty of whom occupied the room. Through the iron gate in front of the cell was seen an armed sentinel on duty, and outside the building a cordon of armed men were pacing their beats.

HIS GREETING TO THE SHERIFF.

The iron gate was thrown open on the approach of High Sheriff Chapleau and Col. Irvine, commander of the Mounted Police. Riel, who had been conversing with the surgeon of the post, rose and welcomed the sheriff in a hearty and thoroughly unconstrained way. His voice was modulated, and he displayed no sign of excitement. His initial greeting was, "Well, and so you have come with the great announcement? I am glad." Sheriff Chapleau replied that the death warrant had come. Riel, continuing in the same cheery way, said, "I am glad that at last I am to be released from suffering." He then broke off into French and thanked the sheriff for his personal consideration. He proceeded again in English, "I desire that my body shall be given to my friends to be laid in St. Boniface. (This is the French cemetery across the Red river from the city of Winnipeg.) He continued, in reply to another question: "I am willing to go. I shall be permitted to say something on the scaffold?" he said, in a tone of inquiry. When told that he would be allowed to, he said, smilingly, "You think I may speak too long—that it will unnerve me. Oh no, I shall not be weak. I shall feel that when the moment comes I shall have wings which will carry me upward." Then, reverting again to the French tongue, and in an inimitable winning way, for which he is famed to all those who have known him closely, he spoke again of the kind remembrance he would retain of those who had espoused his personal cause. He closed by saying to Sheriff Chapleau as he held out his hand to him in parting, "Adieu, mon ami."

HIS EYE WAS CLEAR AND UNFLINCHING, and his bearing throughout was such as to evoke a sense of admiration by the absence of any tremendous excitement. If he ever showed the white feather under fire or on any occasion he succeeded in keeping himself admirably under command in the presence of his own approaching fate. Father Andre, his spiritual adviser, then arrived, and he was left with him to celebrate mass.

UNFOUNDED SCARE.

On Saturday night, owing to threatening letters which had been received, special precautions were taken to secure the safety of Riel, and the guard was largely strengthened. Nothing occurred however.

McWilliams, continued, "to that scaffold will I walk boldly, preaching this mission of Church reformation so much needed throughout the world."

DR. JUKES ON RIEL'S INSANITY.

Your correspondent had an interview with Dr. Jukes regarding Riel's condition. The doctor said he could not say anything about it. Finally he said all the statements which have appeared of late that Riel's symptom's of insanity are increasing are utterly false. He is much weaker, and his constitution is considerably broken up consequent upon his continued confinement, but his mental condition is unchanged.

Captain Deane informed me that a mounted patrol of thirty police is placed around Riel's prison night and day, and additional guards on foot. No person is allowed to see him in prison.

THE SCAFFOLD.

The scaffold is situated in the rear of Riel's prison. I was not permitted to see the interior, and from the outside very little can be seen. A board fence twelve or fourteen feet high incloses a space about sixteen feet by ten; above this appears the scaffold, projecting from the prison wall, to which it is attached. It reaches almost to the roof, and looks like a large sentry box.

INTERVIEW WITH FATHER ANDRE.

Pere Andre being interviewed, said he considered Riel was fast breaking down. He was in constant tremor of fright. Pere Andre firmly believes Riel insane, and related a conversation he had with Dr. Lavell, He asked Dr. Lavell whether he thought Riel was insane after his examination. The doctor replied that Riel had insane ideas on religion and politics, but he considered him a responsible being, and remarkably acute on general matters.

RIEL'S WILL.

Speaking of Riel's papers, Pere Andre said he had possession of Riel's will. It contained no political allusion, but first referred in affectionate terms to his wife and family, commending them to God's protection. He forgives his enemies and any who have injured him, especially mentioning Sir John Macdonald. He begs forgiveness of all he has injured in any way, and says he will die at peace with all men, meeting death bravely. He solemnly retracts his errors in regard to the Roman Catholic Church and says he will die in the bosom of the Church. All the faults he has committed towards the Church he humbly begs forgiveness for. He says he committed them not knowing their gravity at the time, and since then he has recognized the enormity of striving against Mother Church. He specially mentions the unremitting attention he has received from Pere Andre, and asks that the faithful when praying for him couple the name of Pere Andre with his. Pere Andre read the above in church this morning. Riel has also been writing a history of the rebellion, which he has placed in Pere Andre's hands to sell for the benefit of his family.

Escape of Riel's Secretary.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14th.—A letter has been received here by a sister of W. H. Jackson, Riel's rebellion secretary, who escaped from a lunatic asylum a week ago. Along with the letter is the following message he wishes to be delivered to Sir John Macdonald:—

"If you hang Riel you will provoke a more dangerous and atrocious outbreak. He is the sole mouthpiece of the aborgines and must be head. Let him free and I am willing to be shot in his place."

Eight Reasons.

An Exhortation to Young Men Sermon Preached at St. Paul's Church by Rev E. F. Torrance.

At St. Paul's Church last evening the pastor, Rev. E. F. Torrance, preached his annual sermon to young men, choosing as his text the 6th verse of the 2nd chapter of the epistle to Titus: "Young men likewise exhort to be sober-minded."

It was an undeniable fact, he said, that in the present day but a very small proportion of young men were connected with evangelical Christianity. It was stated that in England only 10 per cent. of the young men were attendants at places of worship, and of this small proportion not more than five per cent. were in actual membership. This fact was quite apparent, but the reasons for it were hardly so clear. It would be his endeavour in his discourse to set before the young men, first, some reasons why they should be attracted to Christianity; and second, some of the causes that held so many of them back from doing so. Christianity differed from all other religious systems in one particular. In any other system it was possible to separate the founder of the system from the system itself, but in Christianity this could not be done. Christ himself was so much the centre of the Christian church that take it away from Him and it could not stand. There was much in Christ that should appeal to the ardour and enthusiasm of youth, and he would bring before them some of the different aspects in Christ's character that should evoke their admiration and love as young men. They should remember that Christ was himself a young man—he was only 33 when crucified—and yet what a great work he had accomplished in that short period. In doing this he should confine himself to the human side of Christ's life. In the first place

CHRIST WAS A REFORMER.

When he came among the Jews it was at a time when they had long been under the yoke of a race whom they despised, and all their anticipations of a Messiah were coupled with the idea of a Prince who should relieve them from their thraldom. They had been brought up in the Levitical law, and believed that an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth should be exacted. They held the narrowest and the straitest views of the observance of the Sabbath. And among this people Christ had come teaching "at the kingdom of God was not of this world; that instead of revenging themselves on their conquerors they should love their enemies and do good to them by whom they were evily entreated. He taught the doctrine, strange to Pharisaical ears, that the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath; and by consorting with the hated Publicans and in many other ways, rudely shocked the traditions to which they had been accustomed. Yes, Christ was truly the greatest reformer the world had ever seen, and the courage that could undertake such a tremendous task was surely calculated to call forth the admiration of young men.

Secondly, Christ was

A PHILANTHROPIST.

His first miracle was an act of love and sympathy with humanity—the miracle at Cana of Galilee. But in his subsequent life this sympathy and love for man were even more strongly displayed. What a love [illegible] dren whose parents the disciples rebuked for bringing them to him? What love for wayward humanity was betrayed by three beautiful parables of the lost sheep, the pieces of silver, and the prodigal son. The latter especially showed his love for young men. What regard he always showed for suffering humanity. And when dying on the cross he could still sympathize with them, as evinced by his tender words to Mary, "Woman, behold thy son," and to John, "Behold thy mother." Was not this life of sympathy and love of humanity worthy of the admiration of generous youth?

Thirdly, he was

THE MOST HEROIC OF MARTYRS.

What a glow of enthusiastic admiration was occasioned in many a young man's mind by reading of the deeds of heroic Christians recounted in Fox's "Book of Martyrs. There was in the breast of every young man a spirit that could admire deeds of sacrifice and self abnegation, but what saint of them all that suffered at the stake could compare for gentle fortitude and heroism, with the Saviour of mankind, or whose sufferings compare with the tortures endured by him. Ah! surely this would appeal to the admiration of young men.

Fourthly, he was the God man. He had of his own will come down to pay the penalty of sinful man, taking his humanity upon him. All these were reasons why the young men especially should find something to love, admire and follow in Christ.

The preacher then proceeded to enumerate the reasons that prevented young men from becoming identified with Christianity. First, there were in the present age a large number who made the difficulties encountered in understanding the Bible a reason for staying outside. These were generally those who pretended to a and thought it savored of erudition to hold skeptical opinions. The magazine literature of the age was largely permeated with so-called scientific views which many thought it betokened superior discernment to hold. But if there were difficulties in understanding the scriptures, it was only the spirit in which they were read; the great moral lessons they conveyed were apparent, and Christ should be taken as the great example.

Secondly there was a class who complained of the inconsistency and coldness of church members—who pointed to this or that member of the church and said, I am as good as he is, and so on. But it was not members of churches they should look—he would admit with sorrow that too many of them were sadly inconsistent,—but at Christ, the great head of the church. But while he was bold to admit the short-comings of the church, he was also bold to say that the church people were a great deal

BETTER THAN OTHER PEOPLE.

Who led the vain in all philanthropic enterprises—in missionary work and nursing the sick—it was the members of Christian churches. The inconsistency and coldness of Christians was no excuse to remain out of it.

The third class were those who were afraid that in embracing Christianity they would place themselves under restrictions that would be unpleasant. These were the most honest and sincere objectors. They feared to enter at the strait gate and follow the narrow way. But although the pleasures of sin would have to be abandoned, there was great joy in walking in God's ways, and then, what a great and eternal reward awaited the good and faithful servant. Think of that and then say was it worth while to relinquish worldly pleasure.

Fourthly, there were those who did not like to become Christians because it was not fashionable.

These, then, were the reasons why young men should be Christians and the reasons that kept them aloof.

"Young men, likewise, exhort to be sober-minded." Oh! that he could exhort them to sobriety, and to a faith like that of Moses, who, "when he was come to years refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter. Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. Esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt, for he had respect unto the recompence of the reward."

As is usual at St. Paul's, the musical exercises were of a high order of merit. During the offertory Mr. Parker's pleasing composition, "Savior breathe an evening blessing," was admirably rendered by the well-trained choir.

TRICKY JOURNALISM

If the Conservative journals cannot honestly and fairly find a plea for fault-finding against the Ontario Government, they have no hesitation in resorting to the basest trickery and to impute dishonorable motives, when facts are entirely wanting to sustain such an imputation. The use the Mail, Review, Belleville Intelligencer, and other hide-bound organs have made of the Government's demand for a discharge of Cobourg's indebtedness to the Province, is a good sample. These organs have been most positive in asserting that the demand for payment was made because the riding of West Durham returned to the Legislature an opponent of the Mowat administration. This explanation was, no doubt, suggested, by what a Tory Government would have done under similar circumstances. The Review was especially rabid in pointing out the "tit for tat" nature of the Government's treatment of Cobourg, and lashed itself into a fury of righteous condemnation over the moral obliquity of the Government. In the face of later developments the organs must feel chagrined that they shot so wide of the mark and that their splenetic malice in imputing revengeful and dishonest motives to the Government has been so much wasted Billingsgate. Instead of acting revengefully against Cobourg, the Government has given evidence of the long-suffering lenity and consideration which has marked its past treatment of that unfortunate corporation in the matter of its indebtedness. The original debt of $650,286 was reduced to the comparatively small sum of $70,000 by the municipal loan fund re-adjustment, and if the municipal authorities of the town had not made misleading returns to the Government at the time, it is probable that the debt would have been entirely wiped out. Instead, however, of that, the sum of $70,000 remained due, and since that time Cobourg has not paid a single cent of either principal or interest. In face of the fact that the other municipalities of the province have all met their indebtedness manfully, it is certainly not harsh on the part of the Government to insist on payment by Cobourg. The fact is, that Mr. Mowat has been exceedingly patient with Cobourg, and that town cannot find fault if the Government demands payment of a debt after waiting a period under which an ordinary debt would have been twice "outlawed." Recently the Government made a peremptory demand, but on Cobourg showing that it was so nearly bankrupt that the payment of the amount would swamp her financially, the Government has actually offered to reduce the debt by $45,000. What will the organs say now? They can't say that Mr. Mowat is treating Cobourg revengefully, but they will doubtless say that he is attempting to bribe the constituency by giving the town favours. The organs, from their experience of the government they support, cannot conceive the idea of any government acting fairly towards a corporation, because it is right to do so. They fancy that, as in the case of the Dominion Government, some deep scheme for making political capital must be involved. It is hardly worth while to draw further attention to their ravings. They will find fault on some pretext any way, and it will be generally found that their attitude towards the Ontario Government will be no more justified by the facts, that it was in their strictures respecting the Cobourg loan.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Tory organ in Ottawa, the Citizen, calls Riel the chief cause of all the bloodshed and trouble. Would the Citizen go a step further, and tell us who is the "chief-tain" cause of the trouble.

Fredericton, New Brunswick, has decided against the repeal of the Scott Act, by the slender majority of thirteen. The fight was a keen one. This is the first county in the Dominion to vote on a repeal of the Act.

The Week thus compliments the retiring Sir Leonard as an individual and roasts him as Finance Minister:—"The appointment of Sir Leonard Tilley to the Lieut.-Governorship of New Brunswick denotes the withdrawal of a very estimable public man from any but a titular public life. In his departing we sound the general praises of his integrity, industry and devotion to the public service, blended with the death-knell of his financial system. When a great increase of taxation results in a deficit there surely is no more to be said."

There are complaints says the Monetary Times from storekeepers and other business men in Elgin county of the refusal of farmers to sell their grain at the present prices, which causes a scarcity of money. We agree with the St. Thomas Times that as a rule, the farmer who sells his grain as soon as possible after harvest pays his debts and invests his surplus judiciously, is displaying more wisdom than the one who holds back for higher prices. The cost of carrying grain through the winter, by shrinkages, water, vermin, insurance and loss of interest, will astonish those who have not figured closely on the question.

In his magnificent address to the newly formed Young Liberal Club, Mr. Laurier, referring to Mr. Blake's reported resignation of the party leadership, said that while every Liberal in the country, and especially in Quebec Province, sincerely hoped that the report was untrue, none but Mr. Blake's intimate political friends knew how severely he had taxed his physical strength during the past session, in the public interests, and how much he needed rest to recuperate his shattered constitution. He knew, however, that nothing but positive physical inability could persuade the great tribune to retire from the scene of his past triumphs and future usefulness.

The Government organ in Ottawa, the Citizen, is terribly afraid that Sir John, after passing the Franchise Act, will not get the Indian vote. It wails because up to date (Nov. 15th) nobody has visited Ottawa pleading for the Indians under sentence of death for crimes committed during the Northwest rebellion. The Citizen further points out that Riel, the chief cause of all this bloodshed, has excited extraordinary solicitude. In its merciful mood the Citizen talks as though Mrs. Gowanlock and Mrs. Delaney should form a deputation to solicit money for members of a class that had so much mercy on their husbands and others, foully murdered at Frog Lake.

It speaks well for the popular respect for the sanctity of female virtue to note that the action of Judge Rose in sentencing at Ottawa 8 young men to prison for life for the crime of rape, is receiving general commendation. The safety and security of the persons of our wives' sisters and sweethearts, is of paramount inportance to the liberty of degraded wretches whose evil passions are beyond control. Imprisonment for life will probably save some of them from hanging. That some of them committed the crime under the influence of drink is no excuse the law can recognize. No drunken man who is not too drunk to commit a crime, loses a sense of distinction between right and wrong, and must therefore be held responsible.

Book Notice.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK (J. H. Haulenbeck, Philadelphia) for December is decidely a handsome number, replete with such attractions as delight the ladies at the commencement of the holiday season. The three pages of colored designs for holiday novelties in the line of fancy work are deserving of particular attention, as they will suggest to many what to make as Christmas mementoes—there are also three pages illustrating fancy work in block. The other illustrations this month are excellent, particularly one of Miss Mary Anderson, which is accompanied by a sketch of her career. In this number the publisher also promises to every subscriber as a Christmas present a special pattern cut to measurement, worth 75 cents; also, it presents to all little girls patterns for dolls' clothing, and offers rewards for the best clothes made from the patterns. And last, but not least of the offers, is the Premium engraving, 12x15, to all subscribers for 1886. Godey's is truly a live, wide-awake magazine, as full of interest as it is of promises. Best of all, it fulfills its promises. The lady who does not see the December number certainly will miss a treat.

This number of the magazine closes the one hundred and eleventh volume, which is one of the most comprehensive and satisfactory that has ever been issued from that office. During the last year the magazine has improved wonderfully, and it continues making rapid strides towards a goal that surpasses any it has previously attained. The December number contains the prospectus for 1886 and terms to club raisers. Specimen copies, 15 cents.

AMERICAN COATS-OF-ARMS.

Labor Recognized in the Heraldry of the New World.

An interesting subject—one that has not yet received the attention to which it is entitled—is that of the recognition of industry in what might be called American heraldry. The coats-of-arms and official emblems of old-world nations, as might be expected, are monopolized by ideas of pride and warlike power. With popular rights and peaceful industries the founders of European dynasties and kingdoms had no sympathy. No less was it to be expected, on the other hand, that self-governing communities of frugal and industrious folk, set in a land where everything was to be won by arduous effort, should embrace every opportunity to laud the labor which was the corner-stone of the fabric of their prosperity—of their very existence.

A glance through such a work as Prof. Hough's "American Constitutions," or Admiral Preble's "History of the Flag of the United States of America," will not fail to reveal an almost universal recognition of industry and commerce. The most notable omission is in the case of the seal and arms. In not one of the designs suggested by or to the committee appointed July 4, 1776, to prepare a device for the great seal of the United States—a committee whose members were Franklin, Adams, and Jefferson—was there any recognition of the peaceful arts. Adams' design was the "Choice of Hercules"—what a pity that upon our passports and commissions we do not behold delineated "the hero resting on a club; Virtue pointing to her rugged mountain on one hand and persuading him to ascend; and Sloth glancing at her flowery paths of pleasure, wantonly reclining on the ground, displaying the charms both of her eloquence and person, to seduce him into vice!" Franklin was for a design presenting the whelming of Pharaoh; Jefferson for the "Children of Israel in the Wilderness, plus Hengist and Horsa." Among the supporters in the various designs afterward reported are to be found American Indians, Roman soldiers, "maidens with loose auburn tresses," "knights in arms, with bloody lances," but nowhere a husbandman or an artisan, and on the great seal finally adopted June 20, 1782, nothing typifies labor, unless it be the unfinished pyramid which scoffers have insisted upon regarding as prophetic of the Washington monument.

Very different, however, is it with the arms of the different states; there the omission to recognise trade or industry is the comparatively rare exception.

Maine has as her supporters a husbandman leaning on his scythe and a sailor resting on an anchor.

New Hampshire shows a ship on the stocks with American banners displayed, and a group of busy shipwrights.

Vermont places beneath her towering pine-tree three erect sheaves and a red cow—a nobler beast than any of the Hops, griffins, boars, and bears that ramp and roar through the forests of European heraldry.

Massachusetts has a decidedly warlike coat-of-arms, with her belted and moccasined Indian, and her "dexter arm clothed and grasping a broadsword," and Rhode Island's "anoker" has no reference to maritime interests. Nor do Connecticut's three vines, supported and fruited, relate to viticulture, but, instead, to the three original plantations of Hartford, Windsor, and Weatherfield.

New York's arms have no recognition of labor or trade, if we except the two vessels approaching each other on the Hudson.

New Jersey, however, displays three plows in an escutcheon, makes Ceres one of the supporters, and takes as crest a horse's head.

Pennsylvania's supporting horses are of the rampant "old war-horse" breed, but her shield is charged with peaceful emblems—a plow; on a sea navy proper, a ship under full sail; and a stalk of maize. This coat-of-arms was taken chiefly from the old seal of the city of Philadelphia, adopted in 1701, which had in three of its quarters a balance, a wheat sheaf, and a ship sailing upon an ocean.

Delaware shows in one division of her azure shield a cow, and in the other a sheaf of wheat and a bundle of leaf tobacco. The crest is a ship under full sail, and the supporters are a mariner and a hunter.

Maryland, in adopting the arms of Lord Baltimore, was so fortunate as to obtain as supporters a fisherman and plowman.

Virginia, on the reverse of her great seal, which is nothing if not classical, shows Ceres, with her cornucopia in one hand and an ear of wheat in the other.

West Virginia has an encyclopedic coat-of-arms. On the dexter side of her ivy-twined rock is a farmer, clothed in the traditional hunting shirt of the mountain region, his right arm resting on the plow-handles, and his left supporting a woodman's ax, with, at his feet, a sheaf of wheat and a corn-stalk. On the sinister is a miner with a pick at his feet, while an anvil, on which rests a sledge-hammer, is partly seen.

North Carolina has on her shield a Cere with the cornucopia in one hand and in the other three wheat ears.

Georgia has always celebrated trade and industry with elaborate enthusiasm. When George II. chartered the colony, in 1752, one face of the seal represented a provident and laborious colony of silk-worms, sericulture being the special object of the new settlement. When it became a crown colony, in 1751, its seal showed on one side the genius of the colony presenting a skein of silk to the king. The convention of 1777 adopted a seal whereon was shown "an elegant house and other buildings, with sheep and cattle, a river running through the same with a ship under full sail"—a description leaving not a little doubt as to whether the river ran through the elegant house, or the sheep. The present seal, adopted in 1798, bears the following elaborate device: "A view of the seashore, with a ship bearing the flag of the United States riding at anchor near a wharf, receiving on board hogsheads of tobacco and bales of cotton, emblematic of the exports of the state; at a small distance, a boat landing from the interior of the state with hogsheads, etc., on board, representing her internal traffic; in the back part, a man plowing, and at a small distance a flock of sheep in different postures, shaded by a flourishing tree; the motto, 'Agriculture and Commerce.'" Not a bad coat-of-arms for the thriving southern commonwealth.

Florida places a side-wheeled steamboat on the river in the middle ground of her coat-of-arms.

Arkansas crowds the shield upon the bosom of her eagle with a steamboat, a bee-hive and plow, and a sheaf of wheat.

Tennessee places in one division of her coat-of-arms a plow, a wheat-sheaf, and a stalk of cotton, with the word, "Agriculture." The lower half occupied by a loaded barge, with the word, "Commerce."

Ohio, which was without any legalized seal for more than half a century, places the familiar wheat-sheaf on her shield, and has as supporters a farmer with sheaves of wheat and implements of agriculture, in the distance a locomotive and train of cars and a smith with anvil and hammer, and also water and a steamboat.

Indiana's buffalo is being scared over the prairies by the resounding ax of a lusty wood-chopper.

Minnesota shows a farmer, plowing, his gun resting on a stump, while an Indian recedes before him toward "his bright home in the setting sun."

California blazons upon her shield a hardy miner, with his pick, seeking for gold, and two clipper ships upon the bay.

Oregon has at the base of her shield sheaves of wheat, a plow, a rake, and a pick. In the upper half is a landscape with an emigrant wagon, and in the background a sea bearing a steamship and a brig flying American colors.

Kansas displays a river and a steamboat, a settler's cabin and a man plowing, and a train of ox-wagons moving westward.

Nevada has a benefitting coat-of-arms. It shows a quartz-mill, a tunnel from which a miner is pushing a car of ore; a plow, a sheaf, and a sickle; a train of railroad cars passing a mountain gorge, and a telegraph line.

Nebraska shows a blacksmith at work at his anvil, a sheaf of wheat on his right hand and a tree on his left; in the middle-ground are a wheat field, a log cabin, and a river bearing a steamboat, with, on the further bank, a locomotive and train of cars.

Colorado bears on the lower half of her shield a miner's pick and mallet crossed.

Of the territories, Utah has a beehive on a stand surrounded by flowers, with bees hovering near it. Washington's "female figure with flowing tresses" has an anchor by her side; to her right a city with spires and domes and a steam vessel; on her left a log cabin and a pine forest. On Dakota's shield an anvil and agricultural implements appear in decidedly incongruous juxtaposition with an Indian spearing a buffalo. Arizona is represented by a miner, dressed in shirt and trousers and a broad-leaved hat, resting on pick and spade. Montana shows plow, pick, and spade in the foreground of her shield. Wyoming displays in one compartment of her escutcheon a railroad and a train of cars; in another are agricultural implements.

Thus are labor and commerce represented in American heraldry.—New York Mail and Express.

Young's Point.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr Wm. McGregor is selling out and leaves for Coal Harbor, B. C., on Monday next. We wish him success.

The shingle mill shut down on Saturday for want of timber. It will be idle a few weeks.

Mr. J. Chalmers intends making extensive improvements on his double house, at present occupied by Messrs. Herd and Courtmouche. Work has been begun.

Fall ploughing is pretty far advanced. Another week or so of fine weather will put the farmers in good shape for the spring work.

The Situation.

The contracts for building the new railway bridge over the St. Lawrence River, near Lachine, have been let. The bridge, which will be of the cantilever mechanicism, will form a connecting link between two parts of the Canadian Pacific system, which will connect at one end with the Atlantic, and at the other with the Pacific oceans. The work has been let to experienced contractors, and is required to be finished by the 30th November, 1886. A million and three quarters of dollars seem a small sum for the estimated cost of the work; but it is not likely that the mistake of making an under estimate has been committed.—Monetary Times.

A large assortment of Fur Trimming, in Goat, Coon, Opossum, &c., in all widths, at very low prices.

Giving the Town a Good Name.

The Monetary Times has the following good word for Peterborough, which is the remark of a banker: "Business here has been good this fall, notes well paid, and the notaries the only people who have had good cause to complain. Farmers, of course, are grumbling, but with the exception of spring wheat, which was certainly bad, they have had good average crops and fair prices. There is great activity among builders here, and the place is growing fast."

Likenesses Taken by Lightning.

To-day Messrs. Hammel and Ball, photographers, are having the electric light placed in the operating room of their photographic studio, and so arranged that this evening they will be in a position to take photographic likenesses by the help of the electric light alone. No doubt many will avail themselves of this opportunity to see the operation of one of the most wonderful adaptations by human ingenuity, of the results of scientific research.

Always Leading.

The bread-delivery van, made by Messrs. Porter Bros., for Mr. R. F. Foster, and now ready for use, is a splendid vehicle for the purpose. The box is of the usual form with a middle space on the driver's seat. From this space doors open into both front and rear compartments, while in the latter another large door opens behind, as well as a lid opening from the top. Each box is surrounded by a railing useful for holding baskets, etc. A canvas cover, supported by standards, covers the entire box, and the driver is, in time of storm, completely enclosed, except at the front. The platform running gear of this fine vehicle is painted vermillion and the box wine color. The gilt lettering is very conspicuous and elegantly put on. Altogether, the van is a most superior turn-out, and if Mr. Foster makes bread to correspond in quality with the beauty of his express, he will have so large a patronage that he will require to have three or four like it.

A splendid assortment of Rattan and Reed Rockers, Easy Chairs and Tables at A. CLEGG'S.

English Literature.

The class in English literature, conducted by Mr. B. Earle, will open to-night at eight o'clock, in the Y. M. C. A. rooms. The first session or two will be free to all.

Cattle Shipment.

On Saturday last Mr. Wm. Denoon shipped to the New York stock market, two car loads of cattle, making a total of 1,000 head of cattle shipped this season. Farmers find that the demand for their stock, created by energetic shippers like Mr. Denoon, gives them good prices.

Opera House, Nov. 20th.

The time is drawing near for what will be one of the best entertainments of the season, and decidedly the most novel one. It promises to be a success as regards attendance, as well as with respect to the programme. Mrs. Chambers, Miss Stephens, Prof. Parker, Mr. French, Mr. John Miller and Mr. W. A. Dixon will appear in their respective departments.

St. Peter's Cathedral.

During the progress of repairs to St. Peter's Cathedral for some months past, mass has been said in the sacristy. Yesterday for the first time since the repairs were commenced, high mass was celebrated in the body of the cathedral, Rev. Father Leveoque officiating. In the afternoon vespers were held, at which the musical portion of the service was very fine, the magnificat in particular being extremely well rendered. Mr. Thomas Dunne took a solo in his accustomed finished manner.

The Scott Act.

The investigation into the Scott Act appeal was resumed before His Honor Judge Dennistoun this morning, when a scrutiny of the ballot papers was commenced in the presence of Dr. Ford, returning officer, Mr. D. W. Dumble on behalf of the Scott Act Association, and Messrs. Weller and O'Meara on behalf of the appellants. The scrutiny is likely to extend over some time, as a minute examination of each paper is being made, and many objections taken on both sides, arguments on which occupy considerable time.

A River Scene.

There will be placed on exhibition in a few days a painting from the studio of Mr. J. W. Sabine, in which is revealed a glimpse of river and sylvan scenery, in the fore ground of which is a boating party effecting a landing, with a goodly supply of hampers and provisions for a pic-nic. There are three male and two female figures in the painting, the former being capital portraits of Dr. George Burnham, C. A. Lawford and A. St. A. Smith. The scene is one well calculated to bring up pleasant reminiscences, and will, no doubt, attract much attention and favorable criticism.

Obituary.

We regret to record the death of Mrs. J. B. Fowler, which took place on Saturday last. Mr. Fowler, who has recently resided in North Monaghan, had made arrangements to lease his farm and reside in town. But before he could occupy his new home, Mrs. Fowler, who has for some time been in ill health, was taken suddenly worse at the residence of Mr. George Fowler, and death came to her relief. The deceased lady will be regretted by all and the many who recall the pleasant hours they spent in listening to her sweet singing of Scotch songs in her maiden days, when she was known as Dollie Gerrie. The EXAMINER joins the many friends of the family in the heartfelt expressions of sympathy and condolence which Mrs. Fowler's sad demise will evoke.

Police Court.

Michael O'Donnell and Henry Lynch were charged before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning with having been drunk and disorderly on Hunter street on Thanksgiving night. O'Donnell was fined $2 and costs, or 10 days. Lynch was discharged.

Peter Hanson had two charges to answer. First, having been drunk on George street, and second, injury to property by breaking the window of Darcy's Hotel. The prisoner has just finished serving a term of imprisonment for attempting to steal a chain and other articles from Routley's store. He admitted the charges, but not having any money to pay the damages the case was allowed to stand.

Judgment was given in the case of Beavis v. Brundrette, station agent of the G.T.R., in favor of defendant, with costs against plaintiff.

What We May Expect.

Sir Hector Langevin's promised resignation.

And a better man to fill his place.

A lively sale of papers to-night and to-morrow.

Riel to be quite forgotten before the Scott Act count is concluded.

Bulgaria and Servia to fight to effect the objects of the stronger powers.

We Would Like to Know.

Why Peterborough sacrificed her whole river front for navigation purposes by allowing the C. P. R. to put up a bridge without a swing to it.

If Mr. Beavis will institute a suit against the G. T. R. in a higher court.

And what will be the result if he does.

How long it will be before Riel is forgotten.

Who is most to blame for the unseemly doings at Salvation Army meetings.

If Mr. Barton Earle's students in English literature will not become masters in Earle-y English.

MISS VICKERS is a lady of rare talent, and worthy to occupy the highest rank in her profession.—New York Daily News.

Try Your Luck.

Persons who are inclined to take chances on a turn of the dice will have a good opportunity offered them to-morrow evening by the grand lacrosse raffle, to be held at the Little Windsor hotel. The highest throw gets a prize of $25, the second a $15 watch, the third a suit of clothes valued at $20 or $15 in cash, and the person taking the greatest number of tickets, a hat valued at $3. Now is the time for the lucky ones.

Chancery Court.

The sittings of this Court before Chief Justice Ferguson terminated at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. The last case was that of Bogart vs. Seymour, an action instituted by Dr. Bogart against the Township of Seymour for a sum of $1,200, alleged to be due him on account of medical services rendered during the late smallpox epidemic in Hungerford. The decision of the Court was reserved.

Mr. Beavis Beaten.

Some weeks ago Mr. T. Beavis laid an information against Mr. W. Brundrette, station agent of the G. T. R., for allowing cars to stand on the Bethune street siding, and blocking egress from Mr. Beavis' premises. For various reasons the case was many times enlarged, but finally tried before Mr. Dumble last week, when judgment was reserved. The magistrate this morning dismissed the case with costs against the informant, stating that Mr. Brundrette was not the responsible person. He thought it would be a good thing if a suit could be brought in a court that had power to determine the rights held by the G. T. R. under the town by-law.

Off to Italy.

A party of distinguished Italian gentlemen, who, for some time past, have been lending their labors to Canada's railway system, left this morning for Genoa via New York. The appearance of snow proved too much for their thin blood, hence they were driven to throw up their engagements here and once more seek the more genial atmosphere of their own sunny Italy, where, though a dollar a day may not be so easily earned as here, they will be free from the rigors of what to them seemed an arctic winter. Signors Luigi Garibaldi, Leone Coutoni, Andrea Cuneo and Leonardi Brignoli, for such are the names of gentlemen of Genoa, purchased their tickets from Mr. T. Menzies, whose reputation as a director of travel is well known among their countrymen.

A Battle at Bradburn's Hall.

The Salvation Army held a meeting last evening in Bradburn's Opera House, which was attended by large crowds of people in search of more excitement than can be found at the religious service of the churches. In accordance with the traditions of the Army a contribution was levied from each person as they entered at the door. Something called the doorkeeper away from the door for a moment and during his absence the crowd from outside poured in without paying up. The doorkeeper endeavored to drive them back in order to get the collection, but, finding he had lost the collection, went further and lost his temper and attacked some of the intruders with the collection plate, cutting one young man pretty badly. It is said that the soldier will be summoned at the Police Court on a charge of assault. While the conduct of many of those who attend the meetings of the Army is in many cases disgraceful it is a question whether much of the disorder is not attributable to the methods adopted by the Army. Such scenes are not edifying and cannot but injure the cause of Christianity.

Speedy Recovery.

Mr. Robert Edmison, who was admitted to the Nicholl's Hospital on the 7th inst., suffering from a malignant form of diphtheria, was discharged yesterday, being quite convalescent. Mr. Edmison's speedy recovery is conclusive testimony of the efficient medical attention received at the hospital, and the conscientious and careful attention of the matron, Mrs. Hannah Dalby.

MISS MATTIE VICKERS surprised the regular patrons of the Opera House last night with a performance so much superior in an artistic sense to Minnie Palmer's, that the majority will give the palm to Miss Vickers, who is a graceful, intelligent and handsome actress. She shines in the line she has chosen, and is sure to make her mark—to become a great public favorite, as the sun is sure to shine somewhere to-morrow.—Pittsburg Daily Chronicle.

MIKADO TEA.

MIKADO is the name of the Plantation owned by the MIKADO TRADING COMPANY.

The Plantation formerly belonged to the Mikado, or King of Japan, and was cultivated for the exclusive use of the Royal household.

The Plantation was bought from the King on condition that sufficient Tea should be supplied to the Royal Family, as the King would use no other.

It is an acknowledged fact, that the Teas grown on this Plantation are, for Purity, Strength and Flavor, the finest in the world.

It is put up in Half and One Pound packages, and is sold at the exceeding low price of 45 cents per pound.

LAST OF LOUIS RIEL.

The Last Prayers of the Condemned.

Asserts Fealty to the Church.

How his remains will be disposed of.

Excitement in Montreal.

THE REMAINS.

REGINA, N. W. T., Nov. 16—In accordance with a codicil to Riel's will, Pere Andre within a few days will take the remains to St. Boniface cemetery, where they will be deposited by the side of his father.

EVIDENCE OF FAITH.

Being told by Pere Andre before his death that he should pray for his enemies, Riel replied, "That is so," and at once began to pray in English for Sir John Macdonald, but in addition he asked that the government might soon be relieved from his rule. He partook of a light repast about 11 o'clock last night, and ate no breakfast, which caused him to show at one time this morning some signs of faintness, but he afterwards completely recovered from this, and displayed no effort in mounting the ladder which led to the attic of the guard house on his way to the scaffold. There was barely a quiver as the drop fell, and his death was pronounced an easy one.

HOW HE DIED.

The length of the drop was eight feet. At the first moment of the fall Riel's body remained still, with the knees drawn up violently. Three or four times the body swayed to and fro quivering, and then Riel was dead. The suspense had been long, but the agony was short. The hangman did his work well.

The hangman was Jack Henderson, a freighter. He figured in the Red River rebellion, having been one of Riel's prisoners at Fort Garry.

SUBMITS TO THE CHURCH.

Twenty minutes before he went to the scaffold Riel wrote the following in French, of which a close translation is given. This was his final missive, and is written in a clear bold hand:

"What there is too presumptious in my writing must say that by these presents I subordinate it entirely to the good pleasure of my God and to the doctrine of the church and to the infallible decision of the Supreme Pontiff. I die Catholic and in the only true faith.

LOUIS DAVID RIEL.

Regina jail, Nov. 16, 1885."

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Louis Riel was born at St. Boniface, Man., Oct. 23, 1884. He was President of the Provisional Government and leader of the insurrection at Red River, 1869; returned to Parliament for Provencher, 1873; expelled in the following year; leader in the North-West revolt, 1884-85; taken prisoner near Batoche, May 15, 1885; indicted for treason-felony July 6; found guilty Aug. 1 and sentenced to be hanged Sept. 18; reprieved three times, until Nov. 16, 1885, when the sentence of death was carried out.

Excitement at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—There was considerable excitement in French Canadian circles here when the news of Riel's execution was received. The French Canadian students, to the number of about 300, carrying tricolor flags, marched through several streets of the city giving vent to cheers for Riel and denouncing Sir John. They groaned as they passed La Minerve office. Flags are at half-mast in many parts of the city.

NEWSPAPERS RAVING.

The Post and the French papers are raving. Flags are half-mast everywhere. The French journals will appear in mourning to-morrow. The streets were crowded all the afternoon with excited Frenchmen, who roundly abused Sir John Macdonald, Sir Hector Langevin, Sir Adolphe Caron, Col. Ouimet and the Orangemen.

THE CITY COUNCIL SPEAKS.

At a meeting of the city council this afternoon the following motion was moved by Ald. Grenier, seconded by Ald. Donovan, and adopted:—

That the city council, having heard of the execution of Louis Riel by order of the Dominion Government, and inasmuch as this execution has taken place for political purposes, that this council do adjourn as a protest against an odious violation of the laws of justice and humanity.

The council then adjourned.

After the city council meeting this afternoon, speeches were delivered from the city hall steps by most of the city aldermen and others. Most of the speakers counselled moderation. Alfred Perry was particularly violent, declaring that RIEL HAD BEEN MURDERED by the Government at the instigation of Ontario Orangemen. He also severely criticised the 65th Battalion for going to the North-west, and said that the medals for them ought to bear the stamp of the gibbet. The Premier, he said, should be hung for burning the Parliament buildings in Montreal.

A DEMONSTRATION BY THE STUDENTS.

About one hundred and fifty law students of Laval and Victoria Universities assembled about ten o'clock Monday morning on Notre Dame street, and marched, headed by a man carrying a French flag—on the top of which was tied a bunch of crape—first along Notre Dame street, turning down Jacques Cartier Square, where a halt was made opposite La Minerve just long enough for those inside to imagine their windows were in danger. No hostile movement was made, however, and directly afterward the procession moved on again its members singing the "Marseillaise" at the top of their voices. Turning back they passed along Notre Dame street, and made a second halt for a moment opposite Le Monde office. Here they once more doubled on their track, and turned by St. Lambert into St. James, where, still singing, another short halt took place opposite L'Etendard office. The cry was then "to the Champ de Mars," and off the procession moved accompanied by this time by several hundred spectators. At the west end of the Champ de Mars, alongside the disabled Russian cannon, the crowd halted, and, amidst much cheering and waving of hats, Mr. Bruneau, a law student of Victoria, made a short address, in which he declared that the Riel question was resolving itself more and more into one of nationality. He denounced the policy of the Government in this crisis, and said that the turn of the French-Canadians was coming, which would be used at the polls. He, of course, deprecated the hanging of Riel. Loud applause followed, and on its subsidence Mr. Larose, of Laval, addressed his confreres, eulogising Riel, declaring him a martyr, and saying that he looked on the martyr at Regina as a second De Lorimier. Considerable applause followed his speech, after which the procession reformed, wending its way past L'Etendard again, where the Papal flag had meanwhile been hoisted at half-mast, and its sight elicited a hearty cheer from the students, who then proceeded down St. Lambert's Hill and St. Lawrence street to Victoria University on Pine avenue, where Sir John's effigy was burned in front of the Queen's statue on the square. Quite a large body of police were present but did not seem to care to interfere. When the effigy was burned a party cut it down with the remark, "Ce maudit serpent!" (There goes the cursed serpent). The Queen's statue was much blackened. After marching through the west end of the city the crowd dispersed.

The Scott Act Appeal.

The recount of the ballots taken during the recent Scott Act election was closed last evening. About sixty of the ballot papers taken in town by Mr. Galletly were found to be marked with numbers corresponding to to the numbers on the voters' lists. Of these, forty were against and twenty for the by-law. It is probable they will be disallowed. Judge Dennistoun will take Mr. Galletly's evidence in connection with them to-morrow.

Pretty Binding.

The following extract is taken from a letter received:—"Binding to hand in fine style. The Harpers Century, Young Peoples, Shakespeare, are very much admired for their neat appearance." We are continually in receipt of acknowledgments of binding, and all speak in the highest terms of praise of the quality of the workmanship and the appearance they present when placed in the library or on the table.

Alleged Assault.

The Salvation Army are not alone in their troubles. A case of assault will be heard at the Police Court to-morrow morning, in which a young man named James Peyton, who is employed to take charge of the hall in which the Saved Army meetings are held, is the complainant, and Thomas Duncan the defendant. The complainant says that on Sunday evening some time before the hour for opening the hall, he was engaged in getting the fire startded, etc., and that Duncan and a companion came to the door and demanded admission. This he refused, and after some conversation at the head of the stairs, one of the men turned round and said to the other, "come along." The other said "hold on!" and caught Peyton by the shoulders and threw him down violently. Peyton was stunned and badly bruised about the head, and when later on some members of the Army arrived they found him dazed and crying. Duncan was present at the service, and is said to have made use of profane language to a soldier who spoke to him, and it is thought another charge will be laid against him for this.

Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Nov. 16.—The appeal of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company against the assessment of its property here has been thrown out by the Court of Revision. The appeal was not made on grounds of over-assessment, but on a special plea that if the property was assessed at such a high value—the correctness of the valuation not being denied—the Company might not be able to carry out certain improvements which would be beneficial to the city.

Scott Act Elections.

In the appeal of Chapman vs. Rand the Supreme Court decided to-day that in cases of elections under the Scott Act, where a scrutiny of votes is demanded, the judge undertaking such scrutiny has no power to enquire into the validity of any votes given, but must confine himself to an examination of the ballot papers and the summing up of returns from the various polling places.

The Eastern War Cloud.

Helping Bulgaria.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—The Emperor William has granted permission to Prince Francis of Battea to serve in the Bulgarian army.

Prompted by Austria.

The Times says:—"It is plain that Servia has acted under the prompting of Austria. Its conduct has been neither dignified nor straightforward."

Moslem Rising.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The Daily Telegraph says:—In consequence of the massacre of five Mussalmans at Kirdschel, a Mussalman rising against the Bulgarians is imminent.

Fighting in Earnest.

It is reported the Servians have captured Adlishkala. The report current on Saturday night that they had captured Irn is revived. It is said both places were taken after a brief hand-to-hand struggle.

The Unec. ain Object.

The Journal de St. Petersbury says:—"Servia has declared war against a vassal prince, who has not himself even the right to make peace or declare war, so that the enquiry suggests itself whether the object of war be to fight the sumerain or to bring back the rebel vassal to respect for engagements retained by vassalage."

Salisbury to Blame.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The News considers the Marquis of Salisbury's unfortunate utterances precipitated the conflict between Servia and Bulgaria. King Milan's conduct, it says, is an evil omen for the Balkan states. If all the Balkan states had hailed the Bulgarian union as a step toward the expulsion of Turkish rule from Europe, they would have acted wisely. The present confusion is only likely to strengthen Turkey.

Russian Aims.

The Telegraph says: "We have to bear in mind that the real contention at the bottom of this business is between Russia and Austria. Could they be excluded, which in the nature of things cannot be done, a sanguinary quarrel between the Balkan States would be a small evil. Whether Austria, and through Austria, Germany wants or does not want a solid path to the sea at Salonica, it needs no profound seer to find out that Russia's constant aim is ascendency in big Bulgaria with the ulterior purpose of seizing it and of dominating on the Dardanelles and Bosphorus."

Russian and Austrian Interests Opposed.

VIENNA, Nov. 16.—The newspapers here express the hope that the Servia-Bulgarian war will be localized, but they admit Russia's interests are opposed to those of Austria. Austria, they say, is bound to support Servia, while Russia is inclined toward Bulgaria, as is evident from the fact that she has permitted the exportation of 18,000,000 cartridges from Tula to Bulgaria, having hitherto prohibited their shipment. The weather is splendid for the campaign in Bulgaria, but the troops suffer from cold at night owing to inadequate covering.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

The last session of the Local Legislature the Ontario Government secured legislation, giving authority to grant the sum of twenty-five dollars yearly to one Farmers' Institute established in each electoral division, conditional that county councils give an equivalent grant, and subject to the following regulations:

1. That each Institute shall be composed of not less than fifty members, who shall each pay a fee of not less than twenty-five cents annually.

2. That there shall be an Executive, or Board of Management, consisting of a President, a vice-President, a Secretary and five or more Directors, and a majority of the Board shall be practical farmers.

3. That the Institute shall hold at least two meetings each year, in different parts of the Electoral District, for the discussion of agricultural subjects.

In accordance with the conditions of the Act the County Council of Peterborough voted $25 to each of the Farmers' Institutes that might be established in the East and West Ridings. So far as we are aware, however, no steps have been taken to make the sum total of $50—Government and County grant—available for the sustenation of the organization in question. And if the farmers of either riding desire to make the grant available it will be necessary to take prompt action, for in order to render the grant for this year available, two meetings of an Institute to be organized must be held before the 1st of January next. At these meetings two of the Government professors will be able to assist at a limited number of meetings in December, and at others in January.

Farmers by discussion of the topics of interest to their profession, by exchanges of ideas and experience, would derive great advantages from the Institutes as proposed. All other leading classes have associations of a corresponding scope and object, for the discussion of subjects bearing on their several interests. Merchants have Boards of Trade; there are millers' associations, manufacturers' associations, and there are associations without number. Why, then, should not farmers, whose combined interests excel those of all other callings, togother, form associations, especially when the Government and the Council, recognizing the importance of the matter, generously offer to pay the larger part of the expense connected with a Farmers' Institute.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

This is the terse way the Hamilton Times puts it:—"He (Sir John) fears the loss of votes at the next general elections, and he decides to buy the votes with Riel's blood."

How is this? In 1884 there was paid for "advertising time tables, post office notices" for Peterborough the round sum of $900. This is some $70 more than was paid for similar services in Toronto. The organ in Peterborough must have been determined to make up for not getting a slice of the immigration pamphlet printing.

Sir Richard Cartwright taxed the country twenty-two millions and had a deficit. Sir Leonard Tilley taxed the country 35 millions and a deficit $600,000 greater. Sir Richard's deficit took place in the hardest of hard times for which Protection was to be a radical cure. Yet, in the flush of the prosperity brought by the N.P., Sir Leonard has the hugest deficit that ever was known in Canada.

Quite a number of Lake Ontario vessel owners have become so discouraged this season that they have sent their boats down on salt water to engage in the coasting trade. Last week the schooner "A. J. McBrier" left Sodus for Prince Edward Island and loaded a cargo of potatoes for Baltimore, Md. She will not return to the lakes this year, but will trade along the coast as far south as Florida. The schooner "Plowboy" has also gone from Lake Ontario to Baltimore, and will go into the coasting business on Chesapeake Bay.

An Ottawa despatch announces that since the present season of navigation opened the Dominion Government has paid steamship companies about $70,000 for "assisted passengers." Workingmen, remember this fact when the advocates of a protective policy at the next election, lyingly call themselves your friends, and ask for your votes. They make you pay high taxes, not only to enrich manufacturers, but to also pay taxes to pay the passage to Canada of the scum of British society to deprive you of a job.

The Irish Elections.

DUBLIN, Nov. 16.—A general assembly of the adopted Nationalist candidates has been summoned to meet Mr. Parnell at Dublin next Saturday, to consider the political situation, especially with regard to the numerous contests threatened by Loyalists. The Loyalist and landlord party hopes to cripple the Nationalists by compelling them to undertake enormous expenditure involved in numerously contested elections.

The War in Burmah.

The Burmese Flee.

RANGOON, Nov. 16.—A slight skirmish has taken place between a small body of British troops and Burmese frontier guards. The latter fled. No casualties are reported.

Man of War Captured.

RANGOON, Nov. 16.—In the fight with King Thebaw's man-of-war the fire from the British steamer, "Kathleen" caused 200 of the crew of the Burmese vessel to jump overboard. The British then boarded the vessel and proceeded up the Irrawaddy with her. It is reported that 3,000 Burmese troops are stockaded at Fort Kuligon which occupies a high dominating position overhanging the river at Minhla.

Canadian Wheat in Europe.

An interesting feature in connection with this season's growth of wheat in Canada is that a number of applications have been received from Europe for samples of the cereals. Among these is one made on behalf of the Italian Government for the agricultural museum recently opened in Rome. For a similar purpose request has been made for samples of wheat, barley, and oats by Dr. Wittmack, Professor of Botany at the Royal Agricultural College of Berlin. The Director of the Royal Norwegian Farm at Bygdo has also made official application for a collection to enable his Majesty King Oscar to test the hardier varieties of cereals from Canada, and particularly the Canadian North-West, in view of their cultivation in Scandinavia. It is supposed that the honors awarded to Canadian produce at the Amsterdam International Exhibitions of 1883 and 1884 and at the present Antwerp Universal Exhibition have directed attention thus prominently in Europe to the cereals of the Dominion.—London Times.

Belleville.

A meeting of the Belleville branch of the Lawrence-Townley association was held in the city on Saturday. Mr. D. R Clapp, of Sidney, vice-president of the branch, occupied the chair. Messrs. S. Young and G. W. Ostrom, delegated to search up the records in the States, reported that they had visited Duchess county and Poughkeepsie, N. Y. They also reported that there were three distinct families of Lawrence in the States. They are known as the New York Lawrences, the Massachusetts Lawrences, and the Duchess County Lawrences. The first two have made a thorough search of their genealogy and are now certain that they are not the lawful heirs to the Lawrence-Townley estate. Those living in Duchess County, however, are equally certain that they are. The heirs living in this vicinity are direct descendants of the Lawrences in Duchess County. The meeting adjourned well pleased with the report of the delegates, who were empowered to leave no stone unturned to produce all the evidence possible establishing their heirship.

The Very Latest Swindle.

The very latest swindle is thus described by a contemporary:—"About the freshest swindle which is now being worked on the guileless farmer has come to light. A chap in sable garments, spotless shirt and white choker, who might be mistaken for a colporteur, or a semi-clerical organ or bookseller, enters a farm house carrying a well-filled grip sack. He introduces himself by saying that he is engaged by a religious institution to distribute works of a devotional character, gratis, throughout the country, and hauls out of his sack while speaking, a handsomely bound bible, hymn, or prayerbook, as the case may be, which he presents to some member of the family. The fellow times his visit so that he may reach the house to be operated on at noon, or supper time, and of course after making such a neat present, is invited to dinner, or to stop all night. This he does, and after partaking of their hospitalities, insists upon paying for the same, laying down twenty-five cents if for dinner, or seventy-five cents if for supper, bed and breakfast, saying in reply to his host's objections to take pay, that his instruction from his employers are imperative to "pay as he goes," and make a return of his expenses, and taking a receipt book proceeds to fill it up, and then requests the farmer to sign the document "as a voucher you know," insinuatingly explains the affable scoundrel, "that you have received the book and payment for my entertainment." The farmer is caught forthwith, he signs the receipt, the stranger departs, amid profusion of thanks, and three months afterwards the farmer receives a notice from a neighboring bank, that his 'note for $156.75 is due, etc., etc." 'Tis the same old hook to catch gudgeons, but the bait is flavored with religion to suit the taste of the victim. For the nine hundred and ninety-ninth time, we advise our rural friends to kick off their premises every stranger who approaches them with anything in the shape of an agreement, receipt, etc., for those chaps are now on the war path."

Departing the Ice.

Fled around the polished floor
To the snug little boat she wore,
As we watched the bold skaters out and near!
O'er the frozen tide from the shore,
On her head was a fur, and a muff of fur
Nestled under her dimpled chin,
And we skimmed and we glided
And curved and—collided,
Kersplash! and they both tumbled in.

My fairy was fat and fair
And she clung to me like a vise—
A soused, and tousled and dripping pair.
How we clutched at the crackling ice!
Her arm squeezed my throat like a hangman's rope,
Her matted hair mopped my face;
At the bottom the deep
Got into my shoes,
And I longed for a change of base.

They came with a hickory pole
And pickets torn from the fence,
And threw us a rope near our death-trap hole,
With a loop in the end immense.
In a trice I had slipped the noose over our heads
And pulled both our chubby arms through;
With a tug and a roar
They towed us ashore,
And we stuck to each other like glue.

I combed the ice out of my hair
And she wrung her petticoats dry,
And all that they did was to ogle and stare,
The men and the boys that stood by.
Erstwhile she'd been timid and shy as a roe,
But now she was ever so nice,
And chatted all day
In her poll-parrot way,
For you see, we had broken the ice!

Swindled Farmers.

It appears that certain horse collar agents are inducing sundry farmers to sign a document purporting to make them sole agents for the sale of horse collars in a certain district, promising them a handsome remuneration for their trouble. By tearing this document in two the agent brings the signer in for the sum of $125. The note is then transferred to a third party, who demands immediate payment. How long will it be before the honest farmer will refrain from seizing the bait which some unscrupulous agent is sure to hold out to him. Tilling the soil will always prove more remunerative to the farmer than selling horse collars.

A Sponge Poultice.

In referring to sponges as a carrier of poultices, Dr. Richardson considers that it makes the best of mustard carriers. Mix the mustard in a basin with water until the mass is smooth and of even consistency. Then take the soft mass all up with a clean sponge, lay the sponge in the centre of a white handkerchief, tie up the corners neatly and apply the smooth, convex surface to the skin. The mustard sponge, warmed again by the fire and slightly moistened, can be applied three or four times, is good for several hours, and saves the trouble of making a new poultice during the weariness of night watching. The sponge can afterwards easily be washed clean in warm water.

Potato Rot Prevented.

A district correspondent suggests the following plan which, he says, if the farmers follow when they store their second potatoes for the winter they may save the remnant of their crop:—"After the potatoes are carefully sorted, sprinkle the bottom of the bins or barrels with slacked lime. Then put the potatoes into the bins or barrels to the depth of six or seven inches; then sprinkle again with a small quantity of lime, and continue the process until the bins are filled. A number of years ago, when potatoes rotted very nearly as badly as they do now, this plan was tried and it saved all the potatoes as above described. The expense is small, as but a light sprinkling of lime is required."

The Burmese War.

Everything Ready.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 13.—Lord Dufferin has ordered Gen. Prendergast, commander of the Burmah expedition, to invade Burmah forthwith, and proceed with all haste to capture Mandalay. The British forces will cross the frontier immediately. Recent despatches from Rangoon state the inhabitants of the districts in British Burmah, where no large garrisons are maintained, are greatly alarmed over the reports that King Thebaw has mobilized 15,000 dacoits to cross the frontier and begin plundering and murdering at the first note of war. The dacoits are robbers, who work in large gangs, and are noted for their bold exploits. Having neither baggage nor a commissariat, these bands travel with marvellous speed, and it will be hard for the British troops to catch them.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Balkan question is day after day settling into such a shape that Russia has all the other interested Powers arrayed against her wishes as to the settlement of the status of Bulgaria and Roumelia. Russia's persistent demand for the absolute restortation of the separate relations of the principalities can hardly be effectively maintained in face of the fact that Turkey and all the other Powers are satisfied to recognize the union, though with certain conditions affecting the future relations of united Bulgaria and the Porte. The only way in which Russia's views are likely to prevail will be through a possible collision of the Bulgarian and Servian troops, now facing each other on the frontier. Should some accident or treachery precipitate an engagement, the probabilities, as now existing, will be changed into an entirely new outlook.

The Noted Book-keeper.

A young man writes to Park's Sun as follows:

"I am a book-keeper in a wholesale house, on a salary of twelve hundred dollars a year, and I have five hundred dollars laid up. I want to make some money, and I have thought some of speculating a little in wheat or pork. I know several young men in my position who have made quite a little money speculating, and I have been tempted to invest several times, but have not yet been able to get up courage to take my five hundred dollars out of the bank and put it in the hands of a commission house. What would you advise me to do? I have guessed on the market several times, and have guessed right, and if I had put my money on my guesses, I would have made considerable. Now, tell me honestly, because I know you have speculated, and know all about it."

Young man, go and look at your five hundred dollars, and see if it is there yet. Ah, it is all safe, is it? Looked sort of good, didn't it? Made you feel proud when you saw it, proud that you had earned it by hard work? Well, if you had twice the amount, won at gambling, or in wheat speculations, you would not think half as much of it as you do of this first five hundred dollars. You don't ever think now of spending this money foolishly. It represents to you hard work coined into dollars. If you accumulated it without work in speculation, and it came easy, you would be looking for a horse that could beat the crowd on the avenue, in less than a week. You would be spoiled if you accumulated money easy, and ruined if you lost your five hundred. You keep right on keeping books, and keeping them well, and forget that five hundred, except to draw the interest regular, or unless you see a piece of first-class, solid property that is offered cheap. But don't you ever put a dollar on wheat or pork, expecting to win, for you will lay down your bundle sooner or latter and wake up with the headache. This is not the advice of one who ever speculated a dollar, or who ever will, but one who has been watching those who do speculate for fifteen years. Not one in a hundred of them but have lost. Those who have won are no better off, because they have worn themselves out watching the market and cursing their luck. It is a business that should only be done by rich men for amusement. The rich can lose and not feel it, though some of them kick pretty hard when they lose. But the poor, those who are depending on their labor, either of hands or brain, should never indulge in an amusement that makes even rich men wish they were dead. You can take a hundred dollars and go to a faro bank, and guess on the deal, in your mind, with your hand on your money in your pocket, and you will guess right very often, but if you put your money down, the majority of the guesses will be against you, and the commission the bank takes will soon eat up your hundred dollars. If you bet a dollar on each card, and won half your bets, and lost the other half, it would only be a matter of time when the bank would have all your money, and you would have the experience. Without arguing that speculation in options is anything like a faro bank, though many speculators will tell you it is, the result will be the same, only the commission has to be paid on every deal, whether you win or lose. If you make a deal and win, you pay the gentleman commission. If you lose on the deal, he is not going to work for nothing, is he? Of course not. The faro bank only takes a commission when you win, which shows that the faro banker is not as good a business man as he ought to be. If the Sun is mistaken about the commission being charged on losing deals, it is willing to be corrected. Any way, young man, what you want to do is to forget that there is any chance for you to engage in speculation, for if you go into it, you will curse the day that you did.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Mr. John Miller,

Mind-reader, at the Opera House, Friday evening.

Singing Class for Boys.

Mr. Hampshire's class for above will meet in St. John's School Room to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock. Fee—$1.00 for twenty lessons.

Young Men's Bible Study.

The class held in the Y. M. C A., Rooms, conducted by Rev. F. H. Wallace, M. B., B. D., is one of great interest. All young men, whether members of the Association or not, will be heartily welcomed.

First Class Entertainment.

The next of the Y. M. C. A., series of entertainments will be held on Friday evening in the Opera House. The entertainment will be of a high order, and should be successful in every way.

National League Meeting.

A meeting of Peterborough Branch of the Irish National League will be held in the hall, in the Lynch Block, opposite the Oriental Hotel, Hunter Street, this evening. See advertisement in another place in this issue.

Police Court.

Orlando Mowry was charged before P. M. Dumble this morning with using profane language on the streets. He was fined $2 and costs or 10 days imprisonment.

W. Nelson, a Salvation Army soldier, appeared to answer a charge of assault preferred by Fred Metheral. He pleaded guilty, and was fined $5 and costs or 10 days.

Try Your Luck.

Persons who are inclined to take chances on a turn of the dice will have a good opportunity offorded them to-morrow evening by the grand lacrosse raffle, to held at the Oriental hotel. The highest throw gets a prize of $25, the second a $15 watch, the third a suit of clothes valved at $20, or $15 in cash, and the person taking the greatest number of tickets, a hat valued at $3. Now is the time for the lucky ones.

Au Revoir.

Mr. Miles Hamilton, who has for some time back been a clerk in the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Montreal, has been promoted to a higher and more lucrative position in the Brockville branch of the same institution. Mr. Hamilton, by his courteous and gentlemanly bearing, has made for himself hosts of friends among the commercial community, and in football, cricket and lawn tennis circles the name of "Miles" is a synonym for a jolly good fellow. In social circles, too, Mr. Hamilton is a universal favorite and the darling of the ladies. The EXAMINER extends its heartiest congratulations. Miles! Au Revoir.

Railway Reporterial.

The evening express of the Midland railway was an hour and a half late in arriving here last night, having been detained by the breaking down of an axle on another train at Markham, Ont. The detention was a long one, but the express by fast running got it down to an hour and a half on arriving here, the run between Lindsay and Peterborough being accomplished in 30 minutes. A large gang of workmen, numbering 30, who had been engaged in facing with stone Deube's Cut, on the "missing link," were waiting to be conveyed to Port Hope on the train, and being wet, hungry and tired, the time dragged by wearily for them.

Peterborough Exhibitors.

The Ontario Canoe Company, whose superb exhibits of their famous canoes have been an attraction at all the leading American exhibitions, are at present making an effort to surpass all their previous displays at the Indian and Colonial Exhibition to be held at London, Eng., next May. They will exhibit twenty-five of their canoes of all kinds, with the various riggings, steering gears, folding centre boards, etc., used by them.

The William Hamilton Manufacturing Company will also send to the same exhibition a collection of cuts illustrating the various machines manufactured at their factory.

Filthy Crossings.

A townsman very properly asks: "Why cannot our street inspector have those abominable crossings cleaned?" Probably $1.00 would pay for cleaning all the principal crossings in town and thousands of taxpayers would enjoy the benefit of it.

Burglars Abroad.

The arrival of the winter season always renders more reckless a class of people who, too lazy to work and born with predatory instincts, are ever on the alert to profit by the carelessness of others. Several reports of attempts to rob houses by sneaking or burglary have been made, and householders will do well to see that their door and window fastenings are secure before retiring, and during the day to keep front doors fastened to prevent the stealthy entry of sneak thieves.

Commercial Notes.

Prospects for a sudden sharp advance in the price of iron and iron manufactures are becoming more apparent every day. The wholesale trade will not take an order to import iron unless at an advance of 20c. to 25c. per hundred lbs. over what the goods are now selling at. Iron may go up 50c. per hundred pounds and still be at what was a low price not long ago. In some parts of the United States nails have advanced from $1.90 to $3.25 per keg, and iron is not being sold ahead at any price. We hope all our readers are well prepared for the advance by being supplied with all they require for a few months at least.

The Story of the Rebellion.

We have before us the prospectus of a work entitled the "Story of the Rebellion" (of 1837) by John Charles Dent, author of "The Last Forty Years in Canada." Mr. Dent has been several years collecting materials for such a work, and recently the papers and correspondence of the late Hon. John Ralph have passed into his possession. These and other circumstances place him in a position to compile a history of the Rebellion, more full and complete than any that has yet appeared. In referring to the mechanical execution of the work, its high character may be inferred from the fact that it is to be issued from the presses of Mr. C. Blackett Robinson, Toronto. The work will be issued in two royal octavo volumes of about four pages each, printed in clear bold type, the paper will correspond in quality, and the whole work in literary and mechanical excellence will probably be the finest specimen of book making ever produced in Canada. The work is sold only by subscription. Mr. John Burnham late with the Confederation Life Assurance Company, is the general agent.

A Silver "Collection."

William Nelson, a member of the Salvation Army, was arraigned at the Police Court this morning, on a charge of assult on Sunday evening preferred against him by Fred Metheral, a respectable and inoffensive looking young man of about eighteen. He pleaded guilty. The complainant stated that he with a number of others was at the door of the Salvation Army meeting in Bradburn's Hall on Sunday evening. Defendant, who was the door-keeper temporarily left the door, and during his absence the press from behind forced complainant and a number of others into the hall. Defendant endeavored to drive them out and struck complainant twice with the collection plate, and witness' hat was knocked off and spoiled.

Mr. Dumble inquired what right the Salvation Army had to make a charge for admission to a show on Sunday evening.

Defendant produced a dodger, announcing a meeting in Bradburn's Hall, to be conducted by Captain Eadie, and stating that a silver collection would be taken at the door.

The Magistrate inquired if the defendant had compelled everyone who came in to contribute at the door.

Defendant replied that he did. The magistrate said that a collection was understood to be something voluntary, and he did not think the Army had any right to make a charge at the door on Sunday night more than any other show.

Defendant said it was part of the rules of the Army.

The magistrate, remarking that to strike a man over the head with the collection plate was hardly in harmony with the teachings of Christianity, fined Nelson $5 and costs, or ten days in goal. The costs amounted to $4.65, and the $9.65 was paid.

What They are Saying.

The Salvation Army have no more right to hold a show on Sunday than anyone else.—The Magistrate.

That fine will spoil our silver "collection."—The Army.

Personal.

Mr. Retallack, from England, will assume the position vacated in the Bank of Montreal here by Mr. Miles Hamilton.

Mr. Miles Hamilton, of the Bank of Montreal, leaves on Friday morning for Brockville, where he assumes a more lucrative position in the Brockville branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. J. B. Stone, of Percy township, is in town on a visit to his brother, Mr. E. B. Stone, barrister. It is his first visit to town in fifteen years. He said the town had advanced so that he would not recognize it from appearances.

The Messrs. Dowding, two English gentlemen who came here some time ago, are about to leave for San Francisco, Cal. One of them lately paid a prospecting visit to that State and was so well pleased that they have determined on locating there. They go per G. T. R., having purchased their tickets from Mr. T. Menzies.

Read the Advertisements.

The time of year is fast approaching when people will be casting about for the best places at which to buy holiday goods and other seasonable articles. It would be profitable for them to consult the advertisements of the EXAMINER before doing so, for it is an acknowledged fact of the present age, that the man who displays the most enterprise and originality in his advertising is sure to carry the same characteristics into his business, and will have the most extensive, best selected, and cheapest lot of goods. Read the advertisements, and when purchasing tell the storekeeper what paper you saw them in, they always like to hear that their advertisements are read.

PETERBORO'. - PETERBORO'.

A few short months ago who would have thought that Hunter Street would be the business street of Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors, and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and will guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

MIKADO TEA.

MIKADO is the name of the Plantation owned by the MIKADO TRADING COMPANY.

The Plantation formerly belonged to the Mikado, or King of Japan, and was cultivated for the exclusive use of the Royal household.

The Plantation was bought from the King on condition that sufficient Tea should be supplied to the Royal Family, as the King would use no other.

It is an acknowledged fact, that the Teas grown on this Plantation are, for Purity, Strength and Flavor, the finest in the world.

It is put up in Half and One Pound packages, and is sold at the exceeding low price of 45 cents per pound.

The War in the Balkans.

The Bulgarian Forces on the March.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—A special despatch from Sofia says about 11,000 Bulgarian troops, inculding cavalry and infantry left this city to-day in the direction of the Dragoman Pass. They are under the immediate command of Prince Alexander. There is the most intense anxiety here on account of the the report that the Bulgarian troops on the frontier have been defeated by the Servians. The scenes attending the depature of the troops were most affecting. The Prince was pale, but bore resolute expression. He addressed the troops in words which showed his full realization of the gravity of the situation. At the same time his remarks were courageous and inspiring, and they elicited warm applause. For some distance along the road leading from the city the troops were accompanied by crowds of citizens, of which the wives, mothers and daughters of the soldiers formed the larger porportion. Popular and patriotic airs were started by the populace and caught up by the troops as they marched along. It was the comment of one accustomed to such scenes, however, that there was less of national enthusiasm manifested than of personal sympathy, naturally brought out by the presence of danger. In short, the people do not feel a sense of wrong nor ambition for conquest, which are requisite to arouse a nation to exaltation. Still, it is hoped that the fidelity of the troops to their Prince will serve to turn the tide of the Servian forces and save the capital from the enemy. It is expected that a decisive battle will take place at Dragoman Pass.

Roumania Coming In.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Bulgarians are fortifying Widdin. Roumania has protested against this in a note to the Powers calling attention to the article in the Berlin treaty which decrees that fortresses on the Danube shall be raised in order to secure free navigation of the river. It is probable that the protest will be followed by the occupation of Silistria, Bulgaria. Roumania will thus be drawn into the difficulty.

Russian Abuse.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 17.—The Russian newspapers, in commenting upon the Balkan question, abuse Austria equally with England.

A Desperate Battle.

BELGLADE, Nov. 17.—Gen. Tocsalovitch, with the Moravia division, has had a desperate battle with the Bulgarians at Irn. The latter were totally defeated. The Servians fought with great gallantry, and captured two guns and many prisoners. Three battalions of Bulgarians surrendered. A battalion of Bulgarian volunteers, stationed at a point on the Timok River, capitulated without firing a gun to Col. Djukenitch, commanding the Servian Timok division. The Bulgarians yesterday evacuated their fortified position at Dragoman, which the Servians attacked on Sunday.

Austria Moving.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The Bourse is flat on rumours that Austria is mobilizing her troops.

Panic-Stricken Bulgarians.

BELGRADE, Nov. 17.—The details of the capture of the Dragoman Pass by the Servians show that the Drinia and Shumadga divisions, under Colonels Michkovitch and Benicky, were engaged, and attacked the Bulgarians in force, completely routing them. Hordes of Bulgarians laid down their arms, being panic-stricken. Several guns were captured and the Pass abandoned.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The regular meeting of the village Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, the 9th inst. Present,—the Reeve, R. C. Strickland, in the chair, and Messrs. McWilliams, Moore and Isbister, councillors.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

A communication from the Lakefield School Board, requesting the Council to hold the school election the same day as the municipal election, was received.

Moved by Councillor Isbister, seconded by Councillor Moore, that the Clerk be instructed to notify the Lakefield School Board that, owing to the time of notice required by the statute having lapsed this Council decline to take any action in the matter.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Moore, seconded by Councillor McWilliams, that the Treasurer of the municipality of Lakefield is hereby authorized to [illegible] on the County Treasurer for the sum of one hundred dollars, being the amount granted to the village by the County Council on the 29th June, 1875, for the purpose of building a lock-up, as the lock-up is now completed.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Moore, seconded by Councillor Isbister, that the roadmaster be instructed to have the ties and posts removed off Concession street from Church to Water streets.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Moore, seconded by Councillor McWilliams,—That the Clerk be authorized to obtain the required locks and keys for the village lock-up.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Isbister, seconded by Councillor Moore, that the County Treasurer be authorized to deduct the sum of $3.50 from the amount due the corporation, said sum having been paid by Charles Riddle as taxes in 1883, and not credited to him.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Isbister, that the following accounts be paid, and the Reeve's order do issue for the same, viz:—

J. Griffin, Selecting Jurors'	$ 3 00
Alex. Bell, " "	3 00

Martin Cambbin, Sand	2 20
George Wellmoyle, Constable	8 00
James Smith, Constable	7 50
	$73 28

—Carried.

Moved by Councillor McWilliams seconded by Councillor Isbister, that the Council do now adjourn to meet at the call of the Reeve.

REMOVAL.

Dr. Alex. Bell has removed his office, and the office of the village clerk to the residence opposite the Division Court office, near Berubee's Hotel.

FASHIONABLE WEDDING.

St. John's Church, Lakefield, was crowded last Wednesday afternoon to witness the marriage ceremony between G. W. R. Strickland, Esq., and Mrs. Houchen. His employes took occasion to present Mr. Strickland with a handsome gold watch and the following address, which was signed by over fifty of his men:—

G. W. R. Strickland, Esq., Lakefield, Ont.:

DEAR SIR,—We, the undersigned employes of Messrs. R. & G. Strickland, beg you to accept the accompanying gold watch as a slight token of the regard and esteem with which you are regarded by those employed by your firm. Trusting that you and Mrs. Strickland may enjoy many years of health and happiness.

The watch bore the following inscription: "Presented to G. W. R. Strickland, Esq., by the employes of R. & G. Strickland, Nov. 11th, 1885." The happy couple left soon after the ceremony for an extended tour in the United States.

SPORTING NEWS.

Mr. W. C. Casement and party returned from Jack's Lake on Friday, bringing with them 15 fine deer—the result of ten days' hunt, and very stormy weather at that. Messrs. J. Moore and Steele secured nine in nine days in Eagle Lake, and Messrs. G. Cochrane and G. Stone, while up woodranging, took one day for sport and secured three very fine ones. In fact, all our hunters are returning happy. To-morrow (Wednesday) a party from the village and Dummer go up to Crane Lake for two weeks, while next week one party of six and another of five go back to remain until the end of the open season.

THE FIRST TENANT.

Our new lock-up received its first tenant a few days since in the person of Master Clark an incorrigible boy of about 14. For some time past he would watch when some of our rural friends tied their horses in the church sheds, when he would take them out and go for a drive. He got caught the other day and Constable Shields stowed him in the lock-up until he could bring him before Messrs. Hull & Sherin, who sent him to Peterborough for thirty days.

VILLAGE NOTES.

R. and G. Strickland are building an office on the corner of Queen and Water streets. John Rogers is also building an office on Queen street in connection with his livery stables. E. Chapin has put up a new shop and steam engine in rear of his present shop. H. R. Patterson has purchased and removed to the residence lately occupied by Dr. Bell. Frank Pearson, from concession 16, Smith, taking Mr. Patterson's house. Chas Bloomfield will open an office on the 1st December in the brick block corner Queen and Ried streets for general insurance, brokerage and banking. George Martin has opened another grocery store on Queen street. John Millage is erecting a house for himself on Ermatinger street, and Wm. Smith is following his example. The new grist mill is closed in and received its first coat of paint. D. Smith's new shop is finished and he is moving in. T. Hendren has built a new house in rear of his shop. John Hall has made such changes in a house on John street that the late owner would not know it. The steamers still running with more work than they can do. Carter has his greenhouse in shape for winter. George McIlmoyle has so many sales on hand he wishes his girls were boys so they could help him. Sore arms at a discount and the doctors taking a rest. Some queer yarns from the Jack Lake camp.

A Fresh Supply.

More new Wool Dress Goods at the "Golden Lion." The Military Cloths, Cheviot Cloths, Amure Cloths, and Canvas Cloths make elegant seasonable dresses. The Murderers Identified.

DUBLIN, Nov. 17.—The sons of Farmer Curtin, who was murdered by moonlighters near Tralee on Friday night, have identified the prisoners Timothy Casey and Michael Sullivan as members of the gang of murderers. They have been remanded for trial. The other men arrested in connection with the murder have been discharged.

Smallpox Victims in Montreal.

Twenty-one on Saturday and Thirty-two on Sunday.

MONTREAL, Nov. 17.—The official returns of the health office this morning showed 11 deaths from smallpox in the city on Saturday 3 in Cote St. Louis, 1 in St. Jean Baptiste, 4 in Cunegonde and 2 in St. Charles. Yesterday (Sunday) there were 21 deaths in the city, 7 at Mount Royal hospital, 1 in Cote St. Louis, 1 St Jean Baptiste, 2 in Ste. Cunegonde.

The Eastern War Cloud.

A Brilliant Servian Success.

BELGRADE, Nov. 17.—Colonel Djunknitch, commanding the Timok division, drove the Bulgarians from the entrenchments at Kiela and captured 150 prisoners. The total Servian loss is two officers and 50 men killed and wounded. The official report from Col. Beneky, commanding the Shumidja division, says:—After a brilliant charge the Servians carried four Bulgarian redoubts beyond Tearibrod. Col. Djunknitch, with the Timok division, has taken Kiela. The Servian troops continue advancing everywhere, and have captured 400 Bulgarian prisoners. The Servians lost 300 wounded and 50 killed. A great battle is being fought now in the direction of Dragoman.

Imploring Assistance.

SOFIA, Nov. 17.—Prince Alexander has started for Slivnitza to assume command of the army. A force of Bulgarians from Widdin has crossed the Timok river and entered Servia, and is not attacking Negotiva. Bulgaria has resolved to fight to the better end. Prince Alexander has again implored the Porte for assistance, pointing out that the Sultan is Suzerain over Bulgaria and that the Servians are almost at the gates of Sofia.

Astonishing Career of Crime.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—An astonishing career of crime has been revealed by an arrest just made in Staffordshire. An armed and disguised burglar was captured while he was ransacking the residence of a gentleman named Honeymoon, at West Bromwich. When his disguise was removed, the burglar was recognized as a man of supposed wealth who lived in the neighborhood, and had been looked up to as a man of irreproachable character. He was regular in his attendance upon religious duties, especially in partaking of the Sacrament, and was deemed an exemplary churchman. He has a son and a daughter, both of whom occupied good positions in society. Both were recently married, and their father presented them with diamonds, services of silver, and jewellery in profusion. All these valuables are now shown to have been stolen by the father. It is said that his children knew nothing of his crimes, and they are overwhelmed with grief and shame.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1885.

Peterborough Real Estate Investment Company (Limited.)

The seventh annual general meeting of British shareholders of the Peterborough Real Estate Investment Company (Limited), Canada, was held within the office of Messrs. Finlayson & Auld, 150 West George Street, Glasgow, yesterday afternoon. There ware present—Messrs. Henry Cowan, Neil Kennedy, William Mathie, Walter W. Gray, James Mathieson, John James Pollock, Jas. Miller, John Barclay, George Allan, D. S. Carson, Alexander McDonald, H. A. D. Hain, David R. Gordon, Daniel Hamilton, William Finlayson, and R. R. Auld. Mr. Cowan took the chair.

The report by the directors in Canada for the year ending 31st May, 1885 was submitted.

MR. FINLAYSON'S STATEMENT.

The chairman then called upon Mr. Finlayson to make a statement regarding his visit to Canada.

Mr. Finlayson said—As most of you are aware I have just returned from Canada. While there I took the opportunity of paying a visit to Peterborough to see the exact position of our company, and I am very pleased to state that I found everything satisfactory. I will not take up your time by going into details, but shall merely refer to one or two points on the past and present history of the company. I only arrived in Glasgow yesterday morning, and found that the meeting was called for to-day, so that I have not had time to prepare anything like a formal report. The first thing I did on calling at the offices in Peterborough was to go over the reports for the last seven years. The company was started in 1878, and the first annual report was in 1879, at which time the capital subscribed and paid-up was no less than £75,000. The debentures at that date amounted to £4,800, and I think it is very interesting to run through the next six years, as showing the steady but satisfactory progress that has been made. In 1879 they were £4,800; in 1880, £23,000; in 1881, £42,550; in 1882, £58,650; in 1883, £82,525; in 1884, £115,377; and in the present year, 1885, £155,587. When we started in 1879 the rate of interest which we got for our money invested was 8½ per cent. and 9 per cent.; it is now only 7 per cent. Many of the older companies which were started before 1878—perhaps ten or fifteen years previous to that year—and which were getting 10 or 12 per cent. were able to accumulate large reserve funds, and are, in consequence, able to pay good dividends. Still, I think it is most satisfactory, taking into consideration the fact that our company started just as the rate of interest was falling and before it rapidly fell fram 8½ to 7 per cent. that we have been able to satisfy the people of Scotland that the company is being

WELL MANAGED, AND THE SECURITIES GOOD;

and also that we have been able to increase our debentures. We have not only been able to do that, but at the same time to accumulate a reserve fund. In last year's report the amount of that fund was shown to be $5,000, this year it has been increased to $8,000, and I am very confident, from the amount of the investments we have, and the profit we are getting upon them from a rate of interest even at 7 per cent, that we shall be able steadily to place a substantial addition to that fund year by year. The debentures cost us on the money sent to Peterborough about 5½ per cent., and the rate of interest which we get for our investments in Canada, 7 per cent., leaves us a considerable margin. This I consider very satisfactory. In reference to our expenses, they are, including the cost of the debentures, ¾ per cent. on the amount of our investments. I think I am correct in saying that other large companies of this kind, both in this country and in Canada, find that their expenses of management are something over one per cent.; and this shows, I think, that we combine safety, efficiency, and economy, and can have every confidence in our managers and directors in Canada. Another point I wish to notice in regard to the rate of interest, is that while we are getting 7 per cent. in Peterborough on first-class mortgages, these other companies take smaller percentage, and yet they are being passed over by the borrowers in the district in which we lend. The cause of this is in my opinion, that the farmers in Canada are, like the farmers in Scotland, not very much accustomed to business habits, and do not like to enter into a long correspondence with people at a distance, and besides have a great hatred to lawyers, in which I can easily sympathise with them. The fact that they can come into our head offices at Peterborough, state their wants to the managers, and have loans arranged personally and pay over their interest in person, instead of sending back drafts and engaging in correspondence, pleases the farmers,

AND GIVES THEM CONFIDENCE IN THE COMPANY.

If the rate does not get lower we shall continue to be able to get first-class mortgages at 7 per cent. As I stated before, the rate of interest was reduced from 8½ to 7 per cent. That was caused by the great influx of money into Canada through investment companies similiar to our own. Within the last fifteen years a large amount of debentures have been sent from this country to these companies, and these have brought about a demand for the development of Lower Ontario. I think the reduction in the rates of interes in Ontario is not likely to go on in the same ratio any longer. The greater number of these companies are filled up. There is no room in any of the large cities for the organization of any other large company; and I have not the slightest doubt that, with the increase of business, the rate of interest will be kept steady and firm at 7 per cent. There is now less money going out from this country, and the companies having exhausted their borrowing powers, will be unable to get money rapidly unless a further extension of their capital be made, and I do not think this likely to occur. We may, therefore, look forward to the rate of interest increasing or remaining steady, and I think our prospects for the future are very good indeed. Another point in reference to their company was this: A number of the investment companies in Dundee, Edinburg, and Aberdeen have their management in Scotland, and lend their money through local advising boards in Canada. One of the strongest points in favour of the Peterborough company is, to my mind, the fact that two-thirds of its capital is held in Canada—a substantial holding of the capital is in Canada, in the hands of the directors and managers there. These gentlemen have their own interests to look after, and human nature is human nature all the world over; the man who is actually lending his own money is much more likely to look well after the mortgages than an advising board investing other people's money. Another point is that the transactions of the company are all limited to the district of Peterborough. Our directors are good, substantial men, who have been a long time in the district—know almost every individual, and something about the security of the buyer in almost every case that comes before them. In the case of companies whose transactions are spread over large districts this is impossible. The operations of our company are confined to the Peterborough district, and we have not a single farthing in the north-west of Canada. The reports which come from Manitoba and other districts where other companies have been doing business are very unsatisfactory, and there are one or two things in these reports which are of interest to to us as a company. Our company had never thought of extending our operations. They were content with the good rate of interest to be got at home. It is very satisfactory to think that our money is all invested in good, well-cultivated and settled farms in old-established districts, and that we can

LOOK FORWARD WITH COMFORT AND HOPE TO THE FUTURE.

Although money is now costing us 5½ per ct., I think that in the course of another year or so we shall be able to renew our debentures here at 4½ per cent. It was a matter of consideration whether we should have renewed these debentures at 4½, but we thought it better in the meantime to keep to the rate of interest we had already got—namely, 5 per cent—at least for a short time. As to the renewal of debentures, I may state that of £20,000 which fell due in December, 1883, only £2,000 were called up. Again in June, 1885, £5,400 fell due, and of that £5,350 were renewed; and in December of last year £14,950 fell due, of which sum we had to pay £4,750. Of the latter sum, £3,100 belonged to a friend of my own who died a few months ago, and whose trustees act for a similar investment company to our own. In these circumstances, we are losing the money that it may go to swell the funds of another concern. I am pretty confident our debentures will be renewed at 5 per cent., and in the course of another year or two, if other companies are giving less than 5 per cent, we shall also reduce to 4½ per cent. With reference to the loss which we sustain in exchange in remitting our money to Canada, I may state that now we have £155,000 debenture, and ere long, with our full borrowing powers exhausted, we shall save in rates of exchange. Then with a better or even an equal rate of interest, and a saving of exchange, we shall be better off than we are just now. Regarding the expenditure, which is £1,972 this year as compared with £1,600 last year, £300 of that increase goes to pay the salary of an inspector. That money is well spent. The duty of the inspector is to see to the security of the company's loans before the money is paid out. Being in a comparatively small locality, we can manage this. He inspects the new loans, goes over and sees the property looks to the security, and reports, and, in addition, finds out what is going on in the different districts. The security may degenerate more rapidly in Canada through the misconduct of the proprietor or owing to other reasons; and the appointment of an inspector is a safeguard against such degeneration taking place. In conclusion, I may state that the managers and directors in Canada gave me every facility for examining the affairs of the company—in fact, they seemed to court inquiry. They were pleased that I had visited them, and on leaving I was much struck with the remark made by one of the directors that, in looking after the interests of the company, they were at the same time attending to their own affairs.

The chairman stated that Mr. Finlayson would be glad to give further information to any gentleman who desired it.

CONFIDENCE IN CANADIAN MANAGERS.

No questions having been asked,

The chairman said—I think that the full statement made by Mr. Finlayson must be very gratifying to the shareholders. I am glad to be able to say that the reserve fund is steadily increasing. I hope, in the course of another year, something very substantial may be added to it. Mr. Finlayson has gone so fully into every subject relating to the company that he has left me nothing to say. I beg to move a vote of thanks to and confidence in the directors and managers in Canada. They deserve our hearty thanks for the way they manage our business.

Mr. James Mathieson, Aberdeen, said—Having been a resident in Canada for many years, I have great pleasure in seconding the vote of thanks and confidence you have unanimously passed in the directors and managers of the company. Some of the Canadian companies have lately met with considerable losses by being perhaps too anxious to place their funds at high interest in Manitoba and other places where real estate for some time has commanded unreasonably high prices; but our shareholders are to be congratulated that the Peterborough is not one of those companies. By cautious and prudent management our directors and managers have so well succeeded in all their investments that up to this time they have not had occasion to record a single bad debt, and, notwithstanding the general depression and low rates of interest in the Province of Ontario, where the business of the company is confined, they have made steady progress, maintained the usual dividend, and made a substantial addition to the reserve. I do think they well deserve our thanks and the vote of confidence Let them continue the same safe and cautious policy they have so successfully pursued from the commencement, and the Peterborough Company in all probability will rise higher and higher in the estimation of its shareholders and the investing public.

The vote was passed unanimously.

A vote of thanks was passed to the British Board of Reference. Mr. James Miller, of Aberdeen, in acknowledging the vote of thanks among other things, said:

"Some years ago I had a request from Mr. Allan, your agent in Aberdeen, to join your board of reference, but, knowing little of the company at that time, I would not comply with it. But subsequently I had occasion to inquire in certain quarters regarding the company, and I was satisfied that the concern was in safe and able hands in Canada, and was doing an excellent work. The report given to-day is satisfactory in the highest degree, and I shall now be able to speak in greater praise of the company and all concerned in it.

Mr. Mathie—When our shares change hands, what price do they command in Canada?

Mr. Finlayson—10 to 17 per cent. premium.

A vote of thanks to the chairman, on the motion of Mr. John James Pollock, of Auchineden, brought the meeting to a close.—Glasgow News.

At Sunset.

To me, the Western sky doth always seem
The enchanted country of a dream;
Such glamor strange doth paint its clouds to me,
A land beyond some radiant sea:

A mist-wreathed shore half veiled from sight
But shining with a softened light;
Like lovely hills through golden haze,
On drowsy, Indian summer days.

In purple coolness lie those distant hills,
And as I gaze my heart with rapture thrills
Vague hopes that place immortal rest
Among those "Islands of the Blest."

Whene'er the dust and turmoil of the day
Choke out my life, and heart and brain give way,
In that far sunset land I seek for balm;
In that celestial sea is heavenly calm.

Where'er I think of hopes gone down,
Of buried joys and friendships flown—
Of all the incompleteness here—
I lift mine eyes to rich fruition there.

Ah! Yes! when at the sunset's golden hour,
Come crowding o'er my soul the spell and power
Of loves and hopes of earlier years.
In that great sea of light, I drown my tears

For there somehow I place my Heaven;
The meeting of dear souls—sins forgiven;
And through the portals of that setting sun
I see a grander life begun.

—Lucy Ledyard.

Child Venders.

In Nankin and Kai-fun children from 6 to 12 years of age are sold by tens of thousands. Not hired out or transferred—but sold for a small sum in cash, in consideration of which the progenitor, by a tacit understanding, renounces all parental rights, even the right of inquiring into the fate of his offspring. The purchasing trader may be the middle man of a well to-do childless couple, or the agent of a wholesale tea-planter, or a coolie-breeder, raising and training slaves for a foreign market. For the equivalent of £3 any commission peddler will undertake to "adopt" the same number of young Mongols in the name of any employer, and at very short notice. The authorities might object to a formal and public purchase, but the meaning of the adopting transaction is well understood and connived at. It is a lesser evil, and few parents ask any questions. Rather than see their children starve they will resign them to any fate—with one exception: The orthodox Buddhists seem to have evinced occasional scruples in delivering up their youngsters to the proselytizing missionaries, whom they suspect of all sorts of damnable practices. But even such scruples can be readily outweighed by a few extra dollars.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Crawling Leaves.

When Australia was first discovered by the English, as many strange stories were told about the wonderful things to be found there as we used to hear in the early days of California. Among other things it was said that the leaves of a certain tree had a habit of descending from their proper place and walking along the ground.

A party of English sailors had left their ship to roam along the coast and "see what they could see." They were resting under a tree, lying on their backs, probably, and naturally gazing upward, when a sudden breeze shook down a number of leaves, which turned summersaults in the air, after the manner of leaves generally, and then floated to the ground. The sailors were surprised at this shower, because it was not the fall of the year, but midsummer, and these falling leaves looked fresh and green. It was strange to see leaves deserting the tree without any sort of reason; but this was nothing to what followed.

After a short rest these able-bodied leaves began crawling along on the ground toward the trunk of the tree from which they came, and the amazed sailors started up in terror. They probably knew from experience that people who came in contact with the ground may also expect to come in contact with various crawling insects, but walking leaves were something altogether out of the common way; and they took to their heels at once, and lost no time in getting on board the vessel. The land was certainly bewitched, and one of the men said, in relating the adventure, that he expected every minute to see the trees step out and dance a regular jig.

Fortunately this singular phenomenon has been fully explained by later travelers who were not too much frightened to stop and examine the matter. It was discovered that these queer leaves are really insects that live upon the trees, and are of the same color as the foliage. They have very thin, flat bodies, and their wings are like large leaves. When anything disturbs them—like a breeze, for instance—they fold their legs away under their bodies, and then the leaf-like shape, with stem and all, is complete.

Not only are they of a bright green in the summer, like the foliage of the trees at that time, but they actually change when the leaves do to dull brown produced by frost. Another peculiarity of these leaf-insects is that, although they have a generous supply of wings, they seldom use them, but when they have been shaken to the ground, after lying there for a few moments, as if they were really leaves, they crawl towards the tree, and ascend the trunk without seeming to know that they have the power of getting back to their quarters in a much quicker and easier way.—Harper's Young People.

LITERATURE.

It is safe to say that a good deal of the most valuable material contained in popular literature is, to a considerable extent thrown away. According to the statistics, boys and girls in their teens constitute the majority of the reading public. The close analyses of character, the just reflections, and the somewhat cynical tone, by which the best works of fiction are characterized, are hardly to be appreciated by people who have not lived and learned for themselves. At sixteen certain kinds of philosophy are puzzling. "The world is so little," says Obenreizer with a smile, curling his mustache about his nose. "There are so few persons in the world that they continually cross and recross. One cannot get rid of a person." To Master Roundabout, who is still in elementary algebra and the five declensions, this is simply absurd. He has had geographical troubles enough to know that it is a very wide and populous world. How far is it to Uraguay and Paraguay, he would like to know; or the Straits of Babel-Mandeb or the Island of Van Dieman's States alone over fifty millions of people? He recognizes a wide, wide world which is a vast complication of tides and climates, and swarms with innumerable millions. Mists hang low down over it. The masts of the shipping at Hong Kong blend with the infinite.

Among grown-up people the impression that we have a small world is widely entertained and gains ground every day. As far as you and I are concerned, the population of the world is some hundreds at the most. A few schoolmates and society acquaintances, one's immediate relatives, the family into which he marries, his business house and its correspondents, constitute the roll of the living. The remaining millions or billions are merely accessories. They dot the street, as one bustles to and from the few persons with whom he has tangible relations, and constitute, with the hitching-posts, the telegraph poles, and the signboards, the detail of the scene. One may doubt whether they have any real existence. He will never touch them, hear them speak, or be involved with them in any way.

Formerly this scanty population lived principally in one's own town or state. Since the advent of rapid transit, it stretches around the world and occupies the whole of it. Out of half a dozen school friends one is a lawyer in San Francisco, another a commission merchant in Australia, another a London banker; one has a cattle ranche in Texas, the fifth is in the China tea-trade, and the last has visited almost all of them in the respective lands of their adoption. If one has a brother-in-law in the island of Madagascar, or a sweetheart at Valparaiso, and exchanges frequent letters and presents with them, those dim localities lose their remoteness. With the present facilities for travel, the circuit of the world is an inconsiderable feat.

This state of things has its inconveniences. If you have done something in your native village in the interior of Vermont or Indiana, as the case may be, which you would rather not have known; if there was, say, an awkward love affair, or your social position was not all it might have been, as likely as not some old acquaintance of yours will mention it casually to some new one at Constantinople or John O'Groats. There are now scarcely any recesses in which trouble or crime may be hidden. This perfect intercommunication will ultimately develop into a force in the interests of morality. Having no longer any refuge to which he may escape and preserve the respect of his fellows, the would-be criminal will, perhaps, pause and overcome his temptations.

These times, when men run to and fro, and knowledge is increased, are believed by some theologians to be the latter days. When the millenium comes it is to be hoped that people won't mind being crowded. It certainly looks as if they were going to be.—W. H. Bishop.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Secure Your Seats

At A. L. Davis & Co's for the entertainment on Friday night in the Opera House.

Grand Concert Coming.

The agent of the Till Family and Rock Band Concert Company, of London, Eng., was here to-day, and made arrangements for them to appear in Peterborough during January.

The Lacrosse Raffle.

The Lacrosse Club Raffle which was advertised to take place last evening at the Oriental Hotel, was postponed for two weeks, a large number of ticket holders residing at a distance not having had time to return their tickets in time to secure their throw last evening.

Good Appointments.

Miss Hattie Johnston has been appointed organist of St Andrew's church, and Mr. D'D. Galletley choirmaster. Better selections could not have been made in Peterborough, and the congregation of St. Andrew's is to be congratulated on the prospect of the musical services corresponding in excellence to the beauty and stability of the new church.

Ashburnham School Board.

A meeting of the Ashburnham School Board was held last evening, all the members being present. The account of J. Friend for painting, $27.88, was ordered to be paid, and also an account of the Citizens Insurance Co. of $21.50. The secretary was instructed to secure stationery for the school and prizes for the second and third divisions, to be awarded at Christmas.

Matrimonial.

Another of our eligible young men has gone over to the great army of Benedicts. Mr. George W. Rubidge was married at 4 o'clock this afternoon to Clara A., daughter of Dalton Ullyot, Esq., the ceremony being performed at the residence of the bride's father, by Rev. J. W. R. Beck, Rector of Peterborough. Miss Smith acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. G. Clementi was groomsman. The happy pair, who were the recipients of many beautiful and valuable presents from their numerous friends, leave this evening for a tour to Chicago and other points west. They will be followed by the best wishes of everyone, and the EXAMINER takes pleasure in joining the slipper throwers.

Last evening Mr. Rubidge was entertained by a number of bachelor friends at Chamberlain's restaurant, Mr. Harry Phelan, who by the way should soon be following George's good example, in the chair. Congratulatory speeches were made by Mr. Rubidge's bachelor friends, to which he responded suitably, and the evening was spent in a convivial manner.

Obituary.

The numerous friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Giles Webber will be pained to learn that that lady died on Wednesday morning, after a brief illness. On Thursday last she was in the enjoyment of her usual health, but during the night she was visited by a severe attack of inflammation of the bowels, and so rapid was the progress of the disease that on Wednesday morning at half-past one she passed away to her rest. The deceased lady was a native of Bowtown, Devonshire, England, where she was born in 1813. On the 28th of February next she would, if living, have been 73 years of age. In 1851 she, with her husband and family, came to Peterborough, where she and they have since lived. Of Mrs. Webber it may, indeed, be truly said that she will be greatly missed—missed as an affectionate, kindly and dutiful wife, whose home was her kingdom, which she ruled with gentleness, love and thrift, and an unselfishness which never knew weariness nor relaxation while the comfort or happiness of its members called for her ministrations—missed as a mother whose tireless solicitude for her childre 's welfare will be a bright memory in their lives—missed as a member of the church, whose temporal interests she liberally promoted, and whose doctrines she "adorned with a godly life and conversation"—missed as a neighbor and missed in every relation of life. As she lived she died—in full hope of the happiness of Heaven. Her funeral will take place from her late residence, Charlotte street, on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Ladies' Bible Class.

The Rev. Mr. Munro's Bible class for ladies, will meet to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the Y. M. C. A. hall. Subject: "The Interpretation of Prophecy."

The Pastor Rink.

This favorite pleasure resort is now open for the season, and the management have made every effort to secure the comfort of their numerous patrons. It has always been noted for the courtesy extended to those patronizing it and the select character and decorous behaviour of its frequenters. The heating and ventilating arrangements have been made the object of special attention so as to secure a clear, dry atmosphere. The rink will be open all day and evening.

Police Court.

Messrs. Crevier & Phalen, keepers of the Arcade Billiard Rooms, were charged at the Police Court this morning on the information of John Wood with carrying on their billiard room without a license. Mr. Edmison appeared in support of the information, and Mr. C. W. Sawers for the defendants. The latter gentleman asked for an adjournment of one week. To this Mr. Edmison objected, and the Magistrate, concurring in Mr. Edmison's opinion that there was no reasonable occasion for so long an enlargement, decided that the case should be tried to-morrow morning.

The Scott Act Appeal.

Mr. D. Galletly was examined by Judge Dennistoun this morning respecting the sixty market ballot papers taken by him at the election. He stated that he had marked a number on the ballot and a similar one opposite the voter's name in a book kept by him, believing that to be a requisite process. After having so treated sixty of the papers he learned that it was not necessary, and discontinued it. It was agreed between council for the appellants and the Scott Act Committee that the sixty ballot papers so marked should be disallowed, which increases the majority for the Act by twenty votes. It was also agreed that the transposed returns from Enniscmore should be amended in accordance with facts. An adjournment till December 1st was granted at the request of Mr. Weller in order that the decision of a case, now in progress in the Supreme Court, and which bears on the question here, might be obtained before further steps were taken.

A Cheerful Dialogue.

"Nice day" said Mr. Muggy to deaf old Mr. Fumblegum whom he met just outside of the post-office this morning.

"Dice pay, eh!" said Mr. Muggy who had heard something about the lacrosse raffle last night, and not thinking that his friend referred to the weather, which, as the rain happened at the time to be coming down in torrents and the streets were knee deep with mud was not to be wondered at.

"I said it was a fine morning," roared Muggy in the old man's ear,"

"Yes, yes, you'd better take warning,' growled the old man back, "or you'll have Freddy Fenton of Toronto after you for getting up a lottery."

"I say its cheerful weather," tried Muggy once more in stentorian tones, but despairing of making himself heard.

"A cheer for this weather,' said old Fumble, "why, if you want a cheer for this weather, or any other weather, why in Sam Hill don't you go round to Dan. Belleghem's and buy one, you can get anything in the cheer line you want there for any weather." And the old man limped off, coughing, and grambling to himself.

"Derned old fool," soliloquized Muggy, as he tramped through the mud, "as if everyone didn't know Belleghem's was the best place in town to buy furniture.

Restitution and Donation.

Some years ago a cheese was stolen from Cherry Grove Cheese Factory, nothing being known of how it disappeared for a long time, until a few weeks back—as reported in the EXAMINER at the time—a ten dollar bill was sent to Mr. T. E. Bell, manager of the factory, with an anonymous note stating that the cheese was taken for a lark, and that the inclosed amount would pay the value of the cheese with interest. Mr. Bell laid the matter before the patrons of the factory who decided that instead of accepting a the mount pro-rata it should be given to the Scott Act Committee, for the purpose of being applied towards defraying the expenses of the recent Scott Act contest. The following document will show that this resolve was carried out. "Received from Mr. T. E. Bell the sum of ten dollars, being money received by him on account of a cheese stolen from Cherry Grove factory some three years ago, and for which he received the unanimous permission of the patrons to pay into the Scott Act funds, which he does now by paying it to me as Treasurer. Signed,

J. W. FLAVELLE.

Mr. Bell expresses thankfulness that the better nature of the cheese abstractor should have prompted him to make amends for his lark, and the Scott Act committee, to whom the amount is very welcome, are thankful for the sympathy with their objects that led the patrons to so dispose of the money as they did, and think the Scott Act is working well in Smith.

Personal.

Rev. Father Conway visited Oshawa yesterday on business.

Mrs. Firth, of town, left on a visit to Chicago this morning.

Mr. T. Hobbs, of the Port Hope opera house, is in town with the "Mattie Vickers" comedy company. Mr. Hobbs says that this company will be certain to please Peterborough playgoers. The company is meeting with great success, and the prices are such as no one can object to. It is the finest performance he has ever had the pleasure of presenting to Peterborough.

The National League.

Meeting of the Local Branch Last Evening.

A meeting of the Peterborough branch of the National League was held last evening, in the hall in Lynch's block, Hunter street. The President, Dr. O'Sullivan, occupied the chair, and the following, among other members, were in attendance:—Dr. Kincaid, Messrs. Cahill, John Delaney, John Hackett, S. McCabe, John Corkery, John Hurley, R. Sheehy, Bagley, Halpin, McIlmoyle, and Fitzgerald. The Secretary, Mr. O'Meara, not being present, his functions were assumed by Mr. John Corkery. After the usual reading and confirmation of minutes, Dr. Kincaid, Vice-President elect of the League, rose, and in a speech expressing his entire sympathy with the aims of the League, and satisfaction at the great progress being made by the movement, announced his desire to resign the position of Vice-President by which he had been honored. He was fully conscious and appreciative of the honor attaching to it, but had come to a decision some time ago, to sever his connection with all public bodies, and the only Association he was at present identified with was the Agricultural Society, and it was his intention to surrender his directorship of that Society at the expiration of the present term. A report of Dr. Kincaid's withdrawal, and expressing the high esteem in which he was held by his fellow countrymen, suggested that as the Society was not of a religious character he should reconsider his determination.

The President spoke in a similar strain, but Dr. Kincaid was firm in his resolve to withdraw.

It was then moved by Mr. Thos. Cahill, seconded by Mr. McIlmoyle, "that the resignation of Dr. Kincaid be accepted, and that a vote of thanks be tendered to him for his kind words about the meeting,—Carried.

Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. J. Sullivan, then moved, "that the position of Vice-president be not filled at present.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. McIlmoyle, seconded by Mr. Sullivan, it was resolved that the President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Messrs. J. W. Fitzgerald, J. D. McIlmoyle and J. Corkery be appointed a committee to draft resolutions setting forth the objects of the league, and to arrange for a public meeting.

A letter from Dr. O'Reilly, Grand Secretary of the league was read, acknowledging receipt of remittance and granting a charter to the Peterborough branch.

The meeting then adjourned.

The Butter Market.

Butter producers may be interested in reading the following from the Montreal produce Bulletin of Nov. 13th:—

"Here we are again, saddled with large quantities of butter at the close of navigation, and where the demand is to come from to take it off our hands, the Lord only knows. It is to be feared that the farmers of Canada will have to do some hard praying from now out, if the hearts of buyers are to be sufficiently moved to induce them to invest in the various grades of dairy butter which are known by the familiar names of Eastern Townships, Morrisburg, Brockville, Perth, Peterborough, Western, and quaint old Kamouraska, the latter of which hails from away below Quebec, where the original butter tub of this continent was made, the patent of which is carefully preserved to this day.

Her style is thoroughly piquante and there is a freshness buoyancy and ease about her movements. The effect of which is difficult to resist her performance is distinctly entitled to rank as art.—N. Y. Daily News.

Keene.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Delightful fall weather; 'tis "the last rose of summer," no doubt.

Mr. T. White, contractor for the skating and curling rink here, met with an accident last week by the falling in of a plank of our model wharf, by which some of his ribs were sorely bruised, if not broken.

Our townsman Mr. B. Wylie, also met with a sore hurt, through some of the timbers of the rink building coming down upon him and laying him out for the time being. Had the beat come fair down on him instead of hipwise, it would have been a much more serious matter, if not a fatal one.

Mr. Wm. Campbell has had a very necessary and handsome verandah put up in front of the post office buildings.

The work on the new rink is being pushed forward with great energy.

Mr. Cunningham has at last opened out the baking business in fine style. We wish him success.

The news of Riel's execution caused quite a flutter here, and as in all things sublunary, there is quite a divergence of opinion about it. Pity that men's prejudices and religion should have so much to do with their opinions in those matters.

Omemee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Thanksgiving day was strictly observed by all our business places, excepting one or two, who always act independently and contrary; but not prospering beyond those who always comply with such observances. Services was held in the Methodist and English churches.

A shooting match was held on Nov. 12th, under the auspices of the "Omemee Rifle Association," the greatest number of points winning the largest number of geese, which were secured by Capt. Evans, Omemee. A number of Lindsay sports participated,

The Omemee High School has a large number of pupils from outside places, and is steadily prospering under the efficient services of J. A. Tanner, M.A., Principal.

Mr. Geo. Kincaid, son of Mr. J. Kincaid, a former resident of this place, has been here repairing their buildings, and promises to be an active and good mechanic.

J. A. Tully, clerk, and Burt. Mitchell, printer, have secured situations in their respective callings in Peterborough. Both of them may be classed amongst our most deserving young men, and have the best wishes of our citizens for their success.

About forty of our citizens have left to take up their abode in Peterborough during the last two years We hope to see Omemee and Peterborough shortly meet at Doube's bridge, on the Missing Link.

Great anxiety has existed here about Riel, amongst all circles; but now the great anxiety with John A.'s supporters is, who is to be their next leader.

PETERBORO'. - PETERBORO'.

A few short months ago who would have thought that Hunter Street would be the business street of Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and will guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

MIKADO TEA.

MIKADO is the name of the Plantation owned by the MIKADO TRADING COMPANY.

The Plantation formerly belonged to the Mikado, or King of Japan, and was cultivated for the exclusive use of the Royal household.

The Plantation was bought from the King on condition that sufficient Tea should be supplied to the Royal Family, as the King would use no other.

It is an acknowledged fact, that the Teas grown on this Plantation are, for Purity, Strength and Flavor, the finest in the world.

It is put up in Half and One Pound packages, and is sold at the exceeding low price of 45 cents per pound.

A GREAT WAR PROBABLE

Between Austria and Russia on the Balkan Dispute.

Success of the Servians in their Campaign —When a Check May be Expected.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Now that Dragoman Pass has fallen into the hands of Servia, the fall of Sofia is expected to be heard of. King Milan is reported to be rapidly pushing forward toward the capital. A Belgrade correspondent, however, prophesies that the Bulgarians will do their hardest fighting after the Servian army captures Sofia, provided further attempts at the conquest of the country are made. The Bulgarians have always been more successful in a half guerilla war which harasses the advance on an army in a strange and thinly populated country than in meeting large armies in open battle and resisting the capture of strategic points. The general belief is, however, that upon occupying Sofia the Servians will pause to wait the judgment of the powers as to what readjustment shall follow her bold and successful campaign. Reports continue to be received, and apparently with some foundation, that BOTH AUSTRIA AND RUSSIA ARE MOBILIZING considerable portions of their forces. Deep interest is aroused in this prophecy of the very influential and well-informed Frankfort Gazette that hostilities between Austria and Russia can now only be avoided by something equivalent to a miracle. This sober statement from so weighty a journal, is more influential upon public opinion than less well-considered predictions of the scores of correspondents at the front.

Servians Seeking Sofia.

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—Snow is falling heavily in the district comprising the scene of the Servia-Bulgarian war. It does not, however, impede the advance of the Servian army towards Sofia. The battle of Irn lasted fourteen hours.

Russia the Stone of Offence.

BELGRADE, Nov. 18.—The Servian troops will not advance beyond Sofia. If left alone, Turkey, Servia and Bulgaria will soon settle their own business in forming a confederation with Greece, but Russian intervention is hourly expected, Bulgarians Practically Beaten.

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—The Tagblatt, of Vienna, says there is a split in the Hungarian Cabinet in regard to the Government's Eastern policy, and that three of the Ministers will probably retire. King Milan has issued a decree forbidding ill-treatment of prisoners or non-combatants. The people of Sofia are panic-stricken. It is admitted in Belgrade that the Servians lost 700 killed and wounded in capturing Adelijeh. A Servian cavalry force has seized the highway from Lompalanka to Sofia, and has occupied Glenci Pass, thus separating the two Bulgarian armies.

Turkey on the Alert.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—It is reported that the Turkish army corps has concentrated at Kamanova, near Askub, at the junction of the Nissa and Sofia roads, and has thrown outposts on the Servian and Bulgarian frontiers.

All Hands to Arms.

The Vienna New Free Press has a despatch from Philippopolis, stating that the public officials and school teachers here have been ordered to join the Bulgarian army.

The Sick Man Must Act.

BELGRADE, Nov. 18.—The Turkish Minister here admits that Turkey must act when Sofia has been captured. In what way Turkey will act he decines to say.

A Little Sunshine for Bulgaria.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Bulgarians after desperate fighting have carried every one of the Servian positions which were menacing Slivonitza. Prince Alexander led the Bulgarians in person.

Morosini's Pride Wounded.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—G. P. Morosini sailed for Europe yesterday with his family. He is represented as saying that he had forgiveen his daughter, Victioria, and on returning from Europe would start her husband in some good business. He would also insist that his daughter should leave the stage. He confessed that the fact that his daughter had gone on the stage, and her husband's appearance as conductor on a street car had wounded his pride to an unlimited degree. It is said Schelling has been unable to pay for the board of himself and wife, and that the latter's diamonds have been disposed of to meet necessary expenses.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—G. P. Morosini was found at his office to-day. He said the story published by a morning newspaper was a cruel and infamous lie. His daughter had married a lader, a man whom he believed had intended to kill him by purposely throwing him out of his carriage, and both of them had passed out of his life forever.

Insane Asylum Horrors.

Atrocious Treatment of Inmates Revealed by an Investigation.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—To-day during the progress of an investigation of the County Insane Asylum, Dr. Kiosan testified that when he took charge of the asylum a year ago he found patients tied with ropes and in straight jackets, and others covered with sores, tied up with filthy rags infested with vermin and maggots. Other witnesses testified to cases of similar neglect and abuse of patients by attendants, in some instances chloral being given in large quantities to keep patients asleep or too stupified to be troublesome.

The Riel Matter in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—French Canadian students to the number of about 200, together with some quarrymen and others, in another riotous demonstration to-night, notwithstanding that it was raining hard. The quarrymen carried axe handles, and others clubs and thigh bones. They shoved people off the sidewalks, frightened horses and committed other acts which showed that unless these students be warned in time there will be trouble before their foolhardiness is over. It appeared at one time as if they were going to attack the Salvation Army hall but they did not do so. They have threatened to attack La Minerve office to-morrow night. They did considerable shouting and yelling to-night. About 200 men of the Sixth Fusileers had assembled at the corner of Dominion square about 200 members of the Montreal Snowshoe club, who had assembled for their first tramp, to be in readiness for the French Canadians if they attempted to carry out their purpose of burning Col. Stevenson in effigy in the square.

It is stated that to night's demonstration was a result of information which the students of Victoria university had received during the day to the effect that the students of McGill (English) university intended to burn in effigy on the Champ de Mars to-night.

This afternoon several young French Canadians attempted to paste a picture of Mr. Chapleau with a daub of red paint on his forehead, representing "the stain of blood" on the Nelson monument. They had a ladder, and one man was already up trying to paste the picture on when the police interfered.

On the arrival of the Montreal bound Quebec boat at Baltican yesterday evening a crowd was seen on the wharf with effigies of Sir Hector Langevin and the Hon. Mr. Chapleau. These effigies were hangd and burned in the presence of the passengers before the boat left the wharf.

The Central Prison Investigation.

(Brantford Expositor.)

That the agitation against the management of the Central Prison which the Government directed should be investigated, was what is commonly called a "put up job," is now coming out. A little light may yet be thrown on the motives which gave rise to the prosecution, for we know that the counsel employed to work up the case are about to proceed to recover their fees. The promoters of the investigation believe they have good grounds for refusing payment, and if the matter comes to the courts interesting revelations may be expected. The investigation was a very expensive one, yet it revealed the fact that there was very little to complain of—that there had been no wrong exercise of power—and that the prisoners were as comfortable in this institution as they deserved to be, and as they are in other prisons of the kind. The punishments, if severe in some cases, generally were of such a nature and the criminals of such a character as to require effective measures. The investigation really was unnecessary and apparently, had its origin entirely with certain schemers, whom Mr. Meredith and the Opposition were not above making use of, to prejudice the public against the administration of the prison. They managed to put the Province to needless expense, and if this threatened law suit goes on, we may hear something more of the motives and actions of the conspirators.

The Burmese Trouble.

King Thebaw in a Bad Way.

RANGOON, Nov. 18.—The British forces have carried the forts in the vicinity of Minhla, and captured the city after three hour's firing from floating batteries, armed launches and heavy guns on board the steamers. The British lost four men killed and twenty-seven wounded. Minhla was the most strongly fortified position on the river, and by its capture the way is cleared for the British advance to Mandalay, as the forts at [illegible] are only slight structures in comparison with those at Minhla.

A New England Choice.

For a year John Henry's health had been wretched, and the physicians finally told him he had only one chance in ten of recovery. He was engaged to be married to a girl in a New England town where men were scarce, and he stopped on his way to the seashore to see her. She noticed his paleness, but thought it was only overwork, and told him how glad she was; he was going to have a rest.

"Ah, my dear," he sighed, "I fear the rest I shall soon get will be forever."

"Why, what do you mean, John?" she asked in a startled tone.

"I mean, dear, that my case is dangerous, and one of my objects in coming to see you was to absolve you from our engagement, for it is not fair to ask you to marry a man whose death is probable at any moment.

"Don't talk that way, John; oh, don't," she sobbed with her head on his shoulder.

"But, darling, it is best for you that I should, though heaven knows that I do it with a breaking heart."

"O John! O John! I can't give you up! I won't give you up!" and she clung to him convulsively.

"Think, dearest, what you are doing. Don't you know that even if we should be married I might have only a few short weeks to remain on earth, and our married life would only be a sorrow and a care to you. Think, dearest, of that."

"I have thought of it, John. I thought of it when you first mentioned the subject, and I'd ever so much rather be a young widow than an old maid."

Again about his neck she threw her arms and her tears came thick and fast. John Henry was moved; his breast heaved with contending emotions; he bowed his head upon hers and wept with her. Then with a devotion worthy of a hero he said, in a choking voice: "Darling, you shall have your wish."

She smiled like an angel and cuddled up on his collar.—Merchant Traveler.

House Decoration.

If you have not a book-case, make one, or two look better, if you like to fill up the recesses each side of a chimney. Any nook, or a corner will do, though a corner is rather harder to fit up. Have a carpenter make you some very smooth shelves, and fit them into place from the floor only breast high. Do not paint or stain them, but rub them roughly with oil, except the top one, which should be covered with a bright cloth. Finish the edge of the shelves with a strip of scarlet leather-cloth pinked on each edge, and fastened on with brass-headed nails. Make a pretty curtain to hang across the front. It may be of dark felt cloth, trimmed across with bright bands of cloth feather-stitched on, or of crash worked in out-line embroidery, or of any material or color which will harmonize with your carpets or curtains. Hang it with brass rings (which you can buy of any upholsterer) on a pole which should be fastened in front of the top shelf (we forgot to say in its proper place, that the top shelf should be nearly 2 inches wider than the others). The pole may be ordered with the rings, or you can take a section of gas pipe (or a broom stick) and gild it, with prepared gilding, bought at a paint shop.

To support the pole, have your carpenter saw you out a couple of small brackets, with a hole in the center just large enough to admit the pole.

Fasten your curtain to the rings, put the rings on the pole, and the pole through the brackets, then screw the latter into place. Gild the brackets and screw heads like the pole. Put plaster busts or other ornaments on the top shelf, and you will say you have a pretty and useful piece of furniture at a slight expense. We saw a lovely curtain for this purpose made of olive colored felt cloth. Across the bottom was a deep facing of maroon cloth, above this were five rows of ordinary worsted braid in bright color, and fastened at each edge with high-colored silks in fancy stitches. About 5 inches from the top of the curtain was another cluster of the braids.—Farmer's Review.

A Brooklyn bridge policeman says: "It is a curious thing that I am never asked the way by the Chinese. All other nationalities bother with their questions about the bridge, the railroad, etc., but John Chinaman, strangely enough, every time knows where he is going and the way to get there."

THE CONTAGION OF CORRUPTION.

Within the past few days no fewer than three officials of the Dominion Government have "gone wrong." They are the postmasters of Whitby, Glencoe and Aylmer, the three having absconded with shortages in their accounts of varying amounts. It is not unfair to apply in this connection the saying, "like master, like man." We have heretofore taken occasion to indicate that, bad and disastrous as the reckless and indiscriminate extravagance of the Dominion Government was; serious as was its injury to the material interests of the country; obstructive as it was to the progress of the country, these results were insignificant compared to the great moral evil inflicted on the community, and the cases above referred to, are, to every lover of honorable dealing, startling exemplifications of the correctness of the position taken. At Ottawa there is a perpetual saturnalia of corruption going on in every department. The lowest civil servant, if he is true to the example of the chiefs, cannot escape infection. The head of the government has notoriously loose notions of moral obligation in his political dealings. Truth is ignored where falsehood will better serve the end in view. The man who will not scruple under cover of a solemn official announcement to the assembled parliament of the nation, to misrepresent the representative of Her Majesty, who will not scruple to utter in public a palpable untruth, and unblushingly call his Maker to witness the practical falsehood he utters; the man whose highest standard of political loyalty is implied in the statement that he can better appreciate the fidelity of a supporter who follows him when he does wrong, than that one who will only support him when he does right; the man whose statesmanship is trickery, whose argument is bribery, whose ruling motive in official acts is to secure support more than to serve the public interests; the man who will have no one as member of his Cabinet who cannot endorse his methods, and sympathize with the oblique morality that leads him and them in such tortuous political paths—such a man—such a set of men—placed at the head of the government of the country cannot help exercising a most baneful and malignant moral influence. The corruption and dishonesty in high places must extend from its fountain head and permeate society. When the chiefs are dishonest and tricky, the subordinates can hardly avoid being influenced by their example, and the postmasters who betray their trusts and serve their own interests at the expense of the public, can excuse, if not justify their course by pleading the precedent—in kind if not in degree—of their superiors in office.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Gladstone's movements in Scotland are a triumphal progress.

The New York Journal says:—"Grand old Gladstone seems to be a bigger man than the British lion."

A news note states that the four-cent rise in wheat which took place in twenty-four hours the other day, increased the value of the supply in the hands of the farmers of the United States to the extent of $16,000,000 in the same time.

Hon. Mr. Gladstone declines to lay down a policy in respect to the treatment of Ireland, before the Government formulates one, rightly arguing that it is the duty of the Government to move first in the matter. It is hard to catch the Grand Old Man napping.

Not only has the Dominion Government spent large sums to pay the passages of immigrants to Canada to compete with Canadian labor, but it has allowed Onderdonk to import Chinese cheap labor to the detriment of the labor interest of the country. According to the Mail, seven thousand Chinamen were discharged on the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Discussing the Senate, the Mail makes this extraordinary statement:—"The level of talent and of statesmanship is much higher in the Upper House, than in the Lower; the courtesies of debate are far better observed there, and the debates themselves are more business-like and useful." It is to be inferred that the Hon. D. S. Macpherson's polite and stately references to Hon. O. Mowat on a certain occasion are samples of the superior "courtesies of debate" and that the senatorial amendments to the Scott Act are a decidedly vigorous example of "more business-like legislation."

It is stated from Ottawa that all the Ministers are hastening back to the city for an important Cabinet meeting, at which Sir John Macdonald will submit a scheme for placating the Bleu followers by further grants of public money. Sir Hector Langevin will formulate certain demands on behalf of his followers, and if they are accepted it is hoped the Quebec Tories will become reconciled to Riel's fate.

The present English House of Commons consists of 652 members. The new House will have 670 members. The principal change will be in the distribution between counties and boroughs. Heretofore the majority of the members have been elected from boroughs; in future they will come from the counties. In the present Parliament there are 369 borough members and 283 for the counties; in the new Parliament there will be 377 county members and 293 from the boroughs. The changes wrought by the Reform bill of last session are as follows;—

England and Wales, county seats	187	253
England and Wales, borough seats	339	252
Ireland, county seats	64	85
Ireland, borough seats	39	18
Scotland, county seats	32	39
Scotland, borough seats	28	23

In England 60 boroughs have been wiped out, and in England 21, while in Scotland of the 12 additional seats 5 are boroughs. The change wrought by the redistribution is as follows: It swept away 104 boroughs altogether; of the remainder it altered the representation of 54, and changed the boundaries of 30, and it is created 43 new ones. The successful party must win 336 seats to obtain a clear majority. In 1880 the Liberal strength in the House was 375, but these figures were considerably reduced before the vote which finally overthrew the party.

The Cheese Situation.

The Montreal Produce Bulletin of November 13th, says:

"The past week has been pregnant with important developments in the cheese trade, the largest single transaction of the season comprising 15,000 boxes of the September and October makes of the well known Allan Grove Combination, having been consummated on private terms, although the price is generally understood to be at or in the close vicinity of 9c. Be the price, however, what it may, the effect of the sale has had a demoralizing influence upon the market, as several round lots of finest September and October have since been offered at 9c. without finding a buyer, and certain holders, rather than accept less than 9c. have engaged freight for Liverpool, and sent their goods forward on consignment. Considerable French cheese has been offered on this market during the week, and some 5,000 to 6,000 boxes of August, September and October goods have changed hands at very low prices, and still the factorymen are coming into the city with their shipments in order to sell and wind up the year's business—a most unsatisfactory one to the farmer. How the season will end for those, who have taken the property off the hands of makers will not be known yet, as it will take some months at least to complete that part of the story. In the present state of the market, the outlook is not as bright as could be wished, but there is plenty of time for a change between now and the commencement of another season, and whatever may be the ultimate issue, it would certainly be premature to write the position of holders as altogether hopeless and untenable. This is the time when factorymen who have not contracted, invariably force their goods for sale, and we have seen precisely the same demoralizing elements which now exist, at work at corresponding periods of former years, and yet an improvement has taken place after the holidays. At the moment, however, the market is undisguisedly weak and drooping, and its future will be governed chiefly by the nature of the demand between now and the new season. During the past fifteen years an unsatisfactory season's wind-up has been chronicled on small stocks, whilst a splendid finish has been experienced on a full make. The demand therefore will be the great arbitress of the future of the cheese market, but unfortunately of late years she has grown such a codemmate flirt owing to the circle of her admirers having increased, that less reliance can be placed on her affections for Cheese, now that she goes gadding around with those unprecedentedly cheap fellows Beef, Pork, Bacon, and Frozen Mutton from the Antipodes. Never mind, poor old neglected Cheese, she may cast an amorous glance at thee yet, and absorb the full pitch of ye on both sides of the Atlantic before next May comes round; and of course—she mayn't.

"What Say You to a Piece of Roast Beef and Mustard?"

Well, their is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. Should there in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. Sold by J. McKee. Trial bottles free. d146eodw47

The True American.

The great Pacific journey I have done,
ing.
I think I've traveled to the setting sun,
All round this continent I have been dodging.
Like Lancelot in quest of Holy Grail,
From western Beersheba to Yankee Dan
I've been a seeker, yet I sadly fail
To find the genuine type American.

Where is the object of my youthful wonder;
Who met me in the pages of "Sam Slick?"
Who opened every sentence with "By thunder!"
And whittled away on a bit of stick?
Because the crowd of friends around me thicken
I miss my chance to meet him seems to be.
Why, did he really show himself to Dickens,
To Dixon, Sala, Trollope, not to me?

No one accosts me with the words, "Wa'al, stranger!"
Greets me as "Festive cuss," or shouts "Old hoss!"
No grim six-shooter threatens me with danger
If I don't "quickly pass the butter, boss."
Round friendly boards no cocktail ever passes,
No brandy smash my morning hour besets;
And petticoats are worn by all the lasses,
And the plane don't wear pantalets.

The ladies, when you offer chicken salad,
Don't say, "I'm pretty crowded now, I guess;"
They don't sing Mrs. Barney William's ballads
Of "Bobbing Round," nor add "Sir-ee" to yes.
I, too, have sat, like every other fellow,
In many a railway, omnibus, street-car;
No girl has spiked me with a fierce umbrella,
And said, "You git, I mean to sit right thar."

Gone are the Yankees of my early reading!
Faded the Yankee-land of eager quest!
I meet with culture, courtesy, good breeding,
Art, letters, men and women of the best.
Oh! fellow Britons, all my hopes are undone,
Take counsel of a disappointed man,
Don't come out here, but stay at home in London,
And seek in books the true American.

—A Cockney Wail in Tid Bits.

Under the Spell of a Locomotive.

A large moose deer experienced a singular fate a few miles west of Mattawa, on the Canadian Pacific railway, Wednesday. While No. 38 mixed was coming east at a high rate of speed the driver thought that he observed through the morning mist a dark object a short distance ahead. Every effort was made to bring the train to a standstill, but without success, for the next moment the obstruction was struck and sent flying from the track. It proved to be nothing less than a large sized moose deer, which, becoming bewildered at the sight of the approaching train, was utterly powerless to move from the spot. Death must have resulted instantaneously, as its side was literally smashed to a jelly. The antlered monarch weighed 750 pounds, and is said to be one of the largest specimens of the moose killed in that locality for several years.—Correspondence Toronto Globe.

A Procession of Baby Carriages.

Something about the beginning of that experiment called life by way of contrast. Scene on the corner of Nineteenth street and Fifth avenue. There hove in sight rounding the corner the neatest and trimmest of sergeant-maids, dressed to a finish in the regulation costume, with her head surmounted by a cap designed in the realm of coquetry. She drew lazily along a little carriage of expensive style with a canopy of lace over the quarter-deck. Lying back was a child of 15 months, a little golden-haired, blue-eyed creature, pretty even to the limbs of that ideal beauty which the mother always sees and which gives her the reputation of being stone-blind. On the front of the canopy fluttered a knot of blue ribbons. The child was wrapped in a cream-colored stuff of some heavenly mixture which was trimmed with fur. It was a picture for Greuze. The maid hove to. Before I had time to divest myself of an exclamation another maid, copy of the first, drawing another carriage, also a copy, brought into view a second baby the picture of the other. A knot of scarlet ribbons fluttered from this carriage. They were twins—Girofle and Girofle—so like one to the other that they could be distinguished only by their colors. But the surprise was to come. A third carriage and attendant, debouching from the corner, drew up in line with the two; and behold a third maid and a third baby! The three were exact in resemblance. And to the last carriage was attached a knot of yellow ribbons. Girofle, Girofla, Girofli! "Triplets," as maid No. 1 announced. The three maidens then broke into a chorus. "Best and prettiest children in the world. Oh! and their father and mother so proud of them!" Anybody's father and mother might have been proud. Even I, nobody's father and mother, felt a glow of satisfaction at this result of creation, and became quite reconciled to the blindness of fortune by this one of her very ingenious devices in the way of a choice lot from her cornucopia, and the good taste displayed in selecting a wealthy nest for the triplets.—N. Y. Letter.

Thousands of Trunks.

From 5,000 to 7,000 trunks a day have been arriving in Philadelphia by cars and boats for several weeks past. These trunks have been a-summering. They have been pretty nearly everywhere on this broad earth's surface and have returned from the hills and the dales, from the seaside and the river-banks and from away over the sea. Lots of them have been to Paris and seen all that the name implies. A great many, now that the theatrical season is fairly opened, have come to town to look after the people who instruct, entertain and amuse sojourners here during the fall and winter. Many of these trunks are as instructive and amusing as their masters and mistresses, if you look at them rightly. They are of all shapes and sizes—big, little, square and oblong, fat and bulgy, tall and thin. Some of them are aged and infirm, others are youthful and vigorous, and like their masters and mistresses, they are of all degrees of condition and style.

"Now that's a nice lot of 'stuff' over there," said Dan Watson, the baggage master at the Pennsylvania depot. "Come over and I'll show it to you. Just look at it! Some pieces don't look as if they would bring twenty-five cents apiece at auction. Look at these scratched and shaky looking wooden posts. These are marble pillars, my boy, that will stand this evening on either side of a magnificent gate which opens into the lordly grounds of His Imperial Highness the Grand Duke. The stages, you know, and the lights and scenes will make all the difference."

Casting his eyes about the immense baggage room the reporter thought it looked as though a thousand English hunters had arrived with their usual quantities of "luggage" and were on their way to the plains to shoot buffalo.

Theatrical and other companies travel with 50 to 300 pieces of baggage. Mapleson's opera company had as high as 800 pieces. Some of them take their own scenery wagons with them, as such conveyance cannot be procured in every city. Upon inquiry at the hotels the clerks informed the reporter that since the centennial exhibition they have not been more crowded than they now are. They have little room for any more trunks with their owners.—Philadelphia Times.

The world is chock full of incongruities. There is, for instance, the big bearded man with a voice like the Bull of Bashan. He comes before the audience and sings "I Fear No Foe" in bravura style, and in a way that drops bits of plaster from the ceiling. And in two hours thereafter that man will be going up-stairs in his stocking feet lest he wake a 110-pound wife. And next morning he gets up meekly and kindles three fires.—Pittsburg Telegraph.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Mind Reading.

The exhibition of mind reading by Mr. John Miller will take place in the Opera House to-morrow night. Don't miss it.

To-morrow Night.

The entertainment in the Opera House on Friday night should draw a large attendance. Tickets only 25 and 35 cents. Plan of reserved seats at A. L. Davis & Co's.

Recreation on Rollers.

One of the most healthful of exercises is Roller Skating, and parents may feel confident that at the Parlour Rink their children will meet every attention while indulging in the favorite pastime. The Parlour Rink is the place for the children.

Rascally Ryan.

Chief Johnston has received a post card from Chief Draper, of Toronto, asking him to keep a look out for Wm. Ryan, an individual who, some time ago, opened out an office in Toronto and succeeded in victimizing one of the banks for some $4,000 by means of a forged cheque deposited with them. Ryan won't come to Peterborough, though, Chief Johnston and the brigade are too great a terror to evil doers, in fact, in the light of recent exploits of Toronto cops and detectives, he would be safer in Toronto than any where else.

Mattie Vickers.

The Mattie Vickers Company opened business here last night to a good house, and presented the play "Jacquine." The company is a good one, and the play sparkling and interesting from beginning to end. Miss Vickers is a sparkling and vivacious artiste, and the play is one calculated to show her talents to the best advantage. The character impersonation of Mr. Chas. S. Roger, and Thomas J. Ryan's songs and dances, are also noticeable features of an entertainment, which is well deserving of public patronage. If you want to enjoy an evening of unalloyed amusement don't fail to attend at the Opera House this evening.

Repeat the Dose.

We understand that the "at home" given by the Ladies' Aid Society of George street Methodist Church was so enjoyable that they have been requested to repeat it at an early date. They have therefore decided to hold another on New Year's night. Keep the date in mind and make no other engagement.

The Midnight Marauder.

On Tuesday night, shortly after retiring, Mr. Paul Morgan, of the Morgan House, was disturbed by hearing some one attempting to enter the house by one of the lower windows. The noise continuing he threw on his clothes and descended, and found a man quite unknown to him prowling about the lower part of the house. Mr. Morgan did not yell police, or go for the intruder in the orthodox way, with the poker, but just took him by the ear and led him to the door, out of which he politely showed him the way. The Morgan House does not want guests who come in by the window, and future intruders will not meet with so quiet a reception.

A Railroader's Wedding.

Mr. Fred. Russell, of the G. T. R., was married yesterday evening to Miss Annie McNeily, by Rev. I. Tovell. Fred. is one of the most popular young conductors on the Midland division, and when he and his bride started on their bridal tour this morning, the boys were out in great force to give them a send-off. When the train pulled out it did so amid the cheers of a crowd of railroaders and the deafening roar of a line of torpedoes they had placed along the track to lend eclat to the departure of the newly married knight of the punch. We are happy to let our congratulations to Fred. and his bride follow him with the smoke of the torpedoes.

Police Court.

Robert McCally was charged with assaulting Henry Netherly with a knife, in the Township of Smith. The prisoner elected to be tried by a jury. The complainant did not answer on being called and a remand was made till to-morrow morning, the prisoner being allowed out on bail.

Joseph Crevier and Richard Phelan were again brought up on the charge of keeping five billiard tables without being duly licensed to do so. William Wood, by whom the information was laid, testified that on Monday evening he visited the billiard room run by the defendants, and saw games played and money received therefor. On cross-examination by Mr. Weller, who appeared with Mr. C. Sawers for the defence, the witness admitted that in swearing that Crevier & Phelan had no license he was not swearing of his own knowledge, but had been told so by Mr. Bradburn, in whose name the license was issued. Mr. McDonald, the town clerk, was also examined, and stated that the license for the billiard room in question had been made out in the name of Mr. Bradburn, and that there had been deposited with him in payment for the same a cheque, made by that gentleman in favour of Crevier and Phelan and endorsed by them. He had no doubt that the license was intended to cover the billiard room referred to in the information. He believed that it had been constantly running since March last, and knew of no action having been taken by the town authorities to suppress it. He would not have laid an information against it, even had he been told to do so. Mr. Edmonson, who conducted the prosecution, argued that the license being made out in Mr. Bradburn's name, he could use it where he pleased and defendants had no right to conduct the billiard room without a license, or permission under Mr. Bradburn's license. The magistrate dismissed the case with costs.

If you want a religious book go to Sailsbury's.

Disappeared.

Mr. William Sloane, of Ops township, left Lindsay on Saturday morning for his home, since which time he has mysteriously disappeared. Foul play is suspected by some of his friends, as he had a considerable sum of money on him before leaving Lindsay.

What They are Saying.

Now! wasn't I right in refusing to lay that information?—License Inspector Beavis.

Didn't I give informer Wood a great dressing down.—C. A. Weller.

But you couldn't bulldoze me any.—Mac.

Come along as usual to-night, boys.—Crevier & Phelan.

A Rare Chance.

Messrs. W. W. Johnston & Co. contemplating a change in their business, will, on Monday, 23rd November and for one month from that date, offer the whole of the large and well selected stock of dry goods at greatly reduced prices. Black silk worth $1.25 at 75c., black silk worth $1.40 at $1, black and colored cashmeres at a reduction of 25 per cent. on value. Great reductions in colored silks and other dress goods, linen damasks, cotton, etc. This sale will afford an opportunity such as seldom offers for securing new and seasonable goods at an immense reduction on current prices. The house furnishing department is well stocked in Canadian and imported goods. The public are requested to call and see stock and examine prices for themselves.

Alleged Wholesale Poisoning.

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Annie Lyons, a prepossessing servant, was arrested to-day on a charge of attempted wholesale poisoning of the family and servants of Charles W. Parker, her employer. She is charged with having placed in a flour barrel a quantity of arsenic sufficient to kill ten persons. The family were all made very ill, but are in a fair way to recover. Annie was admitted to bail in $10,000.

He Skedaddled.

The Postmaster at Aylmer Wouldn't Face the Music.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 18.—The sensation that has been exciting Aylmer since Monday discloses the fact that for some time past the postmaster, William Campbell, had been in arrears in his accounts with the postoffice department. These arrears were made up time after time by the postmaster. Early last week Postoffice Inspector R. W. Barker of this city, had several of the irregularities before referred to brought to his notice. He proceeded to Aylmer, confronted the postmaster with the charge, secured restitution and suspended the money order and savings bank business there. On Monday morning, on his return to Aylmer to put the business into operation under the care of a trustworthy person it was found that Campbell had skedaddled. The office is now in charge of F. W. Matthews, of the postoffice inspector's office here, and he will attend to matters pending the appointment of a new postmaster.

The Moonlighters' Outrage.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—The police reports of the Moonlighter outrage at Malahaffe last Friday night state that the ruffian Sullivan, whom Mr. Curtis was reported to have shot dead just before he received his own death wound, is not dead. They say Sullivan was badly wounded in the shoulder, and that he shammed death in order to get carried away from the house. As soon as his comrades bore his supposed corpse out doors Sullivan spoke to them and was taken to a place of concealment in a cave. Here he was attended by a doctor, who was forced by the threats of a squad of Moonlighters to submit to being blindfolded while going to and from the cave. The police have questioned this doctor, who admits having dressed a gunshot wound in the shoulder of a man he did not know. He says he did this from motives of common humanity, but he asked no questions for fear of his life, and he has no idea of the location of the cave. The police, however have other clues, and believe they will soon ferret out the wounded bandit.

PETERBORO', - PETERBORO',

A few short months ago who would have thought that Hunter Street would be the business street of Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so, but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors, and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and will guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

MIKADO TEA.

MIKADO is the name of the Plantation owned by the MIKADO TRADING COMPANY.

The Plantation formerly belonged to the Mikado, or King of Japan, and was cultivated for the exclusive use of the Royal household.

The Plantation was bought from the King on condition that sufficient Tea should be supplied to the Royal Family, as the King would use no other.

It is an acknowledged fact, that the Teas grown on this Plantation are, for Purity, Strength and Flavor, the finest in the world.

It is put up in Half and One Pound packages, and is sold at the exceeding low price of 45 cents per pound.

The Balkan Embroglio.

Victorious Bulgarians.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The News' Sofia despatch confirms the report of a Bulgarian victory. The Servians lost 10 guns and 356 horses. It is estimated that 3,000 Servians were killed or wounded. The Bulgarians on Tuesday captured 200 Servian cavalry. The Bulgarians have again repulsed attacks on the Dragoman Pass.

Fall of Widden.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Some 30,000 Servians were engaged in to-day's fighting at Slivnitza. Queen Natalie received a telegram announcing the fall of Widden, on the Servo-Bulgarian frontier. All troops in the Widden garrison have been made prisoners.

Turkey and Servia Agree.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Turkey and Servia have agreed to arrange conditions of peace after the capture of Sofia. Turkey prefers a strong Servia to a strong Bulgaria, but also desires to save Prince Alexander's position as much as possible. Servia likewise does not wish to personally humiliate Prince Alexander.

Bulgarians Friendly.

The Servian administration has been arranged for all the occupied districts in Bulgaria. The inhabitants of the places thus far occupied display a friendly spirit toward the Servians; 400 prisoners have arrived at Belgrade from the front.

Greece will Fight.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Daily Telegraph says it is almost certain that Greece will go to war. It is reported that the Turkish troops will occupy Roumelia to-morrow.

The Tables Turned.

SOFIA, Nov. 19.—A telegram states that the Bulgarian troops have recaptured Bresnik and dispersed the Servians. No fears are entertained at present for the safety of Sofia.

Roumania Ready.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The report that Bulgarians have recaptured Bresnik appears to be doubtful. The Roumania government is massing troops on the Bessarabian frontier in view of the possibility of Austria requiring assistance against Russia. The latest advice from Tzaribrod says that the united Servian divisions are marching across an intersection of Sofia.

The Servians' Turn This Time.

BELGRADE, Nov. 19.—A despatch from Tzaribrod says two Bulgarian battalions were defeated to-day in an engagement with Servians on the road between Bresnik and Pernik. The Bulgarians lost 200 men killed and wounded. The Servians captured sixty prisoners and a quantity of ammunition and provisions.

Bulgarians Encouraged.

VIENNA, Nov. 19—Bulgaria is denuding the Turkish frontier of troops and sending all her available forces to the front to combat the Servians. The public are allowed to go to the depots en route to see their relatives and friends. Many of the villagers tramp long distances and wait at the depots several hours, and in some instances whole days and nights to see their friends and give them flowers and presents. Prince Alexander's success before Glivnitza has revived the courage of those going to the front, and they undergo hardships with a reasonable fortitude. In many cases they march long distances in bad weather, and at night camp in open spaces where they are shelterless, not having even ordinary tents to protect them.

Norwood.

On Wednesday evening the following officers were duly installed for Court Rob Roy, No. 114, C. O. F., for the ensuing term:—

Bro. James Calder	C.R.
" J. F. Perkins	V.C.R.
" Ed. Willoughby	R.S.
" Enoch Cronk	F.S.
" W. H. Breathen	T.
" John Herring	C.
" Wm Bailey	S.W.
" Harry Davis	J.W.
" Wm. Foster	S.B.
" Geo. Vennetta	J.B.
" James Kerr	P.C.R.
" G. A. Potthrew	Court Physician.

In the absence of Bro. H. W. Watson, D. D.H.C.R., of Peterborough, Bro. James Kerr, P.C.R., assisted by the members of the Court, officiated. After the installation ceremony the officers for the past term gave their reports, which were well received. Court Rob Roy is progressing favorably. Two more candidates for initiation for the next night of meeting.—Register.

A Very Remarkable Bedstead.

A Birmingham manufactory has lately made a glass bedstead, intended for the use of an Indian nabob. The frame of the bedstead, the legs, the post supporting the canopy, all consist of strong, richly cut red and white glass, the single parts being most beautifully designed without the aid of any metal, Ruby-red velvet curtains fall from the canopy holder; they are ornamented with spun glass tassels and sprays. The curtains hang from a crown made of red and white glass stars. The mattress, pillows and quilt of this magnificent bed are covered with white silk and red velvet.

Can't Compete With Britain.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—The official statistics of the colonial commerce of Germany are very discouraging. The whole colonial trade is only one-half of one per cent. of the total trade of Germany. The principal exports are brandy and gunpowder. The exports to the South Seas are steadily decreasing.

Ottawa.

NOVEMBER 19.—After waiting three months for his pay, the caterer for the banquet tendered by the citizens of Ottawa to the returned volunteers, has had writs issued against the members of the committee to compel payment of the amount still due.

McHugh, Goodman, Brock, Black, Ryan, Nolan, Burns and Ralph, all convicted of outrage at the recent assizes and sentenced to imprisonment for life, were taken to Kingston penitentiary this morning in charge of Deputy Sheriff Sherwood and a posse of constables. Their departure was kept a secret to avoid a scene.

Bobcaygeon.

There was a heavy fall of snow, on Saturday, which remained until Wednesday morning, when rain set in, and removed it.

The advisability has been suggested of reorganizing the Fire Company, and placing the fire appliances in good order.

The winter's freight is being brought down in large quantities. Nearly three tons of oil cake arrived on Tuesday, for the Big Island Stock Farm.

A large force of men are employed on the canal, and the work is being pushed. The coffer dam shuts off the water most effectively, and the breastwork is being faced. The canal is being re-floored, and the foreman, Mr. Wm. Kennedy, is making a job that will stop considerable leakage.—Independent.

Omemee.

Last evening a large number of the citizens of this town and locality met in a friendly reunion upon non-political grounds in the hall adjoining the Windsor house, where an excellent supper was laid by the proprietor, John Young. In the disposal of the usual toasts, suitable addresses were delivered by T. Stephenson, Dr. Norris, J. McNeely, Capt. Evans, E. Evans, and others. Mr. Sam Hughes, proprietor of the Lindsay Warder, was present as a guest of the meeting, and upon rising was most enthusiastically received. He dwelt at some length upon affairs in the Northwest, and in the course of his remarks alluded to the recent articles appearing in his paper. His statement that his criticisms have been and shall be made irrespective of creed or party, were approvingly applauded. Mr. Hughes, as adjutant and captain of the volunteer corps, gave some interesting facts of the recent campaign and military affairs in general.

Toronto Topics.

NOVEMBER 19. A new case of small-pox is reported this morning, but no symptom of an epidemic.

The activity of the French Colonization Society in Montreal, in taking possession of the Temiscaming district, and the townships along the Canadian Pacific Railway, is stimulating people here into similar activity. Several meetings have been held, and an organization to promote a movement from Ontario is on foot.

The inquiry of Col. Gordon and Captain Harbottle into the causes of the "Algoma" disaster will be commenced at once at Owen Sound. Captain Moore is coming down by the "Athabasca" on her last trip.

The Protestants and Home Rule.

CORK, Nov. 19.—There is a growing movement among the young Protestants here in favor of Home Rule. At a crowded meeting yesterday a manifesto was adopted, which deprecates the decision of the Loyalists to contest every Parnellite district on the ground that such a course will intensify the present irritation in Ireland. The manifesto also urges reform in the land laws, in order enable farmers and laborers to derive benefit therefrom and to develop the resources of the country.

Dominion Doings.

No hostile demonstrations was made at St. Boniface, Man., as a result of the hanging of Riel.

It is expected that Mayor McDougall of Ottawa will be re elected at the coming civic elections.

Up to Nov. 13 there had been 2816 deaths from smallpox in Montreal, of which 2568 were of French Canadians, 150 other Catholics and 98 Protestants.

Thos. Armson of Barrie, who had just landed from a trip to England, dropped dead at Hoboken, N.J., a day or two ago. His remains have arrived at Barrie.

The town of Niagara threatens to secede from Lincoln if in consequence of the adoption of the Scott Act in the county the measure is enforced in the town.

Some laborers employed in digging a ditch in South Colchester last week found what doctors in the neighborohood say is a mastodon's tooth. It weighs six and a-half pounds.

An infernal machine was recently found under the varandah of the residence of Mr. J. G. Strong, vice-president of the Simcoe Scott Act association. Detectives are trying to find out who put it there.

Wm. McNeil, aged 30, arrived at Point Levis for the purpose of taking the Allan steamer to Europe. Having to wait two or three hours he began to drink, and plied himself so rapidly that when he went to board the steamer he staggered off the dock and was drowned.

Le Manitoba, of St. Boniface, alludes to the trial and sentence of death passed at Battleford recently upon two Indians charged with killing an Indian woman at Frog Lake. This woman, it appears, was what the Indians call a Wehtigo, that is one possessed of cannibal desires, the killing of one of whom the Indians considers necessary and laudable act. Le Manitoba says that this desire for human flesh is a disease which sometimes comes upon Indians, and which is attributed to their being possessed of a devil, and thinks the Indians should not have been sentenced to death for killing such a one.

The War in Burmah.

Some Hard Fighting Probable, But the Result not Doubtful.

The capture of the Minhla forts was effected after three hours fighting, in which the Burmese acquitted themselves much more creditably than had been anticipated. Their antiquated weapons of defence, however, were wholly inadequate to resist the twenty-pounders of the British, handled with precision, and the coolness of experience. The hardest fighting the English will have to do will probably be on the way to Mandalay whither they are now marching. The fanaticism of the Burmese may be relied upon to defend the capital to the utmost, but the result will not be doubtful.

Approaching Mandalay.

RANGOON, Nov. 19.—Gen. Prendergast, commanding the British expedition, has strongly garrisoned the town of Minhla, which he carried from the Burmese. He expects to reach Mandalay on Tuesday next.

Prince Alexander Wounded.

VIENNA, Nov. 19.—From the latest information received from Bulgarian sources it is gathered that the force of Bulgarian militia which has penetrated the Servian territory has captured one hundred and fifty prisoners. It is also stated that the Servians are retreating from several of their advanced positions in Bulgaria. The Bulgarians are said to have successfully resisted several Servian attacks in the vicinity of Dragoman. The New Free Press has a report that Prince Alexander has been wounded.

The Great Eastern.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—A new use has been devised for the Great Eastern, which has proved a white elephant to so many of her successive owners. It is proposed to anchor her in mid-Atlantic, as a kind of half-way house for crafts crossing the ocean, and have her stored with such supplies as passing ships might require. She would also be used as a telegraph station, where captains could communicate with their owners and passengers receive the latest news. The question at present is whether it is possible to anchor securely in mid-ocean. If this can be done the other details of the proposed arrangement could be carried out on board the floating leviathan with exceptional facilities.

A Storm Raging.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—A severe storm has been raging on this shore of Lake Michigan since last night. The sea is running very high. While trying to make this port three schooners went ashore on the breakwater. All were taken off, but in a badly damaged condition.

Hog Cholera.

WABASH, Ind., Nov. 19.—Hog cholera has broken out in Liberty township, where large droves are being fatted for the market. Two hundred have died and many are sick.

Capt. Moore of the "Algoma."

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—It is reported that Capt. Moore, of the lost steamer "Algoma," is now lying at the point of death at Port Arthur from the effects of the harships he endured at the time of the disaster.

Mr. Bright on Great Reforms.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Mr. John Bright, speaking at Birmingham, last night, said he thought the days of great and powerful estates were passing away. He favored a wide distribution of the land, the abolition of the game laws and more equal taxation.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1885.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 19.]

Charles Sangster.

"Poetry is meat, drink, clothes, washing and lodging, and I know it."
Swift.

Sangster issued his first volume in 1856. We have already said it contained many sterling poems and the following quotations show what the reviewers thought of the work. Thomas McQueen, himself no ordinary versifier, after a perusal of "The St. Lawrence and the Saguenay," wrote thus of the author:—"His whole soul seems steeped in love and poesy, and finds utterance in expressions generally eloquent, bold and musical. He is thoroughly sentimental, teeming with ideas of the sublime and beautiful, and his poetry bears evident marks of enthusiastic poetical conception. Mr. Sangster is a poet of no mean order, and his volume is by far the most respectable contribution of poetry that has yet been made to the infant literature of Canada."

Professor Daniel Wilson, now the honored head of Toronto University, said of the work:—"It is a pleasant and tasteful depiction of the scenes and associations of our noble river, written in the same stanza as Childe Harold, and with some echo of its mode of thought, though lacking the force and pathos of its passionate utterances."

The London National Magazine, on reviewing Sangster's book, thus expressed its opinion:—"Well may Canadians be proud of such contributions to their infant literature, well may they be forward to recognise his lively imagination, his bold, masterly style, and the fullness of his imagery. There is much of the spirit of Wordsworth in this writer, only the tone is religious instead of being philosophical. In some sort and according to his degree, Sangster may be regarded as the Wordsworth of Canada."

We have, we think, sufficiently whetted the appetites of our readers, however, and must now endeavor to appease them by supplying specimens from Sangster's works.

In the volume entitled, "The St. Lawrence and the Saguenay," there are many poems beautifully descriptive of Canadian scenes, and showing the patient observation of the poet. We do not know that the beauties of his "Rideau Lake" have ever been pointed out, and therefore select one or two of its verses:—

A warm light permeates the sky,
A silvery mist is lingering nigh,
And floating up the trees near by.

A slumberous silence fills the air
Silence upon the lake, and where
The pines drop pearls from out their hair.

The birdlings have no voice to sing,
There's not a bird upon the wing,
Nature, herself, is slumbering.

Morning half opes her drowsy lid,
Her blue eyes 'neath the lashes hid,
The dawn's first kiss have gently chid.

And goddess-like, her couch she leaves,
Her golden hair about her weaves—
A Ruth among her autumn sheaves!

His "Poet's Love" would be a very fine poem had one never read Tennyson's "Locksley Hall," but it is evident Sangster wrote it while under the spell of the poet-laureate's production, and an imitation of this kind is never a success. The song entitled "Whip-Poor-Will," and these under the names of "A Northern Rune," "Colin," "A Twilight Hymn," "A Plea for the Woods," and "The wreck," are all worthy of careful study, and show Sangster's powers to the full. Sangster's description of the spring is exceedingly good. It is rather long for our columns, but we cannot forbear quoting one or two of its ringing lines:

The spring is in the air,
I feel her spirit-kiss upon my lips,
I lay my forehead bare,
And the blood rushes to my finger-tips,
And back through the full veins of my glad heart

The ere while aged hills,
With youth reanimate, are fresh and green,
From their old lips the rills
Leap forth, like crystal images serene,
Pearl thoughts of wisdom bounding to their goal

Over the meadows pass
The bronzed butterflies and the wild bees,
Searching in the young grass
For the fresh daisies; and the lilac trees
Surfeit the odorous air with breathings sweet.

The music of the bells
Tinkling among the early shepherd flocks,
In silvery pantings, swells
Along the Orient ere the saffron locks
Of the proud sun have yellowed o'er the sea:

Scarcely a breath of air
Quickens the thrilling silence of the vale:
But the warm spring is there,
A thousand choirs her rosy presence hail,
Stirring the heart-chords all to minstrelsy—

The many-voiced hills
Take up the peal, bearing it along
Until the wild chant fills
The vocal wilderness with solemn song:
"Shout mighty forests! for to-day is born

The rosy-featured spring!
Shout you deep-chested paeans, till the bass,
Upon the lightning wing,
Of startled echo, fills the listening space
With psalmy welcome to our light-robed queen:

Her breath is in the air,
It floats upon the distant mountain peak,
The stealing sapphyre near
Her loving kiss sets to each human cheek
And up her reigns blandly o'er the wide demesne."

Sangster's second volume, "Hesperus and Other Poems," published in 1860, was a decided improvement on his first attempt. Bayard Taylor, Jean Ingelow, and Dr. Oliver W. Holmes spoke most highly of the work. The last named said: "His verse adds new interest to the woods and streams, amidst which he sings and embellishes the charms of the maidens he celebrates." Miss Ingelow admired some of his poems very much. She calls him a true poet, and says his verses are all the more pleasant to read because he is never careless and never affected. The New York Albion thus criticised the book:—"Sangster writes as though he had stepped up 'Parnassus' Hill,' unconscious, and perhaps uncaring, whether those around him sanction the move or rebuke him for presumption. We mean that he seems to live and breathe mainly in a spiritual atmosphere; sometimes to be yearning for communion with things not of the earth,—earthly, but good and comely and of high repute: and to hold converse with fantastic beings of his own imagining, as though they were his chosen and most sympathetic associates." From this volume we select as a specimen of Sangster's work:—

THE STARS.

The stars are heaven's alphabet,
Right royally they teach
God's glory and omnipotence
In wondrous lowly speech.
All eloquent with music, as
The tremblings of a lyre,
To him that hath an ear to hear,
They speak in words of fire.

Not to learned sages only
Their whisperings come down;
The monarch is not glorified
Because he wears a crown.
The humblest soldier in the camp
Can win the smile of Mars,
And 'tis the lowliest spirit holds
Communion with the stars.

Thoughts too refined for utterance,
Ethereal as the air,
Crowd through the brain's dim labyrinths,
And leave their impress there;
As far along the gleaming void
Man's searching glances roll,
Wonder usurps the throne of speech
But vivifies the soul.

O heaven-cradled mysteries,
What sacred paths we've trod—
Bright jewelled scintillations from
The chariot wheels of God!
When in the spirit He rode forth,
With vast creative aim,
These were His footprints left behind,
To magnify His name!

Scattered through Sangster's volumes we find a great variety of sonnets, all carefully written and instinct with poetic fire. Here is one, for instance, on

DESPONDENCY.

"There is a sadness o'er my spirit stealing,
A flash of fire up-darting to my brain,
Sowing the seeds—and still the seeds concealing—
That are to ripen into future pain.
Like the germs of madness in the springing,
Slowly, and certain as the serpent's bound
And my poor hopes, like dying tendrils clinging
To the green oak, tend surely to the ground;
And Reason's grasp grows feebler day by day,
As the slow poison up my nerves is creeping,
Ever and anon thro' my crushed heart leaping,
Like a swift panther darting on its prey;
And the bright taper Hope once fed within,
Hath waned and perished in the fruitful din."

As showing the religious tone which permeates his poetry, we quote in conclusion a sonnet written in the Orillia woods:—

"Oh, holy Sabbath morn! thrice blessed day
Of solemn rest, true peace, and earnest prayer,
How many hearts that never knelt to pray
Are glad to breathe thy soul-sustaining air.
I sat within the quiet woods, and hear
The village church-bells' soft inviting sound,
And to the confines of the loftiest sphere
Imagination wings its airy round;
A myriad spirits have assembled there,
Whose prayers on earth a sweet acceptance found.
I go to worship in Thy House, O God!
With her, Thy young creation bright and fair;
Help us to do Thy will and not despair,
Though both our hearts should bend beneath
Thy chastening rod."

Tilley's Blunders.

The Monetary Times, a journal that has hitherto supported the Government, says:—"Political economy is a science which requires many years of close study thoroughly to master. National or political considerations frequently over-ride the economical, and the statesman, though he were the best of economists, may see reasons for modifying economical principles in their practical application. But whoever undertakes to administer the financial affairs of a country ought at least to understand these principles. It was often painfully evident that our late Finance Minister had not made a conquest of this requisite knowledge. But, for the light which he possessed, he set out fairly well. * * * Before long, he consented to lay on duties not for revenue, but for the avowed purpose of protection; that is for giving bounties to special classes at the expense of the great body of consumers. And when he once entered on this course, his guiding star was the interest, supposed if not always real, of certain manufacturers. To every one who asked he was willing to give the protection demanded, or as much as he believed would set the applicant firmly on his feet. The only condition he enacted was that the manufacture to be favored should be a new one, which had not a previous existence in the country. In the way, by checking imports, he sometimes bargained for a loss of revenue. His remedy was to lay on additional duties at some point where the revenue limit of taxation was believed not to have been reached. While he was pursuing this course, Parliament never put the least check upon him; it endorsed all his proposals, and even the body of tax-payers rather seemed to like the additional burthens. The taxes being indirect, they did not perceive the true point of the pressure; and they had a confused but fatal idea that protections for its own sake was capable of adding to the national wealth. The heavy expenditure on public works under construction created a necessity both for loans to carry them on and for additional revenue to meet the increasing ordinary expenditure. The policy of profuse expenditure and the policy of high taxes fitted well into one another; they were, in fact, the two necessary parts of one whole. But this policy cannot go on indefinitely; it must come to a stand, and that speedily. On Sir Leonard Tilley's successor will devolve the duty of putting on the brakes; and if Sir L. had continued in the office of Minister of Finance it must have fallen on himself."

Madoc.

CHILD BURNED ALIVE.

A correspondent of the Belleville Ontario records a terrible accident which happened two miles from Madoc in Mr. Love's house, a three year old child of his being cremated during the absence of its parents. The mother was out doors milking, the child being left alone in the house. Mrs. Love heard the little one screaming, when she hurried to the house only to find her child roasted alive. The clothes were completely burned off and the flesh was burned to a crisp. The mother was almost distracted with grief when the horrible spectacle of her infant child lying dead on the floor met her eyes. The little one must have been playing about the stove when its clothing caught fire and consumed it before assistance arrived.

Eclipsed by a Monkey.

Perhaps the only time when Toombs permitted any speaker to have the conclusion on him was when he had a discussion with Hon. James Gardner, editor of the Augusta Constitutionalist. Before Toombs made the agreement for Gardner to conclude, he espied an organ-grinder and his monkey near by. He bargained with him to commence playing as soon as he (Toombs) got through. Gardner arose to reply and the organ-grinder began. The crowd commenced to gather around him. The monkey got away and ran up a tree. The Italian put down his organ and tried to shake the monkey out. The monkey would grab the tree and shake it, too. This scene completely attracted the audience and provoked the utmost hilarity. Gardner left the platform in disgust as being eclipsed by a monkey.—Atlanta Constitution.

An American Millionaire

"Yes, sir," said the American millionnaire, as he consulted the bill of fare in a Parisian cafe, "I delight in travel. When I was a boy working for $2 a week, I used to think what a grand thing it would be if I had money and could then that if ever I became rich I would see the noted places of the earth. Well, I made money, and here I am at Paree on my tour of observation. When an American citizen, sir, gets the travel fever on him his country, big as it is, is too small to hold him."

"Yees, your country ees a big country," said his French acquaintance who sat opposite to him.

"Big country," exclaimed the American, striking the table with his hand. "It is the biggest country in the world."

"I've been there," said the Frenchman; "it is full of wonderful sights, Niagara, for instance."

"Never saw it," said the American; "never had time to visit it."

"An ze Yosemite valley," continued the Frenchman.

"Never had a chance to go there," said the American.

"And ze Yellowstone Park."

"Heard lots about it, but never could find time to visit it."

"And ze Mammoth Cave, of Kentucky."

"Blamed if I ever thought of visiting that."

"Ze Palisades of ze Hudson—"

"Whew! did intend to see them, but always had so much to look after, you know, and—"

"And the scenery, magnifique at ze White Mountains—"

"Never could find time to take a trip up there, by gosh."

"Of course you have seen ze Thousand Islands, and ze rapids of ze St. Lawrence, Lake George, Lake Champlain and all ze beautiful places?"

"Never had time to visit any of those places. Always had too much business on hand."

"Why come to see ze tame scenery of Europe when you haven't seen ze grand scenery and ze wonders of your own country?"

"Because I'm a dinged fool. "I'll go right home on the next boat. A man who hasn't been any further east than Swampscott, nor any further west than North Adams, in his own country, has no business in Europe.—Somerville Journal

The Butterflies.

Look at the butterflies! Dozens and scores may they float on their gossamer wings!
Over the poppies and over the grass,
Light as the down of a thistle they pass.

Where are they going, and why are they here
In the heat of the day and the noon of the year?
They flutter awhile in the brightness, and then
They are gone from our sight and they come not again.

And we—we are wearied with fever and frost,
Whatever we do, it must be at a cost;
We hear, as we journey, the dropping of tears;
We bear on our foreheads the stamp of the years.

But look at the butterflies—beautiful things—
Before us and over us flashing their wings!
It may be the Maker who fashioned them thus,
Has sent the gay creatures on errands to us.

Perhaps we go slowly, when we should be swift
To follow the scent of the roses, that drift
Their pink snow about us; more oft we might play,
And yet finish our tasks by the end of the day.

Oh, blest are the eyes that are clear to behold
The wonderful glow of the butterflies' gold,
With leisure to follow their flight as they pass
So gracefully, silent, over the grass!

—Miss M. H. Gates, in St. Nicholas for June.

Western Cyclones.

Up the Platte River in Nebraska, as you may have heard, it blows. And a "blow" in Nebraska is different from what it is in Illinois. The ordinary summer breeze of Nebraska would make an Illinoisan hunt his cyclone cellar, and what a Nebraskan calls a blow is a widely different sort of arrangement. Cyclones are not common in the great treeless State this year. We were out there a few days since, and learned that they did not average more than three a week. Occasionally they have two in one day, but not often. The Platte River has two channels. When the wind is in the south it fills one, when in the north the other. We are credibly informed by an old native—one who came through with the 'forty-niners—that the Platte sometimes overflows its banks, and green people think it has been raining above, when it is simply the wind blowing up stream; and, again, it goes almost entirely dry when the wind is down stream. All the stories of fish showers are true, and they are all blown out of the Platte. People go around in the evening regularly looking to see whether the cables that hold the houses to the ground are all secure, and it is nothing for them to sleep for hours with the house two or three feet above the ground. They have a perfect contempt in that country for cyclone caves or cellars, and people who have become accustomed to the wind say they wouldn't give a snap for a breeze that couldn't blow away a hole in the ground.—Peoria Transcript.

An Anecdote of Beau Brummell.

"Your dinner, sir! Why here is the bill for that, which you see, with the wines, amount to three pounds ten, and this you have handed me is only a shilling!"

"Yes, I see it's only a shilling," said Beau, looking curiously at the coin which the landlord held up to him between his thumb and finger, "but I can't help that. You told me I could have a dinner for my money, and I assure you, on the honor of a gentleman, that little coin is all the money I possess. By some unaccountable accident it happens to be only a shilling; I wish, for your sake, it was something else."

A puzzled, angry look came over the face of the landlord for a moment and then gave place to a broad grin.

"Well! I suppose this might be called a joke, eh! One of the very good, if not very funny sort. Your name is—"

"Brummell, sir; Beau Brummell, at your service."

"I thought so. Well, Mr. Brummell, I assure you that, while appreciating the joke, I am not so selfish as to want to monopolize the whole benefit of it. I'll tell you what I'll do," and, with a chuckle, he took Beau's arm, led him to the door and pointed across the way to the house of his rival.

"Do you see that place on the corner there?"

"Quite plainly," said Beau.

"Well, I will give you a receipt in full for the dinner you have had and say no more about it, provided you will go to-morrow and play the proprietor of that house the same trick."

Beau paused a moment, as it in thought, then, drawing out his card-case and handing one to the host, said:

"You're a good fellow, and I should like to oblige you. There is my card. If you will furnish me with a list of proper establishments I will tend to them in their proper order; but with this fellow across the way I might have some difficulty. You see I was there yesterday and he sent me here!"—The Caterer.

Luscious, but Difficult to Eat Gracefully.

One of the most delicious products of the tropics is the mango, the eating of which, however, is apt at first to embarrass and perplex a stranger to no small degree. In shape the mango resembles a pear with the stem at the wrong end, flattened, however, like a bean, and with the small end turned over to one side, something like the figures common on cashmere shawls. One large variety is entirely yellow, and a smaller kind is yellow, with rich red cheeks, offering tempting hues for a still-life painter. Inside is a very large seed, which forms a considerable impediment to the enjoyment of the inexperienced, for the pulp is joined to this in a stringy way, and it is difficult to handle the slippery thing. A thoroughly ripe mango has a kind of combination of muskmelon and baked custard aspect and texture to its deep yellow pulp, and its rich flavor is indescribable, except that, when eaten for the first time, it seems to have a slight trace of turpentine, which resemblance, however, disappears on acquaintance. The large yellow variety seemed to me to have a very slight and delicate flavor of peanut candy. The person who eats a mango for the first time generally covers himself with confusion and his face with mango pulp and juice, which is very sticky and yellow, so that he looks as if somebody had been feeding him with soft-boiled eggs in the dark. It will not do to eat a mango as one would an ordinary fruit, the correct way being to use a mango fork, which has but one tine, and therefore is really not a fork at all, but a spit. With this the fruit is impaled at one end and the point thrust firmly in the seed, which may thus be stripped of its last pulp without soiling the fingers.—City of Mexico Correspondent Boston Herald.

He Stopped the Car.

The car was going down French's hill, and there were a few jovial passengers aboard. At Prospect street a lady got out. A young man, who, with a few of his friends, were having a bit of quiet fun and had evidently enjoyed themselves, said: "I'll bet cigars for the crowd that I'll stop the car without ringing the bell, speaking to the driver or conductor or asking anyone to stop it."

"Oh, you'll go outside and slap hold of the brake. You're too smart, you are," remarked one of his companions, smilingly. "You'll cut yourself if you don't mind."

"No, siree, I'll do no such thing. I'll neither touch the brake nor ask anyone to touch it for me, and I won't ask anybody to stop the car."

The bet was taken.

Up jumped the car-stopper, and seizing one of the straps, tugged at it as hard as he could.

The conductor saw him and concluded that the man was a greenhorn who wanted to get out and was yanking at the wrong tag. He stopped the car and threw open the door.

The man had sat down again.

"Don't you want to get out here?" said the conductor.

"Oh, dear, no."

"Then why did you pull the strap?"

"I was only trying to see if it was firm enough to hold me if I happened to come along in the car some night when I couldn't get a seat."

The door slammed, and the conductor said something as he leaned against the rear brake. It was something not very complimentary to such darned fooling.

But the man had won his bet. He had stopped the car.—Fall River Advance.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

"As Others see Us."

The Port Hope Times says:—"A branch of the Irish National League has been established in Peterborough and a charter granted by the Grand Secretary. The people of Peterborough must be of very liberal disposition, to enable them to contribute to foreign charities." Yes, that's so, but the Times needn't be jealous because the League gave them the go-by.

Mr. Cox's Buildings.

Mr. Cox's two new stores on the east side of George street are being rapidly pushed on, the cellar having been completed, with the partition wall and the joists of the ground floor placed in position. The two stores, belonging to the same gentleman, next door to the Express Office are also being remodelled and fitted, and will soon be completed.

A Warning.

Two citizens were arraigned before the Police Magistrate this morning charged with having purchased liquors at a hotel during prohibited hours, in contravention of an Act passed at the last session of Parliament. They were each fined $2 and costs. The provisions of this Act will in future be strictly enforced, so that persons buying liquor during illegal hours will be equally liable to prosecution with the vendor.

Don't Forget It.

Householders will do well to bear in mind Armstrong and Record's auction sale of furniture which takes place in their furniture ware rooms on Simcoe street next Saturday. There will be sold a splendid assortment of parlor and dinning room furniture, and as Messrs. Armstrong & Record are going out of the business, and everything must be sold, there will be a splendid opportunity of buying first-rate furniture at very low prices.

Young Conservative Association.

On Thursday evening the junior Conservatives in Peterborough formed an association called the Young Men's Liberal (?) Conservative Association. The following is given as the list of officers:—

Honorary President—John Carnegie, M. P. P.
President—George W. Hatton.
Vice Presidents—1st Ward, John Corkery; No. 2 Ward, G. W. Hall; No. 3 Ward, J. O'Meara; No. 4 Ward, James Kendry.
Corresponding Secretary—E. A. Peck.
Recording Secretary—W. J. Minore.
Treasurer—Arthur Stevenson.

Entertainment To-Night.

See programme of the entertainment in the Opera House to-night in another column.

The Philharmonic.

The regular meeting of this society was held last evening. The attendance was not as large as usual, but a good practice was held. Members should make a point of having no other engagements for Thursday.

Ready for Occupation.

The two new stores in the Harper block on Charlotte street, are now almost complete. One of them will be occupied in a few days by Mr. T. J. Donald, formerly of Port Hope, who is going to open out with a full stock of groceries and provisions.

Dufferin Literary Association.

The regular meeting of the Dufferin Literary Association will be held this evening at 8 o'clock, in the rooms of the Mechanics' Institute. Essay, readings and debate on the question of "The exclusion or partial exclusion of Chinese and others from the full privileges and rights of Canadian citizenship.

Go For Him.

An oily-tongued individual is circulating around town endeavoring to induce people to buy from him stale Christmas cards that he has purchased at low rates from the old stock of Toronto dealers. The operations of this person came within the range of the lately amended by-law anent peddlers, and as he is injuring the trade of local dealers he should be looked after by the Local License Inspector.

The Mattie Vickers Company.

The Mattie Vickers comedy company played to a full house again last evening, and again afforded the utmost satisfaction to the audience. Indeed, so good an impression did they make that the leading actors were called before the curtain at the conclusion of the second act. The company will be sure of bumper houses when they visit the town again.

Waterworks Extension.

The season has been exceedingly favourable for the prosecution of work involved in extending the system of mains by the Peterborough Waterworks Company, and the operations this fall will be about concluded by the completion of the 200 feet of mains on Stewart Street, to connect with the Hunter Street pipes, for the purpose of serving Eastland's Terrance. A valve and valve chamber are placed on Hunter street, at the intersection of Hunter.

New Presbyterian Church.

The new Presbyterian Church at Havelock will be opened on Sunday next, when Rev. Mr. Carmichael will conduct the services at 10 a.m., and Rev. Mr. Bell, of Peterborough, at 3.30 p.m. A soiree will be given in the church on the Monday evening following, at which a number of gentlemen will speak. Rev. Mr. Bell will conduct the services in the Presbyterian Church Norwood on Sabbath. Rev. Mr. Beattie, of Campbellford, will take Mr. Bell's services here on Sunday.

Y. M. C. A. Entertainment.

The following is the programme of the entertainment to be given in Bradburn's Opera House on Friday evening, Nov. 20th, 1885, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association:—

Mind Reading, Etc.

The entertainment in the Opera House to-night, in connection with the Y. M. C. A., should have a large attendance.

Resigned.

We understand that Mr. H. Kay Coleman has tendered his resignation as teacher in the Public Schools, to take effect at the close of the present term.

The Popular Parlor.

The Parlor roller rink is the favorite resort of lovers of roller skating. The managers are indefatigable in laboring for the comfort of their patrons and are deserving of the large patronage aforded them.

St. Andrew's Church.

The work on St. Andrew's Church is being vigorously pushed by the contractor, Mr. Douglass. The outside work is so far completed that the scaffolding has been completed, and only a little pointing of the walls remains to be done. Inside the structure is taking shape. The plasterers are at work and the beauties of the splendid groined ceiling are developing. Every passer-by exclaims, "What a beautiful little church!" or words to that effect.

Personal.

Mr. Alex. Elliott is in Montreal, on business connected with his agency.

Mr. A. White, formerly of Peterborough, General Traffic Manager G. T. R., is registered at the Oriental Hotel.

Mr. Von Hugel, ex-Mayor of Port Hope was registered at the Oriental Hotel today.

What They are Saying.

What do you think of the Scott Act defeat in St. Catharines.—The Anti-Scotts.

The Pharisees are less numerous there.—Moses Oates.

'Twas a grand triumph for science.—The student "Professor."

There was crookedness in it, and we'll appeal.—The Scottites.

Never mind St. Kitts, we want our own business settled.—Peterborough people.

We Would Like to Know.

Where boys of 14 get money to play pool and billiards.

And if there is not a by-law to prevent their doing so.

And why, if there is, it is not looked after.

What is the matter with the electric light at the corner of George and McDonnel streets.

Who kicked up the racket at the raffle last night.

The age of "young men" present at the Liberal Conservative meeting last night.

And if some of them weren't a little on the hoary side.

What We May Expect.

A great crowd to attend the entertainment at Bradburn's Hall to-night.

And to be astonished at Mr. Miller's ability in the mind-reading business.

Another of Mr. Parker's enjoyable organ recitals at an early date.

Citizens to fight shy of buying drinks in prohibited hours.

The Anti Scottites to say the people of St. Catharines have good sense.

And the Scottites to say corruption caused their defeat.

While the people will stand up and be treated as usual.

Moderate to fresh west and south winds, generally fair, slightly milder weather.

Devoured by Wolves.

HELENA, Nov. 19.—Jas. Dempsey reached the city last night from Fort McGinnis. He tells a pitiable story of his two companions being devoured by wolves while on their way across the mountains. Their names were John Hoag, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Jacob Scheller, of Lafayette, Ind. Dempsey says he climbed a tree and saw his companions torn to pieces and devoured.

The Riel Reaction.

Montreal's Mayor Staves Off the Meeting of Two Mobs—A Serious Ruction Averted.

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—The final meeting of the Riel defence fund committee was held on the Champ de Mars to-night, when there were from seven to ten thousand people present. Mr. L. O. David presided at the meeting, and among the speakers were Hon. R. Lafamme and Hon. Mr. Mercier. Resolutions were passed condemning the Government for the execution of Riel. After the meeting about 800 French students started in procession along Craig street towards the west end. When they reached Cote street Mayor Beaugrand drove up in a carriage and at the request Mr. Bandarand, one of the liberal leaders, warned the crowd not to go any farther west as 500 young Englismen were waiting for them and would give them a beating. They shouted that they were not afraid, but the crowd of 800 soon melted away all the same. The Englishmen had pickets stationed at certain points in the west and received communications of the movements of the French students by telephone. The action of the mayor prevented a collusion of the two parties or there would have been trouble. All is now quiet.

HARD ON SIR ADOLPHE.

QUEBEC, Nov. 19.—A campaign has been organized to [illegible] county in Quebec district on the Riel question. A large public assembly is called for at Levis to-morrow night, Quebec Centre on Saturday night, and at 2 o'clock on Sunday at the church door at Charlesbourg, in Quebec County, Sir A. P. Caron's constituency. The following gentlemen, who compose both sides of politics, will conduct the campaign and deliver addresses:—Hon. P. Garneau, W. Laurier, C. A. P. Pelletier, and F. Langlier; also Messrs. L. P. Pelletier, President of Cartier Club; P. B. Casgrain, M. P.; F. X. Lemieux, M. P. P.; G. Amyot, M. P.; Chas. Langelier, etc.

Terrebonne Taunts Chapleau.

In the office of one of the Hon. Mr. Chapleau's once faithful henchmen a fine portrait of the Secretary of State now hangs upside down, with this inscription below: "Ce fut (this was) Hon. J. Chapleau." Mr. Charles Courval, writing to L'Etandard, says that Terrebonne is in a state of stupor. Stores are closed and crape hangs on each door. He says: "Ah, Mr. Chapleau, what shame you have brought upon us. Terrebonne adopted you as her child, but now she vomits you out."

Losses by Fire.

WATFORD, Nov. 19—On Wednesday morning, Robert M. Ley's saw mill and bending factory were totally destroyed by fire, supposed to have been started by tramps, as the mill had not been running for three weeks. Loss $7,500: insured for $2,000.

The Watford cheese factory was burned this morning and is a total loss. Mr. Smith, the cheesemaker, had a narrow escape, his bed being in flames before the fire was discovered: he lost all his furniture, clothes and bedding.

PETERBORO', - PETERBORO'.

A few short months ago who would have thought that Hunter Street would be the business street of Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so, but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors, and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and will guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

MIKADO TEA.

MIKADO is the name of the Plantation owned by the MIKADO TRADING COMPANY.

The Plantation formerly belonged to the Mikado, or King of Japan, and was cultivated for the exclusive use of the Royal household.

The Plantation was bought from the King on condition that sufficient Tea should be supplied to the Royal Family, as the King would use no other.

It is an acknowledged fact, that the Teas grown on this Plantation are, for Purity, Strength and Flavor, the finest in the world.

It is put up in Half and One Pound packages, and is sold at the exceeding low price of 45 cents per pound.

The Hose Question Again.

Not much has been heard about hose lately, but the way in which Mr. J. J. Sheehy has got his window decked out with every kind of hose is likely to again bring it to the front. Jimmy has made a corner in the hose market and is now offering a splendid assortment of all kinds at marvellously low prices. You can't mistake the place, for the name "Sheehy" is worked in stockings in the window. But his stock-in-trade is not all stockings, he has a splendid assortment of general dry goods as well.

Police Court.

John McKelvey, baker, of Norwood, and wife were arraigned before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning charged by Wm. Nelson Cronk, livery stable keeper of the same place, with aggravated assault. It appears that McKelvey owed Cronk for livery hire, which debt he had tried to collect several times, and had in part payment bread and buns. McKelvey became enraged at Cronk for dunning his wife, and threatened in the presence of E. Patterson, employed by Cronk, to lay Cronk out. On the morning of Wednesday last, McKelvey called Cronk and F. Stephenson into his shop and proceeded to settle the account. He asked Cronk what he owed him and said he would give it to him there, when he took off his coat and struck Cronk on the head with his fist, when they clinched, and according to Cronk, tussled around till they reached the bakeroom, Mr. McKelvey striking Cronk during the engagement. Here Cronk shoved McKelvey over a stove, where they gouged and choked each other. McKelvey called out that Cronk was biting him, when his wife struck Cronk on the head with an edging. Stephenson and Phillips then separated the contestants. Cronk was induced to leave, but on going out McKelvey followed him with a stick, when he turned round telling him not to strike, but McKelvey hit him with the stick causing him to kneel. Another scuffle ensued, in which they again struggled out to the bakery, where they were finally separated. Cronk, who had received two severe cuts on the head, was induced by his friends Stephenson and Phillips, to go and get his injuries attended to. Dr. Pettigrew dressed the wounds. Mrs. McKelvey claimed that on one occasion Cronk had addressed abusive language to her, when she told him to to see her husband about the debt; also that on the Wednesday just previous to the fight, she had ordered him out of the shop. The evidence of Stephenson corroborated that of Cronk. McKelvey was fined $20, and $2.00 doctor's compensation, also $10.10 costs. The charge against Mrs. McKelvey was dismissed. C. Sawers for plaintiff, and E. A. Peck for defendant.

Elegance and Luxury.

Among the evidences so amply afforded on all hands of the progressive spirit peculiar to Peterborough, none perhaps is more noticeable than the growing improvement in carriages and buggies of all kinds. Fifty years ago the settler's rude bullock cart was alike the conveyance for burdens and the vehicle of pleasure in Peterborough, but today no town of its size in Canada can boast the appearance on its streets of more luxurious and elegant carriages. The latest addition to these is a remarkably handsome and comfortable family carriage built by Messrs. Porter Brothers, to the order of Mr. Geo. A. Cox. It is what is known in American carriage building circles as a Newhaven Cabriolet, one of the most popular classes of carriage among fashionable Americans. The body is of phaeton shape with a hood of fine American leather covering the seat at the back, and is beautifully painted and finished in black with silver plated mountings. There is seating capacity on occasions for six persons, there being a folding seat for children, which, when not in use, folds up into the boot or drivers seat. This is designed to accommodate two persons, and the part on which the driver sits is raised higher than the other part of it, being what is know as a French seat, giving the coachman more control over the horses. The seats are stuffed with the finest curled hair and covered with all wool green cloth, trimmed with green tufts to match. The lining of the sides is of English tapestry. The whole is built on a platform gear of the most scientific construction with iron axles. The painting, trimming and finishing in every detail are the work of artists in each particular line, Porter Brothers employing none but masters in their respective departments. The Porter Brothers have now in hand, and nearing completion, another carriage designed for one of our residents, a notice of which will appear when finished. This firm, though one of the youngest in their business in town, have, by their enterprise and the magnificent character of the work turned out by them, built up a reputation unequalled in Canada, and Porter's fine carriages bid fair to become a byword in every community capable of appreciating the very highest class of workmanship in that line. Altogether it is one of the finest carriages ever seen in this part of Canada, and will be a source of credit to its builders as well as a "joy forever" to its fortunate proprietor, who'it is to be hoped may long live to lie back amid its luxurious cushions.

A Rattle Story.

"Arrah Pat, and where in thunder were ye goin' whin I met ye last noight on Hunther sthreet?" said Denny McGinnis to his fellow-workman, Patsey McCann, as they were working in the water works trenches the other morning.

"Where was I goin?" An' where do ye suppose I'd be goin' on a noight loike that, an' it rainin' loike the very owld divil himself—to the raffle to be shure, thin."

"An' did yes win onything?" said his comrade, who, taking advantage of the foreman's back being turned, was taking a pull at his "dhudeen."

"Faix, thin, did I," responded Pat, "'twas myself that won a iligant bedstid,—barrin', indade, that it was so full of bag gintry that it ran away from me whin I got it home, an' I had to tie it up wid a rope till I fumigationized it—the same was Mike Larsey's owld grandmother died on."

"An' how many tickets did ye hev, Patsey?" said Denny, insinuatingly.

"I spint about sivin dollars in buyin' [illegible]"

"Och! me; but yer the foolish man, thin," said Denny, "don't ye know that at Dan. Belleghem's, forninst where the new Opera House is goin' to sthand, ye could hev bought an ilegant new one for less than that, and ye'd a bed no bugs forbye, aither."

At this juncture the eagle eye of the foreman got on Patsey and Denny's shape, out went the pipes, in went the picks, and no more was said, but Paddy made up his mind in future to forego raffles and buy his bedsteads and other furniture at Belleghem's famous furniture warerooms, on Hunter street.

Lindsay.

The Sylvester works are shut down for a fortnight for repairs.

A Scott Act convention will be held on Dec. 3rd, for permanent organization, in view of the Act coming in force next May.

Mr. Wm. Sloane of Ops, who has been missing for a week has turned up all right—Lindsay is a queer lot; a fortune-teller was consulted to discover the whereabouts of the missing man. We shall hear of there burning witches up there next.

The Mechanics' Institute has arranged for a series of popular entertainments.

Mr. W. S. Milner, B. A., of the Lindsay high school, has been appointed an examiner in classics in Toronto University.

The Warder records a case of heartless cruelty in town this week. It seems a little girl in the employ of a certain family was tied to a bed post and beaten terribly. The child escaped and was found in the rain nearly nude and much exhausted.

The new St. Paul's church, as many of our readers will remember, began on the 1st of June last, is now completed, and is a very handsome building both inside and outside. No pains have been spared to make it every way both substantial and beautiful, and smallest details affecting its appearance have received the most careful attention. Bishop Sweatman will consecrate it on Nov. 25th,

A Life Insurance Association and its late Local Manager.

There has been a good deal of stir in the matter of the late agent here of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, of New York, Major Hopper. It seems that the Major left the Providence Mutual, of this city, some time ago and joined the New York Association, carrying with him a considerable portion of the business of the defunct institution. He was recommended to the Mutual Reserve by prominent merchants and by some bankers as well. This was immediately on the New York Association opening business in Montreal. The Major left for the States recently, leaving Mr. B. H. Ahern to look after his business. Financial difficulties led the Major to decide not to return to Montreal, and the Association have cancelled his appointment. As regards the "kiting" through drafts on agents and otherwise, in which Major Hopper has been indulging, it would seem that the personal liabilities which these were intended to discharge were all incurred before the Major entered the service of the Mutual Reserve Fund Association, and the Major could not lawfully use the funds in the hands of Mutual Reserve agents, to pay off his old debts. The Mutual Reserve received not a dollar of the monies raised by these drafts, nor were the drafts in any way connected with the Association's business. Consequently banks or other parties that cashed such drafts have no claim whatever upon the Association and will have to look elsewhere. We understand that Mr. N. W. Bloss, Second Vice-President of the Association, himself a thorough life insurance expert and the founder of the Association, and Mr. J. D. Wells, the General Manager for the Dominion, resident in Toronto, have been in Montreal investigating the affairs of the Association. We now learn that Mr. Wells has removed his headquarters to Montreal and will henceforth supervise the affairs of the Montreal office on the spot. Mr. Wells has been long and very favorably known in life insurance circles, and we have every confidence that he will succeed in working up for the Mutual Reserve Life Association of New York a satisfactory line of business in our city and throughout Canada.—Montreal Herald, Nov. 14th, 1885.

"What Say You to a Piece of Roast Beef and Mustard?"

Well, their is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. The War in the Balkans.

Roumania Protests.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Standard distrusts the hopeful view of the Balkan situation expressed by the Emperor William in his address to the Reichstag, and urges that it would be more desirable and to the point if he were to speak of the present relations of Austria and Prussia. The Roumanian Government has issued a protest against the violation of the neutrality of the Danube by Servia and Bulgaria.

Peace Essentially Established.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Special information has been received here from reliable sources that peace in South-Eastern Europe has been essentially established. All danger of hostilities between Austria and Russia is now at an end, and the trouble between Servia and Bulgaria will be composed.

Servia Despondent.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Despatches received here state that the Servians become disheartened over are recent reverses. The Bulgarians, on the other hand, have been aroused to the highest pitch of enthusiasm by the example of Prince Alexander and the victories gained under his leadership. They have gradually driven back the Servian advance line until the Bulgarian forward line of entrenchments is within a mile of Dragoman village. In the fighting yesterday the Servian loss was 800 men killed and wounded. One of Prince Alexander's aide de camp was killed during the brunt of yesterday's engagement.

Canadian Fisheries.

The Premier Leaves for England on the Subject.

(Mail Special.)

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—Sir John Macdonald left to day for London. His mission is to confer with the Imperial authorities respecting a commission to arrange with the United States concerning the fisheries of Canada and the terms upon which our fisheries may be enjoyed by the United States fishermen. It is understood that the larger question of reciprocity is included in the subjects which Sir John will discuss. Sir John will also confer with the authorities repecting the transit of British mails to Eastern Asia, and other points via the Canada Pacific railway. Several other questions of importance are also included in the mission of the Premier.

THE COST OF AN EPIDEMIC.

Montreal has experienced how expensive and costly an epidemic is, and probably fully recognizes now the truth of the old proverb about "prevention and cure." A few months ago the expenditure of a small amount of money, and a little of the energy its officials are now showing, would have stopped the course of the smallpox, which has been raging there. But the municipal authorities were not prompt enough. They let the opportunity slip by, allowed the disease to get a firm hold, and only a few weeks ago set to work to fight it. They are finding that it is far more expensive than they thought. It is not only that Montreal has lost several thousand lives; but that its trade has been cut down one-half; that very few are going there to do business, than can be avoided, but the actual and positive cost of hospitals, sanitary offices, inspection, etc., has been something enormous. The smallpox, outside of the thousands of businesses lost, will saddle the city with a debt of over $500,000, that representing the amount expended in fighting the disease, whereas one-fiftieth of that sum would have prevented it ever finding lodging there. The smallpox debt will certainly amount to half a million, and may run more, a tribute to official negligence and carelessness, which waited for the smallpox to become epidemic before any efforts were made to restrain its spread.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In Quebec, servant girls who leave their employment before the time agreed upon are sent to prison as well as fined.

Peter Clark, mechanical superintendent of the Northern railway, has been appointed by the Dominion Government to appraise the rolling stock on Onderdonk's section of the of the C.P.R.

The Minister of Militia, during his recent visit to Winnipeg, settled the last claim for compensation for loss owing to the late rebellion, that had been passed by the commission of investigation.

The Mail approvingly quotes the New York Times, when it speaks of Sir John Macdonald as "probably the most skillful politician as well as, upon the whole, the most trustworthy statesman the Dominion now possesses." Let this "most trustworthy statesman" promise the Times a post-office; it will then have a chance of "trusting"—only that and nothing more—to the end of the chapter, or till the next election.

Mr. Gladstone probably disposed of protection, as far as the coming election is concerned, in a few indignant sentences, in which he spoke of the Tory hopes of promoting prosperity by such means as "woful delusions," and of the doctrine as "quackery." From experiance, Canada is now in a position to confirm Mr. Gladstone's declarations. It is to be hoped that England is not going to learn her alphebet over again. The cost of the lesson would show itself in her case very quickly.

Nothing seems now to stand between Britain and Mandalay. There may yet be some unexpected ambush, but it seems very improbable now, that the two principal obstacles have been removed at the cost of half a dozen men. What to do with Burmah after it is conquered will be the next question. There is no natural, or, as Lord Beaconsfield called it, scientific boundary between Burmah and the Chinese province of Yunnan, so that there would always be the danger of Jingo statesmen going north to China in search of one. This would be an enormous mistake. The nation which arouses the enmity of the Chinese is going to miss her chance in the greatest commercial investment of the near future.

SOLOMON AND SHEBA.

How the Hebrew's Magnificense Impressed His Visitors.

The Half has not been told of the Glories of Religion—Sermons by the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Preached in Brooklyn Tabernacle.

The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., preached in the Brooklyn Tabernacle on the subject, "The Queen's Visit." Before the sermon he expounded a chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. The opening hymn begins:

Grace! 'tis a charming sound,
Harmonious to the ear;
Heaven with the echo shall resound,
And all the earth shall hear.

The text was taken from I Kings, x, 7:—"Behold the half was not told me." Following is the sermon in full:

Solomon had resolved that Jerusalem should be the centre of all sacred, regal and commercial magnificence. He set himself to work and monopolised the surrounding desert as a highway for his caravans. He built the city of Palmyra around one of the principal [illegible] of the East so that all the long trains of merchandise from the East were obliged to stop there, pay toll and leave part of their wealth in the hands of Solomon's merchants. He founded the fortress Thapsacus, of the chief port of the Euphrates, and put under guard everything that passed there. The three great products of Palestine, wine pressed from the richest clusters and celebrated all the world over, oil which in that hot country is the entire substitute for butter and lard, and was pressed from the olive branches until every tree in the country became an oil well, and honey, which was the entire substitute for sugar—these three great products of the country Solomon exported, and received in return fruits and precious woods and the animals of every clime. He went down to Ezion-geber and ordered a fleet of ships to be constructed, oversaw the workmen and watched the launching of the flotilla which was to go out on more than a year's voyage to bring home

THE WEALTH OF THE THEN KNOWN WORLD.

He heard that the Egyptian horses were large and swift and long-maned and round-limbed, and he resolved to purchase them, giving $85 apiece for them, putting the best of these horses in his own stall and selling the surplus to foreign potentates at great profit. He heard that there was the best of lumber on Mount Lebanon, and he sent out 180,000 men to hew down the forest and drag the timber through the mountain gorges to construct it into rafts to be floated to Joppa, and from thence to be drawn by ox-teams twenty-five miles across the land to Jerusalem. He heard that there were beautiful flowers in other lands. He sent for them, planted them in his own gardens and to this very day there are flowers found in the ruins of that city such as are to be found in no other part of Palestine, the lineal descendents of the very flowers that Solomon planted. He heard that in foreign groves there were birds of richest voice and most luxuriant wing. He sent out people to catch them and bring them there, and he put them into his cages.

Stand back now and see this long train of camels coming up to the King's gate, and the ox-trains from Egypt, gold and silver and precious stones, and beasts of every hoof, and birds of every wing, and fish of every scale. See the peacocks strut under the cedars, and the horsemen run, and the chariots wheel. Hark to the orchestra. Gaze upon the dance. Not stopping to look into the wonders of the Temple, step right on to the causeway and

PASS UP TO SOLOMON'S PALACE.

Here we find ourselves amid a collection of buildings on which the King had lavished the wealth of many empires. The genius of Hiram, the architect, and of the other artists is here seen in the long line of corridors and the suspended gallery and the approach to the throne. Traceried window opposite traceried window. Bronzed ornaments bursting into lotus and lily and pomegranate. Chapiters surrounded by network of leaves in which imitation fruit seemed suspended as in hanging baskets. Three branches—so Josephus tells us—three branches sculptured on the marble so thin and supple that even the leaves seemed to quiver. A laver capable of holding 500 barrels of water or 600 brazen ox-heads, which gushed with water and filled the whole place with coolness and crystalline brightness and musical plash. Ten tables chased with chariot wheel and lion and cherubim. Solomon sat on a throne of ivory. At the seating place on the throne, on each end of each of the steps, a brazen lion. Why, my friends, in that place they trimmed their candles with snuffers of gold, and they cut their fruits with knives of gold, and they washed their faces in basins of gold, and they scooped out the ashes with shovels of gold, and they stirred the altar fires with tongs of gold. Gold reflected in the water. Gold flashing from the apparel. Gold blazing in the crown. Gold, gold, gold!

Of course the news of the affluence of that place went out everywhere, by every caravan and by wing of every ship, until soon the streets of Jerusalem are crowded with curiosity seakers. What is that long procession approaching Jerusalem? I think from the pomp of it there must be royalty in the train. I smell the breath of the spice which are brought as presents, and I hear the shout of the drivers, and I see the dust-covered caravan, showing that they come from far away. Cry the news up to the palace.

THE QUEEN OF SHEBA ADVANCES.

Let all the people come out to see. Let the mighty men of the land come out on the palace corridors. Let Solomon come down the stairs of the palace before the Queen has alighted. Shake out the cinnamon and the saffron, and the calamus and the frankincense, and pass it into the treasure house. Take up the diamonds until they glitter in the sun. The Queen of Sheba alights. She enters the palace. She washes at the bath. She sits down at the banquet. The cupbearers bow. The meats smoke. The music trembles in the hall and through the corridors until it mingles in the dash of the waters from the molten sea. Then she rises from the banquet, and she walks through the conservatories, and she gazes on the architecture, and she asks Solomon many strange questions, and she learns about the religion of the Hebrews, and she then and there becomes a servant of the Lord God. She is overwhelmed. She begins to think that all the spices she brought, and all the precious woods which are intended to be turned into harps and psalteries and into railings for the causeway between the temple and the palace, and the $180,000 in money—she begins to think that all these presents amount to nothing in such a place, and she is almost ashamed that she has brought them, and she says within herself: "I heard a great deal about this place and about this wonderful religion of the Hebrews, but I find it far beyond my highest anticipations. I must add more than 50 per cent to what has been related. It exceeded everything that I could have expected. The half—the half was not told me."

Learn from this subject what a beautiful thing it is when social position and wealth surrender themselves to God. When religion comes to a neighborhood [illegible] are the [illegible] they [illegible] they have quicker perception of what is right, more ardent affection and capacity for sublime emotion. After the women have received the Gospel then all the distressed and poor of both sexes, those who have no friends, accept Jesus. Last of all came the people of influence and high social position. Alas, that it is so! If there are those here to-day who have been favored of fortune, or, as I might better put it, favored of God, surrender all you have and all you expect to be to the Lord who blessed the Queen of Sheba. Certainly you are not ashamed to be found in this queen's company. [illegible] has had his imperial friends in all ages—Elizabeth Christina, Queen of Prussia; Maria Feodorovna, Queen of Russia; Maria, Empress of France; Helena, the imperial mother of Constantine; Arsenia, from her great fortunes building public baths in Constantinople and toiling for the alleviation of the masses; Queen Clotilda, leading her husband and 3000 of his armed warriors to Christian baptism; Elizabeth, of Burgundy, giving her jeweled glove to a beggar and scattering great fortunes among the distressed; Prince Albert, singing "Rock of Ages" in Windsor Castle, and Queen Victoria, incognito, reading the Scriptures to a dying pauper. I bless God that the day is coming when royalty will bring all its thrones and music, all its harmonies and [illegible] its statuary and architecture, all its pillars and conquest, all its sceptre; and the queens of the earth in long line of advance, frankincense filling the air and the camels laden with gold, shall approach Jerusalem, and the gates shall be hoisted, and the great burden of splendor shall be lifted into the palace of this greater than Solomon.

Again my subject teaches me what is

EARNESTNESS IN THE SEARCH OF TRUTH.

Do you know where Sheba was? It was in Abyssinia, or some say in the southern part of Arabia Felix. In either case it was a great way off from Jerusalem. To get from there to Jerusalem she had to cross a country infested with bandits and go across blistering deserts. Why did not the Queen of Sheba stay at home, and send a committee to inquire about this new religion, and have the delegates report in regard to that religion and the wealth of King Solomon? She wanted to see for herself and hear for herself. She could not do this by work of committee. She felt she had a soul worth ten thousand kingdoms like Sheba, and she wanted a robe richer than any woven by Oriental shuttles, and she wanted a crown set with the jewels of eternity. Bring out the camels. Put on the spices. Gather up the jewels of the throne and put them on the caravan. Start now; no time to be lost. Goad on the camels. When I see that caravan, dust-covered, weary and exhausted, trudging on across the desert and among the bandits, until it reaches Jerusalem, I say: "There is an earnest seeker after the turth." But there are a great many of you, my friends, who do not act in that way. You all want to get the truth, but you want the truth to come to you; do you not want to go to it. There are people who fold their arms and say: "I am ready to become a Christian at any time; if I am to be saved I shall be saved, and if I am to be lost I shall be lost." A man that says that and keeps on saying it will be lost. Jerusalem will never come to you; you must go to Jerusalem. The religion of the Lord Jesus Christ will not come to you; you must go and get religion. Bring out the camels; put on all the sweet spices, all the treasures of the heart's affection. Start for the throne. Go in and hear the waters of salvation dashing in fountains all around about the throne. Sit down at the banquet—the wine pressed from the grapes of tha heavenly Eschol, the angels of God the cupbearers. Goad on the camels; Jerusalem will never come to you:

SOLOMON AND SHEBA.

The Bible declares it: "The Queen of the South"—that is, this very woman I am speaking of—"The Queen of the South shall rise up in judgment against this generation and condemn it; for she came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and lo! a greater than Solomon is here." God help me to break up the infatuation of those people who are sitting down in idleness expecting to be saved. "Strive to enter in at the strait gate. Ask and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you." Take the kingdom of heaven by violence. Urge on the camels.

Again, my subject impresses me with the fact that religion is a surprise to any one that gets it. This story of the new religion in Jerusalem, and of the glory of King Solomon, who was a type of Christ—that story rolls on and on, and is told by every traveller coming back from Jerusalem. The news goes on the wing of every ship and with every caravan, and you know a story enlarges as it is retold, and by the time that story gets down into the southern part of Arabia Felix and the Queen of Sheba hears it, it must be a tremendous story. And yet this Queen declares in regard to it, although she had heard so much and had her anticipations raised so high, the half—the half was not told her.

So religion is always a surprise to any one that gets it. The story of grace—an old story. Apostles preached it with rattle of chain; martyrs declared it with arm of fire; death-beds have affirmed it with visions of glory, and ministers of religion have sounded it through the lanes and highways and the chapels and the cathedrals. It has been cut into stone with chisel, and spread on the canvas with pencil; and it has been recited in the doxology of great congregations. And yet when a man first comes to look on and to see the royalty of Christ and the wealth of this banquet, and the luxuriance of His attendants, and the loveliness of His face, and the joy of His service, he exclaims with prayers, with tears, with songs, with triumphs: "The half—the half was not told me!" I appeal to those in this house who are Christians. Compare the idea you had of the joy of the Christian life before you became a Christian, and you are willing to attest before angels and men that you never in the days of your spiritual bondage had any appreciation of what was to come. You are ready to-day to answer, and if I gave you an opportunity in the midst of this assemblage, you would speak out and say in regard to the discoveries you have made of the mercy and the grace and the goodness of God: "The half—the half was not told me!" Well, we hear a great deal about the

GOOD TIME THAT IS COMING

to this world, when it is to be girded with salvation. Holiness on the bells of the horses. The lion's mane patted by the hand of a babe. Ships of Tarshish bringing cargoes for Jesus, and the hard, dry, barren, winter-bleached, storm-scarred, thunder-split rock, breaking into floods of bright water. Deserts into which dromedaries thrust their nostrils, because they were afraid of the simoom, deserts blooming into carnation roses and silver-tipped lilies. It is the old story. Everybody tells it. Isaiah told it, John told it, Paul told it, Ezekiel told it, Luther told it, Calvin told it, John Milton told it, everybody tells it; and yet—and yet when the midnight shall fly the hills, and Christ shall marshal his great army, and China, dashing her idols into the dust, shall hear the voice of God and wheel into line; and India, destroying her Juggernaut and snatching up her little children from the Ganges, shall hear the voice of God and wheel into line; and vine-covered Italy, and wheat-crowned Russia, and all the nations of the earth, shall hear the voice of God and fall into line; then the Church, which has been toiling and struggling through the centuries, robed and garlanded like a bride adorned for her husband, shall put aside her veil and look up into the face of her lord the king and say: "The half, the half was not told me."

Well, there is coming a greater surprise to every Christian—a greater surprise than anything I have depicted. Heaven is an old story. Everybody talks about it. There is hardly a hymn-book that does not refer to it. Children read about in their Sabbath school books. Aged men put on their spectacles to study it. We say it is

A HARBOR FROM THE STORM,

We call it our home. We say it is the house of many mansions. We weave together all sweet, beautiful, delicate, exhilarant words; we weave them into letters, and then we spell it out in rose and lily and amaranth. And yet that place is going to be a surprise to the most intelligent Christian. Like the Queen of Sheba, the report has come to us from the far country, and many of us have started. It is a desert march, but we urge on the camels. What though our feet be blistered with the way? We are hastening to the palace. We take all our loves and hopes and Christian ambition, as frankincense and myrrh and casia, to the great King. We must not rest. We must not halt. The night is coming on and it is not safe out here in the desert. Urge on the camels. I see the dome against the sky, and the houses of Lebanon, and the temples, and the gardens. See the fountains dance in the sun, and the gates flash as they open to let in the poor pilgrims. Send the word up to the palace that we are coming and that we are weary of the march of the desert. The King will come out, and say: "Welcome to the palace, bathe in these waters, recline on these banks. Take this cinnamon and frankincense and myrrh and put it upon a censer and swing it before the altar." And yet, my friends, when heaven bursts upon us it will be a greater surprise than that—Jesus on the throne, and we made like him! All our Christian friends surrounding us in glory! All our sorrows and tears and sins gone by forever. The thousands of thousands, the one hundred and forty and four thousand, the great multitude that no man can number, will cry world without end: "The half—the half was not told us."

WIT AND HUMOR.

An exchange makes mention of an "unfortunate lady," who refuses to read newspapers, magazines, tracts, and ordinary books, because they are made of rags.

The wealthiest man in the world is the Chinese banker, Han-Qua, of Canton. He pays taxes upon an estate of $450,000,000, and is estimated to be worth 1,000,000,000 taels, which in our money would be about $1,400,000,000.

An old gentleman of 84 and his bride, aged 72, entered a railway car the other day and took a seat by the stove. A youth, occupying a seat behind, says he overheard the following: Old gentleman to his bride: "Who's a little lamb?" Bride: "Both of us."

Just like mamma (rather a startler for fond parent, who is taking small child out to tea). Small girl: "Oh! you haven't got my pinafore." Pa: "I cannot help that, dear; we're late already." Small girl: "Oh, dear me, it's slickening! You can never wait a minute."

A famous mollah at Cabul having declared the use of tobacco to be contrary to the Mahommedan law, the Ameer has submitted the question to a council of mollahs from all parts of the country. If their decision be against the indulgence in tobacco, its use in Afghanistan will be prohibited. The Afghan tobacco-dealers ought to raise a purse and endeavor to mollahfy that mollah.—Drake's Travelers' Magazine.

They were gliding over the glare surface of the ice together, making graceful sweeps with the glittering blades of their "clubs." "I'll dare you to make the fancy figures on ice that I will," said Reginald. "I'm quite sure, Beggy, my boy, that you could beat me handsomely at that," replied Algernon. "The fancy figures I make on the ice generally depend on the particular plaid pattern there is on my trousers." And he immediately illustrated.—Hartford Post.

Ignorance of slang sometimes leads to important results. It is said that when Mr. Richard Henry Dana arose to nominate General Bristow in the Republican National Convention in 1876, a loud-mouthed bully in the gallery was deputed to exclaim: "Pull down your vest!" Mr. Dana proceeded, according to his invariable habit, to adjust that garment, and the action was received with uproarious hilarity. The effect of his speech was consequently lost. At a recent trial in California in which two sailors were involved, it was testified that when one of them was ordered to ward off a boat with a boat-hook he replied: "Oh, give us a rest." "This," said the judge sedately, "was a moment of peril when a small boat in a strong sea was at any instant liable to be dashed to pieces against the vessel. Is it possible that any man with the ordinary instincts of self-preservation would ask at such a time to be allowed to rest?" The jury, however, more than made up for the Judge's lack of worldly wisdom.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Better Late than Never.

Lindsay boasts of importing its first typewriter this week. Peterborough's first introduction of this instrument suggests a reminiscence of ancient history.

Postponed.

We have been requested to announce that the second of a series of organ recitals to be held under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of St. Paul's church and announced for November 27th, has been postponed owing to unforseen circumstances. It will take place about New Year's.

A Brighter Future.

There are thirty-one more pupils at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute than there were at this time last year. The pupils and teachers are working harmoniously, and we anticipate a better standing for the Institute in the future than we have had for some years.

Y.M.C.A. Entertainment.

The entertainment of last evening in Bradburn's Opera House, under the above auspices, was a very meritorious affair. The management are deserving of praise for their choice of talent. The audience, though not as large as the entertainment deserved, was certainly appreciative. Prof. Parker opened the programme with a piano solo, given in masterly style, and later on favored the audience with another selection on his favorite instrument. He also acted as accompanist. Mrs. Chambers followed with a charming song, "Burst Ye Apple Buds," which was applauded to the encore. She acknowledged the compliment with another charming song. Prof. Doucet, always a favorite, excelled himself in his violin solo. Mr. French contributed two capital bass songs. The mind reading of Mr. J. Miller was a pleasant and interesting feature, creating no little amusement. He explained before proceeding to business that his success depended to a great extent on his subjects. They were evidently good ones, as he was highly successful in his endeavors, rivalling the great Cumberland. Miss Stephens' song, "Thou Art so Near, and yet so Far," was very pretty. This young lady also appeared in the second part, when she sang, "When the Flowing Tide Comes In," very nicely. Mr. W. A. Dixon, the ventriloquist, with the assistance of his midgets, kept the house in laughter for a time. His ventriloqual and imitative powers are good. Mrs. Chambers concluded the second of a series of very successful and entertainments with the song, "Queen of the Night."

I. Robinson & Co. has just received a lot of excellent knit jackets for ladies.

Zealous and Efficient.

The Post says:—"Bro. H. W. Watson, of Peterborough, D. D. H. C. R. of the Canadian Order of Foresters, has presented the Lindsay branch of the order with a well-executed portrait of himself, and which has been hung in the lodge room. Bro. Watson is a zealous and efficient officer and is doing his interest to advance the interests of the order throughout the Midland district."

Have you tried our 5c. bottle Blue Black Ink. The best in the world. A. L. Davis & Co.

Belligerent Bulgarians.

SOFIA, Nov. 20.—The Bulgarians repulsed the Servians's attacks on Slavnitza and drove the enemy back kilometers. Subsequently the Servians opened a strong artillery fire from the right wing. The Bulgarians stoutly defended the position and again repulsed the Servians. The Servian force consisted of three battalion of infantry. The victory finally belonged to the Bulgarians. The latter further repulsed the Servians' attack on Glintzi, taking several prisoners. The behavior of the Bulgarian troops was admirable. Fifty Servian prisoners have arrived here.

Peterborough Photographs.

There was placed on exhibition in the window of Taylor and Macdonald's Drug Store this morning, a very fine and handsomely framed collection of potographs, taken by Mr. G. B. Sproule of this town. As a specimen of art, which has been brought to the highest state of perfection on this side of the Atlantic, they possess a high interest, being the equal in artistic pose, tone, and finish, to the best productions of the leading New York or Toronto studios. And while the pictures exhibited by the photographers in the latter cities are usually made from special sittings, those of Mr. Sproule are selected from his every day work, and his patrons can always rely on having their orders filled in the same highly artistic style. Peterborough has good reason to share in Mr. Sproule's just pride in this unusually fine collection of pictures.

Complimentary.

The Daily Manitoban (Conservative) of the 17th inst. says:—"During his stay in Winnipeg the Minister of the Interior has on several occasions borne hearty testimony to the efficiency of the office of the Dominion lands commission. Mr. H. H. Smith well deserves these expressions of recognition of his executive ability. When he assumed the duties of his present position he found a vast accumulation of arrearages of work, which he has cleared off. Prompt, courteous, energetic and efficient in the discharge of his important office, he has won the confidence and esteem of the public to a remarkable degree." If the business of this office had been administered as it should have been, the country would not have been saddled with millions to repress the rebellion—not taking into consideration the many valuable lives of our brave volunteers that were lost.

Winter Sports.

A meeting was held last evening at the office of the Secretary of the P.A.A.A. for the purpose of forming a snowshoeing and tobogganning club for the coming season There was a large attendance, and much interest was manifested in the project. The club was organized in connection with the P.A.A.A., and the following officers were elected: Honorary President, Dr. R. P. Boucher; President, Dr. George Burnham; First Vice-President, Mr. R. A. Morrow; Second Vice-President, A. St. A. Smith; Secretary, J. R. Hammond. Committee: A. F. Tytler, C. A. Lawford and H. A. Hammond, A. Stevenson and J. G. Macklin. The club will be equipped with the usual blanket costumes, and will sport the yellow and violet stripped stockings of the P.A.A.A., and will also wear the colors of that organization in their woolen toques. There is no doubt of the club being a success, and if only the weather during the present winter proves suitable for snowshoeing and tobogganning, many a merry snowshoe tramp and toboggan party by moonlight may be anticipated by the ladies and gentlemen who have connected themselves with the club. The secretary is making arrangements to get a large supply of snowshoes and toboggans, and persons desirous of securing these articles, of first-rate quality at the lowest rates, should communicate with him at once, as should also any desirous of becoming members, who have not already made application. Good luck and a merry season to the Peterborough Snowshoe and Toboggan Club.

Young Men!

All young men should remember that a cordial welcome awaits them at the meeting conducted by young men in the Y. M. C. A. Rooms on Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

Song Service.

The interest in the Sunday night song service at the Y. M. C. A. Rooms is very great, and good results are being shown in connection with it. The public are invited to attend.

Night Classes.

We are asked to make known that night classes will be commenced in the Mechanics' Institute in English Literature and Mechanical Drawing about the 1st of December.

Market Items.

There was a fairly good market this morning, considering the condition of the roads. Poultry, butter, eggs, etc., were offered in profusion. Prices were as follows: butter, 18c. to 20c.; eggs, 19c.; turkeys, 70c. to 90c.; chickens, 20c. to 25c.; potatoes and apples, 60c. per bag.

Mud Lake.

The plastic mud of George Street to-day under the late rains and the churning effect of wheels and horses's hoofs, has been beaten to the consistency of drab molasses. George Street is a veritable lake of mud, and where at rare intervals the cessation of passing traffic leaves the mud to settle into mirror-like placidity, the buildings on either side are faithfully and clearly reflected in the shining surface of mud.

Mite Meeting.

A large number of the congregation of St. Paul's enjoyed the hospitality of their esteemed pastor, Rev. Mr. Torrance, at his residence, on Thursday evening. The occasion was a mite meeting under the auspices of the St. Paul's Auxiliary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, and the success of the object sought was gratifying; besides, a most pleasant evening was spent in social intercourse, the enjoyment of music, readings, etc.

Unexpected Success.

The Peterborough Business College, recently established by Mr. Bannell Sawyer, is meeting with a success that speaks forcibly in favor of the excellence and thoroughness of the knowledge imparted in the several departments of the College. There are now over one hundred students in attendance from various parts of the Province, and those pupils who have received a course of training, speak in most earnest terms, of the advantage they have derived from the thorough, comprehensive and practical course of instruction the institution affords. Appearances indicate that the Peterborough Business College has a career before it which will involve immense advantages in business and literary training to thousands of young men of this province, and we sincerely hope substantial advantage to its enterprising promoter and principal, Mr. Sawyer.

What They are Saying.

We'll have the best Snowshoe Club between the two big cities.—President Burnham.

And we'll look prime in our blue and yellow stockings.—The members.

The Norwood women must be tartars.—Attendants at this morning's Police Court.

How long's this weather going to last.—Everyone.

We Would Like to Know.

If a mud shoe club wouldn't be a good organization to start just now.

If the Norwood ladies all take up the cudgels in their husband's defence.

Where the toboggan slide will be located.

And if the girls won't have a jolly time this winter tobogganning.

If Mayor Cox's new carriage doesn't take the cake.

What We May Expect.

Dirty boots.

A request from our wife to clean them off before entering the house.

And profanity on the part of the boy who cleans them in the morning.

People to take umbrellas to church tomorrow.

Norwood litigants to avoid Peterborough Police Court in future.

Mr. Beavis to look after those peddlers.

All our young men to join the Snowshoe Club.

And a great many of the young ladies to do the same.

The ladies to say that A. L. Davis has the cheapest satchels in town.

PETERBORO'. - PETERBORO'.

A few short months ago who would have thought that Hunter Street would be the business street of Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so, but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors, and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and will guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

Sunday Sermons.

Lessons from Luke as recited by Rev. Mr. Beattie, of Campbellford. — Memorial Service in Charlotte Street Methodist Church, sermon by Rev. Mr. Wallace.

The Rev. and venerable Mr. Beattie of Campbellford, preached in the St. Andrew's Church yesterday, morning and evening. His discourses were eloquent and impressive. In the evening he took as his text that part of the Gospel according to St. Luke, from the 25th to the 39th verse, inclusive:

The following is

A SYNOPSIS OF THE SERMON:

The reverend gentleman said he would not attempt to give a full interpretation of the text, but merely draw such lessons from it as time would permit. He divided the subject of the discourse into the following heads, viz:—Firstly, Simeons' character. Secondly, his expectations. Thirdly, the circumstances and place where he had his expectations realized. Fourthly, his relation to the infant and to God. Fifth and lastly, his address to Mary.

SIMEON'S CHARACTER,

was just and devout. He was honest, dealing with men as he would be dealt by. Devout because he was evidently and conspicuously a religious man. Not one sided. He neither neglected God or his fellow-men. In this particular, he was a becoming example. It would not do to be devout and not honest, or vice versa. Such a character would be an abomination. Every good and perfect gift comes from the Father, therefore he has the first demand on us, as may be seen in the first and second commandments.

SIMEON'S EXPECTATION,

was the consolation of Isreal. He was waiting for the coming of the Messiah. There was nothing remarkable in this, as all the rest of the Jews were expecting the Messiah, also, the other Jews wanted the Messiah as a leader to conquer the neighboring Kings and Kingdoms, so as to exalt them. Simeons' views were different. It had been revealed to him that he should see Christ, as the consolation of Isreal, to work out the glorious theme of redemption; despised and rejected of men; a light unto the Gentiles, as well as the Jews. Simeon made his declaration knowing he would be ridiculed. He would have to pay for strength to withstand this ridicule and contempt. Those who received Christ now were subject to the same ridicule, which was a source of keeping many from Christ. But, for those who stood persecution there was

A GREAT REWARD.

The temple upon Mount Moria was the place where Simeon saw Christ. A place of devotion. If he had been careless in his devotion he never should have seen Christ. God's Word is full of promises and they are all fulfilled, and God's house is the place most remarkable for seeing Christ; therefore, there should be diligence in his service. Simeon was promised that he should see Christ, yet was permitted to press the child Jesus to his heart, thus the promise was more than fulfilled. He was so thankful for the privilege that he was quite willing to depart this life. Now, we have a greater privilege than he, by laying hold of Him as our hope and salvation, when we can say with Simeon, "Now lettest Thou Thy servant depart in peace, etc."

Memorial Service.

On Sunday evening, in the Charlotte street Methodist Church, the pastor, Rev. F. H. Wallace, preached a memorial sermon, having particular reference to the late Mrs. Giles Webber. The text was taken from the second verse of the third chapter of Ecclesiastes: "A time to die." The world was not slow to learn the general lesson of the text and the accompanying passages, referring to a fitness of time for everything, but all shrank from contemplating "the time to die," though its lesson was constantly being borne in upon us. The speaker had been only a few months in Peterborough, yet repeated evidences of the truth of the text impressed him as for one and another, he had read the solemn burial service for the dead over their graves—from the infant of tender years to the wife and mother, who had told the full period of life allotted to man. Though all shrank from the thought of death, yet the preacher first dealt in detail with the absolute certainty of death, of which the changes of the season, the decay of matter, and, in fact, all animated nature furnished example. Death was as sure as the night following the day. Death was a law of nature. The air was ever full of farewells of the dying and the mourning for the dead. There was no exemption. In every forest, while the winter swept bare the branches of the trees, there was a few trees that retained their leafage and verdure, but there was no evergreens in the forest of life. There was no Arcadia that failed to show among the sylvan beauties the ever present tomb of the dead. While death was certain it was also uncertain—that is, as to the time of its coming, and it was the highest wisdom to prepare to meet the dread messenger. A Jewish rabbi told his disciples that they should prepare for death the day before they died. "But we may die to-morrow." "Then prepare for death to-day." If we are not ready for death how best can we prepare for it?" A simple, stolid, stoical resignation to the inevitable was not preparation for death, this preparation did not mean, either, separation from the world, in fact the true preparation for death involved preparation for life. That preparation was secured by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ—the faith that works by love. St. Paul was prepared for death—"The time of my departure—literally my loosening from earth—is at hand. I am ready to depart and be with Christ." The speaker thanked God that we have had in our midst those who were prepared to die. Mention was made of the case of a young man named Lilico, and the peace and joy that hallowed and brightened his death-bed were vividly described. Mrs. Webber, a faithful worshipper in that church, was another shining example. She had made a life-long preparation for the future world. In addition to scrupulous attention to her religious duties, her loving life at home, her fond devotion as a wife and mother, her fidelity as a friend and neighbour, were all preparations for death, so that when death came there was no need to get ready—that had all been attended to before. Her full preparation for the great change made her resigned to the will of the Lord and robbed death of its terrors. To a question from her husband as to her willingness to depart, she replied: "The Lord's will be done!" and being asked if she were afraid to die, her faith and trust in God spoke and said: "No! not afraid." Her last hours exhibited the possession of a quiet, firm faith, a full, simple trust in her Redeemer, because in the supreme moment Jesus was with her. The last words her failing breath and pallid lips formed were, "My God! my Saviour!"—then God touched her and she slept. The congregation were exhorted to follow her example, and to remember that for the Christian there was no death; the Christian simply dropped the body and entered upon the blissful enjoyment of another life. Death did not mean death to the Christian, it was only transition. To him life was only the suburb of that Elysium whose portal is called death.

MOST MEN LIVED AS IF THERE WAS NO DEATH.

Victorious Bulgaria.

Greece on the qui vive.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A despatch from Paris says Greece is expected to open hostilities by means of a naval exploit almost hourly.

The Status quo ante.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 21.—It is reported that the Privy Council has decided to send Djerat Pasha to Philippopolis as temporary Governor of Eastern Roumelia, thus virtually restoring the status quo ante.

Cautious Alexander.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Prince Alexander has ordered the removal of the state archives from the treasury at Sofia to a place of safety. They will probably be taken to Shuma. The Consuls at Sofia are removing their papers to Rutschuk and elsewhere.

The Conference Preferred.

The Standard's Vienna special says some of the powers, including Austria, oppose Turkish mediation and insist that the conference at Constantinople shall decide the Balkan question. The court-martial which tried Gen. Jovanovitch found him guilty of disobeying orders in attacking Slivnitza instead of maintaining a defensive attitude Gen. Meskovitch has been censured for remissness in the attack upon Slivnitza.

LONDON, Nov. 21,—Upon the receipt of Prince Alexander's call for volunteers for the defence of the country, great accessions were at once offered from Roumelia. Nothing could more clearly show the satisfaction of the populace of Eastern Roumelia with the Bulgarian union than the alacrity of their response to the call of arms. The evidence of a truly national spirit, together with the moral effect of the recent Bulgarian victories on the frontier, have given Prince Alexander's Government a prestige which it has hitherto entirely lacked in the eyes of European diplomats. If Widdin resist the Servian seige the invasion of Bulgaria may be pronounced a failure. At last accounts the Bulgarians still held the place. One report says the Servians have raised the siege and retired across the frontier, but this lacks full confirmation. A Roumelian contingent is expected to arrive at Sofia on Sunday or Monday. It is believed that the place will be then strongly enough garrisoned to resist a Servian attack, even if King Milan succeeds in penetrating the advance force of Prince Alexander now served to gallant resistance by their taste of victory. Prince Alexander's recent appeal to the Sultan for aid turns out to have been misunderstood. Instead of an appeal for protection against Servia it was a formal demand upon Turkey to carry out the provisions of the Berlin Treaty and prevent Russia from trespassing upon Bulgarian soil. This was in the massing of Russian troops on the frontier, a movement which is still reported to be proceeding, and which, taken in conjunction with similar demonstrations on the part of Austria, is the most ominous feature of the present diplomatic situation.

THE RIEL REACTION.

Immense Mass Meeting in Montreal.

Ten Thousand Indignant.

Dominion Members Burned in Effigy.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—The long talked of mass meeting on the Champ de Mars by the French Canadians was held this afternoon, when some ten thousand persons were present. There were three platforms erected at each of which waved a French flag. There one and all protested in strong language against the action of the government in hanging Riel, and called upon all present to combine to defeat the government. Sir John A. Macdonald was made a special object of invective, his action in the present instance being regarded by the speakers as a crime of the most culpable character.

Hon. Mr. Mercier stated that he had written to Hon. Mr. Chapleau offering to resign his leadership of the French party to him if he would resign, but Mr. Chapleau replied that

RIEL DESERVED HIS FATE.

He also eulogized the memories of Baldwin and Lafontaine, and said the Liberal party of Ontario were ready to supply the Baldwin and the Province of Quebec the Lafontaine. He also accused Sir John with having fled to England because he was afraid of the French-Canadians. Hon. Wilfred Laurier said he would have shouldered his musket had he been on the banks of the broad Saskatchewan.

A telegram was read from Boyd and Murphy, of the New York Irish Union, protesting against Orange fanaticism and British brutality and wishing the French Canadians success in their struggle. The cheering of the crowd, which was not as frequent as might have been expected under the circumstances, could be heard for some distance.

THE PRINCIPAL SPEAKERS

were: Senators Trudel and Malhiot, Hon. H. Mercier leader of the Opposition in the Provincial Legislature, Hon. Louis Beaubien, Hon. Wilfred Laurier, Hon. H. Turcotte, Hon. J. L. Beaudry, ex-Mayor of Montreal, Aldermen Grenier, Prefontaine and Donovan, Dr. Marcil, and the following Conservative members of Parliament: Messrs. Coursol, Vanasse, Bergeron, Tarte and Desjardines, and the following Irishmen: F. A. Quinn, advocate, H. J. Cloran, editor of the Post, Eugene O'Rourke, printer, and Dennis Murney, undertaker.

A series of resolutions were passed denouncing Sir John Macdonald, Sir A. P. Caron, Sir Hector Langevin and Hon. J. A. Chapleau, calling upon the electors to unite and defeat the Government at the next election, declaring that Riel was sacrificed to the hatred of fanatics, and that his execution was an act of inhumanity and cruelty unworthy of a civilized nation.

Insulting Sir John.

ST. REMI, Que., Nov. 21.—About seven or eight hundred people from the parishes of St. Remi and St. Michel marched in procession from one end of the village to the other, following the effigy of Sir Adolphe Caron, that was dragged in the middle of the street by a big "Taurus." A white sheet was put across his back with the inscription "A bas Sir A. P. Caron et ses semblables!" and "Caron fui a renier sa patrie et les Canadiens Francais pour plaire aux orangistes!" The procession was headed by twenty men on horseback with torchlights, singing, "La Marseillaise," the tri-color flag being in front. The crowd named a president, selecting for the occasion Mr. A. Bissaillon, Mayor of St. Remi village. After one or two speeches the following resolution was put to the meeting:—"That the execution of Louis Riel is an outrage to justice and humanity and an outrage to the French Canadian nationality, and Sir John Macdonald is le moudit mangeur (eater) of the French Canadians." The effigy of Sir Adolphe Caron was then laid in the middle of the road, all on horseback passing over it, and afterwards burnt. Mr. Bissaillon opened a subscription list to gather enough money to have a requiem mass chanted for the repose of the soul of Riel. The list was filled up in a very short time.

The low prices of our Family Bibles astonish every one. A. L. Davis & Co.

Thebaw's Reign Almost Over.

He is Called upon to Surrender Mandalay and Submit to the British.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Foreign Office has received notification from Gen. Prendergast, in charge of the British troops in Burmah, that upon reaching the vicinity of the capital, Mandalay, he issued a proclamation, customery in the case of such invasions, informing the people that his army had come to protect them from misrule and oppression, and that the Empress of India would be their friend and benefactress. A formal demand upon King Thebaw for the surrender of Mandalay and submission to the British forces has also been made.

Steadily Onward.

RANGOON, Nov. 21.—The British expeditionary force have captured Magaive, a town of Burmah on the Irrawaddy river 35 miles above Prone. Among the prisoners taken were Italian officers serving in the Burmese army. Gen. Prendergast is now at Memo. He states that fighting is expected at Sagaing.

GROUPING CONSTITUENCIES.

In his recent address at Lucknow Sir Richard Cartwright dealt, as he always deals with any subject he discusses, ably with this question which will hereafter demand more attention than it has heretofore done. It has been before pointed out that with a considerable majority in the House from Ontario, the Conservative government had a bare majority of the popular vote—a majority of only 2,769 out of a total of 269,573 votes cast. With the condition from which this extraordinary circumstance arises Sir Richard thus deals:

The question upon which I speak is one which has engaged the attention of great thinkers, and what I am about to suggest has been suggested already by Mr. John Stuart Mill, and Mr. Blake has called attention to it. If the great bulk of the electors were venal and corrupt, there would be but little hope for us. But I protest against any such assertion. The great bulk of the electors in any constituency are honest and well-meaning men. That is what I believe as regards the great bulk, the rank and file. But I say what I believe in my conscience to be true, when I say that unfortunately in the great majority of the constituencies the election is determined by a few venal voters, and the problem is how to prevent these venal voters from controlling the elections. Now, I say, that our existing representative system works very badly in this respect, that it puts a premium upon the venal voters, and gives an immense advantage to the party which has the money to buy them. I am going to suggest one remedy. We have solved the problem to a very great extent in the House of Commons. There, although we stand 70 to 140, we get upon the committee perfect representation in proportion to our numbers—there is no real difficulty inherent in the case that we cannot easily solve. What is wanted is the will to deal with it.

The real question is to ensure for each party a fair representation on the floor of Parliament in proportion to the numbers. I am quite aware that some people will say, "This is a desirable thing, but it is simply theoretical." But it is a question which must be solved if we hope to obtain pure and honest government. Many suggestions have been made, but on the whole I favor this mode as being best adapted to our circumstances. Let our constituencies be grouped, and assign to each group five or seven members, for whom each elector might vote. I do not say that this system would cure all the evils of elections and produce perfect purity. Could I introduce such a system as that I should think the millennium not far off. But it will do much. It will enable you to have fairly equal constituencies from one end of the Dominion to the other. It will take away the temptation to resort to the unjust and villainous practice of gerrymandering the constituencies; it will take away the temptation to pass Franchise Bills; it will enormously lessen corruption, because you will scarcely find men willing to bribe all the venal voters in a large constituency returning seven members for the chance of gaining a single seat out of seven.

To more patently show the injustice of the existing state of electoral distribution, the Globe has divided the constituencies of the Province of Ontario into thirteen geographical groups. For instance, group IV, embraces the ridings of Northumberland, East and West, Peterborough, East and West, Hastings, North, East end West, and Prince Edward. In this group there were 22,556 ballots deposited at the last election; of these 11,956 were cast for Conservative, and 10,606 for Liberal candidates. This is the electoral result, but what is the representative result? Simply this: this group returns six Conservative members and one Liberal, or in other words, 10,000 electors have one in Parliament representing their views, while 11,000 have six men representing their views. In all the thirteen groups a similar disparity between the expressed wishes of the electors and the representation they enjoy, is apparent. If the grouping plan or something similar were adopted, great public good would ensue. The true principle of representation would be more nearly carried out, and a practical end would be made to the electoral corruption that is exercising so evil an influence upon the country. If a candidate's constituents were spread over what now comprises five or six ridings, not only would undue personal influence and intimidation lose its force, but money bribery would largely cease. The electors would vote for some half dozen candidates, no one of whom would have it in his power to influence votes by promise of patronage, for in this matter he would have only a voice, not a decision. The debauching of voters by money bribes would practically disappear, for no man, however evilly disposed thereto, would, with any hope of personal advantage, undertake to bribe the electors of a whole group, comprising from twenty to twenty-five thousand electors. If this evil were done away with it would be worth a very great sacrifice. The scheme propounded by Sir Richard is worthy of full, careful and deliberate consideration.

PARTY POLITICS IN MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

We observe that Mr. Peter Ryan, ex-Alderman, of Toronto, is advocating strongly the introduction of party politics into Municipal elections in that city and, in support of his contention, makes some cogent arguments which derive their force more from the peculiar and unfortunate circumstances of the case in Toronto, than from their logical accuracy and general applicability to the rest of Ontario.

As for ourselves, we would absolutely repudiate and decry the introduction or intermingling of party to any extent whatever in municipal affairs, and in doing so, we would only be following the same course we have always pursued.

In our opinion, it would be highly injurious and detrimental to the welfare of our town and its local government that questions of Dominion or Provincial politics which, in their very nature, are wholly irrelevant and foreign to our local municipal issues, should be raised in municipal contests; and that citizens should be solicited and urged to support, not the candidate whom each believes to be eminently qualified by experience, judgment and integrity to look to the general interests, progress and development of our town, but the man who is unwillingly whipped into the municipal traces by party exigences, or who, by aid of clique and unworthy influences, forces himself upon a disgusted public. For in such cases we all know that the record of such a party would be judged not by the standard of worth and honour, but by that of political necessity. In the introduction of party politics into local concerns we would presage the beginning of fraud, mismanagement and corruption, which, under the present system, are almost entirely absent; we would anticipate a bitterness and hostility which could not be but deplored, and we would learn that all measures of the party regnant would be viewed not with candor, sincerity and thoughtfulness, but with haste, distrust, and suspicion.

And further, we cannot comprehend, how any reasonable man making ordinary use of his mental faculties, could for a moment attempt to shift upon either of the great political parties of the day, acts with which the heads of the party neither are acquainted, nor to which they assent and which they have no personal interest or jurisdiction either to repudiate or confirm.

In conducting THE EXAMINER, we have always aimed at supporting a man of judgment, sound sense and respectability—no matter of what colour his political or religious complexion may be, and we can point with pride and satisfaction to our efforts and success in this direction, and we regret to say that in some cases we have found councillors who used their position to the acquisition of party profit and the consolidation of their party's influence.

We hope that the tendency of the electors will be to oust such men, and place in their stead men who will place the good of the town first and party nowhere.

An Admirer of Gladstone.

Mr. James French, of Toronto, is sending as a present to Mr. Gladstone a barrel of the choicest Canadian apples, put up in a barrel specially made for the purpose. The staves are of polished ash and other hard woods alternately, and is a very creditable specimen of the cooper's art. Mr. French will later send to Mr. Gladstone the primest roast of Canadian beef that can be found, and two turkeys, one for himself and the other for the Prince of Wales.

A Pratical Calculation.

(Hamilton Times.)

It is said that the Canadian Pacific Company wants $10,000,000 from Parliament to buy up the railways and construct new links in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. How long, O Lord, how long? The people of Hamilton will not consent to tax themselves to buy a park, to establish a public library, or to construct an extensive system of sewerage. The people of Wentworth County will not tax themselves to buy up the toll roads and make them free. But the money, which they pay, is tossed to Messrs. Stephen & Co. in vast sums, year after year, and all the Tories say Amen. Will the people of Canada, as a body, ever have sense enough to know that a tax is a tax whether it is collected directly or indirectly? Think of this Canadian Pacific. Leaving land grants out of consideration, it got railways built by the Government at a cash outlay of $30,000,000; it got a cash subsidy of $25,000,000 and a cash loan of $30,000,000; besides money to buy the road between Montreal and Quebec, to buyout Pope, and other sums. Ninety millions in cash must have been paid by reason of the bargain between the Government and the Canadian Pacific railway. The whole population of Canada at the last census was 4,324,810. The population of Hamilton was 35,961, the population of North Wentworth was 15,998, and the population of South Wentworth was 14,993, a total of 66,952 for Hamilton and Wentworth. Supposing Hamilton and Wentworth to have kept pace with the rest of the Dominion in population, and supposing the people of this city and county to be only average taxpayers, their share of this expenditure is $1,391,601—one million three hundred and ninety-two thousand six hundred and one dollars! Is not that a snug addition to our debt? Now, when are we going to get our money back? Our farms, our our properties, our labor are mortgaged to pay this debt, and many a citizen will suffer privations on account of it. Now is the time to call a halt. The man who votes for a member of Parliament who will not promise to oppose any and every demand for new subsidies to the Canadian Pacific railway is careless of his own interest. Mr. Stephen and his associate millionaires will take, so long as the Canadian people are foolish enough to give. But how the millionaires must laugh at their dupes!

Didn't Know the Company was so Tricky.

Shortly after a fire the other day a colored gentleman called on an insurance agent and said: "Wants my money, Cap't." "I don't owe you any money." "Ain't yesse'f de 'sho'ence agent?" "Yes, I am an insurance agent." "Den yer owes me money, for my sto' burned up endurin' de late fire, sah." "You were not insured in my company." "De debbil I was't." "Come get out of here." "Hold on, boss, an' lemme 'splain. Was Mr. Jones 'shored in your comp'ny?" "Yes." "Wuz Mr. Jackson?" "Yes." "Wal an' good. Now, my sto' was jes pertwixt Mr. Jones and Mr. Jackson. De walls o' dar sto's made de walls o' my sto. Ef yer'd a took dar sto's erway, my sto' wouldder been gone. De insho'in' o' dar own sto's insho'd mine, doan yer see?" No, I don't see." "Den I ain't goin' ter get nothin', is I?" "No." "I'll recollek dis, sah, an' see whut de cou't'ouse'll hab ter say," and turning away he muttered: "Ef I'der knowed de comp'ny wuz so tricky I wouldn't ter set de blame sto' afire."—

Fertility of Tonquin.

Probably owing to the proximity of armed bands, there was not much cultivation going on in the immediate neighborhood of the Elephant mountain, round and round which the Haiphong branch of the Songkoi wanders in a most bewildering way. As we got nearer the main river, however, it was very different. On both sides, as far as the eye could reach over the flat lands, stretched paddy-fields, with hundreds of people—men, women, and children—occupied upon them; the men plowing or turning up the soil with mattocks, the women and children breaking the clods with heavy pieces of wood. Everywhere the green ring of bamboos which denoted a village could be seen, many of them running into one another, and apparently extending for miles. According to national custom, but few of these were actually on the river, and those that were at all near were protected by a ditch and mud walls, surrounded by bamboo palisades, in addition to the ordinary cane fence. There can be no doubt that Tonquin is one of the finest grain-producing countries in the east, far surpassing anything to be seen in the southern provinces of China, with the exception of the Canton river delta, the area of which is, however, much smaller. Two crops can be raised in the year almost everywhere, and in some parts three is no rarity. The sugar-cane and mulberry trees which are so abundant in the Namdiah districts are not so much seen between Haiphong and Hanoi. Add to this that the climate is one in which for four or five months in the year Europeans can easily work, and it will be easily understood that the French are warranted in going to great expense and some risk in conquering the country for themves.—*Cor. MINNEAPOLIS,

The Beautiful City at the Head of Mississippi Navagation.

The Greatest Flour Manufacturing City in The World.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 21.—Admirably situated at the extreme head of navigation and on both banks of the Mississippi, Minneapolis has developed in thirty years from nothing to a city of 130,000 souls. This site was a prairie; it is now the City Beautiful. Thirty years ago it was a military reservation, and the country north and west was inhabited by roving bands of Sioux and Chippewas. In 1860 the population was 5,822; in 1870, 18,007; in 1880, 46,887; in June of the present year, 129,200. Its growth has been marvelous, and keen observers of the tendency of the times declare the city has just begun to get out of its swaddling clothes. Well, it looks that way.

"Seventeen years ago," said Mayor Pillsbury, the other day, "the only railroad in the state was a road between St. Paul and Minneapolis. The first railroad proper to enter Minneapolis was the Milwaukee and St. Paul, in 1867. To-day there are twelve roads centering here, operating 12,000 miles of road, with 100 passenger trains a day."

THE VIADUCT.

This is the largest flour manufacting city in the world, the daily capacity of the twenty-five mills being 31,900 barrels, and the average daily production being 28,000 barrels. This requires 180,000 bushels of wheat every day, or 40,000,000 bushels a year. Some of the prominent mill owners have made enormous fortunes, the average daily gross receipts of the leading firm here—C. A. Pillsbury & Co.—are $50,000, or $15,000,000 a year. Milling was begun at St. Anthony falls in 1859, by W. W. Eastman, with a mill having a capacity of 100 barrels a day. When the Washburn "A" was built, with a daily capacity of 300 barrels, it was considered something marvelous. In 1871 the Pillsburys embarked in the business, and they are to-day conceded to be the principal flour milling firm in the world. The firm operate three mills—the Pillsbury "A," 7,200 barrels; Pillsbury "B," 2,000; and Anchor mill, 1,250; being a total daily capacity of 10,450 barrels. Washburn, Crosby & Co.'s mills turn out 6,500 barrels per day. The Pillsburys are quoted at $7,000,000, Washburn, Crosby & Co. at $4,000,000, and other less prominent concerns in proportion. This business has grown enormously since W. W. Eastman started his mill in 1859 and it will grow until all the water power is fully utilized and Minneapolis produces 100,000 barrels of flour daily. But Minneapolis will have 500,000 people then, and will have an area not less than fifteen miles square.

THE FALLS OF MINNEHAHA.

The basis of Minneapolis' splendid position is her unrivaled water power, which averages 20,000 horse power, with a maximum of 120,000 horse power. The rights on the west side of the river are owned by the Minneapolis Mill company, those on the east side by the St. Anthony Falls Water Power company. The several flour mills and saw mills buy their water power of these two companies, paying $1,000 per year per mill, with a guarantee of at least 65 horse power per mill. But one-third of the average water power is utilized at present, this being sufficient to run all the mills now in operation. The average fall is 35 feet; by the expenditure of $60,000 it can be increased to 65 feet. Minneapolis is well assured of all the water power that will be needed for the next fifty years at least. One in passing through any one of the monster flour mills, wonders as he notes how few employes he meets. Machinery has taken the place of men to a great extent, and not more than 1,500 employes are required to handle the stupendous business of the several mills, while no less than 3,000 are engaged in the different saw mills and on the "runs." About 200,000,000 feet of lumber are manufactured here every year. It is only recently that Minneapolis has taken a front rank as a commercial centre. In 1876 her jobbing trade was $5,573,000; in 1885 it had increased to $32,667,500; the retail trade had increased from $9,000,000 in 1876 to $42,000,000 in 1885. The city has sixteen banks, with an aggregate capital of $6,250,000. There are ninety churches, thirty-two public schools, a state university and fifteen academies. The assessed value of the property in the city at this time is $89,078,967. This, in brief, is the substantial history of Minneapolis, and the history has been evolved in a little less than a quarter of a century. What is the secret of it? There are several secrets in one. The city owns everything to the fortunate position—its water power is practically unlimited, its manufacturing resources end less. The grain and lumber of the whole northwest, that greater empire, naturally seek here the methods to perfect it for the markets of the world. The splendid railway system has developed naturally to bring the grain products to these magnificent mills. And so it has come that Minneapolis has grown from 1 in 1875 to be the metropolis of one of the greatest of our northwestern states in 1885.

FORT SNELLING.

Minneapolis has many natural advantages, and its beautiful site has invited and suggested artistic adornment in every direction. The streets and avenues are of great width, well paved and kept in good repair. They are fringed with magnificent business blocks, handsome residences and beautiful church edifices, and one ascending to the roof of one of the higher buildings sees spread before him a panorama such as no other city can afford. The atmosphere is always clear; the great clouds of black smoke constantly ascending in other manufacturing centers are here unknown. Winding along the eastern edge of the city the lordly Mississippi speeds on it way and is lost in a fringe of woodland towards the south. Towards the west and north gentle slopes arise in the vicinity of Central and Groveland parks. On these wooded banks are already perched the suburban residences of the well-to-do, residences vieing in architectural beauty with the more pretentious mansions of older communities. Stretching towards the east and south is a beautifully diversified landscape, presenting all the topographical features and suburban beauties so common to the territory along the Hudson and under the shadow of the Berkshire hills. Wherever the eye rests there is an added charm for all the senses, and one must acknowledge that for natural situation surroundings and genuine comfort, to which must be added a special and aggressive progress, Minneapolis stands first and alone. This may seem like an extravagant statement, but it is true, and all who look upon the scene I have endeavored to portray admit it. If there are doubters I can only say: Come and see for yourselves.

If you want to see a nice line of poets go to Sailsbury's.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Shipment of Horses.

Mr. T. Cavanagh shipped to-day a car-load of sixteen fine horses to Boston, for the well-known horse buyer, Quintal, a French-man.

Grip's Comic Almanac.

The publication, for 1886, is to hand. It is brimful of amusement, containing besides its other attractions—a double-page cartoon, "Ancient Nursery Rymes for Modern Politicians." For sale by all book-sellers; only 10 cents.

W. F. M. S.

As we go to press a joint meeting of the ladies of the Methodist congregations of the town is in progress in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church with a view to organising a branch society in Peterborough of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. Miss Blackstock is addressing the meeting.

An Unfortunate Imbiber.

An unfortunate individual, under the influence of liquor, while wending his way up the west side of George street, on Saturday night, when opposite T. Dolan & Co.'s, was pushed by some heartless ruffian headlong into the muddy street, where he wallowed around for some time until assisted to the sidewalk by some good Samaritan.

Mischievous Mud Larks.

For some time past mud has been "a drug on the market." The streets were one sea of porridgy muck. On Saturday night some mischievous young urchins took advantage of the condition of the street crossings, and amused themselves by tramping through the mud, splashing whoever might chance to pass them, particularly young ladies.

Missionary Meetings.

Mr. Annand of the New Hebrides, (South Sea Island) Mission Field, now on furlough, will address a meeting in St. Paul's Church, on Thursday evening next. Mrs. Annand will address the Women' Foreign Missionary Society in their rooms on the afternoon of the same day. There will be a meeting of the W. F. M. Society this evening in their rooms. The Rev. F. H. Wallace will preach a missionary sermon in St. Paul's Church, next Sunday evening.

Have you tried our 5c. bottle Blue Black Ink. The best in the world. A. L. Davis & Co.

I. Robinson & Co. has just received a lot of excellent knit jackets for ladies.

Trouble Ahead.

Information has been laid against some parties for fighting on the street Saturday night. They will in all probability appear before Magistrate Dumble to-morrow to answer to the charge.

"The Fantastic" in Future.

A grand ball under the auspices of the Social club will be held in Bradburn's Opera House on Friday evening, December 4th. Tickets for couple to ball and supper, $1.00.

English Literature Class.

The class in English literature, in connection with the Y. M. C. A., conducted by Mr. B. Earle, holds its second session to-night at 8 o'clock. No charge for admission is made to the first few sessions of the class, and all are invited to attend.

Wrangling Rowdies.

Some loud-mouthed loafers hanging around the south-east corner of George and Hunter streets on Saturday night, were holding consultation of war, but scenting danger from afar, (a cop was coming) postponed the engagement.

Reduction in Reserved Seats.

The committee who have the management of St. Andrew's Society Concert, to be given on St. Andrew's night, 30th November, have decided to issue family tickets, admitting not less than six members to reserved seats, at the reduced rates of 35c. per head. Tickets may be had at T. Menzie's bookstore.

The Parlor Rink

A bright, cosy place is the Parlor Roller Rink, Water street, these dull, dreary nights, for spending an evening at. The company is always select, the rollers always correct, the managers never neglect to do all that one could expect, the interests of all to protect.

Elegance and Luxury.

Among the evidences so amply afforded on all hands of the progressive spirit peculiar to Peterborough, none perhaps is more noticeable than the growing improvement in carriages and buggies of all kinds. Fifty years ago the settler's rude bullock cart was alike the conveyance for burdens and the vehicle of pleasure in Peterborough, but to-day no town of its size in Canada can boast the appearance on its streets of more luxurious and elegant carriages. The latest addition to these is a remarkably handsome and comfortable family carriage built by Messrs. Porter Brothers, to the order of Mr. Geo. A. Cox. It is what is known in American carriage building circles as a Newhaven Cabriolet, one of the most popular classes of carriage among fashionable Americans. The body is of phaeton shape with a hood of fine American leather covering the seat at the back, and is beautifully painted and finished in black with silver plated mountings. There is seating capacity on occasion for six persons, there being a folding seat for children, which, when not in use, folds up into the boot or drivers seat. This is designed to accommodate two persons, and the part on which the driver sits is raised higher than the other part of it, being what is know as a French seat, giving the coachman more control over the horses. The seats are stuffed with the finest curled hair and covered with all wool green cloth, trimmed with green tufts to match. The lining of the sides is of English tapestry. The whole is built on a platform gear of the most scientific construction with iron axles. The painting, trimming and finishing in every detail are the work of artists in each particular line, Porter Brothers employing none but masters in their respective departments. The Porter Brothers have now in hand, and nearing completion, another carriage designed for one of our residents, a notice of which will appear when finished. This firm, though one of the youngest in their business in town, have, by their enterprise and the magnificent character of the work turned out by them, built up a reputation unequalled in Canada, and Porter's fine carriages bid fair to become a byword in every community capable of appreciating the very highest class of workmanship in that line. Altogether it is one of the finest carriages ever seen in this part of Canada, and will be a source of credit to its builders as well as a "joy forever" to its fortunate proprietor, who it is to be hoped may long live to lie back amid its luxurious cushions.

France is negotiating with the Hovas.

Personal.

Mr. C. E. Stewart, of the Bobcaygeon Independent, was in town on Sunday.

Mr. J. Willis, of Whitby, has secured a position with J. D. Tully, druggist, of this town.

Rev. A. H. Munro will deliver an address this evening in Lindsay. The Baptist congregation opened their new place of worship yesterday.

It was expected that Rt. Rev. Bishop Jamot would arrive in Cork, Ireland, on Saturday last, and that he celebrated mass in Cork Cathedral yesterday.

Chief of Police Johnston is on the sick list. Evil doers need not exult in this, as he will, in all probability, be on the path in few days, and there are yet policemen Pidgeon, Adams and McGinty to look after the towns welfare.

Downy Dressing.

The term honest farmer is never applied sarcastically. A resident of Ashburnham, purchased a large plump looking turkey from a farmer's wife on Saturday. The purchaser when he reached home was surprised with the startling fact that he had for once got more than he paid for. The BIRD was stuffed with a novel dressing, the farmer's wife having wadded it with feathers to make it of a desired plumpness. The feathers did not and much to the weight or value of the birds and caused some trouble to dislodge them, The victims intimates that he would prefer the feathers on the outside. The latest thing, table delicacy is a feather lined turkey.

Police Court.

Thomas Duncan, charged with assaulting James Payton at the Saved Army hall, previous to service, on Sunday night of last week, and later on disturbing the service, was brought before Magistrate Dumble this morning. It so happened that while Payton was attending to the Saved Army hall on the evening above mentioned, he was assaulted by a party who wanted admission to the hall before the usual hour, which was refused. The assailant then struck Payton in the face, threw him down and ran away.

During the service of the army, Payton pointed out to Mr. Wier Thos. Duncan, as the party who assaulted him, which Duncan denied, saying he had a good mind to strike Payton then. Duncan claimed an alibi which was proved by the evidence of Wm. Armstrong, Hounsel, and Jas. McDonald. It seems at the time of the row Duncan was in the Times office setting type. The case was dismissed.

What They are Saying.

The clerk of the weather is making up this fall for the hard deal the frost gave us last fall.—Waterworks Directors.

But he's making it dull for our trade.—The coal and wood merchants.

Thank Heaven for mild weather.—The shivering poor.

Admission to the English Literature classes at the Y. M. C. A., is gratis to-night.—Secretary Williams.

If you mean free, who don't you say so in good Anglo-Saxon?—The master in Earle-y English.

What We May Expect.

A joint meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee and the Waterworks Directors to-night.

And everybody to speak and act under hydraulic pressure.

St. Andrew's Society members to speak very braid Scotch till Nov. 30th.

"Allister McAllister" to feel slighted because he isn't invited to sing at the concert.

Some Montrealers to have sore heads before the Riel reaction is over.

Strong winds from northeast and north, increasing to moderate gales in some places; mostly fair, cool weather, with light local falls of sleet or rain.

We Would Like to Know.

Who assaulted young Payton at the Saved Army Hall.

Who was the farmer's wife who padded the turkey with feathers.

Whether she has applied for a patent or not.

And who was the victim who purchased the turkey—not the right:

If the trio of young ladies who call themselves respectable, are not ashamed of the exhibition they made on Water Street late on Sunday night.

And what was the cause of the other racket on the same street on the same night.

Dominion Doings.

Scarlet fever is prevalent in Brantford.

Volunteer scrip sells in London, Ont., for $55.

The first snow of the season fell at Fort McLeod Nov. 10th.

Five of a family named Bourget are down with smallpox at Cornwall.

Thos. C. Caines, of Hamilton, has been appointed chief constable of Paris.

The body of Thos. Mullett, who had been missing from Galt for some time, was found the other day in the Grand river.

The petit jury were discharged at Montreal and the libel suit against Le Monde and La Minerve, and also the Gagnon case, were adjourned until the March term.

Jas. Charleton, of Lyndhurst, Ont., was driving along the road when, being intoxicated, he fell off his waggon. He became entangled in the wheel and was dragged along until dead.

Councillor John Bayliss, aged 64, of Picton, N. S., dropped dead suddenly. Wm. Ross, aged 82, a neighbor, went to Mr. Baylis' assistance. As he was crossing the dead man's hands on his breast he, too, fell down and died.

The mystery surrounding the identification of the body recently found in the Welland Canal remains as profound as ever. Although it bears some resemblance of the missing H. S. Hughes, formerly of Dresden, Ont., it has been proved not to be his body.

The people of Bowmanville have presented each of the members of C Company, of the Midland Battalion with a sovereign bearing the inscription: "Batoche, 1885, Celer et Audax," in commoration of the party the company took in the Northwest rebellion.

Dr. Valade, who, with Dr. Lavell, of Kingston, and Dr. Jukes, of Regina, made an examination of Louis Riel previous to his execution, has returned to Ottawa, but refuses to say anything as to the conclusions he and the other members of the commission arrived at.

The idea of having Riel's body interred at Montreal has been abandoned, The remains have been deposited in a plain wooden coffin inscribed, "L. R., 1885," and buried in a vault below the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Regina N. W. T. Pere Andre read the burial service.

Off for England.

Sir John's Hasty Journey and Secret Setting Out.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—Sir John Macdonald's sudden flight to England is the chief topic of conversation here. People are inquiring whether he is going to follow the example of Sir David Macpherson and retire from politics, leaving others to settle the difficulties caused by his corrupt and imbecile administration. The news of his intended departure was withheld from the Government organs in Quebec Province yesterday, as the Premier feared a hostile demonstration in Quebec on the occasion of his arrival in that city. The story about his being obliged to go to England on business relating to the fishery and reciprocity questions is laughed at. Parliament will meet in about eight weeks, and there is still no Finance Minister, and will be none presumably until Sir John returns, if he does return at all. The report that Sir John intends to take the High Commissionership for himself and send out Sir Charles Tupper as leader of the Tory party is now generally believed.

Lieut. Gordon and Capt. Harbottle commenced their investigation into the Algoma loss on Saturday.

PETERBORO'. - PETERBORO'.

A few short months ago who would have thought that Hunter Street would be the business street of Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors, and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and will guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

MIKADO TEA.

MIKADO is the name of the Plantation owned by the MIKADO TRADING COMPANY.

The Plantation formerly belonged to the Mikado, or King of Japan, and was cultivated for the exclusive use of the Royal household.

The Plantation was bought from the King on condition that sufficient Tea should be supplied to the Royal Family, as the King would use no other.

It is an acknowledged fact, that the Teas grown on this Plantation are, for Purity, Strength and Flavor, the finest in the world.

It is put up in Half and One Pound packages, and is sold at the exceeding low price of 45 cents per pound.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Stock Shipment.

Mr. George Webber took a car load of fine fat stock to the Montreal market to-day.

The Actor of the Platform.

Stewart Rogers will be here 10th and 11th of Dec. to fill his engagements in the Opera House.

Committee Meeting.

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was held last evening in the Committee rooms, at which an agreement was entered into between the committee (for the town) and the Waterworks Co. A contract will be submitted at the Tuesday meeting of the Council for ratification.

Auxiliary Missionary Society.

At a meeting held last evening in the Carlotte Street Methodist Church the ladies of that congregation organized an Auxiliary Society of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Dr. Kincaid; Vice-President, Mrs. Geo. A. Cox; Secretary, Mrs. Keele; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Alfred Davis; Treasurer, Mrs. Flavelle; Executive Committee, Mrs. Dumble, Mrs. McFadden, Mrs. Morrow, Miss Butcher.

A Jewel of a Jersey.

Mr. Robert Walton, of Willow Spring Farm, Smith, has made an important move in importing a thoroughbred Jersey heifer calf. The little butter building beauty arrived from quarantine at Point Edward today. She was purchased from Mr. C. H. Church, of New London, O. and was sent by express to Mr. Walton, some seven hundred miles. The peculiarity of the Jersey breed of cattle is that the large supply of milk given is almost pure cream and makes more butter to the gallon than that of any other breed.

What They are Saying.

Large attendance at the Palour Roller Rink.—The manager.

And a nice crowd in attendance.—Those who attend.

Eight tramps registered in the Police Station last night.—The Police.

They should be made to crack stone for an appetizer.—Ratepayers.

The nearer the skies the better the light for taking first-class photographs. — Geo. B. Sproule.

Wedding Bells.

On Tuesday, at St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. Father Conway performed the ceremony of marriage, that united for life Mr. Patrick Quinlan, son of Patrick Quinlan, Sr., Esq., of Asphodel, to Miss Bridget, daughter of Mr. John Conroy, of Otonabee. A large procession of neighbors and friends of the happy pair, consisting of about fifty persons (including Mr. Thos. Blezzard, M. P. P., an old friend of the parties, who thinks, very highly of both of them), escorted them to the Cathedral, Mr. T. Cavanagh's prize pair of gallant grays, having the honour of drawing the bride and bridegroom. During the marriage ceremony, Mr. D. Conroy, brother of the bride, supported the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Ann Quinlan, sister of the bridgeroom acted as bridesmaid. The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful and valuable presents. Before starting to town the party partook of lunch at Mr. Conroy's hospitable residence, and after the ceremony Mr. T. Cavanagh supplied the wedding dinner in a manner worthy of the importance of the occasion. The EXAMINER joins the many friends of the happy pair in wishes for long and happy years of wedded life.

Personal.

Mr. Grier, wife and mother leave this evening for Guttenburg, Iowa. Tickets supplied by Mr. T. Menzies, route per G.T.R. and connections.

Miss Kate Conway leaves for London, England, this evening via New York, on a ticket supplied by Mr. T. Menzies.

Mr. T. Menzies supplied Senor Augeoro Laredo Pedro, a Spanish gentleman, with a ticket via the White Star Line, for Barcelona Spain, by way of New York and Paris.

Port Hope.

Our town was lighted with electricity on Saturday night for the first time. There were thirteen lights, but on account of the moonlight they did not get a fair trial, as no doubt they will show to better advantage on a dark night. Where they are placed and for a long distance around it is as light as day, far ahead of any number of gas lamps. The power is a very steady one, derived from Beamish's milldam. Mr. J. W. Quinlan deserves credit for the energy and promptness he has displayed in filling his contract. The light is splendid, but we imagine more lights will be needed to make the street lighting entirely satisfactory.—Guide.

The Authors of the Orange Resolutions.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

By refering to the Review of the 5th or 6th of November, you will see the following resolutions which were passed by L.O.L. 80.

"That in the present condition of Ireland we, the assembled members of L. O. L., No. 80, believe it to be the duty of all Protestants to join together to oppose the advance of the so-called Nationalists (Parnellites) and to show a united front against sedition and anarchy."

"That this L. O. L., No. 80, sees with [illegible] ward to prevent the rebel, Riel, from paying the just penalty of his many crimes on the scaffold, and that this lodge is of opinion that no further respite should be granted him, but he should suffer the extreme penalty of the law and be hanged in fulfillment of the sentence passed upon him.

"And that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Sir John Macdonald."

Since the above resolutions were passed, I have been disgusted to see the double game that is being played by some orangemen in Peterborough, while they are endeavoring to obtain credit from the orangemen for passing these resolutions, they are at the same time trying to convince the Roman Catholics that brother McWilliams was the mover of them. Although I do not agree with brother McWilliams politically, yet I will not stand quietly by and see him injured by men who have not the courage to father their own resolutions. Brother McWilliams is master of L.O.L. No. 49, and is not a member of L.O.L. No. 80, nor was he present at the meeting at which the above resolutions were passed. That there may be no misunderstanding and that whatever credit or blame there is, may be given to the proper person, I will let the public know that they were not moved by Mr. J. B. McWilliams. Many of the members wondered why the movers objected to their names appearing, but the mystery is solved and will not raise them in the estimation of the Conservative Orangemen of this county, who prefer having Bro. McWilliams as leader even if he is a Liberal, to being led by men who would do in a lodge room what they evidently would not do in public.

Yours, etc.,
A CONSERVATIVE ORANGEMAN.

The Bulkan Belligerent.

A Set-back for the Servians.

SOFIA, Nov, 23.—After a stiff battle yesterday afternoon, the Servians were driven out of the Dragoman Pass by the Bulgarians, who then occupied the Pass.

The People Alarmed.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The people at Belgrade are anxious and alarmed. King Milen, it is stated, desires to retrieve his losses before agreeing to an armistice. Advices from Tzaribrod state the weather there is terribly severe. Dragoman Pass is blocked with snow. Subscription lists have been opened through Austria and Hungary in aid of the Servians. Liberal responses are being made. There are six thousand wounded men at Pierot. Bulgarian prisoners have been brought to Belgrade state, many Russians and Englishmen are serving as officers or privates in the Bulgarian army. A depach from Sofia says the Servian prisoners state King Milan intended to celebrate his birthday in Sofia and that he promised his soldiers a rare feast of roast mutton and good wine on the occasion.

The Counsel of the Conference.

A despatch from Canstantinope says the Balkan conference has resolved in favor of the appointment of a temporary governor of Roumelia and of a commission to enquire into the future administration of the country.

Austria's Hand.

Another Constantinople despatch says the latest accounts from Eastern Roumelia show the people thoroughly disgusted with the present state of affairs, and they will readily welcome a Turkish commissioner. Prince Alexander has brought great joy by his assurance of a peaceful restoration of the status quo ante as regards Eastern Roumelia. Austria will probably soon intervene to prevent further bloodshed in Bulgaria. It is strongly suspected that Austria gave King Milan a hint to declare war for the purpose of forcing the desired solution.

Greece on Her Good Behavior.

The Greek Government has given assurances with respect to the maintenance of peace with Turkey. In view of the menacing attitude lately assumed by Greece, the Porte had ordered a squadron of ironclads to sail for Salonica to day. The Greek Government has also been informed that at the first outbreak of hostilities all Hellenic subjects would be expelled from Turkish territory. This threat brought the Greeks to terms on a former occasion.

Widdin in Flames.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Telegrams from Sofia say the Servians have abandoned Widdin and that the city is on fire.

Thousands of Trunks.

From 5,000 to 7,000 trunks a day have been arriving in Philadelphia by cars and boats for several weeks past. These trunks have been a-summering. They have been pretty nearly everywhere on this broad earth's surface and have returned from the hills and the dales, from the seaside and the riverbanks and from away over the sea. Lots of them have been to Paris and seen all that the name implies. A great many, now that the theatrical season is fairly opened, have come to town to look after the people who instruct, entertain and amuse sojourners here during the fall and winter. Many of the trunks are as instructive and amusing as their masters and mistresses, if you look at them rightly. They are of all shapes and sizes—big, little, square and oblong, fat and bulgy, tall and thin. Some of them are aged and infirm, others are youthful and vigorous, and like their masters and mistresses, they are of all degrees of condition and style.

"Now that's a nice lot of 'stuff' over there," said Dan Watson, the baggage master at the Pennsylvania depot. "Come over and I'll show it to you. Just look at it! Some pieces don't look as if they would bring twenty-five cents apiece at auction. Look at those scratched and shaky looking wooden posts. These are marble pillars, my boy, that will stand this evening on either side of a magnificent gate which opens into the lordly grounds of His Imperial Highness the Grand Duke. The stages, you know, and the lights and scenes will make all the difference."

Casting his eyes about the immense baggage room the reporter thought it looked as though a thousand English hunters had arrived with their usual quantities of "juggage" and were on their way to the plains to shoot buffalo.

Theatrical and other companies travel with 50 to 300 pieces of baggage. Emerson's opera company had as high as 800 pieces. Some of them take their own scenery wagons with them, as no such conveyance cannot be procured in every city. Upon inquiry at the hotels the clerks informed the reporter that since the centennial exhibition they have not been more crowded than they now are. They have little room for any more trunks with their owners.—Philadelphia Times.

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR.

[From the Globe, Saturday Nov. 21st.]

Do Canadians wish to propitiate Riel's shade and immortalise his memory by sacrificing their country on his grave!

If not, they will do well to keep their heads cool in this juncture.

Some portion of the press of Ontario, we regret to observe, finds occasion in the Quebec furore to whet prejudice against the French people. We would ask every good citizen, whatever be his party, whatever may have been his opinion as to the expediency of hanging Riel, to do bare justice to our French-speaking fellow-countrymen at this time; to consider impartially the causes of their wrath against the Ministry, and to resent it only so far as it may be found unreasonable and unnatural. We ask all the fair-minded English-speaking citizens to put themselves in the place of the men of Riel's race before charging them with offensive sympathy for an indefensible rebel.

The man represented a cause.

To deny that the halfbreeds had sore grievances would be futile in view of the proceedings of the Scrip Commission which was set to work the moment they appeared in arms. They had vainly petitioned for redress again and again. They were without representation in Parliament. Their clergy had fruitlessly appealed to the Cabinet on their behalf. The people had fairly tried and fairly exhausted every method of which they could conceive for gaining mere justice. Their patience in the circumstances was wonderful and admirable.

In a like position men of English blood would have sternly appealed to the sword after their petitions had been neglected; to doubt it would be treason to the most glorious memories of British freedom. From time immemorable men of English race have been ready to rebel against any authority not yielding quickly to their just demands; they have been the freest of men because the most rebellious.

But the halfbreeds are a simple, ignorant, submissive people. Instead of rising when all petitions had been proved hopeless they sent a deputation to Louis Riel, ascribing their failure in seeking justice to their ignorance of political methods.

Let us be just to the man, now that he is dead and can trouble us no more.

He had refused to come to the aid of his kinsmen, and he told them to go back and endure injustice uncomplainingly till it might please God to soften the hearts of their rulers, Riel would have been a more contemptible and cowardly creature than he proved himself on the scaffold of Regina. He indeed objected to accompany them, he argued with them, he assured them of his inability to aid them, but in the end he yielded. And, let who may object, we say that he did well in so yielding. It has been proved beyond cavil that he returned with them, not designing to become a firebrand, but to organize a constitutional agitation. He was within his legal rights, his term of banishment had expired, his recent presence in Manitoba had excited no tumult whatever. He came to further an agitation not only legal, but proved justifiable by the subsequent concessions of the Ottawa Administration. His conduct of that agitation was, for many months, open, fair, above-board, public. He addressed meetings, he invited the aid of white settlers, he obtained their aid.

To a much less sanely-conducted agitation in Dakota, of the Devil's Lake settlers, the Government at Washington had, not long before, yielded promptly and graciously, as justice demanded.

It may be said safely that the administrators of any other free country than Canada would have attended instantly to a movement so reasonable and with such possibilities of becoming dangerous, as that which Louis Riel headed.

But warned though they were, the Government utterly ignored the discontent, till the fatal period when Lawrence Clarke and other ruling officials threatened Riel with arrest, and his supporters that their petitions should be answered with bullets.

The rest of the story all know too well.

It is written in the blood of brave Volunteers and brave Metis.

It should close with the death of Riel.

That it may so close the people of Ontario should recognize this truth—that nothing more than bare justice is demanded by the voice of their French Canadian countrymen.

Riel has died that English blood may no longer cry from the ground for his punishment.

But how shall justice be satisfied while those who are responsible for the shedding of French blood and English alike—of all the blood spilled during the campaign—still hold up their heads?

The cry of French Canada is practically for the completion of the National Assizes. To borrow Grattan's words, "The treason of "the Ministers against the liberties of the "people was infinitely worse than the rebel-"lion of the people against the Ministers." The demonstration of Quebec is simply a demonstration against the Ministers.

But should the people of Ontario not recognise the justice of that demonstration; should they not join in the demonstration to punish the wretches who have brought the country to this pass; should they not sternly hold the Cabinet to account for negligence, blundering, plundering, and bloodguiltiness; should they not unite the races again by joining with the French to put down the State criminals, even as the French joined the English to put down the rebels; then a permanent antagonism between the peoples will have been established, and the Dominion has entered on hopeless days.

Provinces. It rests on Ontario in particular. The desire of Quebec is not for revenge, but simply that full justice may be consummated. A hearty union of both Provinces to punish the Malefactors in office is the only course by which Canada can be saved.

Bank of Montreal Half-Yearly Statement.

A Montreal despatch says:—The half-yearly statement of the Bank of Montreal, to the 1st inst., was issued to the shareholders yesterday. The profits of the bank for the four past financial years are as follows:—Nov. 1st, 1882, $736,718; 1883, $692,668; 1884, $662,994; 1885, $662,777. Notwithstanding the net profits of the past half year were lower than the corresponding half year in 1884, the shares sold to-day at 206½, as compared with 189½ last year. There has been a shrinkage of $4,500,000 since 1884 to the loans to Government, Canadian Pacific and other corporations, and a decrease of $1,506,000 in commercial discounts, making a surplus of six millions of capital on hand, which cannot be utilized, as there is no demand for it.

Canadian Cheese.

The following article from the Monetary Times, will be read with interest by the large number interested in this growing industry, in the county of Peterborough:

Depression still overhangs the cheese market. Exporters complain of a lack of orders, the tone is weak and unsatisfactory and "the cheese situation fails to show any encouraging symptoms." Liverpool makes no improvement; New York continues dull; some holders in Montreal and in the country have weakened and have been constrained to accept much lower values than were current a week or two ago. Predictions of future disaster have been freely made on the ground that British importers do not want cheese at any price and that the amount held over this season will be of enormous proportions. The exports of cheese from Montreal have passed one million boxes for the second time in the history of the trade. The total exports this season to date were 1,013,813 boxes, of which 423,241 boxes were on true shipment—a decrease of 62,899 boxes compared with 1884, an increase of 175,019 over 1883, of 350,813 over 1882, and of 4,467,025 over 1881.

The exports of butter are in marked contrast to cheese. The total exports to 14th inst., from Montreal were 63,801 packages, of which 24,282 packages were on through shipment—a decrease of 40,397 packages compared with 1884, and of 25,252 from 1883, an increase of 1,796 over 1882, a decrease of 64,320 from 1881.

Mr. J. O. Neville gives to the Montreal Gazette a statement of the exports of dairy produce from the port of Montreal up to November 4th, 1885. The totals are

	Butter, pkts.	Cheese, boxes.
Total to date	63,801	1,013,813

Educational Notes.

There are at present sixteen educational institutions in the United States in want of presidents.

There were one hundred and forty-two applications for positions in the Glencoe public school.

The Belleville school board holds its teachers responsible for damages done to their schoolrooms and deducts the cost of repairing from their salaries.

The proposal made by the Waterloo Teachers' Association to impose a fee of $25 on all entering the teaching profession in causing considerable discussion. This fee is charged in nearly all the learned professions and much can be said in its favor in the case of teachers.

The Woodstock High School Board at a late meeting passed the following resolution: "That having had a conference with the teachers of our high school in reference to the new regulations regarding high schools and collegiate institutes, it is the judgment of the board that Woodstock high school is entitled to take the status of a collegiate institute, and that the necessary application be made to the Minister of Education."

The Peterborough trustees and teachers are having a warm discussion about school holiday. The board is going to deduct from the teachers' salaries sufficient to make up for lost time. We are decidedly of the opinion, says the Stratford Beacon, that teachers have now all the holidays they really need and that they are not justified in being absent from their duties for any other cause than sickness or attendance at properly organised teachers' institutes.

Well, their is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. Should there be any suffering, the effects of an indulgence in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. A Shattered Meeting.

If some sweet night, out of the mist and rain,
The sea's hoarse cry and the tumultuous pain
Of storm winds, wailing at their own unrest,
And sobbing cries from my own heart unblest—
A sudden bell should ring and I should hear
Your unforgotten voice close at my ear,
In calm conventional accents speak my name,
And looking up should see, as in a frame,
You standing in the doorway with a light
Full on your face, and close behind black night,
The day since last we said good-bye would seem
Like a strange tale or half-remembered dream!

But how to meet? With gladness I would rise,
To seek some answering gladness in your eyes;
And finding it—too moved to meet your smile,
Would lean my face against your arm awhile,
Mingling a tear-drop with the rain-drops there,
To feel your touch so tender on my hair!
And though my heart would be too deeply stirred
To give for welcome even one glad word,
I think your heart would hear to happy beat,
And understand that words would sound less sweet.
But what your voice would answer, quiet and low,
I cannot tell—I only long to know!

Around the hearth when raving storms and bitter winds do blow,
When all the wintry wolds are wrapped in shroud of whitest snow,
When closer to him doth his rags the shivering outcast draw,
Who dreams not of a single meal, and prays but for a thaw.

II.

Pile on more logs; the brighter that our cheery hearth doth glow,
The more our hearts shall warm to those who no such blessings know
As hearth and home, and kith and kin, and love of humankind,
Poor wanderers, who on this earth no jot of joy can find.

III.

Poor we may be, yet not so poor but that a penny fee
We have for such; and know, O Lord, we lend it unto Thee;
Who sideth not his brother when he knocketh at the door
Is none of Thine; for Thou, O Lord, wast gracious to the poor.

Pile on more logs; draw closer in, O grandsire, gray and old;
Climb, toddling darling, to his knee, and lay thy locks of gold
Upon his breast, and listen whilst the fairy tale he tells Dishes Borrowed from the Indians.

Mr. Edward Eggleston's paper, in the May Century, on "The Aborigines and the Colonists," takes ground in opposition to the Indian idealists. Our food and culinary indebtedness to the Indian is described as follows:

The corn was planted as our farmers plant it, in hills three or four feet apart, with four or five grains in a hill. Beans grew about the stalk then as now, and pumpkins or squashes filled the intervening space.

The very names of our dishes are witnesses that the European-Americans learned many ways of cooking from the Indians. Pone, hominy, samp, succotash, and suppawn are words borrowed from the aboriginal tongues; and the preparations of Indian corn which bear these names were served in wigwams, no doubt, for ages before the white man had ever seen the gay streamers and waving tassels of the maize-field. On a hot stone, or the bottom of an earthen vessel set before the fire, the aboriginal baked what the pioneer afterward baked on his hoe and called it hoe-cake; the toothsome southern "ash-cake" was also first made by the squaws, who shrouded it in husks before committing it to the fire. The Indians knew how to hull corn by applying lye. They celebrated the coming of the delicious green "roasting-ears" by a solemn feast. They nourished infants and invalids with maize-gruel, and they were before us with the merry pop-corn—"the corn that blossomed," as the Hurons called it.

But "our wild brethren and sisters" used Indian corn in ways unknown to us; it was their chief food, and they "put it through all its sauces." Jerusalem artichokes, dried currants, powdered mulberries,—indeed, almost all other sorts of fruit and flesh,—were mixed with it. They cooked little doughnuts of meal by dropping them into maple syrup. One of their most useful preparations was probably that which, in Virginia, was called rockahominy, and in New England, mokick—simply parched corn pulverized, and carried in a pouch in journeying; it was mixed, before eating, with snow in winter and with spring water in summer. They used maize for many other things; of the meal they made poultices; with a bowl of mush, given by the bride to her new lord, some tribes celebrated marriages; by means of the grains of maize, to represent a penny or stiver, the savage cast up his accounts with the trader; grains of corn were sent as tickets to those who were bidden to a feast; and, by putting them into gourds and turtle-shells, rattles were made. The husks they braided for mats and wrought into baskets, into light balls for some of their games, into salt-bottles, and even shoes long before the white man took the hint and made of them chair-bottoms, floor-mats, and collars for horses. Maize was worshiped as a divinity. Children were kept in the field to watch the precious grain as it grew; but some of the tribes protected the thievish crow, because of the legend that a crow had brought them the first seed of the plant which supported their life on so many sides.

From the aborigines the settlers learned the use of other articles of food, such as the persimmon of the South, and the so-called ground-nut of the North. Penn found the savages eating baked beans, as white people do yet in Boston. The festoons of drying pumpkin in the frontiersman's cabin are imitated from the Indians.

WIT AND HUMOR.

The latest new song has for a title "The Coming Man Will Happier Be."

A woman who invaded West Bend, Wis., and claimed to be the proprietor of the town and the whole country, was declared to be crazy and taken care of by the town officials. This furnishes a precedent for looking up the railroad men who labor under the delusion that they own the earth.—Boston Globe.

"Pa, am I a colonel?" asked little Annie Wallace the other evening. "Why, no, my daughter. What makes you ask that?" "Why, 'cause Ella Hughes, from Cincinnati, what's visitin' next door, told me yesterday I was a colonel, 'cause I was born in Kentucky." "That, daughter, is Ohio ignorance. I am the only colonel in this family."—Kentucky State Journal.

When the high-school girl went to Tidioute to spend a week at Thanksgiving she wrote a letter to Amy which nearly drove that young lady wild in the effort to ascertain her meaning. It began: "My visual organs were delighted to trace the inanimate lines of your [illegible] face." Amy is still quite sick.

I heard a group of little folks chattering to each other not long ago, and boasting of the different occupations of their respective paternal relations. Said one small youth, "My papa is smarter'n yours, 'cause he's a lawyer." "No; my papa is the best, 'cause he's a senator and a lieutenant-colonel." "Not much he ain't; my papa is better'n all;—he's a pall bearer."—San Francisco Report.

"One Good Turn, etc"—A.: "The tailor you recommended to me is a regular scamp. I gave the fellow my ulster to repair and he has gone and pawned it." B.: "Ah, well, but you see, my dear sir, he has redeemed my coat instead—that is just the reason why I recommended that tailor. Now you had better go and recommend him to somebody else, and it won't be long before you get your ulster back again."—Fliegende Blätter.

Something lacking. Baker—"Yes, mum; I now put my name on my bread to prevent my rivals from imitating my loaves and getting my custom." Housekeeper—"A wise precaution. But was that bread you left here yesterday genuine?" "O, yes, mum." "Then I would suggest that you add something besides your name to the loaves." "Certainly, mum, if you say so. What is it?" "The date."

A Boylston street dentist was recently asked by one of his lady patients if he would make a set of false teeth for her dog, who, being old, had lost his own. She said she was willing to have the experiment made on her darling, whose digestion was now greatly impaired, and that many other people she knew would be glad to have their pets' absent teeth replaced if her dog's set was a success. The dentist declined to try.—Beacon.

The dude is no longer fashionable. He is out of date and far removed from the fashionable men of to-day. The dude was in his glory a little less than two years ago, when the fashion of wearing abominably tight trousers, vacant smiles, pointed boots, and silver-headed sticks first started in. For the first time in the history of civilization a fashion was popular which gave narrow-chested, cadaverous, and spindle-shanked young men a chance for their lives.—San Francisco Argonaut.

"Wife—"Did you meet Mrs. Smythe at the party last evening? She has been abroad a long time, you know." Husband—"Yes, I had quite a chat with her, and, judging from her manner, I am very much afraid I offended her." Wife—"Offended her. And how, pray?" Husband—"By paying her a very pretty compliment." Wife—"Nonsense. A woman is never offended by a pretty compliment. What did you say to her?" Husband—"I told her she was growing old gracefully." Wife—"Well, you are a fool."

The tallest bird known to ethnologists was found by Professor Herbert in the lower eocene deposits near Paris, France. It was over twelve feet in height, and could have bitten a man's head off as easily as a woodpecker can nip a cherry. We cannot be too thankful that this bird has gone out of fashion and existence. Ladies would have wanted to wear it on their hats, and the price would have been frightfully high. And besides, men who sat behind such bonnet ornaments in the theaters would be unable to see whether a ballet or a prayer-meeting was in progress on the stage.—Norristown Herald.

"Gentleman," said the professor to his medical students assembled in clinic, "I have often pointed out to you the remarkable tendency to consumption of those who play upon wind instruments. In this case now before us we have a well-marked development of lung disease, and I was not surprised to find, on questioning the patient, that he is a member of the brass band. Now, sir," continued the professor, addressing the consumptive, "will you please tell the gentlemen what instrument you play on?" "I plays der drum," said the sick man.

A few days ago a teacher in one of our up-town public schools was exercising her class in definition of words and the writing of sentences. "Deceitful," she said, "means false;" and she told one of her scholars, a tow-headed boy, to write on his slate a sentence with "deceitful" in it. He scratched his cranium, looked at the ceiling, and then ran his pencil over the slate. "Read what you have written," said the teacher. "My ma has deceitful teeth," was what he read. The teacher laughed, and the boys laughed, and they laughed so long that it was time to go home before they recovered.

Andrew Stora, of Waterbury, has a beautiful trained bluejay which is a most remarkable mocking bird. He was captured while very young and educated by a man in Watertown. Perhaps the most remarkable of the bird's imitations is his perfect mocking of a crowing rooster, which is so exact as to deceive everybody. Still his other imitations are quite as perfect and wonderful. Not a crow crows, not a hen cackles, not a horse neighs, not a man whistles, nor any kind of a fowl utters its natural note without being perfectly mocked very promptly by this bluejay. The shrill cry belonging to its kind is rarely heard from its throat.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Worn Crossings.

Complaints are being made concerning the bad state of the crossings to St. Paul's Church. These crossings are certainly poor, being worn and narrow. The congregation is one of the largest in town, and should the street inspector give these crossings his careful attention, he would receive the benediction of the people.

A Gallant Group.

Mr. H. LeBrun has placed in his window on exhibition a finely finished photograph of the Independent Lacrosse Club, of Boston, in a conspicuous place, in which appears the athletic form of his brother, Mr. C. LeBrun, formerly of the Peterborough team, but now a member of the above champion team. Peterborough blood will come to the surface even in the cultured city of Boston.

Bright Prospects.

The Rev. Mr. Bell, of St. Andrew's church, returned on Monday from Havelock, where he assisted in the opening services of the new church. He speaks in the highest terms of the Havelock charge. The members are very sincere and energetic in the work, have a neat and comfortable church, and all that is required to make it a complete institution is a regular pastor, which in all probability they will have ere long.

Who is He?

The Monetary Times says:—Among the correspondents who have obligingly replied to our circular asking the condition of trade, is a barrister in the southern part of Peterborough county. It is a sad evidence of dulness experienced in his profession that he has actually time to indulge in humorous suggestion, thus:—"Regarding the state of trade in this locality, I would say that the legal fraternity are far from satisfied with it. The general public seems to have all it can comfortably do; there seems sufficient money for every enterprise, and yet, why a small part of it is not judiciously invested in litigation, is the momentous question the said fraternity would like satisfactorily answered. In the meantime we are of opinion there is something radically wrong in the state of Denmark—or, if you like, the state of trade—It must be understood the above is "without prejudice," for really we cannot spare any that we have very justly against the condition of things you enquire about."

More Work for the County Attorneys.

An order-in-Council approved by the Lieut-Governor on Oct. 9th, directs that it would thereafter be the duty of the County Attorney of each county to supervise the collection of fines, penalties, and forfeited recognizances to which the province is entitled, and that he be authorized to receive on behalf of the Treasurer of Ontario, from sheriffs, justices of the peace, and others, all monies to which the Province is entitled for fines, penalties and forfeited recognizances, and in case the sum received amounts to $50, that he be required to pay over to the Treasurer of Ontario every such sum forthwith on the receipt thereof, whether or not any additional sum is to be received in the same manner; and it case the sum received is under $50, then that he be required to pay the same over as aforesaid, as soon as he had received sums amounting to $50, and at any rate on the first of January, April, July or October next succeeding the receipt of any sum. Proper particulars to be given with each sum paid or remitted.

Havelock Presbyterianism.

The dedication of the new Presbyterian at Havelock, which has been looked forward to with pleasant expectancy, occurred on Sunday last. The dedicatory services were conducted in the morning by the Rev. Mr. Carmichael, and in the afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Bell of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough. These services were earnest and impressive, encouraging the hopeful band of worshippers on to greater and more earnest work. On both occasions the edifice was crowded to its utmost capacity, and much enthusiasm prevailed. The contributions were extremely liberal, leaving the property almost free from debt. The church is a neat and attractive frame building, with a seating capacity of 300, tastefully fitted up with all the necessary furniture. It is also comfortably situated. The progress of this little band of worshippers has been very marked, it has grown from comparatively few to a numerous and energetic congregation. A couple of years ago the charge of Havelock was organized, and has been sustained by students of sterling ability and of the right spirit. During the winter months Mr. Carmichael has had the responsibility of sustaining and supplying the pulpit. His efforts, with those of his colleagues have been attended with abundant success, and the charge is now in a flourishing condition. The people have supported nobly every effort of their leader. It is expected that pastor is the next requisition.

Visitation.

The police station was the victim of a small surprise party on the evening of yesterday. Eight tough tramps bore down on that palatable abode and demanded admittance of the host of that house, and, according to the social custom which prevails, were allowed to remain over night.

Parlour Roller Rink.

There was an unusually large attendance at the Parlour Roller Rink last night, and the happy throng whirled around over the glassy floor, delighted with the thrilling enjoyment until late hours. There is no more suitable place than the Parlour Rink to drive away dull care and yield an enjoyable evening's exercise.

Furthering Facilities.

The improvements which have been carried on in the meat shop of Mr. Geo. Matthews for some days past are now completed, with a slight exception, giving more room and a brighter appearance to the shop. The office has been removed to the rear of the shop, giving Mr. Barlow plenty of elbow room on either counter for measuring sausage by the yard, and the proper handling of other stock in trade.

Handsome Horses.

Mr. T. Cavanagh purchased from Mr. Jas. Davis, of Smith township, a well-matched team of draught horses for A. H. Campbell, lumber merchant, of Muskoka Mills, for the sum of $300. The team are particularly well matched and have won prizes on several occasions. They are bright bays, with four white feet, aged 6 and 7 years old respectively, stand 15½ hands high and weigh in the neighborhood of 1,600 pounds each.

A Special Reception.

As Mrs. Annand will be unable to be in Peterborough on time to address a meeting at 3 o'clock on Thursday next, as has been announced, the ladies of St. Paul's W. F. M. S. intend holding a reception in the ladies' parlor of St. Paul's Church; from 5 to 8 on that afternoon, when Mrs. Annand will be present. All interested in Foreign Mission work are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Resumed Work.

Yesterday morning the men resumed work in Mr. Peter Hamilton's Agricultural Implement Works after a cessation of two weeks, during which period the manufactory has been thoroughly overhauled and all necessary improving and repairing done. Mr. Hamilton has made several improvements in his deservedly popular binder, and increased facilities for the production of it and other machinery made by him. He expects to do a largely increased trade during the ensuing season, which the excellence of his machinery ensures.

Fine Art Sewing.

Mr. N. Johnson, General Agent for the New York Domestic Sewing Machine, which is represented by Mr. D. Smart, of this town, has been here during this week making arrangements for giving an exhibition of fine art work with the Domestic Machine. The exhibit will consist of arasene, tinsel and other difficult and fine work, at which Mr. Johnson is an adept. The ladies of Peterborough will do well to attend the exhibition, which will take place about the 15th of December. Further and more definite notice will be given later on.

Police Court.

There were two cases before Magistrate Dumble this morning, which he quickly disposed of. John Hayes charged with using profane language was convicted and fined $2.00. Henry Lynch and Charles Beavis, up on a charge of fighting on the streets on Saturday night, pleaded not guilty, but on evidence being taken were found guilty and fined $2.00 each or ten days. The evidence, which was of rather a comical turn, showed that in the melee Beavis set upon his opponent Lynch, over the head with a quart pail of oysters, bespattering him with the contents, when a scuffle ensued in which they exchanged blows and hats. They paid their fines.

Anniversary Services of the Mark Street Methodist Church.

The anniversary services in connection with the Mark Street Methodist Church, Ashburnham, will (D.V.) be preached by the Rev. E. Roberts, of Bowmanville, on Sunday next, Nov. 29th, at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. A public meeting, at 3 o'clock, in the interests of the Sabbath School, will also be addressed by Rev. Mr. Roberts. Collections at each service. On Monday evening, Nov. 30th, tea will be served by the ladies of the congregation in the town hall, opposite the church. After tea addresses will be delivered by the following reverend gentlemen:—D. N. McCamus, I. Tovell, chairman of the district, and E. Roberts, chairman of the Bowmanville district. Excellent music will be furnished by a select choir. The tea will be served from 6 30 to 8 o'clock p. m. Admission only 25c. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Lindsay Baptists.

Yesterday, Rev. Mr. Munro went to Lindsay to speak at the tea meeting held in connection with the new Baptist church which was opened on Sunday. There was a very large attendance, and addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Munro and others. The tea was exceedingly successful, over $200 having been netted. Rev. W. K. Anderson is the pastor of the congregation, worshipping in the new church, which is a parallel in style of architecture, a mode of transfer to the Murray St. church. Before the union of the Methodist bodies, it was occupied by the Bible Christians. The new church is almost an exact counterpart of the Peterborough edifice with the exception that the school room is built in the rear instead of being a basement. That the Lindsay Baptists have so fine a place of worship is chiefly due to the energy and liberality of Mr. George Matthews, of Matthews & Son, of the Peterborough pork packing establishment. Mr. Matthews himself purchased the edifice, paying for it $3,700. He not only turns the church over to the use of the congregation, and waits for the repayment without interest, till the old property of the church can be sold, but he also offers to accept $2,500 in full payment of $3,700—equivalent to a clear gift of $1,200. Almost every congregation of the Baptist Church contains one or more whole-souled and liberal men like Mr. Matthews.

Personal.

We regret to learn that Mr. John McBain, Sr., is prostrated with a serious attack of illness.

Mr. J. C. R. Argue left town this morning for Kingston, to enter upon a course of instruction and training at the Royal Military College in that city.

Mrs. B. Fenton, Miss Fenton and Mr. M. Gurr, of Ashburnham, purchased from Mr. T. Menzies, tickets for Guttenburgh, Iowa via G.T.R. and connections.

Mr. Nelson Johnson, general agent for the Domestic Sewing Machine, is in town on business connected with the interest he represents. Messrs. D. Smart & Son are the local agents.

Mr. Wm. McGregor, of Young's Point, for many years in the employment of Messrs. Chalmers', of that place, left to-day for Victoria, B. C., via the C. P. R.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, of the C. P. R. Agency, this morning ticketed seven passengers for Arapahoe, Nebraska, via the line which he represents, and its connections. The C.P.R. is becoming very popular.

Many of our readers will read with deep regret the death of Mr. David Marshall Collector of Customs of Portage la Prairie, which took place on Saturday night last. Deceased was for many years a prominent citizen of Port Hope, and at one time and another was identified with all the public bodies of the town.

The low prices of our Family Bibles astonish every one. A. L. Davis & Co.

PETERBORO'. - PETERBORO'.

A few short months ago who would have thought that Hunter Street would be the business street of Peterboro. Everybody is astonished, and strangers say Peterboro is the only town in Canada where the building trade is booming. Well, that may be so but you bet that FLAHERTY & CLARK are booming the Tailoring Trade. Our hands are working night and day to catch up with the immense amount of work we have ahead. We have the goods, the staff of tailors, and our prices are rock bottom. Our Cutter, Mr. KILPATRICK, has charge of the Tailoring Department, and wil guarantee a first-class Fitting Garment.

A Neat and Novel Device.

Messrs. Kingan & Co., have made a handsome addition to the facilities of their already handsomely appointed hardware shop. It is a cash register and till combined, placed at a convenient point on their counter. It is a most ingenious arrangement for registering and checking the cash placed in the till. It is provided with a key-board, similar to that of a type-writer, except that there are only two banks of keys. These keys are their combinations admit of recording the amount deposited in the till, by figures ranging from 7 to 9 hundred. A salesman makes a sale, say of 50 cents, value. He presses the key labelled 50, the till drawer shoots out, (it can be opened in no other way), and at the same moment a label is displayed in front of the apparatus, in full view of the customer, which shows 50 cents. The customer will thus know if the salesman "puts down" five cents and only puts 45 cents in the till, or the proprietor can see the label from any part of the shop, and seeing the article sold and knowing its price, can almost surely detect any crooked work. There is also another infallible check on the salesman. The pressure on the key not only displays to full view the amount of the deposit, but it registers the same amount in the inner part of the apparatus. This latter register is consulted at the close of the day and the cash is made up and checked by filling in a blank, similar to a bank deposit slip. If the counted cash fails to correspond with the amount registered, that is straight proof that something crooked has been going on. The till drawer can only be opened by pressing the key that records a sale. This ingenious and convenient apparatus is a beautiful piece of work, being enclosed in a splendidly polished and carved walnut case. It cannot be described in words, but a sight of it, which doubtless the Messrs. Kingan will be glad to allow any business man, will convince the latter of its merits, and the firm will also procure the Cash Register for those who desire, after seeing it, to get one for themselves. It is both a beauty and a wonder. Call and see it.

Real Estate Change.

Mr. H. A. Hammond has purchased from Mr. John Douglass, councillor, the well-built brick residence and half-acre lot, corner of Downey and Brock streets, lately occupied by Mr. A. White. The figure is $6,000, cash.

A Kind of Beginning.

Acting on instructions from the Dominion Department of Public Works, Mr. J. E. Belcher, C. E., was to-day engaged in taking levels of the Phalen lot, for the use of the architect in preparing plans for whatever structure may be put on the lot. Nobody knows what will be put on the site, for Mr. Belcher has also taken levels of the syndicate site for a similar purpose.

An "At Home."

A delightful "At Home" was held at the residence of Mrs. Shaw, Stewart street, last evening by the ladies of St. John's South Ward Sunday School. The spacious rooms were literally packed and a varied programme of amusements was provided. A sale of useful articles was held in one room, while in the drawing-room there was singing and music, consisting of song by Miss Errett, a song by Mr. Craven, a song by Mr. Hammond, piano solo by Miss Wright and a song, "The Midshipmite," given by Mr. Carter in excellent style. Miss Errett and Miss Dongan furnished the accompaniments. Excellent refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening was spent. As a result of the entertainment a substantial addition was made to the nucleus of the funds of the chapel and school room to be erected in No. 1 Ward. The zeal and energy of the ladies concerned is worthy of all praise.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[The publisher of THE EXAMINER does not hold himself responsible for the facts asserted, nor the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

Concerning Color Blindness.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

I am told that very many of the railroad accidents we read of from time to time are caused by what is known as color blindness on the part of the engineers. To prevent the recurrence of these terrible collisions, causing unheard of destruction to property and loss of life, the railway companies are forced to test the visions of some of their employes, and I learn that in this way serious disasters are being materially lessened. An extraordinary case of this kind has lately been brought under my notice, but no inspector has been consulted, and I fear, judging from past experience, fatal consequences may be hourly looked for if some precautions be not taken in time. There are a number of cases of special interest in town, and a meeting was held last week and a partial test was made, with the following results:—Two could not distinguish orange from blue, and two could not distinguish green from red. This is considered very remarkable, indeed, and proves the necessity of further investigation. If you consult the back numbers of your paper and the Review you will see that the officers of the National League and Conservative Association are as follows:—

National League.	Conservative Association.
Dr. O'Sullivan,	George W Hatton,
Thos. Cahill,	John Corkery,
John O'Meara,	George W. Hall,
John Corkery,	John O'Meara.

As Mr. Cahil has had considerable experience in railroading, and is well aware of the numerous accidents caused by engineers being unable to distinguish the different colours, I would suggest that at the next meeting of the Conservative Association, he get Mr. George W. Hatton to move, and Mr. George W. Hall to second the following resolution as a test, viz:—"That in the present condition of Ireland we, the assembled members of the Conservative Association believe it to be the duty of all Conservatives to join together to oppose the advance of the so-called Nationalists, and to show a united front against sedition and anarchy." If Mr. Hatton has not time to write out this resolution, I have no doubt Mr. Hall could obtain the original from Mr. C. W. Sawers to use at that meeting. If all are not unanimous after the above test, it will be necessary to call the attention of the town physician, as the disease might become epidemic and very injurious to the town.

Yours, etc.,

King Thebaw's Reign Over.

BOMBAY, Nov. 24.—The Indian Government is preparing to administer the Government of Burmah and is purchasing material for railways.

Foreigners Surrender.

Advices from Silemyo say no news has been received of the Europeans in Mandalay, Canotto and Maslinar. The Italian engineers, in the service of King Thebaw, have surrendered to the British.

The Burmese Belt.

RANGOON, Nov. 24.—A despatch from Minbla says severe fighting took place yesterday, in a jungle, continuing until the central post of the Burmese was captured, when they fled in all directions.

Further Fighting in Prospect.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—A despatch from Sofia stating that Widdin has been set on fire by the bombardment of the Servians is considered authentic, but does not necessarily imply that the city has fallen into the hands of the besiegers. The capture of the place would be of comparatively little advantage to the Servians unless they also secure some foothold in the south, as the Bulgarians, if successful at Slivnitza, will be able to repel any advance towards Sofia from the direction of Widdin. Reinforcements continue to arrive from Eastern Roumelia, and the Servian forces are also being strengthened by new levies from the reserves. The cost of the war has already been enormous. The debts incurred will be a serious burden for both these rather poor nations. Prince Alexander has appointed M. Tricoupis to enter consult a Turkish commissioner to Eastern Roumelia until the termination of Bulgaria's war with Servia. Regarding the question of hostilities, Prince Alexander says; "As a soldier I can only propose an armistice when my troops are within the borders of Servia."

The Situation.

London, Nov. 24.—As far as can be judged from the conflicting telegrams the situation at the seat of war is as follows:—Prince Alexander has held at bay the Moravian and Shumadian divisions, which were advancing via Adriomer, and prevented them from joining the Drina and Danube divisions. He has driven the latter back from Dragoman. The Moravian and Shumadian divisions still hold their position, and are probably commanded by King Milan. The people of Belgrade are anxious as to how the Servian will escape defeat. The Servian reverses are attributed to blunders made by the favorites of King Milan, who are in command.

Turkey Interferes.

A despatch from Vienna to the Times says: Russia and England have induced the Porte to despatch a note to Servia to-day, counselling King Milan to stop the war. The Servian war accounts are unreliable. All correspondents are excluded from the Servian lines except two Austrian correspondents, whose despatches are cooked.

Ready for the Fray.

A despatch to the Standard from Soleneí, opposite Slivnitza, dated 1 o'clock Monday morning, says.—King Milan and Premier Garrachainne had arrived at the headquarters. The Servian army was drawn up facing the enemy and was preparing for a final attempt to break through and force its way to Sofia.

Clearing the Soil.

SOFIA, Nov. 24.—The city is wild with excitement over the news from the front stating that Prince Alexander, at the head of the Bulgarian troops, has followed up his victories and is driving the Servians slowly but surely from Bulgarian territory.

A Triumphant Entry.

The latest despatch says Prince Alexander stormed the heights of Tzaribrod and occupied the city last evening. The Prince made a triumphant entry into the city, and was received with enthusiasm by the populace.

THE REAL CULPITS.

In its last issue Grip has a capital cartoon, representing Justice reproaching Sir John, and urging that now he has hanged the effect of the rebellion, he should find and punish the cause of it. If the Premier would literally follow the injunctions of Justice, he would incontinently committ suicide, for there is no doubt that Sir John, and his colleages are morally guilty of causing the late rebellion. If Sir John had punished, instead of rewarding Riel, for the latter's misdeeds fifteen years ago, the rebellion of last spring could not have been led by Riel. If the grossest misgovernment and injustice towards the Halfbreed settlers in the Northwest had not been encouraged and permitted, there would have been no rebellion, requiring the sacrifice of hundreds of lives and millions of money.

The lands of the Metis' were portioned out among the political friends of the government; their requests for patents for the land they had occupied for years were utterly unheeded; their remonstrances, when political sharks were seizing their lands and despoiling their homes, were utterly unheeded. The Halfbreeds, who saw their homes and the fruits of the toil of years, slipping away from them, had exhausted every known peaceful means to secure consideration of their claims and respect for their rights, but every government official, from Sir John down to the sharkiest understrapper, treated them with contempt and the former urged the Prince Albert Colonization Company to eviot Halfbreeds and take possession of their lands and homes. This was the last straw, and the Halfbreeds despairing of getting justice from the government by constitutional means, sent for Riel, and we all know the result. The consequences show that they reasoned rightly when they decided that the last resort of armed resistance would bring the Government to terms. Hardly had the echo of the first encounter passed away than the Government, alarmed at the consequences of their criminal carelessness and injustice, sent up a commission to give the Halfbreeds the very rights, the withholding of which provoked a rebellion. A clearer admission of guilt could not have been made

The simple-minded Half-breed did what any man would do when he saw his family in danger of being robbed of his home, he resorted to force. And there is little doubt that they looked upon rebellion as a comparatively harmless thing. They had been taught by Sir John that rebellion was rather a meritorious and profitable pastime. Riel headed a rebellion fifteen years ago, and the innocent-minded Metis reasoned that if he were rewarded, instead of being punished, their seeking their rights by force where fair words failed, would be a merely venial offence. But they were roundly mistaken. The champion of their cause was hanged—the government crowned its course of contempt for the Halfbreeds by hanging their leader, not from a sense of justice of their conduct, but because political expediency suggested that as the most paying course.

Now that Riel is gone, now that he has paid the penalty of his crime against the state, the punishment of his practical accomplices, the members of the Dominion Government, should be considered. They feel their guilt and are attempting to evade the consequences of their crimes. Sir David Macpherson has slid out of the Cabinet. Tilley has been shelved, and Sir John has fled to England, a fugitive from justice.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is announced that Charles Stewart Parnell will visit America next February. The object of his visit is a political one.

Mr. Wm. Mulock, M.P., one of the most brilliant of young Liberal leaders, has been appointed President of the Toronto Liberal Association.

How many vacancies would there be in the Dominion Cabinet if the parties really responsible for the Northwest rebellion were treated as Riel has been?

We learn from the Edinburgh papers received by last mail, that Hon. Edward Blake and his wife were guests of Lord Rosebery at his Linlithgowshire residence (Dalmeny Park), while Mr. Gladstone was on a visit to his Lordship. Mr. and Mrs. Blake, it is expected, will sail for Canada on December 10th.

Another Canadian postmaster has gone wrong, he of Thornbury this time—in the person of his assistant. The influence of the corruption in high places—at Ottawa—spreads through the whole rank—from the highest to the lowest.

Sir Adolphe Caron, Minister of Militia, is alarmed because he has received threatening letters. If the parties making the threats will only use ammunition of the quality of some supplied the volunteers in the late rebellion Sir Adolphe is perfectly safe.

In 1872 Sir John depended on Sir Hugh Allen's money to carry the elections. In '78 he put his faith in the N. P. In '82 he trusted to the Gerrymander and the Colonization companies. For success at the next election he expects to depend mainly on the opening of the C. P. R., the Revising barristers—and Riel's taking off.

This is how the Cabinet bickering over the hanging of Riel is sized up by the Montreal [illegible] ex-member of the Macdonald Cabinet: "Never since Admiral Byng was shot to save a Ministry has a prisoner's life or death so absolutely depended on the relative support or opposition that his death would bring to the Cabinet."

The EXAMINER cannot endorse the introduction of party politics in municipal matters, yet the Toronto Liberals are not altogether without excuse in doing so. Their object and hope are not, it seems, to return a council of Liberal complexion, but to commit the Conservatives to responsibility for the management of civic affairs. The Conservatives have practically ruled Toronto for the past many years, a fact that accounts for the extravagance and corruption that mark the civic government of that city, and the object of the party move is to make them declaredly, as they have been practically, responsible for the city's misgovernment.

It is now asserted that the Dominion Parliament will not assemble till February. The Ministers naturally shrink from having their misdeeds overhauled and desire to postpone the answer to a formidable indictment, to which they will have to plead, as long as possible. They wish to prepare as strong defence as possible. Sir David Macpherson will not be there when the mismanagement that provoked the Northwest rebellion comes up for discussion, and some other unfortunate than Sir Leonard Tilley will have to be the scape-goat for his financial sins. The next session of Parliament will be a lively one.

Mr. Norquay, Premier of Manitoba, is the latest ex-rebel who has received his reward. The Governor-General has forwarded to him one of the medals cast in commemoration of Federation. Mr. Norquay was a member of the Riel Provincial Government in 1870. He was then resisting the entrance of Manitoba into Confederation. His services in the cause of Confederation are therefore not very clear. Mr. Norquay is in Ottawa urging further concessions to Manitoba, and if these are not granted it is possible that he may start another rebellion against the Tory party. Perhaps the medal will tend to keep him straight.

Dominion Doings.

The Scott Act is being agitated in Manitoulin Island.

Port Hope is illuminated with thirteen electric lights.

There is six inches of snow at Ottawa and four inches at Allandale.

Mayor Beaugrand has withdrawn his libel suits against Le Monde and La Presse of Montreal.

Several French-Canadian priests have declared themselves against the national party and state that Riel deserved his fate.

L'Electeur, of Quebec, mentions with gratitude that many English Protestants of Quebec have generously subscribed to the fund for requiem masses for Riel.

The next move of the leaders of the Riel agitation will, it is said, be to get the county councils throughout the Province to pass resolutions proposed at yesterday's meeting, condemnatory of the present government.

"Happy Sid," a Salvation army hero employed in the Kippen, Ont., postoffice, is charged with stealing registered letters. The postoffice official sent to take him in tow had the wool drawn over his eyes, and Mr. Sid made good his escape.

Metallic Telegraph Poles.

A metallic telegraph pole has been adopted by the Canadian Government for its telegraph lines on the North-western prairies. The pole is constructed of malleable galvanized iron, and is 1¼ inches in diameter at the top, and is 2¼ inches at the bottom, and weighs less than 50 pounds. The bottom of the pole is set into a claw-plate, upon which the earth is closely packed to a height of about 2 feet. Then another plate is put into place around the pole, and the earth packed upon it to the level of the ground. The claw-plates take a hold in the ground at once, so that the pole becomes solidly fixed immediately after being set, which desideratum is only obtained by the ordinary wooden pole after it has been in the ground for at least a year. A recent test is said to have shown the great strength of the pole, as a heavy No. 6 Government wire was strung and the poles subjected to the greatest possible strain, but without moving them in the least.

Well, their is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. Should there be any suffering, the effects of an indulgence in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. MINNEAPOLIS.

The Beautiful City at the Head of Mississippi Navagation.

The Greatest Flour Manufacturing City in The World.

The architectural development of Minneapolis has been the outgrowth of the past five years, for previous to 1880 there were no buildings here worthy of more than passing notice. But a great change has been effected in five years, and to-day the public buildings and private residences of the city are quite equal in beauty and substantial comfort to the most ambitious specimens of architecture of any city of the United States. The West hotel, recently finished at a cost of $1,750,000, is undoubtedly the finest hotel structure on this continent. It is not merely grand, it is palatial, magnificent. It possesses all the best features of the great caravansaries of the American metropolis, but is far and away ahead of all of them. The architect was directed to look upon the best in the land and surpass it. He has done so. The limits of this article forbid detailed description. It may be said, however, that one entering its portals and looking upon its interior decked in expensive marble, is rosewood and mahogany, its magnificent grand staircase leading to the parlors, drawing-room and dining-room, whose walls and ceilings, touched by a magic hand, reflected again and again newer and more entrancing beauties, one must stand amazed, and for the moment doubt the evidence of his senses. Art, wooed by means unlimited, has given of her choicest gifts in the embellishment of this magnificent house which is a credit to its proprietor, Col. John West, and to the city which it adorns.

THE TRIBUNE BUILDING.

The Tribune building, the "finest newspaper building west of the Alleghenies," is a magnificient eight-storied edifice of Joliet stone and pressed brick, with brown stone and terra cotta ornamentation, was recently constructed at a total cost of $324,000, and is devoted partly to the uses of the Minneapolis Daily Tribune, an aggressive newspaper, thoroughly identified with the interests of the city and the northwest. The Tribune was established as a daily five years ago by Gen. A. B. Nettleton, whose vigorous efforts advanced it to the first place, and it was only a short time ago that he retired from its management to enter the field of finance as a banker. He is president of the company that constructed the building however, and it was due mainly to his aggressive enterprise that Minneapolis can boast of such a fine addition to her architecture.

The construction of the railway viaduct across the Mississippi was undertaken by the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway company in 1882, and has been in operation since early in 1884. It was constructed as part of the then new short line to St. Paul, and is jointly used by the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba; Northern Pacific; Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha; Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, and Chicago and Northwestern railways as a means of communication between these two principal northwestern cities. The Union station, completed about one year ago, is a handsome structure, costing $350,000. The viaduct cost $1,000,000.

Among the more creditable examples of architectural taste which the present has brought forth is the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce. This fine structure of brick, iron and Ohio stone is situated on the corner of Third street and Fifth avenue, south. It is seven stories in height, and is devoted almost exclusively to banking, insurance, grain brokers' offices, and to the operations of the board of trade and chamber of commerce. The Millers' association have their executive offices here, and all the grain coming to Minneapolis is inspected by its officials, whose judgment is final in fixing the grade. This building cost [illegible],000.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Minnesota Loan and Trust Company's building, on Nicollet avenue, near Fourth street, while not so large as some other buildings recently erected here, is the most complete, most solid—possesses greater architectural beauties, and is for its size the most costly structure ever erected in Minnesota. This company has been in existence two years, and has loaned out in that time upward of $4,000,000. Some time ago it was decided to invest part of their capital in a building which should be a home for the company, and at the same time pay a fair interest on the investment. The present fine building is the result. A great deal of deliberation marked the progress of the work, and it stands to-day the substantial realization of the company's wishes. A glance at the accompanying cut shows the building as completed at a cost of over $300,000. It is absolutely fire-proof, seven stories in height, and is built of brick, stone and iron, with front of Ohio sandstone, and polished Tennessee marble. It contains about 2,000 safe deposit vaults or boxes, and has a magnificent series of offices.

There are "finest residence" and "finest residences." Fifth Avenue, New York, the suburbs of Philadelphia, the patrician quarters of Boston, and the elevated precincts of "Nob Hill," San Francisco, have each their special feature; and "finest private residences in the world." Of the Washburn residence in Minneapolis, built by Hon. W. D. Washburn, one of her most [illegible] glance at the cut will show, that it is preeminently one of the most tasteful and luxurious private residences in this or any other country. It is in the midst of an elevated plateau in the western section of the city, overlooking Central Park and commanding a magnificent prospect in every direction. It is built of superior stone, is sumptuously furnished throughout, is rich in works of art and literary treasure, and is in a word a superbly appointed residence, unexcelled in appearance, luxury and taste. The cost, including grounds, was upwards of $350,000

W. D. WASHBURN'S RESIDENCE.

The residence of the Hon. G. A. Pillsbury is a type of house occupied by many wealthy residents of Minneapolis. There are other residences of more pretentious appearance, but none more comfortable, and none in which the domestic virtues have a more permanent abiding place. These houses, though of wood, are amply protected against the blasts of winter, are cool in summer, and so substantially constructed that one may count upon many years of comfort beneath their roofs. The residences of Gen. A. B. Nettleton, Thomas Lowry, R. W. Jordan, Esq., Emerson Cole, Dr. Dunsmoor, Hon. C. A. Pillsbury, and in fact a hundred others, are but types of the house beautiful, so many of which exist in this lovely city.

But it is not the city alone which presents so many invitations to capitalist, tourist or settler. Its surroundings are all charming. Lake Minnetonka, the most beautiful of the northern lakes, is but a few minutes' ride from the city. Lovely Minnehaha, which Longfellow's verses have immortalized, Fort Snelling and numerous drives, resorts and other rare examples of nature's handiwork invite the pleasure seeker or the seeker after relaxation from business cares continually.

Minneapolis is certainly most happily situated, and everything indicates that its present population of 130,000 will be increased in the next five years to 200,000, while the regular and natural increase in manufacturing and commercial pursuits assure to this fortunate city a career unsurpassed in progress in this or any other age. TULLY, DRUGGIST, AGENT FOR PETERBOROUGH.

The Anti-Riel Meeting.

There is talk, says the Toronto World, of holding a public meeting in this city as a set-off to the inflammatory gatherings held in Quebec Province re Riel's execution. A well-known citizen told the World yesterday that he and a few friends were moving in the matter, and, added he, "we'll have a buster, too." Saturday night was mentioned as the time of meeting.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Exhibition Portrait.

There is on exhibition in the window of Morgan's drug store a fine crayon portrait of Mr. Gael, of the Bank of Toronto. Mr. Carter is the author of the piece of art.

Smith Street Bridge.

Mr. H. Thornton, the contractor for the reconstruction of this viaduct is making as rapid progress as possible. The work is necessarily slow owing to the economy practised in utilizing and working in the sound portions of the old structure. The town engineer thinks the work will be completed this week, and the public will rejoice thereat.

Market Items.

The market this morning was decidedly slim. There was not much offering and sales were slow. Produce sold at the following prices:—Butter in roll, 16c. to 18c.; lard, 10c.; turkeys, 70c. to 90c.; geese, 50c. to 60c.; ducks, per pair, 55c. to 65c.; chickens, per pair, 25c. to 30c.; beef, by the quarter, 4c. to 5½c. per lb.; hogs, 5½c. per lb.; lamb, 7c. to 8c.

Singing Lessons.

We beg to draw attention to the singing class for boys, conducted by Mr. C.C. Hampshire, which is held in the St. John's School House. From the well known ability of Mr. H., and the success he has already attained in this particular branch of his profession, we have no doubt he will make a perfect success of this class. The fee is very moderate, one dollar for twenty lessons. Rally up boys and join the class, and learn how to sing while you have the opportunity.

Still on the Rampage.

There is still a large force of tramps in town. As is usual they throughout the day prowl around the outskirts of the town seeking that which they may devour, and lodging in the comfortable quarters at the police station during the night, leading lazy lives. Magistrate Dumble has, with the assistance of the police, reddied the town of two of these pests. The police force are keeping a sharp look-out for these fellows, and the Central awaits them if they refuse to leave town. Vamoose should be their watchwork.

New Livery and Boarding Stables.

Messrs. Mack. and Wm. McGregor, have opened a livery, sale and boarding stables, under the name of McGregor Bros., on Chambers street, in the rear of Kingdan & Co's hardware store. Their rigs are all new, stylish and comfortable, and their horses first-class. Parties wishing to board their horses will do well to consult the McGregor Bros., who, if they bestow the same care on their patrons horses as they do their own, which no doubt they will make things satisfactory to the most fastidious. Communication may be made with the stable by telephone.

"Daniel."

There was a most successful rehearsal of the cantata "Daniel" at the hall of Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows last night. There was a large attendance—over fifty voices of the chorus being heard. The entire cantata was rehearsed, including all the solo parts. The solo characters are now satisfactorily filled and the chorus is showing great proficiency. The success of the practice was promoted considerably by the orchestral accompaniment, consisting of piano, Hampshire, violin, Doucet, and flute, Butcher. To judge by the rapid progress the cantata is making under the management of Professor Miller there is a certainty that it will be presented next month in a manner which will mark a musical era in the history of the town.

Weighty Subjects.

There is a certain man in a Midland town who is of such proportions and weight that ordinary furniture will not bear him. When he goes out to see a friend he has to sit on the wood box, or some such article, and on one occasion he broke the part of the box on which he sat, falling into that article doubled up like a jack knife, where he remained as helpless as a turtle on its back until assisted out. His own furniture is all built to order of the very best and strongest woods obtainable put together in a most approved manner. When pressed to accept a chair, he cautiously tests it, with the result of straining, or breaking the article outright. Now there are many who if not in the same box are on the high road to it, who, too, are generally of the highest social character and eminently fitted for society—with the exception of their furniture destroying propensities. Various means have been employed to prevent the cause and effect a cure. Anti-fat is of no avail, and the only reliable way to prevent such calamities is to get reliable furniture, capable of holding your heaviest friends, which may be obtained at Belleghem's, in any style. Furniture made at Belleghem's of the lightest material is strong enough to hold men of the weight of the late sheriff of Winnipeg, who weighed over a fifth of a ton. Remember Belleghem is the name, and Hunter street is the place.

Have you tried our 5c. bottle Blue Black Ink. The best in the world. A. L. Davis & Co.

Board of Health Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Board of Health to-morrow evening in the council chamber. Business of a general character will be taken up, and accounts investigated preparatory to payment.

Evening Classes.

Evening classes in connection with the Mechanics' Institute will begin the first week in December. The subjects will be English literature, taught by Mr. J. H. Long, M.A., and mechanical and free hand drawing, taught by Mr. John Fraser. For fees and other particulars consult advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

Missionary from the New Hebrides.

The Rev. Mr. Annand one of the missionaries of the Canada Presbyterian Church to the New Hebrides, now in this country, will deliver an address, on the work among the natives of those islands, in St. Paul's Church, on Thursday evening next, at 8 o'clock. The music and singing will be under the direction of Mr. Parker. A collection will be taken up in aid of the Foreign Mission Fund. All friends of mission work are cordially invited to be present.

Police Court.

James Carlin and John Graham, who have of late been rather loose around town during the day, and putting up at the police station during the night, were up before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning, charged with being drunk in a public place, both pleading guilty. Carlin was apparently sore-headed. He is an old offender and has resided in the mansion on the hill at the public expense from February to May this year, and was apparently looking for a repeater. The magistrate asked him would he like a term in the Central, to which he replied that he would not, and that if allowed to stay in Peterborough over winter, it would be his last. He was given ten days in the goal to sober off, when he will be obliged to leave town, or be sent to the Central.

Graham, pleaded first offense and promised to leave the town immediately. He was dismissed.

The saw mill establishment, represented by the firms of Dickson Company, Mr. G. Hilliard, and Mr. J. M. Irwin, were before the magistrate on a charge of allowing saw dust from their mills to escape into the river. Mr. Poussette and Sawers for the defendants asked for an enlargement of one month. Mr. E. B. Edwards for the prosecution, objected to this as the defendants had been notified during the first part of the month. The case was enlarged at defendants' request for two weeks.

Y.M.C.A. Bible Study.

The young men's class had an interesting hour of study last evening, under the leadership of Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B.D. The attendance was the largest since the class began its season's work. The subject considered was the versions of the Bible. Reference was made Neh. viii., 8, as giving an account of the first version or translation of the Scriptures ever made. The Targums, or translation from Hebrew into Aramaic, the Septuagint, or translation into Greek from the Hebrew, and the Peshito or Syriac translation, both of Old and New Testaments, were referred to as being the oldest versions of the Scriptures, and interesting particulars of each were given. The next in order was the Italian version, the earliest Latin one. This crystallized through Jerome, unto the Vulgate, was is an excellent translation. Then, as the Germans were becoming Christianized, the Gothic version was made, it being the foundation of German literature. Coming to the English version, reference was made to the story of the Bible by Credmon, the translation of parts of the scriptures by Venerable Blade, King Alfred and others, and to the first complete English translation by Wickliffe in the fourteenth century. This and the translation from the original by Tyndale were spoken of as the best ever made. The next ones in order were those of Miles Coverdale, Matthew's, Cranmer's or the great Bible, Geneva, the Bishops', and the Douay or English Catholics' Bible. And then the King James or authorized Bible, which bears to a great extent the stamp of Wycliffe's and Tyndale's works. Finally the late revision was dwelt upon briefly. The above is a mere summary of what was dwelt upon. In closing Mr Wallace announced that next Tuesday the subject for study would be "The interpretation of the Bible."

The low prices of our Family Bibles astonish every one. A. L. Davis & Co.

Earthquake in Central America.

PANAMA, Nov. 25.—The revolution in Nicaragua is ended. At Leon, Nicagua, there was a very severe earthquake on the 11th ult. Great damage was done to property and several lives were lost. One church was demolished and the cathedral sustained very serious injury.

Robbery by Tramps.

AULTSVILLE, Ont., Nov. 25.—Early this morning three tramps effected an entrance into the store of Ira J. Cramer and carried off goods to the amount of $200. Upon the alarm being given the citizens started in hot pursuit of the culprits. After a spirited chase of about eight miles, through bush and swamp, they were captured, one of the trio making desperate resistance. All the goods were recovered.

An Atrocious Murder.

A Daughter Keeps Watch While Her Father is Killed by His Son-in-law.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 25.—Emily Burton, daughter of a colored man who was recently murdered, has confessed that on the morning of the murder, her sister, Mrs. Dorsey, went to her father for money. The old man flew into a passion, refusing to give her money, and talked very plainly to her in regard to her husband and his "pauperism." Mrs. Dorsey reported the result of the interview to her husband, who decided to fix the old man. All the tenants of the house were out except Mr. Frank Trager, who was in the back yard. Miss Burton was sent upstairs to keep guard from a window while Dorsey crept to the side of his victim at the breakfast table and killed him.

A Significant Election.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The most significant of the batch of elections that took place yesterday was that of Right Hon. Arthur W. Peel for the borough of Warwick. Under the redistribution scheme this constituency now contains a large number of the newly enfranchised agricultural voters, and there was great curiosity to see which side they would favour. So uneasy were the Liberals over a possible defeat of Mr. Peel that it was advocated that he should be nominated for a second constituency, so that as Speaker he might be sure of a seat in the new Parliament. The rural voters in this instance have gone Liberal, to the great satisfaction of the leaders of that party; but while this vote is a straw on the current, it is by no means safe to calculate that in other constituencies the "chaw-bacons," as they are contemptuously styled, will follow suit. They are still an unknown quantity, defying the ordinary rules of speculation.

Campbellford.

The board of arbitration to decide the claims of the Hastings circuit to a share of the surplus in the old Methodist Episcopal parsonage at Campbellford, met in Hastings on Tuesday last. The arbitrators chosen were Dr. Ford, of Norwood, and Messrs. R. P. Hurlbut, of Warkworth, and H. Morton, of Hastings. The Revs. A. Browning and R. B. Denike and Mr. W. West attended on behalf of Campbellford. Hastings circuit was non-suited.

Mr. George Ogilvie, of Campbellford, has lately received his commission as Lieutenant of A Battery, Kingston. There were many applications for the commission, but George was the one chosen. His valuable services in the late rebellion in the North-West proved him to be an able officer. At Fish Creek George did not cease firing after three of his men had been shot and disabled; and when called upon to assist a number of our boys who were in danger of being shot by the enemy near a coulee, he and his men pluckily crawled upon their hands and knees, pushing the gun ahead of them, loaded and fired in a kneeling and lying posture, and rescued the party. Lieut. Ogilvie will go off on active service soon, and we shall not be surprised to learn of him rising a step higher. —Herald.

German Socialism.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—The Government presented in the Reichstag, yesterday, its annual report on Socialism. The report says the doctrines of the Socialists are spreading, despite the active measures adopted to repress them, being propagated by the Anarchists of other countries. Complaint is made that Socialistic newspapers and pamphlets, printed in foreign capitals, are smuggled in Germany. Of five thousand copies of the Freiheit printed in America, only five hundred, the report says, are intended for American readers.

A Big Reward.

The Montreal Witness says:—"One of the meanest of small-pox tricks is that adopted by certain Ontario newspapers, jealous of the great circulation of Montreal journals, getting up stories that people have caught the smallpox from Montreal newspapers. We shall give a prize of a thousand dollars to anyone who shall prove a case of smallpox to have been caught from any Montreal English newspaper, sent direct from the office of publication, and shall quadruple it if the paper is a Witness. We request those papers in Ontario which are above such tactics, and we presume they are the great majority, to circulate this offer. It will surely bring out any case there is."

The British Elections.

LOUTH, Nov. 25.—The Nationalist Convention yesterday unanimously rejected Mr. Philip Callan as a candidate for Parliament. Messrs. Nolan and Gill were selected. A bitter fight is expected at the polls.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Parliamentary elections in Chelsea, yesterday, resulted in the return of Sir Charles Dilke, Liberal, by a vote of 4,291. Mr. C. A. Whitmore, Conservative, received 4,116 votes.

The following is the result of the Parliamentary elections as far as can be ascertained up to three o'clock this afternoon:—Forty Liberals, thirty-six Tories and two Nationalists have been elected. The Liberals have gained one seat and the Tories twelve.

Riel's Papers.

Important Historical Document Included Among the Papers Left by Riel.

A Regina (N.W.T.) despatch says:—The last relics of Louis Riel are being removed from here, and soon only his grave will remain here to testify of the tragedy of which he was the central figure. The papers, however, which the Metis leader left with Father Andre, are likely to receive much attention yet. There were quite a number of documents. Those which remain in Father Andre's hands are far and away the most important. Father Andre will probably publish them or dispose of them otherwise for the benefit of Riel's family. The most important document is a history of the causes and progress of the Northwest rising, which Riel himself has expiated with his blood. The contents are absolutely unknown here as yet, and cannot be ascertained.

Death of the King of Spain.

LONDON, Nov. 25th, 4.30 p. m.—A despatch has just been received at the Foreign office, from Madrid, stating that King Alfonso died at 9 o'clock this morning of consumption, accelerated by dysentery.

[Alfonso XII., King of Spain, eldest son of the ex-Queen Isabella II., was born November 28, 1857. On June 25, 1870 Queen Isabella formally abdicated her right to the throne of Spain in favor of her son, but no open steps were taken at that time to secure for him the position which this abdication left open to him. His pretentions, were, however, opposed by his cousin, the eldest son of the Duke of Montpensier, and his aunt, the Infanta Luisa, but as so many pretenders were calculated to complicate matters, the claim of Louis Philippe's grandson was ultimately waived in favor of the heir of Isabella. King Alfonso married, on January 23, 1878, at Madrid, his cousin the Princess Malria de as Mercedes, Infanta of Spain, daughter of the Duc de Montpensier, (she was born June 24, 1860). The ex-Queen Isabella, was much opposed to this union, and to mark her disapproval she left Spain and went to Paris before the marriage ceremony took place. Queen Mercedes died on June 26, 1878. King Alfonso married secondly on Nov. 29, 1879, Maria Christana, daughter of the late Archduke Charles Ferdinand of Austria. (She was born July 21st, 1858). He was invested with the Order of the Garter, at Madrid, by the Marquis of Northampton, Oct. 11th, 1881. Queen Christana has given birth to two daughters, Maria de las Mercedes, Princess of the Asturias (born Sept. 12th, 1880), and the Infanta Maria Teresa Isabel, born Nov. 12, 1882.

The War in the Balkans.

Meagre News.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—War news from the Balkans is meagre. Seldom has there been a war in which Europe was directly interested of which it was so difficult to learn what movements were being made. Everything up to last accounts was unfavorable to Servia. Her attack upon Widdin by the northern division of the army was repulsed. The central division was being stoutly resisted before Slivnitza and the southern division had been prevented by Bulgarian strategy from effecting a junction with the central division. The engagement which is now being desperately fought around Slivnitza, will be the DECISIVE BATTLE OF THE CAMPAIGN.

Turkey's request to King Milan to cease hostilities is on the way, and will check operations in case of a Servian victory, while the Powers will certainly call a halt should Bulgaria win the battle. The only effect of the [illegible] will be a moral one upon the final adjustment by the Powers.

Latest despatches from the front show the Servians are still retreating and that the Bulgarians are advancing toward the frontier. The Servian rear is continually threatened by the Bulgarian cavalry, but no serious encounter is yet reported. The Servian headquarters have been moved back to Pirot, in Servia, and 12 miles back of the frontier whence they were advanced to Tzaribrod last Sunday. A state of semi-panic exists at Belgrade, and the Landstrum has been summoned to prepare immediately for active service.

The Death Roll.

LONDON, Nov 25.—The Bulgarian losses so far are 200 dead and 2,000 wounded, 350 of the latter being severely injured. Sixty-four Servian officers have been killed or wounded. Five hundred starving Servians have submitted to Bulgarians on the frontier.

Austria Deliberating.

VIENNA, Nov. 25.—The Emperor Francis Joseph returned yesterday from Hungary and presided at a meeting of the Cabinet which was called in connection with the Servian rout.

Accepted the Armistice.

BELGRADE, Nov. 25.—It is officially announced that King Milan has accepted the armistice proposed by the Powers.

He Could Not Live.

BELGRADE, Nov. 25.—General Jovanovitch, who was dismissed from the command of the Danube division for disobeying orders in attacking Slivnitza, instead of maintaining a defensive attitude, has committed suicide by shooting himself. The recent disasters to the Servian army, from its defeat before Slivnitza down to the re-occupation of Tzaribrod by the Bulgarians, are attributed to his failure to carry out the orders given him.

A World's Fair.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 25.—The Chicago-Columbus Centennial World's Fair and Exposition Company has been incorporated, with a capital of one million dollars. The object is to hold an international exposition in Chicago in 1892, to celebrate the fourth centennial of the discovery of America. At the same time it is proposed to erect a colossal statue of Columbus, resting on a vaulted pedestal, in which will be deposited a history of each country participating.

R. W. MUNCASTER,

The Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1885.

ALWAYS AIMING AT ADVANCEMENT.

Since his assumption of the duties of Minister of Education, Hon. G. W. Ross has taken an intelligent, a practical interest in the improvement of every branch of our educational system. He has improved our school books, made the system more workable, and now he has arranged a course of reading for teachers with a view of making them more thorough in their profession and implanting a love for improvement. The course of Study and Training prescribed for teachers by the Educational Department is designed as a test of their ability to teach intelligently every subject on the Programme of Studies for Public Schools. It is presumed that in obtaining the knowledge requisite for this purpose a desire has been implanted for higher attainments, and that in no case will the mind be allowed to lapse into a state of dullness or inactivity. The experience, however, of many of our best teachers, shows that the tendency of their daily duties—largely because of their routine characters—is to produce that mental lassitude so fatal to all intellectual culture and development.

By the establishment of teachers' Institutes this tendency has been to a large extent corrected. They have already, by means of mutual association and the friendly discussion of educational matters stimulated many to greater exertion, and aroused the enthusiasm of even the most zealous members of the profession. But the Institute, valuable as it no doubt is, can do but little comparatively towards supplying that mental equipment which every teacher so much requires. Two or three days in the year should not suffice when the harvest is so great and the consequence of its not being garnered so disastrous to society. There is then but one alternative—the teacher must himself become a student. With him mental torpidity must be impossible. After setting apart as much time as may be necessary for rest and recreation, he should apply the remainder in preparing for the school room by private study. If he is to stimulate others, his own mind must be active.

In order to give definitiveness to the effects of teachers in this direction, the Minister says:—

"I have arranged a Course of Reading, by means of which, while not ignoring professional obligations, they may carry on the daily work of self culture and at the same time learn to regard their vocation from a higher standpoint. The Course extends over three years, and embraces pedagogics, science and literature. It can be mastered in the allotted time, without difficulty—one hour per day being quite sufficient. It will be observed that the books in the Professional Course are those already used at the Normal Schools and Training Institutes, so that by taking them up in the Reading Course, the work required for entering the higher grades of the profession, is simply prepared in advance.

As the Course is purely voluntary no examination will be held in connection with it. Should, however, the teachers of any Inspectoral Division agree to read the Course with this end in view, and should the County Board of Examiners make adequate provision for such examination, the department would recognize by special certificate this additional element of professional culture. Such a certificate would no doubt be duly appreciated by trustees and the public generally, as it would entitle the holder to a strong claim upon their liberality. It will be the duty of the Directors of Teachers' Institutes to make such comments and give such directions to teachers in regard to the best methods of profiting by this course as they may deem expedient.

In recommending to the profession the Course of Reading outlined, I do not wish to be regarded as imposing a task from which there is no advantage to be gained. The status of the teacher depends mainly upon his own exertions. To repress his individuality, or by Departmental restraints to endeavor to make each teacher the counterpart of every other, would be to secure uniformity by the sacrifice of power. I fully recognize that each member of the profession is a separate and distinct unit. To direct these separate units in such a way as to conserve their force for the public good and their own prosperity is the only object in view. Whether successful or not in this will depend upon their co-operation; the experiment is, at least, worth trying.

Why do we buy and fit up a house for High Commissioner Tupper at a cost of $50,000, and pay him $10,000 a year, if Sir John has to desert his post and post to London at the public expense whenever a little business requires to be done in the interest of the Dominion? Either Sir Tupper and his palace are useless, or Sir John has fled like a culprit to escape the immediate consequences of his misgovernment.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Captain Dickens, son of the novelist, who took part in the putting down of the North-west rebellion, is preparing a history of the outbreak.

The Tory organs have a suddenly acquired dread of "French domination." Yet while Sir John skulks out of the country, Sir Hector Langevin and four other Quebec ministers practically govern the country.

The Port Hope Times originates the latest joke on Sir John, which is that he escaped from Ottawa in woman's clothes. This was unnecessary humiliation. If the "Chieftain" had "made himself up" as an honest man, his disguise would have defied detection.

The result of the borough elections in Great Britain on Tuesday showed an apparent advantage to the government, the Tories having gained some ten seats and the Liberal one. It must be borne in mind, however, that the government is cunning enough to bring on the borough elections where the Liberal strength is small and the allies of the Tories, the Parnellites, hold the balance of power.

At the Dominion election in St. John, N. B., Mr. Barker, Conservative, was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the desertion of Sir Leonard Tilly. His majority was only 112. The riding evidently did not stay bought throughout for a month, for Mr. Everett, in the city and county election a month ago, had a majority of 414. When Sir John's tenure of power looks precarious, his friends, whose support he has bought, naturally desert him.

Lord Randolph Churchill, the Deputy-leader of the Tory party in England, had the hardihood to oppose John Bright, for Central Birmingham, but he was handsomely defeated as was sure to be. So John Bright still retains the seat he has filled continuously for twenty-eight years. The Tory aspirant's Yankee wife, with all her blarney and the 300 "primrose" damsels, daughters of Tory admirers of Disraeli, could not alienate the confidence of the people in honest John Bright.

St. John Election.

Return of a Conservative Member to Succeed Sir Leonard.

ST. JOHN, Nov. 24.—The election in St. John city to-day for a successor to Sir Leonard Tilley resulted in the return of Mr. Barker (Conservative), the vote standing:—

Barker	1,770
Skinner (Liberal)	1,658
Barker's majority	112

At the county election one month ago, Everett's majority in the city was 414. Sir Leonard Tilley's majority in 1882 was 137.

Exemption from Taxation.

Exemption from taxation, whether enjoyed by clergymen or civil servants, is doomed, and properly so. Class distinctions are now generally recognized as at variance with the spirit of the age. The sooner this tax exemption question is settled the better for all concerned. The way, however, in which the civic authorities of Toronto have attempted to cut the Gordian knot is not calculated to impress their constituents with an exalted idea of their wisdom. They have indicated their intention of invoking a solution of the difficulty from the Ontario Legislature. That is all right; but where is the fairness of making individious distinctions in the meantime? The well-salaried incumbents of wealthy congregations continue to receive the advantage of exemption, while those who are discharging ministerial functions in other capacities are taxed to the full amount the law permits. But the worst feature of this crusade against exemption is the attempt to compel ministers without charge, who have only a slender and precarious income, to bear a burden from which their more fortunate brethren are exempt. There ought to be no individious distinction; either tax all or exempt all, while the anomalous custom of exemption lasts.—Canada Presbyterian.

Lieut. Gordon, R.N., and Capt. Harbottle have concluded their investigation into the loss of the steamer Algoma.

The Union Musicale of Quebec, gave its 18th annual festival, before a distinguished audience.

Stone and McLaren, the two men acquitted of the charge of hanging a nude body in front of a Toronto butcher's shop, have commenced action against Dr. Geilkie and Detective Burrows for $5,000 each for wrongful arrest.

Capt. Howard, of gatling gun fame, is in Montreal. He is about to start a cartridge factory at Lachute.

Evans, Sons & Mason, of Montreal, have succeeded in their suit against Cunningham, of Philadelphia, who are restrained from using the word "Montserrat," for their lime juice.

New buildings have been erected in Toron to this year to the value of $2,344,300.

Two hundred and twelve families in Montreal are receiving relief.

From January to November the Penny Savings Bank in connection with the Montreal Boys' Home has received $1,714.

Judgment has been given in Montreal against the Hamilton Powder Company for $500, at the suit of Lambe, in his quality as Revenue Inspector, for storing powder in an unlicensed magazine.

An U.S. $5,000 uve per cent. bond, falling due last July, was sold at auction in Montreal yesterday and brought $700.

Lake Megantic lumbermen have commenced to build their shanties, and it is said that considerable lumber will be taken out during the coming winter. Two firms intend to take out from eight to nine million logs between them.

Well, their is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a binge for his trunk. Should there be any suffering, the effects of an indulgence in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. Our enterprising English Church people have erected a handsome belfry on their church, at cost of $190. The musical well of the bell may be heard within a radius of six miles every Sunday at 3 p.m., "calling again for the prodigal."

A few nights ago a pleasure party from Peterborough did some nocturnal rusticating in this direction. They halted when they reached the Grange Hall, where they revelled till 6 a.m. in "joy unconfined."

Prayer meeting every Wednesday night at the Methodist Church.

A meeting will be held in the Methodist Church, 25th inst. (night), to take preliminary steps toward an 'Xmas tree in behalf of the Sunday school.

Our modest Rescue Temple is still ambitious in its work of "love, truth, sympathy and good will to men."

Port Hope.

The East Durham Election Case.

PORT HOPE, Nov. 23.—The examination of the respondent, Mr. H. A. Ward, M. P.-elect, took place before Judge Benson at Port Hope to-day. It lasted six hours, and was conducted by Mr. J. D. Edgar for the petitioner, and Mr. Seth Smith appeared with him. Mr. Aylesworth was counsel for the respondent. The examination was chiefly directed towards establishing the agency of certain parties who are likely to figure in the particulars as charged with corrupt practices. No day has yet been fixed for the trial.

Our town was lighted with electricity on Saturday night for the first time. There were thirteen lights, but on account of the moonlight they did not get a fair trial, as no doubt they will show to better advantage on a dark night. Where they are placed and for a long distance around it is as light as day, far ahead of any number of gas lamps. The power is a very steady one, derived from Beamish's milldam. Mr. J. W. Quinlan deserves credit for the energy and promptness he has displayed in filling his contract. The light is splendid, but we imagine more lights will be needed to make the street lighting entirely satisfactory.—Guide.

Omemee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Our town is unusually quiet for the last few days owing to the very unfavorable state of the weather and roads. An open winter is predicted by some of our old weather prophets.

Now is the time for the press to try and reform the services at funerals, seeing that many lives in this as well as other parts have been shortened by the necessary delays occasioned by long services, especially where houses are not large enough to accommodate all the friends and acquaintances in attendance during cold or wet weather.

A number of passengers, including ladies, were terribly annoyed and disgusted on their way north on the G. T. R. mail-day train last Friday by the terribly bad conduct of a number of Frenchmen who had got beyond the control of the conductor, or else he was afraid to approach them owing to the indications their person showed of the results of smallpox.

A number of new families and other individuals are taking up their abode here, this village having the reputation of being a cheap place to live—when a hard winter is looked forward to—and burglaries, thefts or fires are a seldom occurrence.

Every public day here, which occasions the accumulation of different class of people coming together, gives ample proof that the Scott Act, when coming in force, can't improve much the good conduct of the masses, as scarcely a drunken man is ever to be seen on the streets.

The Peterborough industries in the following lines have almost the monopoly here, viz: in biscuits, oysters, confectionery, brooms and earthenware.

The sermons contained in last week's EXAMINER should be laid past for frequent perusal by young men who wish to reach "the object of life."

WIT AND HUMOR.

"Captain Joe," the local chief of the Washoe Indians, says there is a squaw living in the outskirts of Carson, Nev., who is nearly 150 years old. Her grandsons, at the age of 90, was one of General Fremont's guides when he crossed the plains.

Every Mussulman is entitled to four wives and no more. The Sultan is the only man who is not bound by this rule. Every year on his birthday he is presented with a new wife—a sort of annual reminder, as it were, of the vanity of the position.

The inventor of an electric apparatus for deaf people claims that no ear is so dead that it cannot be made to hear, and that in many cases the apparatus will cure deafness. It may be concealed in a cane, umbrella handle, fan or any such article of convenience.

Off the Gulf coast of Texas is the Padre Island, containing 350,000 acres and owned by no man knows whom. There are scores of claimants to the title, some of whom have already induced creditors sufficiently to sink $100,000 in ideal schemes of improvement.

France is not prosperous. Allowing for the million and a half taken away by Germany, the population has made no progress at all since 1860. Its numbers are smaller now than they were fifteen years ago, while the load of taxation has almost doubled—in mere charges it has much more than doubled. Equally stationary has been the export trade. The average of recent years has indeed been lower than for the years immediately succeeding the war. Imports have, on the other hand, augmented much, but not because the country has been internally prosperous. The increase is the consequence of bad harvests and indicates a further denudation of the wealth of the people.

Where there is the slightest sign of roots left, try a bottle of Dr. Dorenwend's "Hair Magic," and it will come in as thick as ever, it will likewise prevent falling of the hair and remove dandruff at once by several applications, and restore the color. Sold and manufactured by A. Dorenwend, Toronto, Canada. $1.00 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $5; sent on receipt of price to any address. Can also be obtained at J. D. Tully's drug store, agent for Peterborough.

I had for years been a miserable sufferer from Dyspepsia, and tried all known remedies and the best medical skill of my acquaintance, but still grew worse, until unable to eat anything without great suffering, or do any kind of work. I began to think there was no hope for me, and that I must surely die; when like a drowning man catching at a straw, I determined to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial. I at once began to improve so rapidly that in two months I was as well as I had ever been in my life.—WM. EVERS LEAMINGTON. Sold by J. McKee, Druggist. Free trial bottles. d151eodw48

The mixed train on the G. T. R. which leaves here at 10.25 going west, when out about 5 miles had to return on account of some breakage of the engine machinery. The train was cancelled and the breakage repaired.

More Light.

It is encouraging to see the Electric Light Company making an addition to their list of patrons. They are engaged to-day in running wires to supply Taylor and McDonald with the best artificial light in the world.

A Wheel Within a Wheel.

Don't forget the raffle to-morrow night at the Grand Central hotel for tickets for the great lacrosse raffle. Anyone lucky enough to make the winning throw for a ticket or two, has a good chance of winning the grand prix at the main raffle.

Baptist Church Entertainment.

The second monthly entertainment in connection with the Murray street Young People's Association, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, readings, etc., will be held in the school room of the Baptist church, Murray street, on Friday evening next at 8 o'clock. Admission 10 cents.

New Tobacco Store.

Mr. Geo. Stephens has opened out a new tobacco store on Hunter street, west, opposite the Oriental Hotel, under the name of "The City Cigar Depot." He will keep in stock an assortment of the finest foreign and domestic cigars, pipes, cigar-holders, smokers' sundries, etc. The shop is neat and attractive and well fitted up.

The Eminent English Elocutionist.

Mr. George Belford, the eminent English elocutionist, was in town yesterday, making arrangements for one of his humorous and dramatic recitals, in which it is expected he will appear before a Peterborough audience at an early date. The English and American press speak very highly of Mr. Belford's ability as an elocutionist.

The Parlour Roller Rink.

The Parlour Roller Rink still continues to be the centre of attraction these evenings. The weather is favorable for such exercise, the prices right, and the company select. As it is convenient for school children to attend on Saturdays, the price of admission is reduced to 10c. on that day. Particular attention paid to beginners and ladies without escort.

The Main Movement.

This morning thirteen tons of main pipes arrived by the G. T. R. for the Waterworks Company. They are principally 8-inch, the remainder being 4-inch. A portion of the former will be used for the extension on Reid street, from Hunter towards Charlotte. At present the line will only be carried as far as Simcoe street so that Mr. Cox's new double tenement residences, on the Cluxton lot, can be supplied with water. The company have made important extensions of their mains this season and have been favored with most favorable weather.

Police Court.

Timothy Cavanagh was arraigned before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with supplying liquor to Jacob Roberts, whom he had been notified not to supply on account of his imbibing to excess; and Geo. Mitchell, on Hunter street, charged with allowing liquor to be consumed on his premises, of which his shop forms a part, without the necessary license. Mr. Sawers appeared for both of the above defendants and asked for an enlargement. They were held over till Monday, 30th.

John Eastman was brought before the Magistrate charged by F. H. Stephens with throwing stones at the door of his house and breaking a window on the evening of Saturday, 17th inst. Mr. Stephens gave evidence describing how he had identified the prisoner. He issued from his house after the stones had been thrown, when he saw a person who immediately started to run, whom he followed, accompanied by his son. They had just cornered their man and were about to lay hands on him, when, in their hurry, they did not notice some stones, which they ran against and fell over. Here John Stephens identified the person as Eastman. Eastman swore positively that he did not throw any stones and that he was not chased, but had passed the house of Mr. Stephens at 10 o'clock Saturday night, about the time the racket occurred. The evidence of John Stephens corroborated that of his father. The Magistrate said all he could do under the circumstances was to go by the evidence. On account of the contradictory evidence and the character of the case he made the fine as light as the law would allow, $2.00 and costs —amounting in all to $4.95—or ten days in jail.

Health Officer's Annual Report.

At the meeting of the Board of Health this evening, Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, will submit his annual report. The report will no doubt be interesting to many.

Largely Attended Funeral.

The funeral of the late Ralph Tally, was largely attended, the procession being about half a mile in length. His many friends turned out in numbers to pay a last tribute of respect.

These Tramps.

The gang of these pests who made their debut before Peterborough public on or about Monday last, are gradually dispersing. One of the fraternity has taken up his abode in the county jail, where he remains for ten days for the purpose of recuperating after a slight indisposition of a periodical nature, from thence he will have to take his departure for parts unknown, which failing to do, he will receive a term in Toronto Central. He will in all probability visit Lindsay, where he has a namesake, (Carlin) of considerable notoriety. Last night only half of the original number came to the quarters to roost, and all were decorous This would indicate that they have a wholesome fear of Magistrate Dumble. They report employment hard to get, and hard when they do get it.

Personal.

Rev. I Tovell, pastor of the George street Methodist church, has returned from Trenton, where he has been attending a meeting of the Missionary Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Mr. Sidney Johnston, druggist, of Detroit, is in town, having left that city for Peterborough on being informed by telegram of the illness of his father, which terminated this morning in death.

Mr. J. S. Parker, organist of St. Paul's, has returned home from Hamilton, where he assisted at the concert at the Centenary Methodist Church. His share of the programme consisted of three organ solos, and their rendition gave the greatest satisfaction to the audience, and confirmed the local reputation he has of being one of the most finished organists in the Province.

We notice by The Church Guardian, of Montreal, that the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Rector of St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, has been offered the position of assistant minister of St. George's, Montreal, of which the Rev. Mr. Carmichael is Rector We understand that the salary attached to the position is $2,000 per annum. Mr. Bradshaw has not yet come to a decision in regard to the acceptance or rejection of the proffered position. If he should decide to remain, St. George's will miss securing an earnest, able and devoted worker, and St. Luke's will retain a rector, to whose untiring efforts its prosperity is chiefly due. The above offer was entirely unsought and unexpected.

The Late George Johnson.

Everybody in town, and hundreds in the surrounding country, will be both surprised and pained to learn of the death of Mr. George Johnson, Chief of Police of this town, at 3 o'clock this morning, after a brief illness. While in attendance on his duties on Monday he was suddenly seized with pains in the region of his heart, and had to be removed to his home on Water street, and aggravation of the attack brought on his death, as indicated above. Mr. Johnson was sixty-three years and four months old at the time of his death, having been born in the County of Monaghan, Ireland, on July 17th, 1822. On May 29th 1825, he came to Canada and settled in the village of Millbrook. While living here (in 1851) he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Mitchell, of the township of Emily. Two children survive, a son Sidney doing business as druggist in Detroit, and a daughter, Mrs. W. J. Wallace of Lakefield. In 1854 he removed to Peterborough, and in partnership with his late brother, William, established a merchant tailoring business, which was carried on for some years. Fifteen years ago he was appointed town constable, which position he retained, and whose duties he performed almost up to his last moment, for he was seized with his last illness in his office, at the police court. At the time of his appointment as constable, he was the only member of the force He was never regularly appointed chief constable. As others were added to the force his abilities and experience indicated him as head of the force, and practically chief of police. And also in connection with this office he performed for many years the duties of Inspector of Streets, but a year ago he resigned the position. Mr. Johnston's fatal illness was an affection of the heart, which seems to be a family disease. Many will recollect that his brother, William, died suddenly in the basement of St. Paul's Church several years ago. Chief of Police Johnston was a faithful member of the congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. He faithfully discharged the duties of the two civic offices he held, and though advanced in years, he continued actively engaged, with little indications, if any, of relaxation of zeal or personal activity. He has long been identified with the progress of the town, which he has helped to promote to the best of his ability,. The funeral will take place on Saturday next at 2.30 o'clock, p.m.

Migratory Movements.

Mrs. Lasher, son and daughter left for Detroit to-day via C. P. R. and connections. Mr. Alex. Elliott ticketed the party.

Mr. H. Anson Cartwright leaves town this evening by the 5 15 train for New York City. From thence he will sail for Liverpool on the City of Berlin, of the Inman Line.

J. S. Cleary will also leave by the evening train for the city of New York. He goes by the G. T. R. and Lake Shore routes. Mr. F. Menzies supplied the tickets.

What They are Saying.

Our line and its labaryntbine connections is doing the biggest business in the district. —The G.T.R. Agent.

Our line takes the lead.—The C. P. R. Agent.

My ticket is good for $25 in gold.—Holders of lacrosse raffle tickets.

Who will put us on the pugs who operated on Simcoe street last night?—The police.

We'll have to begin feedin' straw—hay's goin' to be a big figger.—A farmer to his fellow on the market this morning.

What We May Expect.

Good attendance at the joint missionary meeting at St. Paul's Church to-night.

An interesting meeting of the Board of Health to-night.

The Christmas turkeys to begin to roost high.

Curls to hold confabulations.

Every Scotchman, and son of a Scotchman to engage a seat for the St. Andrew's concert.

Fresh to strong northeast to northwest winds, cloudy to partly cloudy weather, with snow flurries in a few places; not much change in temperature.

Work and Wages.

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—Job printing throughout the city, notwithstanding the fast nearing of the Christmas holidays, is very dull. There is very little being done, and many printers are idle or only casually employed.

DEATH.

JOHNSTON.—At his residence, Water street, on Thursday, November 26th, 1885, George Johnston, Chief of Police of the town of Peterborough, aged 63 years, 4 months and 9 days.

Board of Health.

Meeting in Committee Rooms—Report of Medical Health Officer and Special Committee on Smallpox.

On the evening of yesterday the Board of Health met in the committee rooms of the Council chamber for, in all probability, the last time this year.

The following members were present:—A. Rutherford, chairman; Dr. Fife, James Kendry, Edgar Pearse, J. J. Hartley, John Garvey and J. McDonald, secretary, and later on Mr. Greene.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, gave a synopsis of the sanitary work done during the year. He reported a negligence on the part of medical men in reporting cases of contagious diseases to the proper authorities. He then laid before the Board his

ANNUAL REPORT, on request reading that part of it which relates to infectious diseases, which was as follows:—

To the Chairman and Members of the Peterborough Board of Health:

GENTLEMEN,—In presenting the second annual report of the Medical Health Officer, I would congregulate the Board on the decrease in the ratio of sickness during the past, as compared with the preceding year; on a greater public interest in sanitary work and on a more general compliance with the regulations of the Provincial Act. Matters relating to the public health are beginning to attract the attention they deserve, and the benefits derived from such work as has been done since the organization of the Board, will gradually pave the way for larger and more important than reforms. The absence of these greater works has made it extremely difficult in some cases to adjust complaints or enforce requirements of the Act, but your officers have endeavoured to do their best and to make the most of the means at their disposal. Constant vigilance may sometimes be called officiousness, but it is paramount in the preservation of public health.

SLAUGHTER HOUSES.

These have been regularly inspected throughout the season and have been found in much better order than last year. One of the largest has been removed outside the town and the situation of the others is not such as to have brought in many complaints and it behooves those yet remaining within the limits to use the utmost care in preserving cleanliness.

WELLS.

The regulations as to the periodical cleaning of wells have been more generally observed this year, although it is believed a great many are allowed to remain untouched from year to year. Some wells may be situated so favorably that a yearly cleaning-out is hardly necessary, but this can be said of very few in the town of Peterborough. Further analyses have confirmed the the statement made in last year's report, that a large proportion of the wells here contain sufficient organic substances and gases to render the use of them attended with considerable risk. Exactly what percentage of our fall invasion of typhoid fever is due to impure water, would be hard to say, but there is no doubt it must be large. I am glad to say that public attention has been directed to this. A good many charcoal filters have put in during the season, while a household filtering apparatus is becoming quite a common article of furniture.

INSPECTION.

House to house inspection has been carried out regularly throughout the year, especially in the more thickly populated parts of the town. The confectionery and bake shops were visited, and their sources of water examined, some were found in excellent condition, others in need of improvement. The fruit shops have also been carefully looked after. Quantities of fruit and vegetables frequently spoil, and if not immediately removed are apt to become a nuisance. On this head a word may be said as to the advisability of a system of public scavengering. A number of lanes, vacant lots, and even some of the principal streets are used for depositing garbage of all kinds. It is almost impossible to tell who are the offenders, and so the nuisance remains, unsightly as well as unhealthy. A scavenger whose duty would be to empty closets periodically, to keep yards, lanes, streets, and vacant lots clean and neat would be a public boon, while in this way the work could be done more cheaply. Besides, people would then collect their rubbish instead of concealing it or allowing it to remain scattered about.

REMOVAL OF EXCRETA.

Vault closets have been pretty generally cleaned out this season. A difficulty arose from the objections of the owner of the nuisance ground, on account of the deposits last year not being properly covered, which was arranged by the Chairman, promising to send a man down to attend to it. A suitable nuisance ground is an important matter in sanitary work and the present one should not be lost through neglect. Earth closets are being gradually introduced. Some old closets along George street have been torn down and the vaults filled up. Inconvenience is occasionally experienced in the removal of excreta from earth closets. The appointment of a public scavenger, would do away with the objection and be largely instrumental in promoting the further introduction of this kind of closet, which in the absence of general sewerage, is the least offensive, provided they be regularly emptied, for if that be not done they are a greater nuisance than the old vaults. This leads us to the trouble question of public sewerage on which a few words may be said.

SEWERAGE.

The greatest difficulty which has arisen in the adjustment of complaints and promotion of cleanliness has been in the want of a proper system of sewerage; slops of all kinds are thrown into sheds and back yards, simply because there is no other place to put them. One cannot look around long and listen to the tales of people without feeling that this question is one which must force itself upon the notice of the authorities at no distant date. The expense and inconvenience of such an undertaking require that it be not entered upon too rashly, but that the fullest information be obtained. Peterborough is not alone in this. Many towns are growing up throughout Ontario, so that the question of sewerage assumes a Provincial importance. Newspapers are beginning to give their readers valuable information on the subject, collected from the most reliable sources. In regard to Peterborough, it might seem at first sight that a system emptying into the river below the Little Lake would answer well, but this involves pollution of its waters. It is possible that a sewerage farm might be made to pay, and to this there could be no valid objection. Further returns from France and England, where the experiment has been tried in various forms, will show what may be done in this way. Our necessity for it seems more particularly in the spring and during such a wet fall as we have had this year. Some of the worst sufferers are the storekeepers along George street. To say nothing of occasional contributions, the spring washings of their lanes behind their stores, find their way into the cellars, mixed with all sorts of impurities and remain there half of the summer. The condition of some of the smaller drains has been such as to necessitate the use of large quantities of disinfectants. In connection with this I may say that a sanitary engineer visited the town during the summer and left plans for a system of sewerage which has found much favor in several American cities, and which, it is said, can be constructed for about one-fourth of the cost of the ordinary system.

SAWDUST.

This question is constantly assuming greater importance, the accumulations being more noticeable this year than heretofore on account of the low water in the latter part of the summer. It must be remembered that Peterborough is placed in a peculiar position as regards sawdust. If the river flowed in steady current past the town there would be little to complain of. But the curve and expansion constituting the Little Lake, together with the dam below, form a trap which retains the sawdust in dangerous proximity to the town. It is of more importance as the lake is the only sheet of water from which a considerable supply of ice can be obtained for summer purposes.

INFECTIOUS DISEASES.

It is the unexpected that happens. The country was agitated last spring by the fear of an invasion from cholera. Fortunately that fear has proved groundless and has had its good result in the active sanitary work of the season. But in its place we have had another visitor scarcely less to be dreaded. On the 23rd of October a case of smallpox was reported on George street. I immediately visited it, convinced myself of its genuineness, had all the inmates of the house vaccinated and placards put up. On enquiring, I learned that several members of the family had been in Montreal and had returned five or six weeks before. They lived in a street where they disease existed and had been receiving letters after their return, the child playing with the envelopes. In the absence of any other trace of infection it was evident that the disease had come in some way from Montreal. I immediately telegraphed to the party sending the letters to mail no more, writing the particulars afterward. I then saw several members of the Board of Health, and the same evening a meeting was held, attended by most of the members of the Council. A resolution as to immediate action was passed, and in a day or two, mainly through the energetic measures of the chairman of the Board, a hospital was erected outside of the town, and the child, with those immediately exposed, removed there, the rest of the family being placed in quarantine for two weeks. A medical man was secured to attend the case exclusively. The child progressed favorably, and on the 17th of November the hospital was broken up, no other cases having occurred. Prompt measures had stamped out the disease completely. Previous to this the council had passed a resolution authorizing the town Physician and Medical Health Officer to appoint places where all unable to pay might be vaccinated free of expense. 900 availed themselves of this. Including those done by other medical men 2000 or 3000 people have been vaccinated in Peterborough during the last few weeks. This renders the town safe from a general epidemic of smallpox for years to come. In England children must be vaccinated before the age of three months. Until such law is enacted and enforced here public vaccination by municipalities is the only way of preserving business towns from great financial loss. Montreal has lost millions from commencing too late. Toronto acted promptly and has had 10,000 or 12,000 vaccinated free of expense, and all the business centres of Canada in proportion. Under this head may be mentioned the advisability of a permanent hospital for infectious diseases, or a building could be constructed in pieces which could be put together on short notice. This would save the expense of going over the whole work again, should another case appear.

Typhoid fever has also made its appearance this fall. The wet weather has brought on a larger number of cases than last year, but fortunately few have proved fatal. However, typhoid is such a disease that it becomes us to guard carefully against it. In every case its presence may be traced to some sanitary defect. Decomposing matter in some form or impure water was the exciting cause. I have examined a number of samples of water where typhoid existed, and found them saturated with organic matter. In a model sanitary town typhoid would be unknown.

A few cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria have occurred. Isolation and disinfection have been attended to and the houses placarded.

The town is to be congratulated on the prospect of a more congenial lock-up than the present malodorous one. It is well that even tramps should carry away a good report of the sanitary condition of Peterborough.

Weekly statements of disease for the town and of sanitary work done have been forwarded, by request, to the Provincial Board. Elaborate questions as to the sawdust nuisance, the result of the vaccination, and other subjects have also been answered from time to time.

Appended is a detailed statement of the work of the year.

Respectfully submitted,
J. CLARKE, M.D.,
Medical Health Officer.

REPORTS OF DISEASE.

Smallpox	1
Scarlet fever	6
Diphtheria	3
Typhoid fever	13
Houses placarded	9

The Board then entered into discussion upon the report.

Mr. Pearse asked whose duty it was to prosecute those medical men who did not report cases of infectious diseases which came under their notice.

Mr. Rutherford informed him that it was the duty of the Sanitary Inspector to complain, and that of the Board to prosecute.

Secretary Macdonald said he had supplied the medical staff of the town with circulars, stating what was required of them in such cases.

Dr. Clark said it was not ignorance but forgetfulness.

Mr. Pearse said if they were fined $25 or $50 their memories would improve.

On motion of Mr. Kendry, the report of the Medical Health Officer was received and adopted, and ordered to be fyled and submitted to the Council.

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON SMALLPOX.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman of the special committee appointed by the Board of Health to make arrangements for dealing with the smallpox case which had appeared in town, reported that they had at once taken steps to procure an isolated place, where a temporary hospital was erected, secured the services of Dr. Job, who gave all his time and attention to the case. They had pleasure in reporting that, owing to the prompt action taken, aided by the Health officer and the Board, the smallpox had been prevented from spreading. They further recommended the Board to ask the Town Council to secure a piece of land on which to erect

A FEVER HOSPITAL.

They also submitted a number of accounts incurred.

All the accounts had not been handed in, although all parties had been notified to do so. The principal ones were: D. W. Dumble, for lot, $20; J. B. Baptie, for building, $140; Wright, for pump, $30, and Dr. Job, $5 a day for his services; amounting in all to nearly $400.

Mr. Pearse thought that if they adopted the clause concerning the purchase of a piece of land for hospital purposes, the Council would consider it as the sanction of the Board in the matter.

The Chairman thought in almost a necessity as did several other members.

Dr. Rice moved that the report be adopted, substituting the words fever hospital instead of smallpox hospital.—Carried.

THE DOCTORS TO BE WATCHED.

It was then moved by Mr. Kendry, seconded by Mr. Pearse, that the Sanitary Inspector be instructed to inform the Board of every case where doctors neglected to report cases of infectious diseases, which came under their notice.—Carried.

OFFICER TO ACT IN CASE OF EPIDEMIC.

Mr. Pearse suggested that a medical officer might be appointed to act in case of an epidemic, as it was found hard to secure one on such occasions, paying him a lump sum.

The idea was thought a good one but no action was taken.

Dr. Clarke explained that one reason why doctors do not like to take such cases was that they would probably be the means of carrying the disease to their other patients.

On motions of Mr. Pearse, Mr. Rutherford vacated the chair, which Mr. Kendry ascended to.

VOTE OF THANKS.

On motion of Mr. Pearse, the board then tendered Mr. Rutherford a vote of thanks for his active services in the campaign against smallpox.

Mr. Rutherford replied in return, thanking the board for their assistance and co-operation and said he always had pleasure in doing his duty.

There being no further business the meeting then adjourned.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 29.]

Isidore G. Ascher.

"Painters and poets our indulgence claim,
Their daring equal, and their art the same."
F. HORACE, Art of Poetry.

Probably very few of our readers have heard of the gentleman whose name stands at the head of this article. It is about a score of years since he produced a little volume of poetry which was very well received by the press, and which was full of promise of better things. But shortly afterwards he left Canada to reside in England, where we believe he still continued to write with great acceptance for many leading magazines, proving thereby that the genius and skill he evinced in early days had only ripened and improved by the lapse of years.

Mr. Ascher was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in the year 1835, but came with his parents to Canada at a very early age, having previously spent a few years at Plymouth.

His father lived in Montreal and it was at the high school in that city young Ascher received his education. Having completed his studies, the young man entered his father's counting house with the view of preparing himself to engage in business pursuits. But a very brief experience soon taught him that such an occupation would be both distasteful and irksome, so he quietly abandoned the ledger for the law, and in due time was called to the bar of Lower Canada, receiving the degree of B.C.L. from McGill College.

During his student days he was known to some friends as the author of many poetical pieces, notably a number of beautiful and tender lyrics, which appeared in the local papers under the nom-de-plume, as it was thought, of "Isidore." These first productions of his gentle muse evoked generous praise and attracted much attention from the provincial papers. One Western journal said they evinced more genuine, poetic feeling, melody of diction, and happiness of expression than that of any Canadian poet they yet had the fortune to peruse.

At the solicitation of numerous friends and well-wishers, he collected a number of his printed pieces and together with some new poems, published them in a volume called "Voices from the Hearth." It was a great success, the public received it in the most cordial spirit, and it was very warmly commended by the reviewers. The book was a small one, consisting of only 168 pages, and although not without many defects of style and language, it revealed a subtle and delicate imagination, earnest and tender aspiration after the beautiful and true, and in several pieces, a rich musical harmony which showed genius of no common order.

Lawyers like Mr. Ascher, very seldom cultivate that sentiment of pathos and imagination which can alone stir the heart and make it burst into song. But this young Jew had been highly gifted by nature and made the best use of the talents with which he was endowed. The first edition of his works was speedily exhausted. But Mr. Ascher was not destined to enrich the literature of Canada, at a period when we should naturally have expected that mature experience and ripe scholarship would come to him in after life, to endow his mind with still higher gifts and to make his work an honour and a credit to himself and to the land in which he lived. Since 1864, Mr. Ascher has resided in England, where he still we believe, seeks to climb the hill of fame, not only as a magazine writer but as a poet. Some years ago we understand he published a second volume of poetry, but this the present writer has not seen.

We shall now give a few extracts from reviews of Mr. Archer's poetry. Colburn's Monthly Magazine (London) said:—"We have not for a long time read a more pleasing collection of short poems, written with elegance, truth of sentiment, and genuine poetic feeling. It has made us for a few moments forget the mechanical life around us, and lose ourselves in that indescribable absence from sensual objects, which is a vision of our higher humanity."

The Boston Transcript thus wrote:—"Mr. Archer's poems are distinguished by a pleasant and lively fancy, by gay and cheerful feeling, often, however, overshadowed by a pathetic tenderness; and at times they give evidence that the writer feels the deeper mysteries and precious of human nature and human life. The moral spirit throughout is of the highest; it is one of mildness, of goodness, and yet of uncompromising right; it is gracious, generous, and of the most ample liberality and charity; it is of the most comprehensive humanity, truly tolerant but never temporising."

In a future issue we shall supply some extracts from "Voices from the Hearth," and by these our readers can very likely form some conception of the justices of the above criticisms.

The Isles of the South.

Help Wanted for the New Hebrides—Rev. Mr. Annand Tells of the Mission Work in These Islands to a St. Paul's Congregation—An Interesting Hour and a-Half.

Rev. Mr. Annand, a returned missionary from Aneityum, one of the New Hebrides group of South Sea Islands, delivered an address in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last night. There was a fair-sized audience present. Rev. Mr. Torrance presided, and assisted by Rev. Mr. Munro, conducted the devotional exercises. Appropriate missionary music was furnished by the choir, under the direction of Prof. Parker.

Rev. Mr. Annand set out by explaining that the New Hebrides were in the South Pacific, 1400 miles from New South Wales, between the thirteenth and seventeenth degrees of south latitude. The islands are of volcanic origin, with high mountains, and consequently beautiful scenery; earthquakes are still frequent, and during one of these five miles of coast was raised perpendicularly 23 feet. One of the islands contains one of the grandest volcanoes in the world. The flora of the islands was described, as utterly different from that of Canada, not a single tree, and only three of the 130 species of ferns answering, being like those of Canada. Roses not indigenous, however, bloom all the year around, though there is no excessive heat. The people have no rye, wheat or other grains nor potatoes. An underground tuber represents bread, "the staff of life." A kind of sweet potatoe and yam take the place of our potatoes. Bananas grow in great perfection. Sugar cane and pine apple are also cultivated, as well as the other foods mentioned. There are no horses nor cattle on the islands, nor any wild animals. The soil is cultivated by digging with a sharp stick, and a spade or a plough is regarded as an undesirable innovation. Much food grows spontaneously, the chief of which is the bread fruit, which is, however, in season only three months in the year. Cocoanuts grow wild, but are used only for puddings. Shell fish are largely used for food, and scale fish also, which are taken principally with the spear. The green turtle, as heavy as 300 pounds is sometimes taken. The natives have one principal meal in the day about six in the afternoon.

The speaker described the curious mode of cookery, and the masticatory manner of making the native "grog." The natives are of the Papuan race in feature, about half way between the European and negro, not as large nor as athletic as Europeans, and in their native state most degraded and cruel cannibals.

THE BEGINNING OF MISSION WORK.

was made in 1839 by John Williams, who went from the Society Islands, but he and his companions were speedily murdered and eaten. Within six months another party came, and ere long five islands were occupied with Christian teachers. The ferocious barbarity of the natives was shown by the statement that in one single year nine missionaries were killed and eaten; but for every one that had fallen two more were ready to take their places. In 1846 a ship visited the group and found several of the new teachers killed. From 1848 to the present time to the natives, and great good accomplished. In 1852 the first Christian congregation was formed. From 1852 to 1861, in the island of Aneityum, a marvellous change came over the people, under missionary influence, and all barbarous crimes were done away with, including strangling of widows, infanticide and cannibalism. The people threw away their heathenism, were educated, the Bible, translated into the vernacular is read, and churches were built. But an epidemic of disease swept away a third of the population of one island in a year, and in other islands the ravages of diseases were felt. The missionaries, were blamed for this epidemic and thus the progress of the gospel was checked. This state of things ceased in 1862, and since that time

THE GOSPEL HAS BEEN PREACHED

GREAT PROGRESS HAS BEEN MADE.

As a result of 37 years of labor, in a population of 936, there are 370 adult members, and many native preachers. The morality of the people is only fair, for in no community recently reclaimed from heathenism is the state of mortality as high as in Christian communities. The Sabbath is however, well observed and people come to church decently clad, and are devout worshippers, and there are only eight in the thousand population, who do not go to church and the Wednesday day night prayer meetings are well attended. The natives liberally support the gospel, (spending a tenth of the own income), have built their own churches without help, and keep them in repair. They also give about $700 to the spread of the gospel abroad—about $2 each for every communicant. Interesting details of the advancement of Christianity, and the displacement, of cannibalism, and other degrading heathen practices, were given as showing that the Gospel that as had come over these islands, had not lost its power. There were now on the islands comprising this group, 13 missionaries and one in 12 of the entire population is heathen. Every island in the group contains a little or large Christian community, but there were still missionaries wanted, and one island has waited in vain for 15 years. It was now proposed to send a missionary from Canada, and the speaker made a vigorous and eloquent appeal to the congregation present, concluding a

PRODUCED SUCH MARVELLOUS CHANGES.

MOST INTERESTING ADDRESS

by repeating in the native language a message from the first convert made on the islands, calling on Canadians to lend a helping hand in sending the Gospel to those of his brethren still "sitting in darkness." After the taking of a liberal collection, the meeting was dismissed with the benediction, pronounced by Rev. Mr. Munro.

A Cutting Reproof.

An amusing anecdote, not generally known, is related of the late gifted Rev. W. Atherton, Wesleyan minister. After pouring forth a flood of eloquence at a missionary meeting, he was followed by a local preacher, who, being too obtuse to comprehend Mr. A.'s meaning upon one or two points, expressed his disapprobation in uncourteous language. During this time there was an amused smile upon the reverend gentleman's face. When the speaker had finished and had seated himself Mr. Atherton arose and, looking around upon the congregation, said: "Our good brother has brought to my recollection an incident that occurred, not long ago, in Yorkshire:—One lovely evening a poor man was walking through a lane when an ass, grazing by the side of the hedge, kicked him. Looking at the animal, he addressed him in the following language: 'Thee hast kicked me, blast thee! and if thee wasn't an ass I would kick thee again.'" He then resumed his seat and the roars of laughter which followed on every side showed how fully the congregation understood the application.

FOR VALERIE'S SAKE.

It seems as if my love for her had existed for ages, and would endure throughout eternity. It seems, moreover, as if it were idle to attempt portrayal of this love—a passion without stint or limit, an all-absorbing passion, beautiful, yet terrible in its intensity.

As I close my eyes upon the glare of the lamp I see strange shadows. First, her fair unearthly face arises, cold and pallid as the crescent in the wintry sky. Haunting and reproachful is her glance, and hers are lips that move to frame appeal. There is a mass of dead-black hair, that ripples to her waist.

Other pictures rise before me. A night scene! I know a villa shrined in odorous leafage. Long lawns, and winding walks, and pathways fit for lovers' loitering footsteps. In the distance the murmur of the sea. Ah, it is summer, and there is starshine over all.

There are other lights twinkling from the windows of the villa, twinkling until they draw me nearer and nearer. It is her home—my queen! As I proceed along the gravelled walks, I know the look of the deep drawing-room, in which she waits for me.

The dark wood floors are strewn with rugs of velvet; luxurious seats are there, and costly pictures grace the walls. Long mirrors reflect the tints of light shining through colored glass. White flowers gleam in fragile vases, her lilies and her hyacinths. And she, herself, my love, my darling, waits for me.

As I draw nearer to the threshold, I hear strains of music, delicate, pathetic; she is playing her favorite minor waltzes, sad and wistful whisperings. The tears stand in her eyes.

Ah, hush! All is over; I only dreamed. I am back again in the glare of the lamp of my sick-chamber; I am stretched upon my dying bed, and you are waiting to hear my last confession.

The only child of a fond widowed mother, the rare and beautiful blossom of that luxurious home, Valerie was my promised wife. I had been for three years her friend, and also her mother's. The latter had given me many proofs of friendship and esteem, even that most glorious and contenting, her favor in my suit for Valerie's love.

Valerie seemed to love me well; I adored her. The marriage would take place some months later; my darling was still quite young.

I was not poor as to worldly possession; yet it seemed to me I could not gain too great a wealth to lavish upon my wife. I was over thirty, and still ambitious. This was the cause of my leaving home—the city, from which Valerie's house was but a half-hour's journey by rail—to go hundreds of miles away, and so remain, perhaps one month, perhaps two, perhaps longer.

The thought of separation grieved me sorely; yet we should write daily, and my love was safely sheltered with the tenderest of mothers.

"Good-bye, good-by, life of my life!" I strained her to my bosom. "Good-by," I said, "I leave my heart with you, my darling."

"Good-by," she answered. Her eyes were smiling through their tears. "Good-by, dear Paul!"

Heavens! How plainly I can see her pure sweet face! And with that sight I feel a strong conviction of her dear and faithful purpose.

We were parted! Miles and miles away, amid strange scenes, I toiled for her by day, and dreamed of her by night. Sometimes, in fancy, I was at her side, her hand in mine, her fragrant hair upon my shoulder.

Each day I wrote to her, finding always thoughts wherewith to crowd my pages. And her sweet letters came to comfort me. And so a month passed.

I was not yet ready to return; still it seemed as if I must. Was it the altered tone of Valerie's letters? Were her words less warm—less frequent? What horrible fear was this? Nothing, nothing! Absurdity, that was all!

And yet her letters came less frequently and grew perceptibly shorter. Heavens! was she ill? What could it mean?

Another month dragged by.

Valerie's letters ceased.

I waited a week. Then I was frantic. I telegraphed to her mother. The latter replied in a few hours—hours that seemed eternal. Valerie was well and would write.

Was well! Would write! I repeated the words over and over in a stupefied way. I had a heavy feeling, as of something terrible approaching.

I made preparations to return home at once. My business must conclude itself. What was business or fortune, save for Valerie?

* * * * * * *

It was night, and I walked swiftly up from the station—swiftly up the quiet road and the sloping hillside, and on into the odorous leafy shade about the villa. My heart beat hard and fast to see the lights twinkling, as so many times before. My breath was quick and painful as I crossed the threshold of the drawing-room.

Valerie sat at the piano; by her side stood a tall and fair-haired man. He was beginning a song. Their backs were towards me.

I made a desperate effort to speak. Valerie sprang round with a startled cry.

"Paul! Is it you?"

Her companion turned also. I saw now how handsome he was, and how much younger than I. Singularly enough, I looked at him, not at Valerie. He returned my steadfast gaze.

We stood thus for a moment—I, with the fixed and horrid glare of jealousy upon my face; he, with the shadow of a mocking smile. Suddenly he turned and went out of the room.

And now I looked at Valerie. Heavens how changed she seemed! Why should she look so thin and troubled?

I sprang forward and seized her hands.

"Valerie, you have been ill?"

She yielded unwillingly to my embrace. A horrible jealousy sprang upon me.

"Who is that man?" I cried fiercely.

A faint color stole into her face.

"My cousin," she said; "you have often heard me speak of my cousin, Harold Masters. He is to spend the autumn with us."

"But why," I think my voice must [illegible] you not write in so many days? Oh, Valerie, if you should cease to love me I should go mad!"

"Hush!" she said in a tone of alarm; "mamma is coming."

* * * * * *

I went away a little comforted that night. At least Valerie was living and still mine. Death was the only foe to dread. And should Valerie die, could I not follow her at once? I remember what peace I felt in my calm and deliberate resolve not to live one hour longer than my beloved.

"Her cousin—much like brother!"

The words of Valerie's mother still haunt me at times. Alas, poor trusting soul, had she but known.

He was there, under the same roof—at her side. My jealousy grew fierce and terrible. I scarcely could speak to him in civil tones. He seemed to comprehend and mock me with his smile.

I urged an immediate marriage. Valerie appeared unwilling. Great Heaven! Had she ceased to love me?

For many days that agonising fear pursued me, sleeping or waking.

Had she ceased to love me?

Did she shrink from my caresses?

* * * * * *

"Valerie!" I paused at the sound of stifled sobs. She was weeping; she [illegible] every tear my heart drew drop for drop!

I had come in softly; the drawing-room was yet unlighted. She was alone in the dark, by the window, where a cool breeze swung the curtain softly inward. She was there alone; she had flung herself, face downward, into a great armchair. I tried to lift her. "Valerie! You to weep! What has happened?"

She resisted me, answering indistinctly:

"It is nothing; I—it was lonesome——"

A sudden fury seized me. I dragged her from the chair, crying out hoarsely:

"That is not true! You cannot deceive me! Something has happened. Some trouble is yours. Answer me!"

I had forced her to her feet; I held her wrists in an iron grasp. I was wild with the great pain gnawing at my heart—the awful pain that none can imagine until he has once felt it.

"You hurt me," she faltered. I relaxed my hold, and she sprang away from me and from the room.

I remained there in the gathering dusk. By-and-by I heard voices outside and near the window.

The servants came and lighted the lamps. The central radiance of the room was rosy strong and hopeful; but on a stand not far from where I sat, a blush globe filtered another flame upon a vase of pallid fragrance. Her lilies and her hyacinths.

I looked at them quietly. I was very quiet now—now that I knew the worst—now that I knew she loved not me, but her cousin. How calm I was, with all that crushing knowledge!

By-and-by another thought seemed to gnaw deeper than my own agony of loss. Did—he—love—her? Why had she wept so? Why should she weep? Not at any thought of me; that was not human.

Well, I could easily determine. I would give her her freedom at once, and wish her well. If she still wept, I knew other things that I should do.

How my own misery paled in the light of my fiery zeal for her welfare!

A half hour later I had asked her to walk with me in the grounds. I led her a safe distance from the house.

"Valerie," I said, "it is my dearest wish, my only dream on earth, to secure your happiness. To-night, by chance, not purpose, I overheard a conversation. I know that you love him. I will not stand between you. I give you back your freedom, and the blessing of a—brother. Valerie, take heart, for you shall wed him."

She trembled; she did not answer. Heavens! My horrid suspicion. Why did she not thank me? Why did she not show joy?

"Valerie," I cried, "why are you silent?"

But she only bowed her head upon my arm and sobbed. Then I knew all.

But she should not, must not know my thoughts. I dissembled, speaking cheerily.

"You are nervous, Valerie; come back to the house, all will be well."

And in my heart I swore an awful oath, that he who had stolen her love from me should keep his vows or die.

I left the house at once, that I might avoid seeing her mother or him. I would give him a fair chance until the following day.

* * * * * *

I had no weapon. I went to meet him, unarmed save with my great love for her whom he had wronged, in some measure—how deeply I scarce could tell.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

The Cathedral Windows.

The glass for the windows in St. Peter's Cathedral has all arrived and is being put in as quickly as possible. It is expected the work will be completed for Sunday next.

The Dufferin Debaters.

It is hoped that a large number of members of the Dufferin Literary Association will turn out this evening. An interesting debate upon the Chinese question is expected.

Parlor Roller Rink.

Remember that the Parlor Roller Rink is open every day and evening, and that it is the place for exercise and amusement. Everyone who attends is delighted with the rink. To-morrow a reduction is made, the price of admission being 10c.

Typhoid Fever.

There are numbers of cases of typhoid fever in town and in Ashburnham. The Medical Health Officer claims that the prevalence of this disease is traceble to sanitary causes and due to some extent to the large amount of rain which fell this fall.

Special Meeting of Town Council.

A special meeting of the Town Council will be held in the Council Chamber this evening at 7.30 o'clock, to make arrangements for attending the funeral of the late Chief Constable Johnston. All the members are requested to be present.

Important to Ratepayers.

All taxpayers who wish to avail themselves of the 5 per cent. discount on taxes, should bear in mind that the discount is only allowed on taxes paid on or before Monday next, and that after that date the collector will be obliged to put on and collect 5 per cent. extra, according to the by-law to that effect.

Bricks and the Bible.

There is no need of reciting Prof. Burwash's praises before Peterborough citizens, as his ability is so well known here. He is to give his lecture on the above subject in the Baptist Church, on Monday, 30th November, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The testimony of the stones and bricks of Egypt and Assyria, to the truth of Bible history, is intensely interesting, and all, both Christian and unbeliever, should hear this lecture. There will be no charge for admission, but a collection will be taken.

Close of Navigation.

Calcutt's line of steamers made their last trip yesterday. THE EXAMINER is pleased to know that the past is the most successful season the enterprising proprietor has enjoyed since his line was established. During the month of October his steamers brought to town over a thousand cords of wood, which was sold a $4 per cord, a decided saving to the people who have been accustomed to pay at that rate for a wagon load of wood, equivalent to $6 or $7 per measured cord. Mr. Calcutt is making arrangements to double the capacity of his line of steamers the coming season. His enterprise deserves success.

Y. M. C. A. Conference.

At the Conference of the Y. M. C. A., held in Port Hope, Mr. Geo. E. Williams, Secretary of the Peterborough Y. M. C. A., gave an address upon the subject, "Why the work should be specially for young men." He referred, is reported by the Port Hope Times, to the great need there was for Christian work among young men to keep them from falling into the many temptations with which they are surrounded. In Peterboro' there were 22 drinking bars, which had an aggregate income of half a million of dollars. It was the young men who supported the saloons and dens of infamy to a great extent—over 90 per cent. at any rate. And this was the reason the work of the Association was specially and specifically for young men. The young men were the hardest to interest in Christian things, and there was great need of concentrated efforts for the good and spiritual welfare of young men.

Otonabee Oddfellows in Luck.

We are not always fortunate in having our own way and not always happy when we cannot have it. Otonabee Oddfellows made energetic efforts to get Beecher to lecture here at an early date, but they were not able to secure him till February. It now turns out that it was all for the best, for if they could have got what they wanted at first, they would have been disappointed in the end. This morning Mr. W. J. Minore, recording secretary, received a letter announcing the death of Mr. H. B. Chaffin, one of the oldest members of Rev. Mr. Beecher's congregation. The latter is so penetrated with grief that he is unequal to any public work, and he has cancelled his immediate lecture engagements, including Chatham and Galt, and if Otonabee had had its own way it would have been similarly treated. But Mr. Beecher will be sure to lecture in Peterborough early in the new year, a fact which the public should bear in mind.

Also, come and witness the champion swordsmen, Prof. Reid and McGregor, in their assault-at-arms, with rapier, foil, and broadsword versus bagonet, at Bradburn's Opera House, on Monday evening, 30th Nov. Doors open at 7.30; commence at 8 sharp. Plan of hall at T. Menzies' store. Tickets to be had from T. Menzies and members of committee. Tickets 25c., reserved seats 50c.; family tickets, admitting 6 of a family, $2.10.

The Brewing Boom.

Calcutt's brewery is doing a big business. This year it has used 10 000 bushels of barley and next year this number will be increased to 15,000 bushels. In view of the probability of Parliament giving effect to the Senate's Wine and Beer Amendments to the Scott Act, Mr. Calcutt has established a cooperage fully equipped with a large stock of material on hand. This brewery is doing a large trade in bottled ale and the proprietor wonders there is not an even greater local demand, since it is better than imported ale and much cheaper.

New Pleasure Resort.

Commodore Calcutt is negotiating arrangements with the G. T. R., to run excursion parties next season to Hastings Falls, 15 miles below Hastings. Parties will be conveyed [illegible] be taken by Calcutt's steamers to the Falls, which are a delightful picnic ground, with capital fishing and shooting. The fishing grounds have never been fished, and may therefore be expected to yield fine sport. After spending the day among the delights of the Falls, will return by steamer to Hastings and thence to town by train. Mr. Calcutt will continue to main in excellent order the popular summer resort, Idyl Wild. His schemes like himself are broad and jovial, and under his supervision the public are assured that everything connected with them will be caried out in A 1 style.

Y.M.C.A. Conference.

The Young Men's Christian Associations held a District Conference at Port Hope on Wednesday and Thursday, at which there were representatives from Toronto, Peterborough and Cobourg. The proceedings were very helpful, and doubtless stimulated those who attended the sessions. The following were among the questions considered:—Which of our meetings have been most fruitful in the conversion of young men? Is the Word of God having the place it should have in our meetings? What secular and social agencies have been found really helpful in our work? On Wednesday evening a large public meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, at which addresses were given by Rev. W. Haslam, of England, on "The need of consecration to God on the part of young men," and by Messrs. T. S. Cole, Travelling Secretary, Wm. McCulloch, of Toronto, and Geo. E. Williams, of Peterborough, on various phases of Association work. The Peterborough Association was represented at the Conference by Messrs. Turnbull and Williams.

Police Court.

In the Police Court this morning there were two cases brought before Magistrate Dumble. The first taken up was a charge preferred against Richard and Hugh Darke, for assaulting, beating and ill-treating Mr. H. Panter on Saturday night last. It appears that Panter's wife had borrowed some stove pipes from Richard Darke. On the night stated Darke asked Panter for the pipes, when Panter told him he had none belonging to him. Here they exchanged cards, calling each other liars, etc. The complainant said Darke had taken hold of him, shoved his fist in his face, and struck at him several times. Panter got away, when the younger Darke, who then came up, took hold of him. Richard Dark threatened to lay Panter out cold, "paraline" him, etc., and cursing him all the while.

Both Darkes denied the charge, and, on oath Richard Darke said he had prevented his brother from striking Panter when he called him a liar.

Panter's little daughter said she heard Darke threaten to lay her father out.

The Magistrate thought it clear that Richard Darke had threatened the complainant, and so bound him over to keep the peace, with two sureties of $500 each. Mr. Sawers, who appeared for the defendants complained that the amount was two large, but the Magistrate thought not.

George Webber, butcher, was charged with having and using a slaughter house within the town limits, contrary to the by-laws of the town, which house was also a public nuisance. Mr. C. A. Weller, for defendant, read a clause from the Public Health Act of 1884, Ont. Statutes, showing that in towns where there was a Public Health Officer, and a Nuisance Inspector, slaughter houses might be erected and used subject to the inspection from the said officials.

Mr. G. M. Roger appeared for the prosecution, and claimed that the statute which Mr Weller had read did not affect the town by laws. The municipal act gave the town power to form their own by-laws. Toronto had a similar by-law to Peterborough, notwithstanding they had the Health Officer and Inspector.

The counsel indulged in a little by-play of a jocose nature for a time, which the Magistrate cut short.

Mr. Roger wanted to call the witnesses for the prosecution, but Mr. Weller objected as he was not prepared.

The Magistrate enlarged the case till Tuesday, Dec. 8th.

Migratory Movements.

Jas. McGee, of Otonabee, left for Chesley via G.T.R. He will probably take up his residence there.

Miss Tottie Hartley leaves town this evening for Ottawa, with the intention of attending a boarding school. Her brother, R. T. Hartley, will accompany her. They go by the G.T.R. Mr. T. Menzies is the local agent.

What They are Saying.

Your slaughter house is a public nuisance.—The complainant.

If you only knew what a public nuisance was, and wanted to remove it, you would go and drown yourself.—The defendant.

We shall settle the matter the 8th December.—The P. M.

I'm the senior officer of the squad.—P. C. Pidgeon.

And a purty bard ye are.—The junior.

Come to the fine thing, I'm the senior officer of the police force.—Tommy Beavis.

What We May Expect.

The medical fraternity to report promptly all infectious diseases.

And the penalty of from $5 to $50 to make them vigilant.

A scarcity of tramps when they find out that the tent used at the smallpox hospital is stowed in the lock-up.

A special meeting of the Town Council to-night.

A big market to-morrow and fowl to have the call.

Light to moderate winds, fair weather, stationary or slightly lower temperature.

Personal.

We regret to learn that William Joynt James, B.A., who formerly was modern language master in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, died yesterday, at the residence of his brother, the Rev. Charles J. James, Hamilton. Mr. James was a young man of many good parts, and his early death will be a shock to his numerous friends both here and in Toronto.

Press Correspondents.

It would be well if correspondents of the press would distinctly understand that we are only responsible for our own utterances, and not for the opinions of correspondents.

The Bridge Building Boom.

The Central Iron and Bridge Works are enjoying a busy boom just now. This morning there were shipped by G. T. R., two iron highway bridges, one to Arthur, Wellington County, 55 feet span, and one to Mitchell, Perth County, 50 feet span. The iron work for the Wallace Point Bridge is now being put together and will be ready in a few days. Though the new premises greatly facilitate operations, the works are kept too busy to place in position the fine new Wheelocks Improved Carlisa, of 30-horse-power engine, made by Golden & McCullock, Galt, the counterpart of the Stove Works Regina, which has arrived, only to wait its turn to receive attention.

THE CHIEF OF POLICE.

By the sad and unexpected death of Chief Johnston the Chieftainship of Police is now vacant.

During the tenure of his office Peterborough has grown from a small and disjointed community into a wealthy and solid town, fast merging into a city. Whilst, formerly, it was but slightly connected by railroad with the frontier, and but little known outside of the Midland District, now it has splendid railroad connections with the great centres, Montreal and Toronto, and is easy both of ingress and egress. Its population hitherto increased slowly, though steadily, but is now making giant strides, and with its progress, wealth and luxury are concurrent.

Owing to our inland isolation, we have so far been comparatively free from crime and criminals, but with our present easy facilities of access and exit, and owing to the large and increasing business of Peterborough, it is but probable that we will not be as free from burglaries and such crimes as in the past.

It therefore behooves the Council not to act with haste in selecting a new Chief of Police, and not to rashly pledge themselves to any party, but to guard well that they choose for the position a man of knowledge, skill and experience, well qualified to do his duty in every emergency, and who will be capable, not only of fulfilling the duties of his office in the present state of our town and population, but also in the near future, when we shall assume the increased authority and responsibility of a city.

Town Council.

A Special Meeting to Make Arrangements for Attending the Funeral of the Late Chief Constable Johnston.

A special meeting of the Peterborough Town Council was held in the Council chamber yesterday evening, to make arrangements for attending the funeral of the late Chief Constable Johnston.

Present—Mayor Cox, Councillors Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, McClelland, Yelland, Douglass and Menzies.

The Mayor in the chair.

On motion of Councillor Kelly, the reading of the minutes was dispensed with.

Councillor Cahill rose and made a short speech, eulogizing the merits of the late Chief of Police. He had been very intimate with the deceased in a public capacity, particularly of late, and lamented very much his sudden and untimely death as did every one who knew him. He would bear testimony to the faithfulness, integrity and zeal of the deceased in the discharge of his duty. These were not mere formal words, but came from the heart. He trusted that ere this he would have received from his heavenly Master the welcome, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." He then made the following motion:—

Moved by Councillor Cahill, seconded by Councillor Douglass,—That the members of the Town Council of the town of Peterborough, in special session assembled, desire to place on record their deep and unfeigned regret at the loss the Council and community have sustained by the sudden and untimely death of the late Chief Constable Johnston, who, for the fifteen years that he held the position of the head of the police force, discharged the onerous duties appertaining to it with the entire approval of this body and to the satisfaction of the citizens whose interests he looked after and protected so faithfully. That by his lamented death the Council loses a trusted servant and the town a respected citizen. That the members of this Council join with their fellow citizens in respectfully extending their condolence and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved wife and family of the deceased officer. And that as a mark of respect be it resolved that the members of this Council attend the funeral in a body, in their corporate capacity. And that the Clerk be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the family of the deceased, and that this Council do now adjourn."—Carried.

The members then arranged to meet in a body at the Council Chamber at a quarter to two, when they would proceed to the house of the deceased in a body and attend the funeral.

Mr. McClelland and Mayor Cox spoke in highest terms of the late Chief, as an officer and citizen.

The Council then adjourned.

George Street Methodist.

In the morning, Rev. I. Tovell will occupy the pulpit of this church, and Rev. E. F. Torrance in the evening.

St. Andrew's Sermon.

On Sunday evening next, Rev. F. H. Wallace, will preach the annual sermon to the St. Andrew Society in St. Paul's church.

"The Fantastic" in Future.

A grand ball under the auspices of the Social club will be held in Bradburn's Opera House on Friday evening, December 4th. Tickets for couple to ball and supper, $1.00.

Fainting Fit.

An old gentleman named Davidson, while waiting to see the funeral of the late Chief Constable Johnson, had a fainting fit. He was standing against the house of the deceased when the fit seized him. He fell very violently. He was taken to a neighboring house. Dr. Kincaid said he would come round in a short while.

The Post Office and Customs Buildings.

Mr. E. Phelan informed a representative of the EXAMINER that the post-office is as sure to be built on his lot as the sun is to rise to-morrow, and he has not the slightest doubt that the customs buildings will be placed there too. His lot was reserved for a post-office, the deed of transfer stipulated that the post-office should be built on it and no other building would be allowed to be built thereon.

Anniversary Services.

As has before been intimated the Anniversary Services, in connection with Mark Street Methodist Church, Ashburnham, will be conducted to-morrow, Rev. E. Roberts, of Bowmanville, presiding morning and evening. There will also be a public meeting in the Sunday School at 2 o'clock, in the interests of that institution. Collections at each service. On Monday tea will be served in the town hall, opposite the church by the ladies of the congregation. After tea, addresses will be delivered by Rev. D. N. McCamus, Rev. I. Tovell and Rev. E. Roberts. Excellent music will be furnished by the choir. Tickets of admission to tea, 25c. All are cordially invited and will be made welcome. The juvenile members of the congregation will attend the Monday night meeting en force.

The Dufferin Debaters.

At the regular session of the Dufferin Literary Society last night the subject of debate was: "Resolved that there should be no barrier placed to the free admission of the people of any nation to all the rights of Canadian citizenship." The President, Mr. J. H. Long, occupied the chair, and Messrs. J. D. McIlmoyle, A. E. Ames and F. W. Scott stood up manfully for the "Heathen Chinee," opposed, argumentatively by Messrs. A. Stevenson and J. O'Meara. The chairman gave no decision. The subject for the next debate is: "Resolved, that direct taxation is preferable to direct taxation." Messrs. J. D. McIlmoyle and F. W. Scott will take the affirmative and Messrs. J. O'Meara and A. E. Ames the negative. Mr. A Stevenson will give a reading at the next meeting, which will be held on Wednesday instead of Friday evening.

Entertainment in the Baptist Church.

The entertainment in the Baptist Church last night was of a very social and interesting character. There was a large attendance and all enjoyed themselves. The programme consisted of an instrumental duet, (piano) by Miss Fairweather and Miss Mary Stratton; a chorus by a number of little girls, and later on another of the same style by a company of boys and girls. Mr. Duff read a laughable Irish composition. Masters W. J. J. Lacey, Charlie McKee and Algie Duff, in costume, sang, "We are there jolly sailor boys." Mr. Gael gave a capital song. Miss Dennistoun and Mrs. Dennistoun gave a pianoforte duet, Miss Minore supplied a recitation. The programme was concluded with a character recitation, the performers representing the natives of a number of missionary fields, from the North American squaw to the Hotentot.

Last Tributs of Respect.

The funeral of the late Chief Constable George Johnston occurred this afternoon. The procession started from the house of the deceased at about 2.30. It was one of the largest funerals that has ever left Peterborough. There was an attendance of about two hundred vehicles. Rev. Mr. Torrance performed the funeral ceremony previous to leaving the house. The band, with muffled drums, headed the procession, playing the "Dead March in Saul." The following is the order of the procession:—

The Fire Brigade Band,
Firemen in Uniform,
Rev. Mr. Torrance,
Pall-Bearers,
Hearse,
The remaining Police Force on Foot,
Mourners.
Town Council and other Officials in Cabs,
Other Vehicles.

The funeral cortege proceeded from the house down Water street to Hunter street, where they turned towards George street, from thence down George for the Little Lake cemetery.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. R. Rowe, F. Heather, T. Rountree, H. Nesbitt, J. Erskine and C. Cameron.

The streets through which the funeral passed were lined on both sides with hundreds of spectators.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A despatch from Sofia, states that on Thursday morning Prince Alexander at the head of 50,000 Bulgarian troops entered Servia. Great enthusiasm prevails in the army and throughout Bulgaria.

Severe Fighting.

VIENNA, Nov. 27.—The Government has directed its minister at Belgrade to visit Prince Alexander with a view of dissuading him from the invasion of Servia. The Russian authorities are sending surgeons and medical stores to the aid of the suffering Bulgarians. Servia is rapidly enrolling her reserve forces and is sending them to the front to meet the Bulgarian forces which are advancing from Pierot. Severe fighting in the neighborhood of Tsaribrod was reported yesterday and the latest accounts represent the [illegible] report that two thousand Servians were killed at Widdin.

The Bulgarians Capture a City.

BELGRADE, Nov. 27.—The Bulgarians yesterday vigorously attacked the Servians at Pierot and captured the city after being twice repulsed. The Ministers have started to join King Milan at Nissa. Large bodies of Servian troops are hastening to the front.

No Bald Heads Any More.

Where there is the slightest sign of roots left, try a bottle of Dr. Dorenwend's "Hair Magic," and it will come in as thick as ever, it will likewise prevent falling of the hair and remove dandruff at once by several applications, and restore the color. Sold and manufactured by A. Dorenwend, Toronto, Canada. $1.00 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $5; sent on receipt of price to any address. Can also be obtained at J. D. Tully's drug store, agent for Peterborough.

I had for years been a miserable sufferer from Dyspepsia, and tried all known remedies and the best medical skill of my acquaintance, but still grew worse, until unable to eat anything without great suffering, or do any kind of work. I began to think there was no hope for me, and that I must surely die; when like a drowning man catching at a straw, I determined to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial, I at once began to improve so rapidly that in two months I was as well as I had ever been in my life.—WM. HON. MR. BLAKE AT EDINBURGH.

As mentioned in our news columns, Hon. Mr. Blake had been for a time, during his stay in Great Britain, the guest of Lord Rosebery at Dalmeny Park. There, for a week or two, he has been in company with Mr. Gladstone. At a banquet given on November 12 by the Scottish Liberal Club in Edinburgh to Lord Rosebery, both Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Blake were present and made addresses, in which the latter was eloquent on the progress made by Canada. He also alluded to the Federation of the Empire. Though he has been so long silent upon the subject, he has never lost sight of the great project which was, we believe, first brought prominently forward by himself ten or twelve years ago, namely, the "Federation of the Empire." He sees what he then prophesied, that the difficulties surrounding the scheme have, in the interval, greatly increased. He sees the time still nearer when separation must come if the obvious difficulties surrounding a re-arrangement of Imperial relations are not soon over come. But while he offers no suggestion but a negative one as to the method of the solution, he encourages those who are studying the question not to give up so desirable an aim. The graphic picture of the political and social progress of Canada which he drew, called forth again and again the applause of his audience.

His brilliant speech closed with a strong reference to the progress of Canada, and will be read with pride by every patriotic Canadian. This portion of his speech is given entire below.

Hon. Mr. Blake continuing, said :—

The great bulk of Canadian Liberals are Liberals in Imperial politics, and the larger proportion of these belong to the more extreme and advanced section of the Liberal party. Why is it? Why, it is because the bulk of the questions which you are agitating here are long ago settled questions with us. (Cheers.) I can point you to a country in which the difficulty that we have in legislation is not to check, but to secure sufficient deliberation and discussion before the final consummation of legislative battles. (Cheers.) I can point you to a country whereof the land, largely in the urban centres and still more largely in the rural communities, is associated with ownership, where there is a practical, simple, and expeditious machinery for its transfer and for the registration of titles; where primogeniture has been long abolished; where an entail is a curiosity almost as great as the dodo—(laughter)—where it is the custom of the people to divide their properties and estates amongst their children; where property is very equally diffused; and if there are not, as there are not, any grand estates—there is not either any overwhelming mass of grinding poverty. (Cheers.) I can point you to a country where the churches have long since been disestablished and disendowed—(loud and continued cheers)—where they work on terms purely voluntary and of perfect equality, and with a large and fraternal Christian feeling between the different bodies. I can point you to a country where the general system of education is national and gratuitous—(cheers)—compulsory and unsectarian—(hear, hear)—where out of a population of under two millions there are half-a-million of children on the rolls, and where there is public expenditure of over £600,000 annually for elementary education. (Cheers.) I can point you to a country which has an extensive and thoroughly organized system of local municipal government for its counties, and for its townships, and for villages, for its towns and for its cities, so that the people's business is done according to the people's will by freely-elected representative boards—(cheers)—and where the great question to which allusion has been made, that of the liquor traffic, is settled by a direct popular vote. (Cheers.) I can point to a country where there is a system of State Government, a Government having large powers for doing business cheaply and expeditiously, and in touch with the people whose concerns they are to manage, to attend to the business of the Federal State unembarassed by matters of less concern. (Cheers.) And in such a country as that, I think you can readily understand how it comes that the Liberals of Canada are Liberals in British politics, and most of them belong to the advanced wing. (Cheers.)"

BRAWN AND MUSCLE.

Bodily Strength and Moral Obligation.

The More Health the More Responsibility to God.

A Sermon Delivered at Brooklyn Tabernacle, by the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Sunday, November 15, 1885.

Dr. Talmage expounded the chapter in the Book of Samuel where David is called while watching sheep and anointed King, the preacher remarking that God always calls busy people and never calls idlers, and that there were fishermen yawning in the sun on the bank of Galilee, too lazy to move, and got no Divine recognition, while the honors of discipleship came to those who were mending their nets. The text was taken from Judges xiv., 1: "And Samson went [illegible] mon was "Brawn and Muscle." Dr. Talmage said :—

There are two sides to the character of Samson. The one phase of his life, if followed into particulars, would administer to the grotesque and the mirthful, but there is a phase of his character fraught with lessons of solemn and eternal import. To these graver lessons we devote this discourse. The giant no doubt in early life gave evidence of what he was to be. It is almost always so. There were two Napoleons—the boy Napoleon and the man Napoleon—but both alike; two Howards—the boy Howard and the man Howard—but both alike; two Samsons—the boy Samson and the man Samson—but both alike. This giant was no doubt the hero of the playground, and nothing could stand before his exhibitions of youthful prowess. At eighteen years of age he was betrothed to the daughter of a Philistine.

Going down towards Timnath a lion come out upon him. Although this young giant was weaponless, he seized the monster by the long mane and shook him as a hungry hound shakes a March hare, and made its bones crack, and left it by the wayside bleeding under the smiting of his fist and the grinding of his heel. Passing along after awile the same place he turned into the thicket to see the remains of the monster he had slain. Under the hot climate all the perishable particles of the lion had disappeared, and under the rain and the sun the skeleton had been washed and bleeched until it was as pure and white as a vase of procelain. Into this skeleton the bees had gathered their honey, the sweetness of grass tops, the juice of the pomegranate, the aroma of the wild flowers which had stood in the gloom of the thicket, pale nuns in nature's convent. On the wedding day Samson had propounded a riddle—a riddle so foolish that it has been regarded as a warning for those who, without talent for facetiousness, attempt it. By the treachery of his wife the riddle was easily guessed by the Philistines, and Samson, in his indignation, slew thirty people. Further to avenge the wrong done him, he sets on fire three hundred foxes, and these terrified creatures, in their alarm, rush into the corn-shocks and vineyards until the whole land is ablaze with the desolation. Surrounded one day by three hundred men, this giant picked up a jawbone from the wayside and mowed down armed men, as in the harvest field the full head grain tumbles under the swing of the sickle.

HIS STRENGTH IN HIS HAIR.

There he stands, looming up above other men, a mountain of flesh; his arms bunched with muscle that can lift the gate of a city, taking an attitude defiant of everything. His hair had never been cut, and it rolled down in seven great plaits over his shoulders, adding to his fierceness and terror. The Philistines want to conquer him, and therefore, they must find out where the secret of his strength lies. There is a dissolute woman living in the valley of Sorek by the name of Delilah. They appoint her as agent in the case. The Philistines are secreted in the same building, and then Delilah goes to work and coaxes Samson to tell what is the secret of his strength. "Well," he says, "if you should take seven green withes, such as they fasten wild beasts with, and put them around me I should be perfectly powerless." So she binds him with the seven green withes. Then she claps her hands, and says: "They come—the Philistines!" and he walks out as though there were no impediment. She coaxes him again and says: "Now tell me the secret of this great strength;" and he replies: "If you should take some ropes that have never been used and tie me with them I should be just like other men." She ties him with the ropes, claps her hands and shouts: "They come—the Philistines!" He walks out as easily as he did before—not a single obstruction. She coaxes him again, and he says: "Now if you should take these seven long plaits of hair, and by this house-loom weave them into a web, I could not get away." So the house-loom is rolled up and the shuttle flies backward and forward, and the long plaits of hair are woven into a web. Then she claps her hands and says: "They come—the Philistines!" He walks out as easily as he did before, dragging a part of the loom with him.

But after a while she persuaded him to tell her the truth. He says: "If you should take a razor or shears and cut of this long hair I should be powerless and in the hands of my enemies." Samson sleeps, and, that she may not wake him up during the process of shearing, help is called in. You know that the barbers of the East have such a skilful way of manipulating the head to this very day; that instead of waking up a sleeping man, they will put a man, wide awake, sound asleep. I hear the blades of the shears grinding against each other, and I see the long locks falling off. The shears or razor accomplishes what green withes and new ropes and house-loom could not do. Suddenly she claps her hands and says: "The Philistines be upon thee, Samson!" He rouses up with a struggle, but his strength is all gone. He is in the hands of his enemies. I hear the groans of the giant as they take his eyes out, and then I see him staggering on in his blindness, feeling his way as he goes on toward Gaza. The prison door is open and the giant is thrust in. He sits down and puts his hands on the mill-crank, which, with exhausting horizontal motion, goes day after day, week after week, month after month—work, work, work! The consternation of the world in captivity, his locks shorn, his eyes punctured, grinding the corn in Gaza.

PHYSICAL V. MORAL POWER.

First of all, behold in this giant of the text that physical power is not an index of moral power. He was a huge man. The lion found it out, and the three thousand people whom he slew found it out. Yet he was the subject of petty revenges and outgiganted by low passion. I am far from throwing any discredit upon physical stamina. There are those who seem to have great admiration for delicacy and sickness of constitution. I never could see any glory in weak nerves or sick headache.

BRAWN AND MUSCLE.

make the men and women more athletic have the favor of every good citizen, as well as of every Christian. Gymnastics may be positively religious. Good people sometimes ascribe to a wicked heart what they ought to ascribe to a slow liver. The body and the soul are such near neighbors that they often catch each other's disease. Those who never saw a sick day, and who, like Hercules, show the giant in the cradle, have more to answer for than those who are the the subjects of lifetime infirmities. He who can lift twice as much as you can, and walk twice as far, and work twice as long, will have a double account to give in the judgment. How often is it that you do not find physical energy indicative of spiritual power! If a clear head is worth more than one dizzy with perpetral vertigo; if muscles with the play of health in them are worth more than those drawn up in chronic rheumatism; if an eye quick to catch passing objects is better than one with vision dim and uncertain, then God will require of us efficiency just in proportion to what he has given us.

Physical energy ought to be a type of moral power. We ought to have just as good digestion of truth as we have capacity to assimilate food. Our spiritual hearing ought to be as good as our physical hearing; our spiritual taste ought to be as clear as our tongue. Samsons in body we ought to be giants in moral power. But where you find a great many men who realize they ought to use their money aright and use their intelligence aright, how few men you find aware of the fact that they ought to use their physical organism aright? With every thump of the heart there is something saying: "Work! work!" and lest we should complain that we have no tools to work with, God gives us our hands and feet, with every knuckle and every joint and with every muscle saying to us: "Lay hold and do something!"

But how often is it that men with physical strength do not serve Christ? They are like a ship full manned and full rigged, capable of vast tonnage, able to endure all stress of weather, yet swinging idly at the docks when these men ought to be crossing and recrossing the great ocean of human suffering and sin with God's supplies of mercy. How often is it that physical strength is used in doing positive damage or in luxurious ease, when, with sleeves rolled up and bronzed bosom fearless of the shafts of opposition, it ought to be laying hold with all its might to lift up this sunken wreck of a world. It is a most shameful fact that much of the business of the church and of the world must be done by those comparatively invalided. Richard Baxter, by reason of his disease all his days sitting in the doors of the tomb, yet writing more than a hundred volumes and sending out an influence for good that will endure as long the 'Saints' Everlasting Rest.' Edward Payson, never knowing a well day, yet how he preached and how he wrote, helping thousands of dying souls like himself to swim in a sea of glory! And Robert McCeyne, a walking skeleton, yet you know what he did in Dundee and how he shook Scotland with zeal for God. Philip Doddridge, advised by his friends because of his injury not to enter the ministry, yet you know what he did for the "Rise and Progress of Religion" in the church and in the world. Wilberforce, told by his doctors that he could not live a fortnight, yet at the very time entering upon philanthropic enterprise that demanded the greatest endurance and presistence. Robert Hall, suffering excruciations, so that sometimes while preaching he would have to stop and rest a little, and then getting up again would preach about heaven until the glories of the celestial city dropped on the multitude, doing more work, perhaps, than almost any well man in his day. Oh, how often it is that men with great physical endurance are not so great in moral and spiritual stature. While there are achievements for those who are bent all their days with sickness, achievements of patience, achievements of prayer, achievements of self-denial, achievements of Christian endurance, I call upon men of health, men of nerve, men of physical power, to devote themselves to the Lord. Giants in body, you ought to be giants in soul.

GREAT IN MISCHIEF.

Behold also in this story of my text illustration of the fact of the amount of damage that strength can do if it be misguided. It seems to me that this man of my text spent a great deal of his time in doing evil. To pay a debt which he had lost by the guessing of his riddle, he robs and kills thirty people. He was not only gigantic in strength, but gigantic in mischief, and a type of those men in all ages of the world who, powerful in body or mind, or in any faculty of social position and wealth, have used their strength in iniquitous purposes. It is not the small weak men of the day who do the damage. Those small men who go swearing and loafing about our stores, and shops, and banking houses, befouling the air with their breath and insulting your floor with their iniquitous saliva, insulting Christ and the Bible and the church, they do not do the damage. They have no influence. But it is the giants of the day, the misguided giants—giants in physical power, or giants in social position, or giants in wealth—who do the damage; the men with sharp pen who stab religion, or who throw their poison all through our literature; the men who use the power of wealth to sanction iniquity, and bribe justice and make truth and honor bow to their golden sceptre.

Misguided giants! Look out for them. In the middle of the latter part of the last century no doubt there were thousands of men in Paris and Edinburgh and London who hated God and blasphemed the name of the Almighty. But they did but little mischief. They were small men. But there were giants in those days. Who can calculate the soul-havoc of a Rosseau going on with a very enthusiasm of iniquity, with fiery imagination seizing upon all the impulsive natures of his day; or David Hume, who employed his life as a spider employs his summer in spinning out silken webs to trap the unwary; or Voltaire, marshalling a great host of skeptics and leading them out in the dark land of infidelity; or Gibbon, who showed an uncontrollable grudge against religion in his history of one of the most fascinating periods of the world's existence, the "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," a book in which with all the splendors of his genius he magnified the errors of Christian disciples, while, with a sparseness of voice that never can be forgiven, he treated of the Christian heroes of whom the world was not worthy? Oh, men of steel physical health, men of giant mental nature, men of high social position, men of great strength of any sort, I want you to understand your power, and I want you to know that that power devoted to God will be a crown on earth to you typical of a crown in heaven! But misguided, bedraggled in sin, administrative of evil, God will thunder against you with His condemnation in the day when millionaire and pauper, master and slave, King and subject, shall stand side by side in the judgment, and money bags and judicial ermine and royal robes shall be riven with lightnings?

SOCIAL IMPURITY.

Behold also how a giant may be slain of a sorceress. Delilah started the train of circumstances that pulled down the temple of Dagon about Samson's ears, and tens of thousands of giants have gone down to death and hell through the same impure fascinations. It seems to me that it is high time that pulpit and platform and printing-press speak out against the impurities of modern society. Fastidiousness and prudery say:—"Better not speak; you will make worse what you want to make better; better deal in glittering generalities; the subject is too delicate for polite ears." But there comes a voice from heaven overpowering the mincing sentimentalities of the day, saying:—"Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet and show my people their transgressions and the house of David their sins." The trouble is that when people write or speak upon this theme they are apt to cover it up with the graces of belleslettres, so that the crime is made attractive instead of repulsive. Lord Byron, in "Don Juan," adorns this crime until it smiles like a May Queen. Michelet, the great French writer, covers it up with bewitching rhetoric until it glows like the rising sun, when it ought to be made loathesome as a smallpox hospital. There are to-day influences abroad which, if resisted by the pulpit and the printing-press, will turn New York and Brooklyn into Sodom and Gomorrah, fit only for the storm of fire and brimstone that whelmed the cities of the plain. You who are seated in your Christian homes, compassed by moral and religious restraints, do not realize the gulf of iniquity that bounds you on the north and the south and the east and the west. While I speak there are tens of thousands of men and women going over the awful plunge of an impure life! and while I cry to God for mercy upon their souls, I call upon you to marshal in the defence of your homes, your church and your nation. There is a banqueting hall that you have never heard described. You know all about the feast of Ahasuerus, where a thousand Lords sat. You know all about Belshazzar's carousal, where the blood of the murdered King spurted into the faces of the banqueters. You may know of the scene of riot and wassail when there was set before Esopus one dish of food that cost $400,000. But I speak now of a different banqueting hall. Its roof is fretted with fire. Its floor is tesselated with fire. Its chalices are chased with fire. Its song is a song of fire. Its walls are buttresses of fire. Solomon refers to it when he says, "Her guests are in the depths of hell."

FREE LOVE.

Our American communities are suffering from the Gospel of Free Loveism, which, fifteen or twenty years ago, was preached on the platform and in some of the churches of this country. I charge upon Free Loveism that it has blighted innumerable homes, and that it has sent innumerable souls to ruin. Free Loveism is bestial. It is worse—it is infernal. It has furnished this land with about one thousand divorces annually. In one county in the state of Indiana it furnished eleven divorces in one day before dinner. It has roused up elopements, north, south, east and west. You can hardly take up a paper but you read of an elopement. As far as I can understand the doctrine of Free Loveism, it is this: That every man ought to have somebody else's wife, and every wife somebody else's husband. They do not like our Christian organization of society, and I wish they would all elope, the wretches of one sex taking the wretches of the other, and start to-morrow morning for the great Sahara desert, until the simoon shall sweep seven feet of sand all over them, and not one passing caravan for the next five hundred years bring back one miserable bone of their carcasses. Free Loveism! It is the double-distilled extract of nux vomica, ratsbane, and adder's tongue. Never until society goes back to the old Bible, and hears its eulogy of purity and its anathema of uncleanliness—never until then will this evil be extirpated.

PHYSICAL POWER MUST DECAY.

Behold, also, in the giant of the text that great physicial power must crumble and expire. The Samson of the text long ago went away. He fought the lion. He fought the Philistines. He could fight anything. But Death was too much for him. He may have required a longer grave, but the tomb nevertheless was his terminus. Ah, if the giant of the text could not finally succeed in the contest against Death, we of lesser fibre and lesser strength, I think, will have to surrender. What! Do you tell me that the muscle of the arm must be shrunken, that the tongue must be palsied, that the foot must be halt in its march, and halt forever? Yes, if the giant of the text surrendered, we shall surrender. By prudence, by good habits, by the enthronement of moral principles, we may postpone the hour, but come it must, and come it will. If, then, we are to be compelled to go out of this world, where are we to go to? This body and soul must soon part. What shall be the destiny of the former? I know. Dust to dust. But what shall be the destiny of the latter? Shall it rise into the companionship of the white-robed, whose sins Christ has slain? Or shall it be down among the unbelieving who tried to gain the world and save their souls, but were swindled out of both? Blessed be God, we have a companion. He is so styled in the Bible, a companion who has conquered death and hell, and is ready to fight all our battles from the first to the last. "Who is this that cometh from Edom, with died garments from Bozrah, mighty to save?" If we fall in the wake of that champion Death has no power and the grave no victory. The worst man trusting in Him shall have his dying pangs alleviated and his future illumined.

THE MORE STRENGTH THE MORE RESPONSIBILITY.

In the light of this subject I want to call your attention to a fact which may not have been rightly considered by five men in this house, and that is that we must be brought into judgment for the employing of our physical organism. Shoulder, brain, hand, foot! We must answer in judgment for the use we have made of them. Have they been used for the elevation of society or its depression? In proportion as our arm is strong and our step elastic will our account at last be intensified. Thousands of sermons are preached to invalids. I preach this sermon to stout men and healthful women. We must give to God an account for the right use of physical organism. These invalids have comparatively little to account for. Perhaps they could not lift twenty pounds. They could not walk over half a mile without sitting down to rest. In the preparation of this subject I have said to myself, How shall I account to God in judgment for the use of a body which never knew one moment of real sickness, rising up in judgment, standing beside the men and women who had only little physical energy, and yet consumed that energy in a conflagration of religious enthusiasm? How will we feel abashed! O, men of the strong arm and the stout heart, what use are you making of your physical forces? Will you be able to stand the test of that day when we must answer for the use of every talent, whether of physical energy, or mental acumen, or spiritual power?

AT THE JUDGMENT DAY.

Hark! it thunders. That day advances, and I see some one who in this world was an invalid, and as she stands before the throne of God to answer, she says; "I was sick all my days, I had but very little strength, but I did as well as I could in being kind to those who were more sick and more suffering." And Christ will say: "Well done, faithful servant." And then there will come up one who will say: "I went on crutches all my days. It was very hard for me to get along, and I tried to be patient under all my infirmities, and though I have not many stars in my crown, I rejoice that I have been able to do something for Jesus." "Well done, faithful servant," says Jesus, "well done." And then a little child will stand up before the throne and she will say: "On earth I had a curvative spine, and I was very weak, and I was very sick, but I used to go out and gather flowers out of the wildwood and bring them to my sick mother and she was comforted when she saw the sweet flowers out of the wildwood. I did not do not do much, but I did something. And Christ shall say, as he takes her up in His arms and kisses her: "Well done, well done, faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." What then will be said of us to whom the Lord gave physical strength and continuous health?

Hark! It thunders again! The judgment! The judgment! I said to an old Scotch minister, who was one of the best friends I ever had:—"Doctor, did you ever know Robert Pollock, the Scotch poet, who wrote the 'Course of Time?'" "Oh, yes," he replied; I knew him well; I was his classmate." And then the doctor went on to tell me how the writing of the "Course of Time" exhausted the health of Robert Pollock, and he expired. The fact was that no man could have such a glimpse of the day for which all other days were made as Robert Pollock had and long survive that glimpse. In the description of that day, he says, among other things:—

"Begin the woe, ye woods, and tell it to the doleful winds;
And doleful winds wail to the howling hills;
And howling hills mourn to the dismal vales;
And dismal vales sigh to the sorrowing brooks;
And sorrowing brooks weep to the weeping stream;
And weeping stream awake the groaning deep;
Ye heavens, great archway of the universe, put sackcloth on,
And, ocean, robe thyself in the garb of widowhood.
And gather all thy waves into a groan and utter it,
Long, loud, deep piercing, dolorous, immense.
The occasion asks it; Nature dies, and angels come to lay her in her grave."

What Robert Pollock saw in poetic vision you and I will see in positive reality. The judgment! The judgment!

Forced Sale of Dry Goods

—AT—

THOS. KELLY'S,

COMMENCING SATURDAY, NOV. 28.

After thinking the matter over carefully, we have decided upon our course for the next Two Months, and that is to have a Forced Sale of our large stock of Dry Goods.

We require MONEY, and we are bound to have it if LOW PRICES will effect our object.

This Sale means a loss to us, but, rather than carry Goods over until another Season, we feel justified in taking this course.

We intend to carry out all we advertise. This can be best judged by the prices we will offer Goods at.

During this Sale we do not promise to give away Goods, nor do we intend to sell Goods at half price.

Our Motto is ONE PRICE TO ALL.

However, the Goods and Prices will speak for themselves, and we feel sure they will command the attention of close buyers and secure for us a successful Sale.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Improvement.

The stonework of the steps leading from the Court grounds to the park is completed. The steps will be found decidedly useful and more or less ornamental.

Prof. Burwash's Lecture.

"Bricks and the Bible" is a somewhat peculiar title, but those who have heard the lecture say it is excellent. It will be given in the Baptist Church on Monday evening at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Admission free. Collection to defray expenses.

It's "a Way He Has."

The intelligent compositor has again gone and done it. In yesterday's issue in an item on Calcutt's new pleasure resort it was described as "Hastings" Falls instead of Healy's Falls. In the bustle of preparing for press the mistake was overlooked in proof-reading.

Board of Education Meeting.

Owing to the fact that the adjourned meeting of the Town Council is put down for Tuesday evening—the date of the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education—and as several members of the latter are also members of the Council, it has been decided to hold the School Board meeting on Monday evening next.

Ashburnham's New Bridge.

The stone work for the new iron bridge over Roger's race, Ashburnham, is completed by the contractor, Mr. H. Sherwood, and the staff of Mr. J. Craig, Street Inspector, are engaged to-day in putting a temporary plank covering down, pending the completion of iron work by Mr. W. H. Law. The new bridge, which is of 30 feet span and 21 feet wide with iron footway, will cost about $600.

An Enormous Elm.

Mr. A. J. Hall, of Smith, has recently cut into cordwood, a gigantic swamp elm, which blew down recently, and it made eleven and a half cords or 1400 cubic feet of cordwood. At the point where the trunk branched this tree, denuded of bark, girted 12 feet 6 inches. Besides the trunk as far as its bifurcation was hollow, the wanting portion of the trunk representing two or three cords more wood.

Diana Forget St. Andrew's Night.

Come to the Grand Scottish Concert and hear the celebrated Bairnsfather family. Also, come and witness the champion swordsmen, Prof. Reid and McGregor, in their assault-at-arms, with rapier, foil, and braid-sword versus bayonet, at Bradburn's Opera House, on Monday evening, 30th Nov. Doors open at 7.30; commence at 8 sharp. Plan of Hall at T. Menzies' store. Tickets to be had from T. Menzies and members of committee. Tickets 25c., reserved seats 50c.; family tickets, admitting 6 of a family, $2.10.

Riverside Park Resort.

Peterborough is a popular point for excursion parties, and Commodore Calcutt, the big-hearted proprietor of the newly opened pleasure resort, Riverside Park, is moving to make it still more so. He is intending next season to build a beautiful pavilion in Riverside Park for the accommodation of excursionists visiting the town. Every arrangement for their comfort and accommodation will be made, including cooking appliances, etc., etc. He is also making arrangements with the two railway systems, by which specially reduced rates can be made to excursion parties visiting Peterborough.

Market Items.

There was a good market this morning. Produce was offered in abundance and sold rapidly. Poultry was particularly plentiful. Quotations were:—Butter, in rolls, 18c. to 20c.; eggs, 18c. to 20c.; turkeys, 70c. to 80c.; geese, 55c. to 60c.; ducks, per pair, 40c. to 60c.; chickens, per pair, 30c. to 40c.; potatoes, per bag, 60c.; apples, per bushel, 50c. to 60c.; parsnips, bushel, 30c.; beets, per bag, 65c.; carrots, per bag, 55c.; turnips, per bag, 25c. to 30c.; cabbage, per head, 3c. to 4c.; celery, per head, 10c.; beef, by the quarter, 4c. to 6c. per pound; mutton, 6c. to 7c per pound; pork, 4½c. to 5c. per pound.

The City Cigar Depot.

This new tobacco store which has been opened by Mr. Geo. Stephens, under the above name is the reliable place for smokers' sundries. He keeps nothing but the very best articles to be had. Domestic and imported cigars of the best kinds are a specialty. Pipes and cigar-holders of the most approved styles and materials, including many new and novel designs are constantly in stock. Fragrant smoking and chewing tobacco, pure and unadulterated. The shop is on Hunter street, opposite the Oriental. It is neatly fitted up, and well laid out, exposing in tempting array the many choice articles which it contains. Mr. Stephens reports business brisk and increasing every day. A share of public patronage is solicited.

Have you tried our 5c. bottle Blue Black Ink. The best in the world. A. L. Davis & Co.

Try the City Cigar Depot tobaccos. They are the best.

Court of Revision.

There was held a short session of the Court of Revision last night in the committee rooms of the Council Chamber. There was one case, an appeal against assessment, before the Court. The appeal was not sustained.

Hoop Drivers.

Another gang of these unnecessarial travellers, to the number of seven or eight, put up at their favorite resort last night. They, according to their own report, came from Burleigh Falls, where they were lately employed navvying.

The Parlor Roller Rink.

As was anticipated, the Parlor Roller Rink was well patronized by school children today, who were delighted with the amusement afforded at the Rink. Everything is so neat and attractive, and the exercise never grows monotonous, making it a most enjoyable pastime.

A New Burner.

There has been another novel invention introduced into our town within the last few days, in the shape of a new gas burner. It is called the "Twin Burner," being composed of two tips. The burner is composed of an inverted cup of metal, from which one tip protrudes, while the other is encased within it. It is so arranged that when turning off the current of gas from the upper tip, the lower one is opened and ignited, with only a sufficient amount of gas escaping to keep the flame alive, ready to be turned on at any time without the use of a match. It is also possible to cut the stream of gas off entirely. It is claimed for this burner that it consumes all smoke caused by the light. The under tip only gives sufficient light to show where it is. The gas company have ordered a stock.

An Important Decision.

Mr. Thomas Kelly, one of Peterborough's pioneer dry goods merchants, has come to a decision that will harmonize with the sentiments of the public. These are hard times and the people are anxious to make every dollar buy two dollars' worth if possible and Mr. Kelly gives them an opportunity, as announced in his great double column advertisement elsewhere in this issue. He has decided to force the public to buy his present superb stock of winter goods by offering it at such sweeping reductions that the people cannot help buying. There is no clap-trap in this proposition. Mr. Kelly needs money and is bound not to carry over his winter stock another season. To avoid doing so he has marked down his goods to such an extent that their sale will involve something of a sacrifice, but he hopes the immense sales, his unheard of bargains will bring, will both replenish his coffers and clear his shelves of winter goods ready for a fresh spring stock. The clearance must be made within the next two months, and it is safe to say that no such chance for immense bargains have ever been offered. Mr. Kelly deals squarely with the public, performs all he advertises. Therefore the public will study their own interests by carefully studying his decided reduction sale advertisement, and governing themselves accordingly.

A Cat's Tale.

In the near past on a soft moonlight night there stood at the door of a pretty little villa in the suburbs of a flourishing Canadian town, a young man, evidently intention seeing his best girl. Encouraged by the familiar caresses of the house cat, he rang the door bell, which was almost immediately opened by a fair female, who in a silvery voice welcomed him to a seat by the cosy fireside in the parlour. The cat boldly attempted to enter too, but was unceremoniously fired out. Jealous at being excluded from his favorite place by the fireside he jumped on the window-sill, but the blind was rolled down in his face and he thus missed the first act. The enraged animal then took the back yard for it, going up the side of the fence, from the fence to the kitchen roof, over the house-top to the eave-trough, where he peered through a chink between the blind and window-sash into the room, and was rewarded by seeing the usurper of his comforts kneeling on one knee in front of his fair hostess. The cat, in his eagerness, lost his equilibrium and fell, lighting on his feet, of course; and with feline presence of mind he immediately took his departure via the back yard and its connections for his former perch, reaching his destination in time for the second act. The scene had changed. The young suitor was now seated in a low rocking chair, and in his arms reclined the object of his love, evidently whispering of future prospects. The cat only survived long enough to tell the tale. But the chair will last to do service in the family for generations yet to come. It was made at Belleghem's, Hunter street, where more of the same stamp are kept in stock. Moral:—Buy your furniture at Belleghem's.

Personal.

The Rev. F. McAmmond, B.A., Ashburnham, will preach in the Queen-street Methodist Church, Bowmanville, to-morrow, Sunday.

MIKADO TEA.

MIKADO is the name of the Plantation owned by the MIKADO TRADING COMPANY.

The Plantation formerly belonged to the Mikado, or King of Japan, and was cultivated for the exclusive use of the Royal household.

The Plantation was bought from the King on condition that sufficient Tea should be supplied to the Royal Family, as the King would use no other.

It is an acknowledged fact, that the Teas grown on this Plantation are, for Purity, Strength and Flavor, the finest in the world.

It is put up in Half and One Pound packages, and is sold at the exceeding low price of 45 cents per pound.

St. Andrew's Sermon.

Delivered by Rev. F. H. Wallace in St. Paul's Church—The Evils of Socialism —More Christian Brotherhood Needed.

The Rev. F. H. Wallace conducted the evening services in St. Paul's church yesterday, delivering an eloquent and encouraging sermon to St. Andrew's Society. The following is

A SYNOPSIS OF THE SERMON.

He took for his text the 2nd verse in the 6th chapter of Paul's epistle to the Galatians: "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ"

He said that the treatment of the sinful and fallen was generally divided into two extremes: Undue severity, allowing of no extenuating circumstances, and on the other hand undue laxity, looking on sin as a misfortune or accident.

We should restore the fallen and never crush them. Not haughtily, but with a spirit of meekness, considering that under the same circumstances we would be probably in the same place. Paul was a good example. He practiced what he preached, and always tried to lift the fallen. There was no sin so hard to bear as a burdened conscience after an honest effort. Such burdens could be wonderfilluy lightened by a kind grasp of the hand or sympathetic words. Every man who compared his life with the perfect standard of God would find burden enough of his own. Helping one another was a source of strength and comfort.

"A FELLOW FEELING MAKES US WONDROUS KIND."

The 1st and 3rd verses in this chapter did not clash. Every man has his own burden, and some there are whose burdens weigh them down. Each must develop his own character and also be ready to help another, having no mercy for himself but all for others; bearing our burdens like men and other's like Christians.

It was an open secret that the present period was one of great conflict, among the great powers and even in our own Dominion. It was also a time of great poverty and wealth. Colossal fortunes and colossal misfortunes. A time of

ANTAGONISM BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOR.

England was threatened with dynamiters; France with communism; Germany with socialism; Russia with nihilism, and even the States was threatened with a type of socialism. He then went on to show the many bad features of socialism. He did not consider it as purely the work of the devil. It proposed to give every man a chance, dividing everything equally, which was not according even to nature. Nature only yielded her bounties to those who forced them from her. Socialism led to IDLE DREAMS OF WEALTH AND EASE.

As a boy at a socialistic meeting had said, "When everything belonged to everybody, no lazy men would work." The young man who looked out for the future, and by careful economy amassed a little wealth, was looked down on by his reckless companions. Socialism threw almost all responsibility off the shoulders of individuals on to the society. It also ignored the natural ability of some over others. Yet,

THERE ALWAYS WILL BE LEADERS.

God's greatest gifts to a nation was great men. What would Scotland have been without such men as Wallace, Bruce, Chalmers, Knox, Burns and Scott? Nor could the world do without commercial leaders. Although there seemed objection to one man living at ease in a fine mansion, while another lived close by in misery in a hut, yet the fault was often that of the man who lived in the hut. Without these commercial leaders the works of other men would be in vain. It often was a curse to inherit wealth. Socialism ignored private enterprise. Buildings built by the public generally cost one-fourth more than if built by a private party and brought one-fourth less revenue. It led to dissipation, and as Spencer said, to slavery. He gave Turkey as an example of an Empire governed by socialism. The people of which were degraded to almost animal level. It would be found impracticable to make all men equal.

The great good element in socialism was

BROTHERHOOD.

Christendom was yet heathen in some respects. In ancient days brotherhood was not recognized. Barbarians captured in war were made slaves.

Plato said it was not worth while to try and help the poor man. It was true that there were too many monopolies now. Men hoarded up wealth instead of investing it and giving others the benefit. To go back to the land of poetry and heroes. Scotland was today suffering from land monopolies. Many climbed the ladder of eminence, pulling down others in their endeavors and trampling on others under them. If a horse fell a crowd would run to pick it up, but if a man fell he was often allowed to shift for himself. Men might be more brutherly, and if Christians, by their influence and example did not help them, there would be a socialistic revolution. In the apostolic days there was a grand brotherhood. The master acted as the slave, and the slave as the master. Christ made himself low that we might be made righteous.

WORK WAS NOT DESPISED.

Jesus was a carpenter, Peter a fisherman and Paul a tent-maker. A bishop once when asked to shew the treasures of his church, said that the poor were their treasures. He urged upon christians a closer brotherhood. The church should take the hand of the millionaire and join it in christian fellowship with that of the laborer. Masters should not oppress their hirelings in their wages. Men who had become wealthy by dishonest means should not be elected to high offices. Masters should recognize their employees, not merely as "hands" but as brothers. Birmingham had two manufacturers, one which held a weekly conference and the other a weekly prayer. They had no strikers there. The manufacturers began because they thought it right and continued it because it paid. These spiritual forces were the only ones which would overcome socialism. He urged the society which he addressed to extend their fellowship. They were a benevolent society whose forefathers were the champions of freedom in their native land. They had an influence and should not be indifferent to the evils of the day. They could fight anarchy with the weapon, Christian brotherhood. He spoke to the Society as to loyal Christians, and wished them to remember that to be true Christians, we must bear one another's burdens.

Hymns appropriate to the occasion were sung.

The Riots in Londonderry.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The elections in Londonderry yesterday were attended with serious rioting between Catholics and Orangemen. The former were the aggressors. They marched through the streets in large bands shouting and smashing the windows of shops and residences occupied by Orangemen. Some of the Protestant Churches were attacked and the Salvation Army barracks were wrecked. About twenty loyalists were more or less badly wounded. A Stipendiary Magistrate was stoned and seriously injured. Many arrests were made.

Thebaw a Fugitive

And Seeking Refuge in Chinese Territory.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—It is reported in Rangoon that King Thebaw has hastily abandoned the Capital, Mandalay, and sought refuge on Chinese soil rather than await the arrival of the victorious British and Indian army of invasion. The Chinese Government recently informed Great Britain that it would in no way oppose the British operations in Burmah, even if they resulted in the annexation of the country to India. It is not believed, therefore, that Thebaw will be allowed to remain long in Chinese territory, where he might be a menace to the permanency of whatever Government the conquerors may set up in Burmah. It is said he will be handed over to Earl Dufferin and be sent into exile in some remote British possession. The British troops are now before Mandalay. As the guns on the steamers are hardly powerful enough to bombard the city from the river, three miles, the troops will probably be landed for a final attack upon the city.

The British Elections.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The results of the elections so far show that the Liberals have elected 141 candidates, the Conservatives 135, and the Nationalists 19. Kenyon (Conservative) has been elected in the Denbigh district of Wales, over Cunliff (Liberal), who sat for the district in the last Parliament. This is the first return from Wales. The Liberals have gained 6 old seats, and the Conservatives 34. The Liberals have won 38 new seats, and the Conservatives 58. Leamy (Nationalist) has been elected in County Cork without opposition. Mr. Chaplin, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, under the Conservative Administration, is elected for the Sleaford division of Lincolnshire by 1,000 majority over his Liberal opponent. The Conservatives have gained a seat for Montgomeryshire, Mr. Watkin, W. Winn (Conservative) having for the district in the last Parliament. In Lincolnshire, South division Otter (Liberal) has been elected by 4,804 votes over Rowther (Conservative), who represented North Lincolnshire in the last Parliament. Lowther received 3,570 votes. Rival crowds of people are assembled in Fleet-street, in front of the newspaper offices, cheering the results as they are posted. The excitement is very great. Parnell and Healy (Nationalists) have been elected for the two divisions of Cork city. The vote was, Parnell, 6,716; Healy, 6,536; Pike, 1,464, Banbridge, 1,401.

THE POSITION.

The Pall Mall Gazette analysis of the returns up to to-night shows a Conservative grin of 80 seats against a Liberal gain of 36. But the Tory gain is still insufficient to give them a clear majority. The Liberals now claim to hold 161 seats against 159 for the Conservatives, 26 for the Nationalists, and 5 for the Independents. The latter are virtually Conservatives. Bradford returns a solid Liberal delegation, despite the manifesto issued by Parnell.

Gladstone's Great Majority.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The largeness of the Conservative vote in Glasgow is phenomenal. The country anxiously awaited the news from Midlothian. In all the principal cities and towns great crowds gathered around the newspaper offices and waited patiently for returns. There were thousands of people outside of the Cable News building at 1.15 this morning, when the result of the election at Midlothian was received. When the announcement was made that Mr. Gladstone had received 7,879 votes to 3,245 for Mr. Dalrymple, the enthusiasm of the liberals found vent in cheers and in the singing of "He's a jolly good fellow." Groans from Conservatives and Nationolists mingled with the cheers, and a few scrimmages took place.

The County Elections.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—To-day opened the concest in the counties. The Liberals have abandoned hope in the rity districts, but maintain confidence in the the new county divisions. The Conservatives are also equally confident of success. The bulk of to-day's returns will be declared to-morrow.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A story is current in the clubs to-night that Mr. Gladstone has intimated to Lord Salisbury a willingness in the event of Conservative success at the polls to give the whole Liberal strength to the support of the Government on "all reasonable measures, in order to prevent the necessity of yielding to the ruinous course of placing England under Irish dictation." The very phraseology of the ex-Premier's overture is captivating to a Tory. No doubt is entertained that the Liberal leader's proposal, if it really has been offered, has been accepted. This would clearly explain the inward meaning of the sudden change of front adopted but yesterday by the Conservatives. After the Parnellite manifesto issued last Saturday, forbidding the casting of the Home Rule vote for Liberal candidates, had secured the League vote for the Conservatives, the Tory leaders suddenly lost much of the ardour they had displayed while courting the alliance.

THE GLADSTONE-SALISBURY COMPACT

makes all this plain. It also suggests many other serious reflections. Uppermost among these is the thought that this latest Gladstonian intrigue may aim at the ultimate disruption of the whole Irish party as a separate Parliamentary organization. If, after all their steady efforts, many sacrifices and long-continued good management the Irish should find that their complete unity instead of being of any avail, should result in nothing but a solid combination of the great English parties against them, nothing would be more natural than them to become discouraged over the inutility and even danger of their organization,

AND FALL TO PIECES.

Their case would exactly resemble that to which a celebrated Cardinal has likened it, and which he advised the Catholics of the United States to avoid. "So long," said he, "as you remain in one political party the other can afford to assail you, and when the unfriendly party is in power your loss will be great. If the party you are allied to should obtain power it would not dare to make your cause its own. It you remain a party by yourselves you must barter influence without obtaining any certainty of obtaining your price, and you cannot act alone without arraying the balance of the country against you. The only way is to divide yourselves between the parties as the other Churches do, and then you will be equally unassailable."

The Spectator declares that it has authority for stating that a Liberal-Conservative understanding on the lines above described has been arrived at.

Catarrh - A New Treatment

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination —this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov 17, 1882. 48-52t

THE FUTURE OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

An exceedingly able article on the above topic appeared recently in the Chicago Current. It was written by J. H. Long, M.A., LL.B., a recent graduate and examiner in English in Toronto University, now Modern Language Master in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. We reprint from the 'Varsity, Toronto.

After showing the reasons why the great colonies cannot long remain in their present relations to England, he considers their three possible futures, absorption by some foreign power (i. e., in Canada, annexation), independence, and federation.

Annexation Mr. Long considers practically a dead issue, as only a few people near the borders favor it, and the feeling is not increasing.

There is, the writer says, a certain amount of independence sentiment in Canada, and it would be stronger were it not believed that independence would be a mere stepping stone to annexation. Patriotism, so far as it does exist in Canada, is diverted towards the Province and the Empire rather than to the Dominion.

Mr. Long then deals ably and at length with the remaining question as follows:—

"It is some years since the idea of Imperial Federation was broached; the honor of the first regular enunciation of the principle being due, I think, to a Torontonian, Mr. John Matthews. The scheme as originally mooted, and as it is advocated even yet by a small number of persons, is that Great Britain and those colonies which possess responsible government shall form a federation with inter-imperial free trade, and with a federal parliament dealing with strictly imperial matters, such as war and peace, copyright and postal regulations, trade and commerce. Each member of the Confederation shall, according to its population, contribute to the common defence, and be entitled to representation in the parliament Now, this is undoubtedly a grand conception; but it has features that would render its working impossible. Not the least objectionable of these features would be the heterogeneousness and unwieldiness of the proposed parliament.

The majority of thinking men are convinced, therefore, that by some other means must the unity of the Empire be preserved. And in all schemes towards this end certain things must be borne in mind:

(1). The colonies must not be curtailed in their powers of local self-government. If any change be made, it must be in an extension of these rights, as, for example, in the power of treating directly with foreign nations upon commerical questions. Upon this first head all parts of the Empire are agreed.

(2). Whatever the future may bring about, inter-imperial free trade is at present an impossibility. The protectionist colonies (e. g. Canada) will never consent to have their fiscal regulations controlled by a parliament the majority of the members of which represent interests and hold views upon political economy diverse from their own interests and views.

(3). As is well known, Canada furnished a regiment (the 100th) to the imperial army during the Crimean War. Quite recently troops for the Soudan campaign were furnished and equipped by the Australian colonies. Although within the last few years no official offer of military assistance has been made by Canada to Britian, yet offers have often been made by men connected with the Canadian volunteer force. From these and other unofficial statements the Government and the people of England have very naturally formed the opinion that Canadians are only too ready to furnish contingents for any war into which England may plunge. This idea is entirely erroneous. A large number of unemployed Canadians could, of course, be enlisted for any service, as was seen during the late war between the North and South. No difficulty was experienced last autumn in raising the Canadian voyageur contingent to take the British troops up the Nile. But Canada will not furnish a yearly quota of men or money, or both, to the various expeditions in which the Home Government may think fit to engage.

To Englishmen this view may appear very selfish; to Canadians it appears only reasonable. "Why," say the colonists, "should we be called upon to share the burdens of war in which we have no interest, and as to the justice of which many persons both in Britain and in the colonies are very doubtful?" The colonists think that all they ought to be called upon to do, is to keep peace within their borders and defend their country against invasion. This they are perfectly willing to do, even although the military necessity should arise from British connection. They see, in fact, that most of the wars into which they have been drawn have arisen, as most of the wars into which they are likely to be drawn will arise, from connection with England. For the preservation of internal quiet and for the repelling of foreign invasion they are, by the maintenance of a small standing army, a considerable volunteer force and some excellent military schools, to a certain degree prepared. Canadians feel, moreover, that no other part of the Empire is doing more than they are towards building it up in power and greatness. Evidences of their activity are seen in vast public works (e. g., the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Intercolonial Railway, the St. Lawrence and Welland Canals) capable of utilization in time of war, in the opening up of the resources of their vast country, and in the cultivation of a pride in imperial connection.

(4). The people of Canada do not want any part or share in the Eastern policy of Great Britain, or in any of those affairs in which also is alone deeply concerned. From her conduct in such affairs Britain alone will derive profit or loss; of the correctness or incorrectness of her policy, she alone is the proper judge. The management of these matters Canadians are quite willing to leave to the Parliament at Westminster.

Such being the conditions of the question, it is plain that any federation which may be formed cannot be a very close one. But it need not, on that account, be the less effective in attaining its end, viz.: the preservation of the unity of the Empire.

According to present indications, if Imperial Federation is ever brought about, the form it will assume will be an aggregation of British States with Britain at a centre; each State managing its own local affairs, and Britain having entire control of those of India, Egypt and other lands in which she only is deeply interested. All these States will be under one sovereign and one flag, with one army, navy, consular service and citizenship. It would probably be necessary to have an Imperial Council; but this, instead of being an unwieldy federal parliament, binding by its ropes the various parts of the Empire, would be merely an advisory council consisting on the part of the colonies of agents general or high commissioners. The duties of the colonial members of this council would be to act as quasi-ambassadors, to keep their own lands prominently before the people of Great Britain, and to keep their own people informed upon all matters of importance taking place in Britain. The nucleus of this council is already at hand in the High Commissioner from Canada and the Agents-General from the Australasian and the South African colonies.

By means of this limited federation, all possible benefits would be secured, while many dangers likely to result from a closer union would be avoided.

It may be objected that Britain would not consent to defend the outlying parts of the Empire, under the proposed arrangement.

But she defends them now. At present no colony contributes, except voluntarily, towards imperial defence. It must be recollected that it is to England's benefit to preserve imperial unity. Trade and the flag do go together, whichever leads the way. The colonies are a benefit to her, moreover, in a military sense, inasmuch as they give her recruiting grounds for her armies and coaling and refitting stations for her fleets. In a life and death struggle they would prove most valuable supports. Besides all this, there is such a thing as "prestige;" a word which, notwithstanding the ridicule heaped upon it, has a very decided value; tangible in £. s. d., and intangible (though not less real on that account) in many other ways.

To the colonies—then colonies no longer—the benefits arising from imperial federation would be many and varied. Not the least of these would be the possession of a horizon co-terminous only with the limits of the world. In these days, when the tendency is towards a complacent self-satisfaction with our own petty ends and aims, it is impossible to over-estimate the healthful results of "keeping touch," as it were, with the most distant peoples and events.

But there is a grander view of this question: the influence of a united empire upon the world at large. Without any doubt whatever, it would prove the surest guarantee of Christian evangelization and peace.

Never before has so favorable an opportunity appeared for a world-wide union. Everybody is ready at hand: a small central State, rich in wealth, population and historic association; vast dependencies ready and willing to receive the surplus growth of Europe; the control of the world's banking and carrying trade; and as a capital, the world's commercial, literary and political metropolis.

Canadians and other colonists feel, then, that they can most worthily play their part in the great historic drama whose first act opened when Cæsar's legions saw the Kentish cliffs, by developing their own resources, by discouraging all tendency towards foreign absorption, and by encouraging a manly pride in the imperial tie.

This they believe they can do for some time as colonists; afterwards, when they shall have out-grown the colonial state, as outlying members of a vast British Confederation.

By means of such a confederation, there is no reason why imperial unity, for which so much blood has been shed, should not prove as firm and unshaken as are the rocky bulwarks of our parent isle.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The final result of the British Elections is yet in doubt, but the indications are that the Parnellites will hold the balance of power, which ever political party may have the plurality. The latest returns show 141 Liberals, 135 Tories and 19 Parnellites, There are yet however, 375 constituencies to be heard from. The Liberals will require to gain 175 of these to secure a majority of one over the Tories and Parnellites, and the Tories will have to capture 182 seats to get a start of one over Liberals and Parnellites. The uncertain element of the newly enfranchised agricultural labourers is principally yet to be heard from.

Melville Millar

For Valerie's Sake.

I had stayed all night at a little hotel there in that suburb, and going up to the villa late in the afternoon, discovered that he had gone to the city, to return by the evening train. I had seized upon this opportunity to confront him alone.

I went slowly down the slope, slowly along the quiet road. There were no houses near. It was very quiet. The new moon peered with pitiless profile over the distant hilltops. I waited for him to come.

I spoke calmly at the outset, as if taking for granted his love for her. I abdicated in his favor, speaking pleasantly as I could force myself to speak.

He laughed.

"You are very good," he said, "but you are mistaken. Valerie is very nice—but I am not marrying at my age. Don't you know I am only twenty-three? Besides, she is my cousin. Fancy marrying one's cousin!" He laughed again, and would have passed on, but I stopped him.

"Wait," I said, controlling myself with difficulty. "There is more to this. I happen to know certain things; I happen to have overheard a conversation. Whatever your purpose be in denying your position of lover to Valerie, it is a useless attempt. Cousin or no, you have won her love; you shall not wrong her while I live!"

"Ha! You threaten, do you?" His laugh had an angry ring. "You threaten, you coerce? I tell you, if I live to be a hundred I shall never marry Valerie!"

I sprang at his throat.

"You fiend!" I shook and choked him. "You shall marry her or die!" And having shaken him twice or thrice, I flung him from me to the ground.

Even as he fell I heard a piercing scream, and turned to see Valerie. She, too, had come to meet him!

"You have killed him!" she shrieked, "You have killed him!"

She fell on her knees beside him. He did not move. She called his name over and over in piteous entreaty. But he lay dumb, with his white face and golden curls upturned to the night.

And still she shrieked that I had killed him.

I leaned over him and listened. "He is not dead," I said wearily; "he has cut his head on a stone in falling."

I wondered then in a dazed way if she could really hate me, supposing I had killed him—for her sake? I left her chafing his hands and moaning over him. I hastened back to carry him up.

Valerie's mother listened in bewilderment to my incoherent story. Valerie still moaned and sobbed above him in the drawing-room, where he lay—dying. I felt no regret that he should die; but my heart ached desperately for her.

I wanted to speak to her, ere I should go away for ever.

"Valerie, Valerie! It was for your sake! Forgive me, Valerie. If you knew all, you would forgive me!"

She heeded me at last. She lifted a white reproachful face:

"Go!" she said in a hollow voice. "Go! You have killed him!"

The look of her eyes drove me from the room; I was numb; I was cold from head to foot; I went mechanically at her bidding. As I crossed the threshold, going out for ever, I heard her fall heavily to the floor beside him.

I fled through the night, driven by the awful look in her eyes. I would have died for her—she could hate me now.

* * * * * *

I see, at times, her haunting face. And yet, if she be dead, it seems to me that she must understand; that she will welcome me, moreover, soon, soon, when I go hence to search for her!

[THE END.]

Miscellaneous.

The Civil Service Commission.

CHARLES R. CODMAN.

The resignation of Leroy D. Thoman leaves the civil service commission without an officer. The late commissioners, Dorman B. Eaton, of New York; John M. Gregory, of Illinois, and Leroy D. Thoman, of Ohio, were appointed on March 1, 1883, and have all resigned in the order named. The salary of the commissioners is $3,000 per annum, and the term of office six years. The vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Thoman will be filled by the appointment of Charles R. Codman, of Boston, who will be sworn in at Washington on Monday next. Mr. Codman is a lawyer by profession, and has been a member of the Massachusetts legislature. He is a Democrat, and was a delegate to the Democratic national convention which nominated Mr. Cleveland for the presidency. He is a gentleman of high character, and is well known in Boston as a public-spirited citizen. He is a member of the Boston Art club, and is interested in the cultivation of art in that city. He is a man of wealth, and has been a liberal patron of the arts. He is a member of the Boston Art club, and is interested in the cultivation of art in that city. He is a man of wealth, and has been a liberal patron of the arts.

It is reported that Col. Charles R. Codman, of Boston, is likely to be chosen upon this commission. The selection is one that will be satisfactory to the friends of civil service reform. Here is what a paper leading in that reform says of the appointee:

Col. Codman is a man of qualities not unlike those most characteristic of the president. He is thoroughly independent and courageous, a man of strong convictions and persistence, and of the soundest good sense and judgment. He is an early and fast friend of reform, a man of signal ability and sagacity, and the president could have no better, because absolutely disinterested, adviser. Like the president, Col. Codman is a positive man, and his appointment would be exceedingly distasteful to the mere tool politicians.

The Late Charles Leland.

The death of Charles Leland removes another of the elder members of this famous family of hotel keepers. Their father, Simeon Leland, was proprietor of the Green Mountain house in Vermont, where the brothers Charles, Warren, Simeon and William were born. As soon as their schooling was over they took positions in hotels away from home to gain the experience which afterwards brought them success and fame. In 1859 Charles went to Europe to study foreign hotel life. On his return the four brothers abandoned the smaller hotels with which they were connected and together opened the Metropolitan hotel on Broadway, New York. Here they introduced many new features, among which were the serving of meals from 5 a. m. until midnight, and the consequent abolition of the dinner gong. For the suppression of this last named nuisance the names of the Lelands should be gratefully remembered. For twenty years they managed this hotel. In 1864 Charles and Warren purchased the Grand Union hotel, Saratoga, expended $800,000 in the erection of an opera house and in refitting the hotel, but the venture was unsuccessful. In 1873 the brothers purchased the Ocean hotel, Long Branch, N. J. Principal among the other hotels in which Mr. Charles Leland was at different times interested were the St. Nicholas, Occidental, St. Charles, Sturtevant and Rossmore hotels in New York, and the Clarendon, Columbian and Grand Central at Saratoga. He also conducted the Occidental and Palace hotels, San Francisco, and the Utah house at Baltimore. Mr. Leland took great interest in the hotels opened by his relatives, and once went to San Francisco, a journey of twenty-six days, to be present at the opening of a hotel by his nephew, Lewis Leland.

THE LATE CHARLES LELAND.

Mr. Leland was 61 years old at the time of his death. He leaves two daughters, both the wives of hotel proprietors. There are also several nephews engaged in the hotel business—four in New York, one in Springfield, Ills., and Warren F. Leland, of the Leland house, Chicago.

Prosperity in the South.

THE NEW MEMPHIS COTTON EXCHANGE.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 26.—An indication of the prosperity that is gradually coming to the whole south is furnished in the substantial buildings that are being erected at all the principal lines of traffic. Our city, one of the chief cotton markets of the Union, formally opened a few days ago a new cotton exchange building which will rank with the creditable commercial buildings of the country. It is situated near Court square and not far from the banking quarters. On the lower floor of the building are the main rooms of the merchants' and cotton exchanges. These rooms are 40x70 feet with 25 feet ceilings. Five stories above this floor will be the quarters of the Western Union Telegraph company. The rest of the building will be used for office purposes. The cost of the entire structure was but $100,000. The value of the cotton annually handled on our levees is about $40,000,000 but with increased accommodations for trading and improved railway and river facilities for transportation, it is expected that the cotton trade for the coming year will be drawn largely to this market.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Egypt and Assyria Underground.

Don't miss hearing Prof. Burwash to-night in the Baptist church.

Gems

For the little folks, just the thing for young singers; a neat little Book with 62 Songs with Music, to be had at Smart's Music Store.

Patients Wanted.

The patients, who a short time ago were so numerous at the Nicholls' Hospital as to require the services of a special nurse have all recovered. The lady who acted as special nurse leaves town to-morrow. The Lady Superintendent is patiently waiting for more patients.

New Dance Music.

With the Stream (Waltz), by Marzials. Pretty Lips (Schottische), by Coote, jr. Dance (Souvenance Waltz), by Emile Waldteufel. Hanky Panky (Polka), by Coote, jr. Fairie Voices (Waltz), by Crowe. Tender and True (Waltz), by Bucalossi, at Smart's Music Store.

Excavations in the East.

Wonderful discoveries of cities buried for centuries. Succoth and Rameses in the land of Goshen, Babylon, etc. Those who hear the lecture will want to visit these places. The Young Men's Christian Association invite all to attend. Admission free. Collection. Chair to be taken at 8 o'clock by the Rev. A. H. Munro.

Additional Accommodation.

Alterations have been commenced in the market buildings, preparatory to converting the four unoccupied stalls on the ground floor into an additional butter market. The outer stairway will be removed and a suitable one erected inside. Carpenters are busily engaged in removing the portions, and the work will be rapidly pushed forward. This will afford the necessary accommodation and will also be a sort of reserved stand.

Dinna Forget St. Andrew's Night.

Come to the Grand Scottish Concert and hear the celebrated Bairnsfather family. Also, come and witness the champion swordsmen, Prof. Reid and McGregor, in their assault-at-arms, with rapier, foil, and braid-sword versus bayonet, at Bradburn's Opera House, on Monday evening, 30th Nov. Doors open at 7.30; commence at 8 sharp. Plan of Hall at T. Menzies' store. Tickets to be had from T. Menzies and members of committee. Tickets 25c., reserved seats 50c.; family tickets, admitting 6 of a family, $2.10.

The Art League.

A large and well pleased audience assembled in the Opera House last evening to hear and see Mr. Stuart Rogers in his splendid character delineations, which were undoubtedly the best ever witnessed in this city, and his imitations of various personages was of such a nature as to call forth round after round of applause. Should he appear again before a Leavenworth audience there would not be standing room in the house. The Art League may feel justly proud of their successful endeavors to please as highly a cultivated and critical audience as that of last night.—Leavenworth Times, Kansas, May 20, 1885.

Sad and Fatal Accident.

On Sunday morning the intelligence was made public that Wm. J. Hopkins, of Smith township, had been killed by being thrown from his buggy on returning home the previous night. Little groups might be seen everywhere talking of the accident. Many different and exaggerated stories were told of how the accident had occurred. The deceased had been in town during the day and attended the funeral of the late Chief Johnston, and about eight or nine o'clock left for home, accompanied by Mr. Geo. Donnelly, who had only returned to town a short time since, after a prolonged absence and was staying with his brother, whose farm adjoins that of Mr. Hopkins.

In the absence of the statement of Donnelly, who is out of town and who alone can give the full particulars of how the accident happened, it would seem that a halt had been made to allow Donnelly to alight and enter his brother's house, and that the horse, which was a very spirited and restless animal, started suddenly, throwing Mr. Hopkins backward over the seat, which was a very low one, and he, falling on his head sustained a fracture of the bones of the neck sufficient to cause death. He was carried into Mr. Donnelly's residence and Dr. Halliday at once summoned, but the injuries received had placed the patient beyond human aid, and after lying in an unconscious condition for about two hours he breathed his last. The body was removed to the residence of his mother, on Weller street, whence the funeral took place this afternoon at three o'clock. The deceased was well-known in town, having been a member of the livery firm of Hopkins & Montgomery, and his sadly sudden death will be a great shock to his many friends and acquaintances.

Stock Shipments.

Mr. Dowson shipped a car load of fine cattle to Montreal on Saturday. He's doing a rushing business.

Scott Act

The result of the scrutiny in Peterborough Scott Act election will be decided to-morrow.

Ladies' Aid Society Meeting.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society in connection with St. Paul's church will be held in the ladies' parlor in that church, on Thursday afternoon next, at 3 o'clock.

Sunday School Anniversary.

St. Paul's Church Sunday School is preparing to hold its anniversary in about a fortnight. A tea will be served in connection. Further particulars will be given next week.

Police Court.

The cases against T. Cavanagh and Geo. Mitchell, for breach of liquor license act, enlarged from Saturday, were again enlarged until Monday, 7th Dec., on request of the prosecution.

The Nicholls' Hospital.

The following donation to the hospital by Mrs. General Haultain is thankfully acknowledged by the lady superintendent: magazines, one pair carpet slippers, old linen and flannel.

Suit Withdrawn.

Mr. C. W. Sawers, solicitor for Mr. R. N. Roddy, in the suit of the latter against the town to recover $100, the price of a banquet prepared for the returning Nile voyageurs, has withdrawn the action.

A Generous Donation.

The Kingston Whig contains an announcement that Mrs. Charlotte J. Nicholls, of Peterborough, has made an unsolicited contribution of $1,000 to the endowment fund of Queen's College, Kingston.

Postponed.

The meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Central Exhibition, which was to have been held on Saturday last, was postponed for two weeks, on account of the funeral of the late Chief Constable Johnston. Saturday, 12th December, is the date for the postponed meeting.

Reading and Exercise Rooms.

Arrangements are being made in connection with the Business College to institute a reading room, to be supplied with all the leading dailies and other desirable reading matter. It is also proposed to have an exercising room, which will be supplied with boxing gloves, Indian clubs, dumb-bells, parallel bars, etc. This will undoubtedly meet with the approbation of the students attending the college, as it will afford them pleasant recreation after their labors.

Successful Sale.

The auction sale of Thos. J. Bell & Bro., advertised in the EXAMINER, came off at the Ashbrook Farm, Smith, on Thursday last. The sale was in every way a successful one. There were over 500 people present and the proceeds of sales netted over $600. Bidding was lively and prices good. The poultry went at a particularly good figure. The farm and wood which were also advertized were not sold, both of which are yet in the market.

Important Property Transfer.

For some time past negotiations have been going on between Mr. W. Yelland and Messrs. Rathbun & Sons, Deseronto, for the lease or purchase by the latter of Mr. Yelland's coal and wood yard, corner Murray and Bethune Streets. A few days ago he sent an ultimatum, stating that he would lease the premises at so much a year or sell them for a certain figure. This morning Mr. Yelland received an answer, accepting the proposition to purchase, and consequently the property passes into the hands of the enterprising Deseronto firm. In transferring the property, Mr. Yelland reserves the right of seeing that all contracts and business engagements entered into by him in connection with the business, are carried out.

Migratory Movements.

Mr. A. Baker, of East Saginaw, left town to-day for that city, via C.P.R. and connections. Mr. Alex. Elliott of the C.P.R. Agency, supplied the through ticket.

Messrs. William and James O'Donnell left town to-day for Suspension Bridge by G.T.R.

Signor Francis Cunio leaves town to-day for New York, from which port he will sail for Naples, Italy, via the National Line of steamers. T. Menzies, G.T.R. Ticket Agent, ticketed the signor.

Painful Accident.

On Monday last while Mr. Alex. Seers, of the Township of Hamilton, in the adjoining county, was leading a 3-year-old colt to water it kicked him in the face fracturing the upper jaw on both sides and injuring the roof of his mouth. Dr. Gray, of Baillieboro, who was called to attend the injured man, removed the left side of the upper jaw and part of the palate. He is in hopes that the remaining parts will unite. The case is a very painful and peculiar one. On Saturday the patient was progressing as favorably as could be expected under the circumstances. His recovery is looked forward to as certain, but he will always bear the marks of the unfortunate accident.

Obituary.

On Sunday morning last, Margaret Ann, wife of Mr. John Edmison, and one of the oldest residents of the Township of Smith, passed away to her rest. She was born in the North of England, and came to Canada shortly after her marriage, some fifty-five years ago. For a time she and her husband lived in Port Hope, afterwards removing to the neighborhood of Peterborough. The deceased lady enjoyed good health till about a year ago, since which time she has been gradually sinking. She leaves behind a family of ten children to mourn her loss, all of whom seemed deeply attached to the fond mother. When they heard of her last illness they were quickly at her bedside, though some had to come some distance. She was long a member of St. Andrew's congregation of this town. Her husband is the oldest elder of the congregation. She was a faithful and loving wife and a thoughtful and self-sacrificing mother. She bore the great sufferings of her last illness with christian patience and resignation, and a peaceful death was the end of a pious life. Her husband, Mr. Edmison, is still living at the ripe age of 92 years, on the old homestead, which has been his home over half a century. He is a staunch Reformer, as are all his sons, and is the oldest settler living in the township of Smith.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication from Mr. Coleman reporting the absence of Miss Johnston for two days, owing to illness and the death of her uncle.

A long correspondence in reference to Mr. Beatty was not read, as it had been published.

Communications from Miss McLeod applying for promotion in case of a vacancy in the central school.

From Wm. Beatty, tendering his resignation as a teacher in the central school.

From Miss Dowling, tendering her resignation as a teacher.

From H. K. Coleman, tendering his resignation as head teacher of the public schools.

Communications from the Inspector of boilers, stating that he had inspected the boiler used in heating the schools, and that he found it safe and in good order, with the exception that the draft was bad and fuel was wasted.

From Miss K. Irwin, asking to be removed from the south-ward to the central-ward, as it was nearer home, should supposed vacancies occur in that school.

A communication from Alex. Marling, Secretary of the Ontario School Department, stating that it was the intention of the Department to take part in the Intercolonial Exhibition, giving the statistics of the work done in the different schools in the Province, and asking for statistical returns from the Peterborough schools and a photograph of the Collegiate Institute, which would be placed on exhibition.

Communication from the Lindsay Board of Education asking the views of the Peterborough Board as regards the holding of a Trustee Convention at Toronto or some central and convenient point.

From Geo. W. McColl, applying for position as teacher in the public school, at a salary of $500.

Circular from Grip Publishing Co. regarding the Educational Weekly.

From Peter B. Cope, who held a second class professional certificate, asking to be appointed to vacancy in junior fourth department, at a salary of $500.

From Wm. Smith, applying for the position of Principal of the Public Schools.

From Albert E. Scott, applying for a position in the Public Schools.

An account from Barber & Ellis Co., for 10 gallons of ink, at $1.75, was ordered to be paid.

Moved by Mr. Stratton, seconded by Mr. Sproule, that the applications be referred to the committee on appointments.

After a warm discussion and several unsuccessful attempts at amendment, Mr. Sawers moved as amendment, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that the applications be taken up separately—which was carried.

The resignations of the several teachers were all accepted.

Moved by Mr. Errett, seconded by Mr. Dumble, that the report of attendance be received.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, Mr. Sproule was instructed to see that the High School building was properly photographed, in accordance with the instructions in the circular from the Education Department.—Carried.

Mr. Rutherford moved that the notice of motion given by him at last meeting, be adopted, which motion was that no money be voted or paid by the Board, or increase of salary made without previous notice to the Board. He was induced, however, to give notice of an amendment to the motion at the next meeting, the amendment being that no money should be voted or paid for increase of salary without previous notice.

It was moved by Mr. Kendry, seconded by Mr. Denne, that the application of Mr. Smith be accepted and that he be appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Coleman.

Mr. Stratton rose and shewed that the motion was out of order, being contrary to the Board by-laws, and that the application should be referred to the committee on appointments.

The chairman ruled the motion out of order.

Moved by Mr. Stratton, seconded by Mr. Sproule, that the Secretary be requested to procure a copying book, wherein he be requested to keep a copy of all letters written by him on behalf of the Board.—Carried.

On motion Mr. Horning, Science Master of Collegiate Institute, was heard.

Mr. Horning complained that the school was not supplied with the necessary apparatus for experimenting in chemistry, and asked for a grant of $75 to procure the necessary apparatus with.

Moved by Mr. Sproule, seconded by Mr. Dumble, that a special grant of $75 be made for procuring chemical apparatus.

Mr. Rutherford thought the principal of the school should apply for these things if they were necessary, and moved as amendment, seconded by Mr. Denne, that the matter be referred to the committee on school supervision with power to act.—Carried.

Mr. Horning, in reply to Mr. Rutherford, stated that he had mentioned the matter to the Principal, who had requested him to apply to the Board for the necessary appliances.

Moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Errett, that the same returning officers who acted last year at trustee elections, be appointed this year, and that the elections be held at the same places as the municipal elections.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that the Board resolve itself into a committee on appointments.

There was a motion to adjourn which was not carried.

Mr. Dumble rose and protested against the motion to go into committee. He objected to it as departing from the ordinary rules of the Board. There was no need of making the appointments in such a hurry, and there was danger in such a course. If such a course was continued they did not know what might be sprung upon the Board. The ordinary course was to refer the applications to the committee on appointments and it looked as if that committee could not be trusted or depended on. A member of the board had said in connection with the objection to go into committee that if they were boxed this time they would box some one else another time. He did not like the look of this boxing. When he found how eagre they were to proceed he came to the conclusion there was something wrong, that it had been all cut and dried. He was opposed to go into the matter with so little consideration. The committee could, between now and the first of January, gently, calmly and efficiently, fill the positions and they would have time to consider. It would lead to serious difficulties, and he advised that the matter should be referred to the committee to which it belonged.

Mr. Sawers said he was glad to hear Mr. Dumble admit he had done wrong. The appointment of Miss Ellsworth was made in the same way, and he doubted if Miss Ellsworth had a proper certificate.

Mr. Dumble said that Miss Ellsworth had a proper certificate, and was appointed in an emergency. Mr. Smith was applying for the most important position in the schools which should be filled with the best man possible to have.

Mr. Rutherford thought it was of importance and should be well dealt with by the Board. They all knew Mr. Smith to be an efficient teacher. What they were about to do was a common occurrence.

Mr. Sproule thought the Board were not prepared to fill the position with only two applications. He did not disapprove of Mr. Smith. The business of the Board should not be so common that applications would be received for a position before it was vacated or resignation accepted. It would be more honorable for Mr. Smith to receive the appointment with more competition.

Mr. Kendry said the Board had not been boxed, and all knew Mr. Smith as a successful teacher.

Moved by Mr. Stratton, seconded by Mr. Errett, that advertisements be inserted in the Globe and Mail for a principal and second teacher for the Central School.

This motion was lost and an amendment was carried to resolve into a committee on appointments.

Mr. Stevenson vacated the chair, which Mr. Dumble took.

The reporters were excommunicated and the Board went into committee.

After a prolonged absence, the reporters were allowed to return.

The Committee rose and reported and the report was adopted. The following appointments were made.

Mr. Smith, principal of the West Ward school, was appointed to the position of principal of the central school. Mr. A. Scott, of Ottawa, was appointed to second mastership in the place of Mr. Beatty; Miss Johnston was promoted to Miss Dowling's position; Miss Graham to Miss Johnston's position; Miss Ellsworth to Miss Grahame's; Miss Errett to Miss Ellsworth's, and Miss Davidson was appointed to Miss Erritt's position.

The Board then adjourned.

Great Fire in Jersey.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Chamber of Commerce and other public buildings in St. Helliers, Island of Jersey, and the Tramways Building in Glasgow, with ten horses and 40 cars, have been destroyed by fire.

The Rats and the Sinking Ship.

An Ottawa despatch says:—"As a consequence of the Mail's article of Saturday admitting that the present Government is likely to be defeated when Parliament meets all place hunters, jobbers and contract brokers around here are out this morning posing as opponents to Sir John. If the Tory organ does not look out it will soon have no party to speak for.

Hon. Mr. Joly's Resignation.

Hon. H. G. Joly, a Protestant French Canadian, who was formerly leader of the Rouge party, has resigned his seat as representative of Lotbiniere in the Quebec Legislature, on the ground that he cannot agree with his constituents on the Riel question. Mr. Joly's experiences with the Blues in past battles have probably embittered him, so that he does no relish the prospect of working with them, even to secure the overthrow of a Tory Government at Ottawa.

Mr. Chapleau Explains.

Hon. Mr. Chapleau, secretary of State, is out this morning with an appeal ad misericordiam to his constituents imploring them not to condemn him because he failed to get Riel pardoned. He did his utmost, he says, but adverse influences were to powerful for him. It looks now as if the whole Ministry, as well as their Quebec supporters, were trying to repudiate the responsibility for Riel's hanging. Sir John Macdonald insists that it was his Orange colleagues that did it.

Thebaw Becomes Humble.

And Sues for an Armistice.

RANGOON, Nov. 30.—King Thebaw, of Burmah, becoming alarmed at the rapid approach of the British expeditionary force under Gen. Pendergrast, notwithstanding the resistance offered by the Burmese, sent a message to Gen. Pendergrast begging him to grant an armistice for the purpose of peaceably settling the difficulty between Burmah and the Indian Governments. Gen. Pendergrast, in reply, demanded the

SURRENDER OF THE BURMESE ARMY AND MANDALAY,

the capital, stating that only then could he entertain any request looking to a settlement of the dispute. The King acceded to the terms, and Ava Forts, with twenty-eight guns, were turned over to the British troops. The garrison was placed there, and the British troops proceeded to Mandalay on the 28th inst.

Teaching Grammar.

In teaching grammar and composition the following hints from Mr. W. Huston, Librarian Legislative Assemby, Toronto, in his admirable paper on "The study of English," are worthy of attention:—Another way of improving English in a school is to note carefully the prevailing local mannerisms, and occasionally comment on them in teaching the subject. The pointing out of errors should be made as much as possible the work of the pupils themselves, and the number dealt with at any one time should be small. I have noticed that each locality is apt to have its own set of provincialisms in the pronunciation as well as the syntactical use of words. The objectionable mannerisms of the pupils will, as a rule, reflect the prevailing usage in the homes and social circles of the locality. There is little hope of inducing the older people to alter greatly their mode of speech, but the pupils should be taught to notice and avoid first the more glaring solecisms, and ultimately all positive errors and even mere defects. Nor can there be any doubt that if these were all banished from the school-room and play-ground their hold on the present generation of elders would be sensibly weakened. It is impossible that the six thousand educated men and women of your great fraternity should make a persistent effort to improve their own English and that of their own pupils, without exerting a beneficial and very preceptible influence on the English of the people of the Province generally.

The Ottawa Lumber Market.

OTTAWA, Nov. 28.—The following is about as near the cut as could be gleaned as the accounts in the different mill offices have not yet been collected:—Messrs. E. B. Eddy's, 80,000,000 feet; John R. Booth, 62,000,000 feet; Perley & Patti 50,000,000 feet; Bronson & Weston, 55,000,000 feet; Young's, 30,000,000 feet; or in all a grand total of 277,000,000 feet. This is the estimate as far as could be ascertained. For the production of this immense quantity of lumber, thousands of men and boys were employed. A glance at the percentage of good and rough lumber shows that on an average from all the lumber cut, not more and perhaps not as much as thirty percent can be classed as such, while the remainder is divided into lower grades. The markets are England, South America and the United States, and some of the lumbermen state that the demand from South America is developing very great proportions, while the English market this past season has not only been reasonably good but wonderfully lively. Lumber for all foreign export is shipped to Montreal and there transferred from the barges to the vessels, to be taken to its destination. The season's trade has been, on the whole, good, and lumbermen claim that the prospects for a good season next year are somewhat promising unless something unfortunate turns up to mar the prospects.

ONTARIO AN AGRICULTURAL OASIS.

The last summary of the Ontario Bureau of Industries includes interesting statistics for the past year. Though it has generally been complained that the crops this year were rather deficient yet the disparity throughout is not as great as would be expected. This year the average yield of fal wheat is 24½ bushels per acre as compared with 24 bushels in 1884, 10½ bushels in 1883 and 26½ bushels in 1882. But the failure of spring wheat has been pretty thorough, the average yield being 11.4 bushels, as compared with 20.2 in 1884, 16.6 in 1883 and 16.5 in 1882—the smallest by about five bushels per acre in four years. The yield of barley this year is an average of 27.7 bushels per acre, which has been excelled by only the yield of 1882, which was 28.6 per acre. Oats yields this year an average of 35.8 bushels per acre, being slightly below the average for the three previous years. The other staple crops this year are pretty well up to the mark, being equal to the average of the past four years. So there is not very much room for fault-finding on the score of bad crops in Ontario. Absolutely the success of the farmers the past year has been fair, but compared to the success of the agriculturists of the United States. A comparative table shows that, the result is exceedingly encouraging, as has been stated above, the yield in Ontario the past year has been of spring wheat 24.5 bushels per acre, the average yield of the same grain in the eight states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania, was only, as nearly as may be, one half the figure of Ontario—being 12.2 per acre. The highest yield was made by Michigan, 20 bushels per acre, and the lowest 8.1 bushels per acre, by Ohio. With all the boasted superiority of the fertile prairies of the United States, Ontario's fertile valleys gives a crop of fall wheat fifty per cent. bigger than the crack wheat-growing states of the great commonwealth to the south a of us. In spring wheat Ontario stands down on the list, but the States mentioned keep her company, only Minnesota going ahead of her and that only by one-tenth of a bushel per acre. In barley, again Ontario takes the lead of the eight banner States, her record being for 1885, an average of 27.7 bushels per acre, while the average in the States under review is only 21.2. Ontario also "feels her oats." The oat crop of Ontario yielded an average of 35.8 per acre, while the average of the States was only 32.55.

The average of crops, the number of live stock, the wool clip, the rate of wages and the value of farm property in the statistics of the Province presented above are prepared from schedules filled up by farmers, and returned to the Bureau on the 25th of June; the product of crops is computed from returns of actual yield made by threshers and correspondents on the 1st of November; and the acreage of farm land and of orchard and garden, together with the census of rural population, are made up from the assessment rolls of township municipalities. The average yield of cereal crops for States of the American Union is taken from the reports of the United States Department of Agriculture. It will be observed that the showing for the last four harvests is largely in favor of Ontario.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The people of Prescott and Russell are evidently "joined to their idols" and want to be "let alone." The latest and full returns of the voting on the Scott Act gives the astounding figures of 1,894 majority against it.

The Intelligencer grows exceedingly indignant and asserts that it is an "unmitigated lie" that Hon. Mr. Bowell stated that there was never the slightest opposition in the Cabinet to the hanging of Riel, and that Hon. Mr. Costigan was particularly anxious for it. Yet the Intelligencer in another place in the same issue gleefully repeats the "unmitigated lie" that Mr. J. D. Edgar attended a Rielite mass meeting in Montreal on Sunday. It is high treason to lie about Hon. Mr. Bowell, but an act of merit to be mendacious about Mr. Edgar.

Bureau of Industries.

The November Report.

The following is a summary of the report of the Ontario Bureau of Industries for the month of November:

Fall wheat is a fine sample and the yield is large; but owing to the effects of rain and rust spring wheat is a serious failure both in quantity and quality.

The bulk of the barley was discolored by a widely extended rain storm at the harvesting season.

Oats are below the average quality, having rusted in the ripening stage.

Rye is a fair average in yield and quality, but the area in crop is steadily decreasing.

Pease and beans were affected by spells of dry and wet weather in July and August, and they ripened very unevenly; the pea-bug has almost wholly disappeared.

The growing and ripening season for corn was short, cool and rainy, and much of it is soft in consequence; in the Lake Erie counties it has done fairly well.

Sorghum is generally a failure, and farmers are ceasing to grow it.

Buckwheat has given a good yield and the quality is excellent, but in localities it was hurt by early frosts.

The potato crop has suffered severely from the rot. In all the southern parts of the Province, from the Detroit river to the Ottawa, fully one half of its [illegible] the disease continues its ravages in the pits and cellars. In the northern part of the Province but little harm has been done.

Turnips are sound and in moderately good supply, and the accounts of mangel wurtzels and carrots are uniformly favorable.

The midge has wrought havoc with the seed clover. It is only where fields were pastured until the beginning or middle of June, and then left to grow for seed, that fairly successful results have been obtained.

The new crop of fall wheat has been sown in good condition, and it has a promising appearance.

Good accounts are received of tee fruit crop. In the older counties there has been a surplus of apples of excellent quality, and large quantities have been shipped to England and the Northwest. Pears have been moderately plentiful in western districts, and also in two or three eastern counties. The supply of peaches was confined to sheltered orchards in the Niagara peninsula. A good surplus of plums is reported for the northern and eastern districts, but black-knot and the curculio have been destructive in the West Midland and Lake Erie counties. The black-knot has also wrought great damage to cherry trees, and cherries were scarce and poor quality. Grapes and small fruits were very abundant. Fruit trees have made fine growth during the season and are generally in a healthy state.

Live stock are in good condition. The swine plague caused serious loss in some western localities early in the fall season, but there remain now only a few scattered cases. The market for live stock is reported dull, a comparative absence of demand and low prices being the rule. A good many sales of cattle off the grass have been made for the British markets. There is a continued decrease in the number of sheep, owing, it is stated, to the low price of wool. The dairy industry has been very dull, and sales of cheese and butter in the early part of the season were made at low figures.

Melville Millar

Sister Celeste.

BY C. C. GOODWIN.

In one of the mountain towns of Northern California, a good many years ago, while yet good women, compared to the number of the men, were so disproportionately few, suddenly one day upon the street, clad in the unattractive garb of a Sister of Charity, appeared a woman whose marvelous loveliness the coarse garments and uncouth hood peculiar to the order could not conceal. There was a Sisters' Hospital in the place, and this nun was one of the devoted women who had come to minister to the sick in that hospital. She was of medium size and height, and despite her shapeless garments, it was easy to see that her form was beautiful. The hand that carried the basket was a delicate one; under her unsightly hood glimpses of a brow as white as a planet's light could be caught; the coarse shoes upon her feet were three sizes too large. When she raised her eyes, from the inner depths a light like that of kindly stars shone out. There was a in her mien, but in all her ways there was a dainty grace, which, upon the hungry eyes of the miners of that mountain town, shone like enchantment. She could not have been more than twenty years of age.

STATELY, KINDLY DIGNITY

It was told that she was known as "Sister Celeste;" that she had recently come to the Western coast, it was believed from France, and that was all that was known of her. When the Mother Superior at the hospital was questioned about the new sister, she simply answered: "Sister Celeste is a sister now, she will be a glorified saint by and by." The first public appearance of Sister Celeste in the town was one Sunday afternoon, when she emerged from the hospital and started to carry some delicacy to a poor, sick woman—a Mrs. DeLacy, who lived at the opposite end of the town from the hospital; so to visit her the nun was obliged to walk almost the whole length of the one long, crooked street which, in the narrow canyon, included all the business portion of the town. When the nun started out from the hospital the town was full of miners, as was the habit in those days on Sunday afternoons, and as the sister passed along the street, were bent upon her. She seemed unconscious of the attention she was attracting; had she been walking in her sleep she could not have been more composed.

HUNDREDS OF EYES

Many were the comments made as she passed out of the hearing of different groups of men. One big, rough miner, who had just accepted an invitation to drink, caught sight of the vision, watched the sister as she passed, and then said to the companion who had asked him: "Excuse me, Bob; I have a feeling as though my soul had just partaken of the sacrament; no more gin for me to-day." Said another: "It is a fearful pity. That woman was born to be loved, and to love somebody better than nine hundred and ninety out of every thousand could. Her occupation is, in her case, a sin against nature. Every hour her heart must protest against the starvation which it feels; every day she must feel upon her robes the clasp of little hands which are not to be." One boisterous miner, a little in his cups, watched until the sister disappeared around the bend in the crooked street, and then cried out: "Did you see her, boys? That is the style of a woman that a man could die for, and smile while dying. Oh! Oh!" Then drawing from his belt a buckskin purse, he held it aloft and shouted: "Here are eighty ounces of the cleanest dust ever mined in Bear Gulch; it's all I have in the world, but I will

to any bruiser in this camp who will look crooked at that sister when she comes back this way, and let me see him do it. In just a minute and a half there would not be enough left of him for the coroner to gather in a sack and sit on." After that, daily for all the following week, Sister Celeste was seen going to and returning from the sick woman's house. It soon grew to be a habit with everybody to uncover their heads as Sister Celeste came by.

Sunday came around again, and it was noticed that on that morning the nun went early to visit her charge, and remained longer than usual. On her return, when just about opposite the main saloon of the place, a kindly, elderly gentleman, who was universally known and respected, ventured to cross the path of the sister, and addressed her as follows:

"I beg pardon, good sister, but you are attending upon a sick person. We understand that it is a woman; may I not ask if we cannot in some way assist you and your patient?" A faint flush swept over the glorious face of Sister Celeste as she raised her eyes, but simply and frankly, and with a slight French accent, she answered:

"The lady, kind sir, is very ill. Unless in some way, we can manage to remove her to the hospital, where she can have an evenly warmed room and close nursing, I fear she will not live; but she is penniless, and we are very poor, and, moreover, I do not see how

A Great Philanthropist.

THE LATE LORD SHAFTESBURY.

Anthony Ashley Cooper, the seventh earl of Shaftesbury, who recently died in his 85th year, was during life one of the few among the British nobility who considered the tie of a common humanity which binds them to their less fortunate brethren. Like our own Peter Cooper, he was a faithful and most useful laborer for the improvement of the condition of the poor. He introduced a bill to put a stop to the cruel abuses attending the employment of children in those factories. This bill was resisted in parliament, but he continued the agitation for twenty years, resulting in dilatory, but beneficial reforms. In 1844, ten years after the question was first introduced, an act was passed restricting factory labor to twelve hours. In 1847 it was reduced to ten hours. In 1853 Lord Shaftesbury's wishes were consummated in the passage of an act restricting the employment of children in factories to daylight hours. The employment of women and children in collieries and other mines was another phase of the subject to which he gave his attention.

The extent of his labors in the cause of humanity may be gained from the fact that he was president of sixteen societies, vice president of eighteen, and patron or vice patron of numerous other charitable organizations. His name will be long revered by the thousands whom he helped to a better condition in life, and by humanitarians the world over.

Forced Sale of Dry Goods

—AT—

THOS. KELLY'S,

COMMENCING SATURDAY, NOV. 28.

After thinking the matter over carefully, we have decided upon our course for the next Two Months, and that is to have a Forced Sale of our large stock of Dry Goods.

We require MONEY, and we are bound to have it if LOW PRICES will effect our object.

This Sale means a loss to us, but, rather than carry Goods over until another Season, we feel justified in taking this course.

We intend to carry out all we advertise. This can be best judged by the prices we will offer Goods at.

During this Sale we do not promise to give away Goods, nor do we intend to sell Goods at half price.

Our Motto is ONE PRICE TO ALL.

However, the Goods and Prices will speak for themselves, and we feel sure they will command the attention of close buyers and secure for us a successful Sale.

Bricks and the Bible.

The lecture by the Rev. Prof. Burwash, of Cobourg, last evening was a thorough success, the Baptist Church being filled with an intelligent audience. The chair was occupied by the Rev. A. H. Munro. After the singing of a hymn prayer was offered by the Rev. F. H. Wallace, B. D.

Prof. Burwash, in opening, referred to the new science that sprang up in the middle of the 18th century, that of historical criticism, and to the evil rationalistic effects of it. It not only undermined faith, to a large extent, in secular history, but in Scripture history also. He then gave an account of the change taking place throughout this century, as one corroboration after another of the truth of the Bible historically, were being discovered, Faith in the truth of the Bible was not only being restored, but greatly strengthened. The lecturer described in a very interesting manner the discovery of the Rosetta Stone in Egypt, by the army of Napoleon, and the subsequent deciphering of the inscription of it by Champollion and Young. He then gave a number of instances, in which facts in the Pentateuch were corroborated by the Egyptain hieroglyphics. The success thus obtained in Egypt was so great, that the attention of scholars was turned once more to the cuneiform inscription of Assyria, the clue to which was at last obtained by a German, and by Rawlinson of England. The work of exploration and excavation has gone on from that time to this, and fresh discoveries are constantly being made. Among the most important was the disinterring of large libraries belonging to the Assyrian kings. These had not been written on parchment or papyrus, but punched on soft clay which was then burnt in a furnace, thus producing the most desirable of all inscriptions. The lecture throughout was exceedingly interesting, and the audience went away delighted. A vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer on motion of Dr. Fife, seconded by Mr. J. H. Roper. In responding Prof. Burwash said that he had been connected a number of years with the Young Men's Christian Association and was pleased to help them whenever he could. He hoped that the local association would be well supported. A collection was taken up, a closing hymn sung, and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. E. F. Torrance, M.A.

The Sons of Scotia

Celebrate St. Andrew's Day. The Bairnsfather Concert Professors Reid and McGregor Make Martial Mimicry—Bradburn's Opera House Crowded—A Most Successful Evening's Entertainment.

The Scotchmen of Peterborough celebrated the anniversary of Scotland's patron saint with their accustomed enthusiasm. During the day no concerted observance of the occasion, was attempted but a few cronies would meet and indulge in a crack or two, frilling their speech with an extra braid reaidtion of the Scotch phrases.

This year the society made a new departur eand decided to substitute for the usual annual dinner a concert and entertainment.

IN THE EVENING

a large assemblage gathered in Bradburn's Opera House for the concert and entertainment. The President, Mr. John Erskine, made a brief address and stated that a greeting from Petrolia, and the following telegram had been received:

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 29th, '85.

We trust your evening will be pleasant as well as profitable. H. McKINNON.
Pres't St. Andrew's Society

Congratulations and greeting were also received from Dr. Harper, President of the Quebec St. Andrew's Society. A beautiful St. Andrew's card adorned with a sprig of heather bloom was enclosed. On the face it bore the following lines:

Hurrah for Auld Scotland, the land of the heather,
Whase fragrance has scented our hearts fond o' hame,
'Tis meet when her bairns in their freendships foregather,
To lilt the sweet memories that halo her name.

Hurrah for Auld Scotland, the land of our forbears,
Whase brave deeds bedizen ilk muirland and glen,
Let us think of their courage 'midst life's many hardships,
And face all our woes like brave-hearted men.

Mr. Erskine then introduced Mr. Wm. Telfer, of Smith, the Bard of the Society, who read his annual poem, which we have not room for in this issue. It was received with the same generous applause that the venerable bard's poetical productions always evoke.

THE CONCERT

then followed; the programme supplied by the Bairnsfather family and the Scotch songs rendered, which fell upon hearts softened by the associations of the day into a humour to be delighted, were received with loud applause. Mr. Bairnsfather was the strength of the concert, and it must be owned that he excels as a raconteur. His numerous anecdotes were told m an excellent manner, a good histrionic ability adding much to their interest. He succeeded in keeping his audience well amused. Mrs. Bairnsfather sang the songs allotted to her with great sweetness and seemed to enter fully into the spirit of them. Little Johnny Bairnsfather is a capital little singer, and in "Bonnie Dundee" and "Charlie is My Darling," richly earned the applause and recalls that followed his numbers. He and his little sister Maggie, danced the Highland fling in so capital a manner that they were greeted with an encore to which they responded. Altogether the musical portion of the entertainment was very successful. However, the most taking feature of the evening's programme was the

EXHIBITION OF SWORDSMANSHIP

made by Prof. Ried, assisted by Prof. McGregor, of Toronto. It opened with a brilliant exposition of the cavalry sword exercise in which the time was perfect and the execution otherwise excellent. This was followed by a series of most difficult feats of swordsmanship performed by Prof. Reid with a dexterity which showed him a master of the weapon. First, he cut into two parts an apple suspended in a napkin without breaking the web of the cloth. Prof. McGregor knelt in the position of one about to be decapitated; a potato was placed on the back of his neck and Prof. Reid, by a deft downward stroke, divided the potato without injuring the skin of the neck. A potato was suspended by a thread about two feet from the floor and Prof. Reid, by rapid double cut, severed the thread and cut the potato in two before it reached the floor. The successful performance of this difficult feat was greeted with loud cheers. A solid bar of lead was suspended in two loops of thin paper, which in turn rested on the edges of two razors; by a rapid downward cut, Prof. Reid cut the leaden bar clear in two without breaking the paper loops. At another interval he and Prof. McGregor pitted themselves against each other in the broadsword exercise, giving a most skillful and exciting exhibition. Another scene was the bayonet in Prof. Reid's hands, versus the broadsword wielded by Prof. McGregor. This exhibition was witnessed with breathless interest, the touches were pretty evenly divided, and the applause that greated the doughty champions as they retired, showed how their efforts were appreciated. The evening's pleasant enjoyment was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld lang Syne" by the Bairnsfather family and the audience. The members of the local society are well pleased with the success of the concert, and are grateful to the public, who showed their appreciation of the objects of the society, by attending in such large numbers and assisting thereby to augment the funds of the society whose charitable motto may well be "Ex nostri ferre auxilium miseris."

After the concert a number of congenial spirits, among whom was Mr. Bairnsfather, assembled at Roddy's hotel where an oyster supper was partaken of and a pleasant hour's recreation enjoyed in chat and patriotic and national toasts, etc.

Wallace Point Bridge.

The repairs to the Wallace Point Bridge, involving the erection of a new swing, are approaching completion. Mr. Chas. Wyane, the contractor for the masonry, has finished the pivot pier for the draw, which is of solid masonry, and this morning Mr. W. H. Law, of the Central Iron and Bridge works, shipped by teams the iron work for the swing. The swing, which will be placed at one end of the bridge, like that at the locks, will fill a space of 83 feet and have 44 feet clear opening. The width of the roadway is 12 feet and the carrying capacity of the bridge 1200 pounds per lineal foot. The swing will be operated by gearing, which works with great ease. Mr. Law received this morning a letter from the contractor for the bridge on the Erie & Huron R.R. extension stating that the 128 feet swing built at the Central works could be operated by a boy 10 years old. The old approaches have been utilized in the repair of the bridge, which will be ready for traffic in about a fortnight.

The Scott Act Scrutiny.

End of the Investigation—Judge Dennistoun Gives His Certificate A Majority of 411.

The end of the Scott Act Scrutiny was reached to-day. Judge Dennistoun to-day at two o'clock delivered judgment or rather gave the following certificate as the result of the investigation:

In the matter of the vote taken in the County of Peterborough, under the Canada Temperance Act of 1878, on the 24th of September, 1885, I held scrutiny as provided for by Sec. 61, in the presence of counsel for and against both parties, and took such evidence under oath as was offered as to the state of ballot boxes, ballot papers, the conduct and proceedings of the Deputy Returning Officers, as appears by my notes of the evidence, and I find that the votes cast amounted to 1,918 for the Act, and those cast against it amounted to 1,507, giving a majority for the Act of 411.

ROBERT DENNISTOUN,
County Judge.

Dated 1st December, 1885.

The learned Judge, in giving his decision, said that as the matter was one of great public interest and as there had been some irregularities in the taking of the vote, that the petitioners were justified in seeking the recount of the ballots, and that consequently he did not consider it a case where the petitioners should be called on to pay all costs. He decided that both petitioners and defendants should pay their own costs.

Another Sudden Summons.

Death Strikes the Venerable Richard Borrowman down on the Street.

Last evening about 4 o'clock Mr. Richard Borrowman, father-in-law of Mr. Peter Connel at whose house he lived, was returning home from a visit to Hamilton's foundry. When in front of the residence of Mr. Geo. Edminson on Rubidge street he was struck down on the side walk. A lady observing his fall informed the workmen, engaged on St. Andrew's Church, who carried Mr. Borrowman to the church. Mr. Alex. Stewart was present and the stricken man in answer to the question, "Do you know me?" replied, "Yes take me home." A litter was improvised but while the unfortunate gentleman was being carried along he breathed his last. His daughter, Mrs. Stewart, who keeps Mr. Connal's house, was in Mr. John Douglas's house, as she saw the party passing, and thought a workingman on the church had been hurt, and did not learn the sad truth till she reached home. The cause of death was paralysis of the heart, this being the third seizure. At noon yesterday the deceased ate a heartier meal than usual. He seemed in better health than usual. In his room was found his open Bible, showing what had been his last occupation before taking his last walk. The deceased gentleman was a native of Berwickshire, Scotland, and was eighty-five years of age last June. He has been a resident of Peterborough for the past thirty-five years. The funeral will take place on Wednesday from the residence of Mr. Peter Connal, Brock Street.

Anniversary Tea.

The Mark Street Methodist Church Anniversary Tea, given in the Town Hall, Ashburnham, yesterday evening was of an unusually pleasant character. There were over four hundred present, who did ample justice to the bountiful spread provided. After tea was dispensed with, Mr. Yelland was elected to the position of Chairman, the duties of which he discharged creditably. The choir delighted the audience with a number of choice choruses. Rev. I. Tovell, Rev. E. Roberts and Rev. Mr. McAmmond contributed to the entertainment for a while with spicy addresses. The proceeds of the tea amounted to over $100. There will be a Sabbath School entertainment in the same place to-night. A choice programme of songs, choruses, readings, recitations, etc., will be presented.

I had for years been a miserable sufferer from Dyspepsia, and tried all known remedies and the best medical skill of my acquaintance, but still grew worse, until unable to eat anything without great suffering, or do any kind of work. I began to think there was no hope for me, and that I must surely die; when like a drowning man catching at a straw, I determined to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial, I at once began to improve so rapidly that in two months I was as well as I had ever been in my life.—WM. FINANCE REPORTS

To the Mayor and Councillors of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—The Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend the payment of the following accounts:—

Geo G. G'adman	$ 9 87
Peterborough Gas Company	20 15
" " "	22 65
Times Printing Company	14 48
Geo Stethem (when certified)	47 73
E. B. Edwards	100 00

Also that the petition of John Woods cannot be entertained.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

R. S. DAVIDSON, Chairman.

Peterborough, Dec. 1st, 1885.

The report was adopted.

Mr. Davidson informed the Council that the finance committee paid Mr. Roddy $25 and he had withdrawn his claim of $100 for voyageur supper.

COURT OF REVISION REPORT.

The Court of Revision reported that they had enquired into the assessment of Miss Rea, and found by the report of the assessors that she had been properly assessed. She had occupied a part of Miss DeLacey's premises which was assessed to her by her own request.

On motion the report was adopted.

REDISTRIBUTION OF LIGHTS.

Councillor Rutherford, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee read the report of that Committee.

To the Mayor and Council:

Your Committee beg to report and recommend the distribution of electric lights on Hunter street as follows:

One on the corner of Hunter and Rubidge.

One on the corner of Hunter and Aylmer.

One on the corner of Hunter and Water.

One on the corner of Hunter and George.

Also that one new electric light be placed at the corner of Water and Murray streets.

We further recommend the lighting of the following gas lamps be dispensed with, viz.:

One on the corner of Hunter and Rubidge.

One on the corner of Hunter and Aylmer.

One on the corner of Hunter and Water.

One on the corner of Water and Murray.

One on the corner of Murray and College.

And that the lamp that is now at the foot of St. John's Church be removed to the corner of Brock and Sheridan Terrace.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

A. RUTHERFORD, Chairman.

Dec. 1st, 1885.

Councillor Rutherford moved the adoption of the report.

Moved in amendment by Councillor Green, seconded by Councillor Kelly, that an electric light be placed on Hunter Street, between George and Aylmer, to be paid for by general taxation, the same as the other electric lights.

Councillor McClelland thought there should be two gas lamps placed on the mill road.

A general discussion ensued, in which all the members freely engaged.

Councillor Menzies moved as an amendment to the amendment, seconded by Councillor Kendry, that the report be referred back to the committee, to consider the extending of the electric lights north and south on George street, and the placing of a light at the corner of King and Aylmer streets.

Coun. Davidson objected to referring the matter back to the committee, as they had been unanimous as to the distribution, with the exception of Councillor Menzies.

Councillor McNaughton objected to increasing the expenditure for lights.

Councillor Rutherford said it was the 3rd report of the committee on this matter and that they could not extend any more this year, and moved the adoption of the report.

Councillor McNaughton thought the motion was not in order.

Councillor Cahill ruled that it was in order.

The amendment to the amendment was voted on and lost.

The amendment suffered in the same way, and the report was finally adopted.

BY-LAWS.

A by-law to appoint deputy returning officers, poll clerks and polling places, was introduced and received its several readings and was ordered to be signed and sealed.

The following appointments were made:—In the first ward, Jos. Lundy, deputy returning officer; Angus Williams, poll clerk; polling place, Mission school house. Second ward—Chas. Cameron, deputy returning officer; Jas. Noble, poll clerk; polling place, Council chamber. Third ward—John Irwin, deputy returning officer; Jas. McDonald, poll clerk; polling place, office of William Yelland. Fourth ward—Wm. Lee, deputy returning officer; Francis Mason, poll clerk; polling place, Wm. Lee's shop.

A by-law to regulate the hours of billiard rooms, was lost on the motion to go into the second reading.

MOTIONS.

Moved by Councillor Davidson, seconded by Councillor McNaughton, that Henry Gordon's name be struck off the statute labor list.—Referred to Court of Revision.

Moved by Councillor Davidson, seconded by Councillor McClelland, that Mr. Bradburn's request regarding the transfer of his billiard license from present room to rooms over China Hall, and for one table at Darcy's be granted.—Carried.

On motion Mr. Cluxton was heard by the Council.

Mr. Cluxton complained that last spring when the assessors called upon him he told them he had no income. He received one notice without an income assessment. Later on, however, he was presented with an assessment slip assessing him for $3,000 income. He appealed to the court of revision, but his appeal was not before the court in time, according to law. They told him they could not act, and referred him to the council. He was willing to take a declaration and make an affidavit that he had no income. He asked the council to take some action in the matter. He was sure they would not tax him for what he had not.

Coun. Menzies gave an explanation. The court could do nothing. The law was such that appeals which did not come in before the 15th of May, they had no power to act upon.

It was moved by Coun. Kelly, seconded by Coun. McClelland, that Mr. Cluxton's request be referred to the court of revision with power to act.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Davidson, seconded by Coun. Rutherford, that the Town Property Committee make arrangements with Mr. Bradburn re town clock.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Kendry, seconded by Coun. Hartley, that the Town Property Committee report as to the best manner of heating the new town buildings.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned to meet Monday, Dec. 14th.

A Great War Cloud.

Three Great Powers Preparing for a Struggle—The Seas of Contention Between Servia and Bulgaria—Greece Anxious to Attack Turkey.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The war preparations of the three Powers directly interested in the Balkan peninsula squabble continue with unabated vigor. At all the military centres of the Powers referred to namely, Austria, Russia and Turkey, active preparations are being made for any emergency that may arise. Although an armistice has been agreed upon between Bulgaria and Servia, that permanent peace will be reached is by no means certain. The Bulgarians' claim for war indemnity is the principal bone contention. King Milan is bitterly opposed to the payment of any monetary consideration to Bulgaria. It is stated he will fight until the last rather than acquiesce in any such demand. The question of a war indemnity, however, has been referred to the great Powers for settlement. The armies of Servia and Bulgaria meanwhile retain their respective positions, pending the settlement of the question and the formal signing of a treaty of peace

The British in Mandalay.

Law and Order Prevail in Thebaw's Capital.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—A despatch from Mandalay to one of the evening papers conveys the intelligence that the British forces are now in possession of that city, and that the Burmese have unconditionally surrendered to Gen. Prendergrast, the commander of the British expeditionary forces. The Burmese capital, the despatch adds, is now entirely under British rule, and English troops have been stationed throughout the city for the purpose of preventing any disorder.

The Hopeful Liberals

Still Think the Official Count Will tell Their Favor.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The returns thus far received show the Liberals still ahead, notwithstanding the large gains of the Tories. The Liberals have led by eleven seats. Many of the more sanguine assert that the official count will materially increase their advantage. The Liberal leaders deny the story that an agreement has been entered into with the Tories with a view of crushing the Parnellite programme in the next Parliament, some of them going so far as to assert that under no circumstances will they countenance any such arrangements. Returns received up to midnight show the election of 190 Liberals, 157 Tories and 28 Parnellites. The Liberal are developing unexpected strength in the counties.

A Murderer's Dreadful Deeds.

TECUMSEH, Mich., Dec. 1.—On Saturday night Aaron Palmer shot B. P. and Irwin B. Anderson. Both men are still alive, although in a precarious condition. Palmer is a young ruffian, who, before, has been guilty of attempted murder. He was masquerading the streets armed with a knife and revolver. While flourishing his knife in the Post Office, B. P. Anderson attempted to pacify him, and thought he had succeeded, when Palmer called him, and, as he turned, shot him in the breast. The wounded man's brother then engaged in a terrific hand-to-hand struggle with the murderer. The bystanders were afraid to interfere, and the other Anderson soon fell, pierced by two bullets. The murderer then escaped. Armed parties are scouring the town and country. The Anderson's are prominent in business circles, and their families are of the highest respectability.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Mahomedan Missionaries.

Somewhat of a sensation was created yesterday by the arrival in town and the appearance on the streets of two Roman Catholic missionary priests dressed in full Moslem costume. They were Rev. Father Nowlaerts, a missionary, engaged in missionary work among the Mahomedans in Jerusalem and vicinity, and Rev. Father Vigneu, a missionary engaged in carrying the cross to the benighted natives of Central Africa and the Congo. The Mahomedan dress is a most striking one, and that, worn by these gentlemen, is such as, except in quality and texture, is worn by every Mahomedan, man, woman and child, rich and poor. Every Mahomedan wears a rosary as a devotional aid, but it is unnecessary to say that no cross is suspended from it. The dress consists of a full flowing outside robe of white, called the burnous, and an inner garment, the gondou. On the head is worn a sechea, or cap of crimson cloth, ornamented by a black tassel. The object of their visit to Peterborough is to collect money for the prosecution of missionary work among the Moslems and Africans. To assist this object they present to the public a conference sur la Sainte-Terre, exhibiting panoramic scenes, painted from views, taken personally by Rev. Father Nowlaerts himself. The entertainment, which will be a most interesting one will be given in Bradburn's Opera House on Thursday evening next. Admission, 15 cents; reserved seats 25 cents. Entertainment for children at 4.30. Admission 10 cts. In to-morrow's issue of the EXAMINER will appear an interesting sketch of the condition of the work in Central Africa, the condition and morality of the natives, etc.

Spontaneous Combustion.

Some one has estimated that the time thrown away in this world in courting the girl you want to marry, and who is ready to marry you, would build all the railroads and bridges and tunnels and factories and public buildings. The white race should take a lesson in this from the coloured people. The other day a likely young coloured man stood at a gate in P———. A likely young coloured woman came along with a dog.

"Hi, dar," he called, "but mebbe you want to sell dat dog?"

"No, sah."

"Mebbe your name is Lucinada?"

"Yes, sah."

"I allers dote on dat name. Ise called Gwage."

"Dat's pleasin'."

"Ise lookin', you know?"

"Y-yes."

"Got money saved up, an' a stidy job ahead. Shall I speak to de ole man?"

"He's in New Orleans."

"Den I'll see de ole woman."

"She's dead."

"Wall, den, I'll ax you to be my wife right now."

"You's foolin'."

"Deed, no."

"Hain't got nobody else?"

"Nobody, 'tall."

"Reckon we'll hitch?"

"Co'se we will—can't help."

"Wall, den, I'll say yes, an' to-night you come down to Belleghem's handsome furniture store an' we'll git de furniture an' sah de day."

"Lucinda, I—"

"Go 'long Gwage! Ize dun said yes, an' dat's nuff. Come airly."

"So long, 'Cinda!"

ACTION CALLED FOR.

It is high time that the Liberals of Canada were completely organized for the purpose of checkmating the Revising Officers, appointed under the Franchise Act, in their manipulations of the voters' lists. The occasion calls for more than ordinary sacrifice and activity on the part of members of the Liberal party. The Conservatives have the paid officers of the Dominion Government looking after the voters' lists in the interests of their party, for no matter how conscientious the revising officers may be, they will naturally, to use a homely phrase, be loyal to their bread and butter. Some of these officers have entered upon their duties, for instance those of Essex and Lennox and it behooves Liberals to be up and doing. It is the duty of every individual Liberal who has the interest of the country at heart, to see that his own name appears on the list of voters. No party organization, can in this respect take the place of individual effort. Every citizen is entitled to the exercise of his franchise, and upon himself and the revising officers will largely rest the responsibility it by his neglect and their neglect—to speak advisedly—his name fails to appear upon the list of persons entitled to vote for members of the House of Commons of Canada. Sir John devised the Franchise Act to ensure his return to power, and he depends on it as he depended upon the Gerrymander Act to secure him a fresh lease of power. This latter iniquity was only partially successful, and it rests with the individual efforts of the members of the Liberal party to see that the Franchise Act does not accomplish the full measure of success its wily devisor designed it to do. The fight is between the revising officers (the paid servants of the Dominion Government) and the Liberals of the country, who have not only to help pay the salaries of those whose political function is to deprive Liberals of their votes, but also to strive to defeat the object sought to be attained.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Montreal Post has severely criticised the conduct of Minister Costigan, because of his inconsistency. To get even with the paper, Mrs. Costigan has just withdrawn the family subscription to the Post. This is a dread calamity. The suspension of the plucky Post may be expected at any moment.

It is announced that Sir David Macpherson is not to return to Canada until next summer. Some Tories are afraid that Sir John Macdonald may also decide to remain away, pleading ill-health—an attack of the Blues—and it is announced at Ottawa that Mr. Chapleau, Secretary of State, will not attend a large meeting of his constituents to which he was invited, but will go to New York to consult his physician.

Here is the point in a nutshell, as figured out by the London Advertiser: "The Liberal party of Canada oppose and always opposed the Government of Sir John. If a section of the House that formerly supported the Government, choose to renounce their allegiance, that is their lookout. The Liberal party does not change its ground. It still opposes the Government." And because of the altered state of affairs, the Toronto Mail is trying its hardest to inaugurate a war of races. The organ should not make a fool of itself. Nobody takes any stock in its simulated alarm.

A well-known Tory M. P., from Quebec Province was asked why he did not follow Mr. Joly's example and resign his seat, instead of continuing to support the Government contrary to the wishes of his constituents. The Tory M.P., said he did not intend to do anything of the kind, and intimated that Sir John Macdonald would buy up all the bolting Quebec Tories with grants of timber lands or railway subsidies. This is evidently what Sir John relies on to keep himself in power; but if he does, Ontario will have to pay the bill, as she did when the Bleus assembled in No. 8, and dictated their own terms before the syndicate loan was granted. There is not much danger of any of the Tory members following Mr. Joly's example.

Destroyed Without Pain.

A GOOD CROP of hair is a great beauty, but a superfluous growth is an unsightly blemish. Everyone troubled with unnecessary hair should not fail to try a bottle of "Eureka"—Dorenwend's Hair Destroyer; it removes all superfluous hair without pain or disfigurement. Price $2.00 per bottle, or 3 bottles for $5.00. Manufactured by Eureka Manufacturing Co., Toronto, Can. Sent to any address on receipt of price. To be had from J. D. TULLY, DRUGGIST, AGENT FOR PETERBOROUGH.

Lieut.-Governor Robinson stated, at the St. Andrew's Society banquet in Toronto last night, that there are 11,000 Frasers in Canada alone. He might have added that a number of them are Frenchmen, too, speaking the old Gallic tongue as learned by their ancestors when they went to France in the days of the old Empire. It is with these Canadians, says the Hamilton Times, as well as against those possessed of a less mixed lineage that the Toronto Mail is now trying to bring about a race war. "Anything to keep in [power" appears to be the motto of the discredited Ottawa rulers and their apologists.

The British Elections.

The Liberals Leading.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Returns received up to midnight show that 182 Liberals, 159 Tories and 28 Parnellites have been elected. The borough seats have declared for the Tories, but the counties are giving Liberal.

Reciprocity.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—It is learned at the state department that negotiations have been pending for some time between the United States and the British Government for a renewal of the fishery clause of the Treaty of Washington abrogated last July. Just how far these negotiations have progressed cannot be learned as the Department people decline to make any statements for publication touching the subject at this time. It is believed in official circles, however, that the President will submit a Conventitn to Congress soon after that body meets. Those most competent to express an opinion say that there is not a remote probability that the President or Mr. Secretary Bayard will take any steps toward entering into negotiations with Great Britain for a renewal of the treaty of reciprocity of 1854, nor is it probable that any similar treaty will be signed by President Cleveland during his incumbency of the office of Chief Magistrate. Soon after Congress meets it is expected that Congressman Maybury, of Michigan, will introduce a resolution asking the President to negotiate for a reciprocity treaty with Canada. If this resolution receives the favorable attention of Congress it may induce the President to change his views, but at present he is unalterably opposed to this method of reducing the tariff on imports.

Crops in the United States.

The following account of crops in the United States is prepared from the October and November reports of the Department of Agriculture at Washington:

The last winter was the most destructive of wheat since 1866. The area harvested is estimated at 34,000,000 acres, and the average yield at about 10.5 bushels per acre. In some Southern and Central States the average is only 5 bushels per acre, while in Michigan the crop is the best for several years. In the North-western States there is complaint of shrivelled grain, and the yield is very unequal.

The total yield of oats is estimated at 600,000,000 bushels, and the average yield at 27 to 28 bushels per acre. In some southern States it was injured by drought; but the most extensive injury was caused by excessive rains during and immediately after harvest—especially in Iowa, Illinois, and in parts of Michigan, Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania. In portions of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa serious damage was done by grasshoppers.

A fair product of barley has been secured, the average yield being twenty-two bushels per acre. In New York a good deal of the grain was stained or otherwise damaged by excessive rains, and to some extent in Iowa and Wisconsin. In Kentucky and Tennessee a considerable portion of the crop was killed by frosts.

The corn crop of this season is the first of a full average yield since 1880, being 26 to 28 bushels of shelled corn per acre. The area is nearly 74,000,000 acres, being the largest in the history of the country. The quality is very good in the east and south, medium in the central parts of the west, and rather low on the northern border from Michigan to Dakota.

An excess of rain has been very injurious to the potato crop from New England to Minnesota. The crop in New York has been reduced one-third, and the rot has been seriously prevalent in portions of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota and Northern Illinois. The reports from Wisconsin and Iowa are extremely unfavorable. In parts of Pennsylvania, W. Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Minnesota the crop has been materially diminished and in a few localities almost destroyed by bugs.

Sister Celeste.

BY C. C. GOODWIN.

she can be moved, for there are no carriages."

She spoke with perfect distinctness, notwithstanding the slight foreign accent. The accent was no impediment; rather from her lips, it gave her words a rhythm like music.

The man raised his voice. "Boys," he shouted, "there is a suffering woman up the street; she is

VERY DESTITUTE AND VERY ILL,

and must be removed to the hospital. The first thing required is some money." Then taking off his hat with one hand, with the other he took from his pocket a $20 piece; he put his money in the hat, then he sprang upon a low stump that was standing by the trail, and added: "I start the subscription; those who have a trifle that they can spare will please pass around this way and drop the trifle, as they pass, into the hat."

Then Sister Celeste had a new experience. In an instant she was surrounded by a shouting, surging, struggling crowd, all eager to contribute. There was a babel of voices, but for once a California crowd was awakened to a full roar without an oath being heard. The boys could not swear in the presence of Sister Celeste. In a few minutes between seven and eight hundred dollars was raised. It was poured out of the hat into a buckskin purse; the purse was tied, and handed by the man who first addressed her, to Sister Celeste, with the remark that it was for her poor, and that when she needed more the boys would "stand in."

Again the nun raised her eyes, and in a low voice which trembled a little she said: "Please salute the gentlemen, and say to them, that God will keep the account." The man turned around and with an awkward laugh said: "Boys! I am authorized, by one of His angels, to say that, for your contribution, God has taken down your names, and given you credit."

Then a wild fellow cried out from the crowd:

"Three cheers for the angel!"

The cheers rang out like the braying of a thousand trumpets in accord. Then, in hoarse, thunder-tones, a voice shouted "Tiger," and the deep-toned old-day California "Tiger" rolled up the hillsides like an ocean roar. It would have startled an ordinary woman, but sister Celeste was looking at the purse, and it is doubtful if she heard it all. Then the first speaker called from the crowd eight men by name, and said:

"You were all married men in the States, and for all that I know to the contrary, were decent, respectable gentlemen. As

MASTER OF CEREMONIES,

I delegate you, as there are no carriages in the camp, to go to the sick woman's house and carry her to the hospital, while the good sister proceeds in advance, and makes a place for her." This was agreed to, and the sister was told that in half an hour she might expect her patient.

Then she turned away, the crowd watching her, and remarking that her usual stately step seemed greatly quickened. Long after, the Mother Superior related that when Sister Celeste reached the hospital on that day she fell sobbing into the Mother's arms, and when she could command her voice, said: "Those shaggy men, that I thought were all tigers, are all angels disguised. Oh Mother! I have seen them as Moses and Elias were when the Master was transfigured."

The eight men held a brief consultation in the street; then going to a store, they bought a heavy pair of white blankets, an umbrella, and four pick-handles. Borrowing a packer's needle and some twine, they proceeded to sew the pick-handles into the sides of the blankets, first rolling the handles around once or twice in the edge of the blanket. They then proceeded to the sick woman's house, one went in first and told the woman, gently, what they had come to do, and bade her have no fears; that she was to be moved so gently that, if she would close her eyes, she would not know anything about it. The others were called in; the blanket was laid upon the floor; the bedstead lifted with its burden from the bedstead and laid on the blankets; the covers were neatly tucked under the mattress; four men seized the pick-handles at the sides, woman and all from the floor, a fifth man stepped outside, raised the umbrella, and held it above the woman's face, and so, as gently as ever mother rocked her babe to sleep, the sick woman was carried the whole length of the street to the hospital, where Sister Celeste and the Mother Superior received her.

LIFTED THE BED,

Then all hands went up town and talked the matter over, and I am afraid that some of them drank a little, but the burden of all the talk, and all the toasts, was Sister Celeste.

After that the nun was often seen, going on her errands of mercy, and it is true that some men who had been rough, and who had drank hard for months previous to the coming of the sister, grew quiet in their lives, and ceased going to the saloons.

One day a most laughable event transpired. Two men got quarreling in the street, when in a moment culminated in a fight. The friends of the respected men joined in, and soon there was a general fight in which perhaps about thirty men were engaged. When it was at its height (and such a fight meant something), Sister Celeste suddenly turned the sharp bend of the street, and came into full view not sixty yards from where the melee was raging in full fury. One of the fighters saw her, and made a sound between a hiss and a low whistle, a peculiar sound of alarm and warning, so significant that all looked up.

In an instant the men clapped their hands into their side pockets, and commenced moving away, some of them whistling low, and dancing as they went, as though the whole thing was but

A JOVIAL LARK.

When Sister Celeste reached the spot a moment afterward, the street was entirely clear. The men washed their faces; some wag began to describe the comical scene which they made, when they concluded that the street under certain circumstances was no good place for a fight; good humor was restored, and the late contestants shook hands with perfect cordiality, a drink of reconciliation was ordered all around, and when the glasses were emptied a man cried out: "Fill up once more, boys; I want you to drink with me to the only capable peace officer that we have in town—'Sister Celeste.'" The health was drunk with enthusiasm.

The winter came on at length, and there was much sickness. Sister Celeste redoubled her exertions; she was seen at all hours of the day, and was met sometimes, as late as midnight, returning from her watch beside a sick bed.

The town was full of rough men; some of them would cut or shoot at a word; but Sister Celeste never felt afraid. Indeed since that Sabbath when the subscription was taken up in the street, she had felt that nothing sinister could ever happen to her in that place. Once, however, she met a jolly miner who had been in town too long, and who had started for home a good deal the worse for liquor. She met him in a lonely place, where the houses had been a few days previous burned down on both sides of the street. Emboldened by rum, the man stepped directly in front of the nun, and said:

"My pretty sister, I will give to your hospital a thousand dollars for one kiss."

The sister never wavered; she raised her calm, undaunted eyes to the face of the man; an incandescent whiteness warmed upon her cheek, giving to her striking face an unwonted splendor; for a moment she held the man under the spell of her eyes, then, stretching her right arm out toward the sky, slowly and with infinite sadness in her tones, said:

"If your mother is watching from there, what will she think of her son?" The man fell on his knees, crying, "Pardon!" and Sister Celeste, with her accustomed stately step, passed slowly on her way.

Next day an envelope directed to Sister Celeste was received at the hospital. Within there was nothing but a certificate of deposit from a local bank for one thousand dollars, made to the credit of the hospital.

Port Hope.

On Sunday morning last between 12 and 1 o'clock, the residence of Mr. E. Millson, Bloomsgrove avenue, was entered and a bureau drawer in the second story rifled of seven hundred and eleven dollars. How the entrance was gained is still a mystery; the supposition is that the burglars got into the house during the absence of the family in the evening, kept hid until all was quiet and then ransacked the premises. About one o'clock Mrs. Millson heard a noise and thinking it came from the stove, got up and lit a lamp and went to investigate; when she reached the top landing of the stairs she saw two men standing at the bottom, one of whom carried a dark lantern. She immediately screamed and gave the alarm. The burglars opened the front door which they had previously unlocked on the inside, and made good their escape.

The social given by the I.O.G.T. of the 4th line of Smith on Friday evening last was a success.

After tea had been served an excellent programme, consisting of songs, recitations dialogues was entered upon. Prof. Hyde, of Peterborough, was present and by his whistling and singing added greatly to the success of the entertainment. He sang several comic songs that greatly amused the audience. The other singers gave their songs in good style. The recitations were well given, as were also the dialogues, which created great merriment. The proceeds were in aid of the Scott Act fund.

An Evening's Enjoyment.

The interesting season is now at its height. Almost every evening offers some new attraction. Notwithstanding this, however, the Parlor Roller Rink receives a liberal patronage, and deservedly so. If you would have an evening's solid enjoyment, then certainly attend the Parlor Roller Rink.

Sabbath School Entertainment.

The Mark Street Methodist Church Sunday School held their anniversary entertainment last night. It was well attended by the young people of the community, who enjoyed themselves immensely. A good programme of readings, recitations, dialogues, songs, choruses, etc., was given by the Sunday School scholars.

The Place for Mantles.

If you are in quest of a good-fitting mantle go to Fair, VanEvery & Co.'s Mantle Department, which affords you a large assortment of Astracans, Scalettes, Scotch Curls, Whitneys, Beavers, Ottoman Cords, &c., from which handsome, glove-fitting Mantles, Dolmans, Ulsters, Coats, &c., are being turned out daily. A large assortment of Fur Trimming, in Goat, Coon, Opossum, &c., in all widths, at very low prices.

Migratory Movements.

Geo. M. Foster, of Millbrook, left town this morning for Brandon, by C. P. R.

Mr. Shiney Johnston, son of the late Chief Johnston, left for Detroit to-day, via C P.R.

Mr. J. Egan left for East Saginaw, Mich., this morning via C. P. R.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, of the C. P. R., agency supplied the tickets.

Supplementary Supper.

The contagion of example still exists. A number of "the boys" from around town, fired by the example of the St. Andrew's Society promoters, met at the Grand Central on St. Andrew's night, where a supper awaited them, having been previously ordered. They enjoyed themselves around the festive board until a late hour. Speeches were indulged in. The party proceeded from the hotel in a body, and wended their way up George street, singing such party and patriotic songs as "Roll the old chariot along," "We won't go home till morning," etc.

Preparing for the Season.

The Peterborough Curling and Skating Company are putting their magnificent rink on Charlotte street into tip-top order for the coming season, hoping apparently against hope, that the weather will after a time be cold enough to form ice. Special attention has been paid to the curling rinks. The ground has been properly levelled by Mr. John Cousins, and when covered with ice the rinks will be as smooth and level as it is possible to make them. The maple floor of the skating rink used for the rollers, will be treated with some preparation of whiting and oil, which will cover the floor to a considerable depth. This, it is hoped, will when the rink is flooded and ice formed, prevent the floor from being injured by the wet. In addition, the waiting and dressing rooms are being thoroughly overhauled and brightened with paint. Particular attention is being paid to the ladies' dressing-rooms to make them convenient, comfortable and elegant. When the present improvements are carried out this will be one of the finest, as it is one of the largest curling and skating rinks in Ontario. With favorable weather a most successful season may be expected.

St. Andrew's Bard's Poem.

The following is the poem composed by Mr. Wm. Telford, the bard of St. Andrew's Society, and read by him at their concert on St. Andrew's night:—

Brither Scots, on this nicht it is grand here to gather
To praise up the dear land o' the broom an' the heather
That land mae romantic, for its mountains an' dells,
Graves o' oor forefaithers, birthplace o' oor sells.
The love springs of our souls rise afresh on this nicht,
Makes us feel once mair callants, though oor heads are near white;
The blood coils o' our hearts time an' age eft strains,
Overflows over a channel in oor auld Scottish veins.
As a shock frae the battery gives new life to oor frame
See this nicht bears oor fancies back to oor auld hame,
Thoughts lang lying dormant takes flight o'er the tide,
An' seats us once mair at oor mither's fireside.
It pits us back to oor youth wi' its frolics an' freaks
When we thrawed off oor dadlies an' put on oor first breeks,
Ta the fun or the ficht at the play ground or schools;
Bluid's reams, black een, ower oor peenies an' brots.
Big wild hemple laddies, on the braes we did rin.
When the saft downie hairs first appeared on oor chin.
[illegible] o' pride
Cracked we' lads an' we lasses at oor neighbors, fireside;
It remind- us o' courtin' an' the less we did tell
When the first stings o' love in oor breasts did swell;
When the mets a young lassie that we liked very weel
If she lauched, if she spake—O, how queer we feel
Mang the sweet scented heather, or beneath the green trees
The sweet lips we did press an' the hand we did squeeze.
The love, the enrapture, the promise, the vow,
This nicht makes us feel as embracing her now.
It brings to remembrance the deep sadness o heart
When lot forced us wi' hame, friends an' Scotia to part—
As they bade us farewell, wi' the tears in their e'en,
Many o' them to-night sleeps beneath a grave green.
There are Scots hear to-night, I could bet you ma ears,
Left some sweet, winsome lassie in sorrow an' tears;
If he na brought herself'—faith he brought a guid part—
Her love an' her thoughts, an' best half o' her heart.
Fra the four pairts of Scotia you will meet Scots to-nicht,
Far auld Berwick-on-Tweed to the sma' Isle o' Wight;
Aye, fra fair Maiden Kirk west to Auld Johnnie Grats.
There are Lowlanders here wi' the Scotch brogue nae lang,
Her nanesel she wull spake in the rale Gaelic twang;
This nicht evera clan fra the Helants wul gather,
Wi' their kilts, plaid an' hose, an' their wee sprig o' heather.
Yes it's grand to gather here ance a year in sic thran a,
Ta hear the Scotch tongues sing the auld Scottish sangs,
They baith cheer oor auld hearts an' bring tears in oor een,
Tells o' joys we hae shared, an' the spots we hae seen—
How they portray Scotch love, that was true to the death,
An' the humble thatched cot, where we drew oor first breath;
The banks an' the burns, the mountains, the dell,
Evera word, evera line, seems like nature itsel'.
The sangs of Auld Scotia, they demand our regards,
They were studied an' penned by our true Scottish bards.
As we hear them to-night sung, admire them we must,
While the heads that composed them has mouldered to dust.
Let us strive still to meet like true Scots ance a year.
To upbaud oor auld hame, though oor lot is cast here,
Land of our adoption, we do love an' esteem,
But auld Scotia, our birthplace, still reigneth supreme.
Canna Scots claim this night, as the most of you knows,
But they welcome the sons of the Shamrock and Rose;
And young sons of the Maple, they extend you the same,
Sae don't ca' them clannish—they deserve not the name
Tho' nae big sonsie haggis this night shows its face.
The braw sangs of auld Scotia we hear in its place.
Though the Scots like it weel, they are willing to part
Wi' the haggis, for songs that can cheer up their heart
We will gang hame this nicht wi' the thought in our noddle,
That we were no back hame, where in youth we did toddle,
An' if we should be spared to behold the daylicht
We wul tell folks that we were in Scotia last nicht.
Now three thuds for the nicht brither Scots like to gather,
The same for auld Scotia, wi' her thistle and heather.
Three cheers for our Queen, then three rousin' big bangs,
For the family that sings sweet oor auld Scotia's sangs

The reading of the poem was followed by prolonged applause.

Market Items.

There was a poor attendance at the market this morning. Offerings of produce were few and purchasers scarce. Prices remain about the same, and are quoted as follows:—Butter, 17c.; chickens 25c. to 35c. per pair; geese, 60c.; potatoes, 60c. per bag; apples, 50c. to 75c. per bag; beef per cwt., $4 to $5; lamb, 5c. to 8c.; pork per cwt., $4 to $4.50.

Acknowledgement.

The ladies of the Peterborough Protestant Home thankfully acknowledge the following donations for November:—Mrs. Gilmour, cloak; Mrs. Samuel Dixon, bag apples and bag potatoes; Mr. J. B. McWilliams, extension table; Mrs. Petrie, Otonabee, bag turnips, bag potatoes and one dozen cabbage; Mrs. James Alexander, parcel clothing; Miss Wyatt, parcel clothing; Mrs. Manson, parcel clothing; Mrs. Hugh Macdonald, cloud; Mrs. Wallis, two bags turnips, bag onions and quantity of cabbage.

What They All Say.

That the rubber door mats for sale at A. Clegg's, are beautiful in design, durable and cheap; they recommend themselves.

That A. Clegg sells the best and cheapest woven wire mattress in the market. Though they are all sold on approval, out of the hundreds sold, he has never had one returned.

That A. Clegg does repairing and ordered work neatly, promptly, cheaply. A first-class upholsterer constantly on the premises.

That A. Clegg takes the lead in parlor furniture.

Reward of Merit.

Mr. M. Kincaid gunner in the Peterboro' wing of the Durham Field Battery, this morning received a handsome badge in recognition of his having made the best average shooting in the preliminary and final competitions at the annual meeting of the Dominion Artillery Association, held last fall in Toronto, which he and a squad from the Battery attended. The badge is a very handsome one, consisting of a crimson shield bordered with gold lace. On the face of the badge two guns crossed over a laurel wreath in silver form the device. Gunner Kincaid may well be proud of this testimonial of his shooting powers. Sergeant Metheral is also entitled to a badge, but he has not yet received it. The battery boys from town are also come in for something like $5 each, as the third prize in the ordnance shifting competition.

A Batoche Boy Buried.

Yesterday Mr. T. Meenies was down to Millbrook to attend the funeral, with military honors, of Mr. Wm. T. Richardson, son of Mr. J. A. Richardson, Travelling Passenger Agent of the Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific Railway. Deceased was employed in the dry goods firm of J. Eaton & Co. Toronto, and succumbed to an attack of typhoid fever. He was also a member of the Toronto Grenadiers and served with his regiment in the North-West rebellion, and took part in the Fish Creek fight and the charge of Batoche. He was laid to rest with military honors, his own company of the Grenadiers coming down from Toronto to bury their old comrade. The deceased was only 20 years of age. A very large funeral procession followed his remains to their last resting place.

Personal.

Mr. H. P. Jagoe, travelling agent for the West Shore Railway, was in town over night.

Mr. C. Sheehy, Eastern Canada Passenger Agent for the Wabash and St. Louis Railway, was in town to-day.

Mr. Geo. D. Edwards, of Peterboro', Ont., the general agent of the People's Telephone, has arrived in the city. If he meets with sufficient encouragement he is prepared to [illegible] and he will furnish telephones for private lines, selling the outfits complete. The instruments can be obtained for private lines at $20 per set and if an exchange is established, the people owning their own instruments can obtain exchange service at $15 per annum.

This is a new opening in the telephone field and will no doubt meet with encouragement by the citizens as it has been a want for some time—good telephones at a cheap rate.

Mr. Edwards is well fitted to build an exchange having had a great deal of experience in both this country and the eastern provinces and as the rates offered are so much below any offered before, he will no doubt meet with a good deal of encouragement.—Winnipeg Free Press.

British Elections.

Liberals Gaining Rapidly in the New Ridings—Forty-Three Members Ahead.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Up to six o'clock this evening the Liberals had elected 228 members, the Conservatives 192, and the Nationalists 45. The Tory net gain has been reduced to 38 seats. The Liberals have become jubilant over their late successes.

The returns of yesterday's polling received up to 3 o'clock this afternoon show that the Liberals have gained 12 seats.

An Indian War.

DEMING, New Mexico, Dec. 2.—Renegades visited the reservation and attempted to get the balance of the Indians to join them, but the interview resulted in a fight in which twenty-one reservation Indians and only one hostile were killed.

TUSCON, Ariz., Dec. 2.—Official reports from Fort Bowie say a party of Indians under the lead of Josanie, were seen in the vicinity of Fort Apache on the 23rd of November. On the 24th and 25th they attacked the camp of the White Mountain Indians, twenty miles south of Apache. They killed eight women, four children and five men and boys.

Surrender of Thebaw.

He is on His Way To British Territory.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Chronicle's Rangoon correspondent confirms the capture of Mandalay. The correspondent of the Times telegraphs that the European residents of Mandalay are safe. Gen. Prendergast has promised to spare the life of King Thebaw and to respect his family.

RANGOON, Dec. 2.—The King of Burmah personally surrendered himself to General Prendergast, and has arrived in British territory.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A despatch from Rangoon, at noon, says the King is proceeding to that city on the British steamer. The announcement of the occupation of Mandalay by the British, is officially confirmed.

The Eastern War.

An Uneasy Feeling.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The report that Austrian troops had entered Servian territory is too vague to be traced, but caused some uneasiness. The Conference of ambassadors is earnestly seeking some satisfactory settlement of the difficulties which have now reached their crisis in the Balkans. It is understood that the majority of the powers, outside of Russia and Austria, favor the payment of the indemnity to Bulgaria and a waiving of the status quo ante question, but Austria will hardly consent to this disposition of the matter. The ambassadors are hurrying to reach a conclusion in order to terminate, as soon as possible, the present dangerous situation.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 2.—The porte gave notice to the Balkan conference to-day of impending military action on the part of Turkey and Eastern Roumelia. A council of Turkish generals was he held, and they advised the permanent occupation of the Balkans by Turkey, fearing Russia would absorb Bulgaria and Austria do the same with Servia Turkish troops are entering Eastern Roumelia near the Bulgarian frontier. The troops are wearing ordinary head gear instead of the fez. The Bulgarians have refused the proposals of the Servians to withdraw to their respective territory and to prolong the armistice to February 1.

Turkey Urged to Intervene.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Standard's Adrianople despatch reports that Russia and Germany are urging upon Turkey immediate military intervention in Roumelian affairs The Sultan, however prefers to act according to the advice of the British Government and to negotiate with Prince Alexander. The Sultan has issued a manifesto to the inhabitants of Eastern Roumelia stating the commissioners will rule there until a new Government is appointed.

Liquor License Appeal.

A special cable despatch from London to the Globe says:—It is understood in legal circles here that the report of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on the appeal of the Dominion Government against the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada on the Liquor License Question has been prepared. It will be submitted to the Queen at the next meeting of the Privy Council at Windsor, and afterwards given to the public.

The Smallpox Scourge.

A Decrease in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Dec. 2.—The official returns at the health office this morning show that there were three deaths in the city from the smallpox yesterday, 2 at Mount Royal hospital, 3 in Cote St. Louis, 1 in St. Jean Baptiste, and 2 in Ste. Cunegonde.

One Hundred Cases in Charlottetown.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 2.—Four new cases of smallpox have developed in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, since yesterday. Seven deaths occurred in the same time. There are now 100 cases in the city and eight in the country. Of 80 cases placed in the hospital, 26 have died.

Two Cases at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Two cases of smallpox have been found here within the past few days.

What Does the Gathering Mean?

A Toronto despatch dated Dec. 2nd says: "The presence here of the Minister of Customs, Messrs. W. R. Meredith, Carnegie, Creighton and other well-known Conservative managers, has given rise to a suspicion that some movement is on foot to avert the party disaster which threatens them.

Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 2.—Thomas Bluitt, an aged laborer on the farm of Benjamin Vanblaricom, Prince Edward county, committed suicide at an early hour this morning, by cutting his throat with a razor. Deceased was addicted to the use of liquor, which caused mental trouble.

The General Conference Special Committee yesterday decided to grant $4,500 to assist in reducing the debt on the Tabernacle here from $20,000 to $8,000, whereby the bondsmen who were held personally responsible will be relieved.

Horribly Burned With Coal Oil.

A Vienna, Ont., correspondent writes:—Another sad accident caused by the improper use of coal oil occurred at the house of Mr. M. J. Lordwell. Two children were left together in a room for a short time. The elder, a boy about two years old, found a can containing a quantity of oil and poured a portion in the stove, the oil flashed up, burning the smaller child who was seated in a chair near the stove, and burned her so badly that she died in a few hours after intense suffering.

A Pertinent Enquiry.

Reformers at Ottawa are highly amused at the course of the Tories, who, after combining with the French Tories in Quebec to rob Ontario of half of her territory, now ask the Reformers to aid Sir John Macdonald in resisting "French domination." Why did not Ontario Tories join with Mr. Mowat in his struggle to obtain for Ontario her territorial rights? When Sir John Macdonald formed his Cabinet in 1878, Masson and Mousseau made it a condition of their entering the Ministry that the Ontario Boundary Award should not be ratified, and to this Sir John Macdonald agreed. There is no danger of any Reform leader allowing himself to be dominated by the Bleus in such a manner.

Port Hope.

At the annual meeting of the Port Hope Benevolent Society, the treasurer reported the receipts of the past year, were $876.46 and the disbursements $823 25.

Mr. Levi Reynolds, who has been nightwatchman of the town for a number of years, has retired from that position, and assumed his duties as care-taker of the new Government building.

Francis Gibson and Henry Hewson, jr., paid a visit to the Salvation barracks on Saturday and wanted to clear out the establishment, but Chief Douglas interfered; and Wednesday morning the Magistrate fined Gibson $4.92, and Hewson $3.80, for the fun they had in disturbing the Sals. The latter was also fined $1 for using profane language on the public streets.

Millbrook.

The J. B. Hall Lodge, A. F. & A. M., have removed from above Mr. Jas. Cosgrove's hardware store, and have occupied rooms over Mr. J. B. Smith's drug store. Their new rooms have been very tasefully fitted up, and reflect credit upon Mr. Welburn, who performed the work. The ceiling of the inner room has been painted to represent the firmament, being colored a cerulean blue with glittering gilt stars sparkling here and there upon it. Upon the eastern wall are representations of Faith, Hope and Charity, set between the Corinthian pillars, which placed all around, appear to support the arching vault above upon their foliated capitals. The floor is covered with a rich carpet, made especially for the lodge; and has the masonic emblems interwoven in its texture Altogether, we think we may safely congratulate the brethren upon having one of the handsomest lodge rooms in these counties.—Port Hope Times.

An Abductor Arrested.

An Interesting Case Under the Charlton Act.

Detective Hodgins made an important arrest at Brampton Wednesday evening—important in so far as it is the first arrest under Mr. Charlton's act, passed at the last session of the Dominion Parliament, providing for the punishment of persons guilty of abducting young girls for immoral purposes. The victim is Eva Kenny, aged sixteen, whose parents live in Brampton, and the alleged abductor is George Tait, aged 33, a tailor by trade. The warrant on which Tate was arrested was sworn out by the girl's father before Magistrate Denison in Toronto, and was placed in the hands of Detective Hodgins, who executed it in Brampton at 5 o'clock last evening. Tait was then brought to Toronto and locked up at police headquarters. The alleged offence occurred on October 6th last, when Tait and the girl Kenny left Bramptoa together and came to Toronto. The girl subsequently became an inmate of a disreputable house. Lately both she and Tait returned to Brampton, when the girl's father caused the man's arrest under the provisions of Mr. Charlton's act. The maximum punishment for the offence is two years in the penitentiary.

Ohio's Latest Musical Temple.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 28.—Our city is now in possession of a music hall, having the largest seating capacity of any building devoted to a similar purpose in America. It contains 5,000 opera chairs of an improved pattern, and its acoustic properties are as near perfect as can be found in a building of its dimensions. It is 157x97 feet. The opera house of Paris, which cost $15,000,000, does not accomodate nearly so large an audience.

EXTERIOR OF MUSIC HALL.

No money has been wasted on the exterior of the building, as will be seen by the engraving. The front is as plain, and yet tasty, as a Quaker meeting house. It is to be called the People's Tabernacle Music hall. Its dedication took place on Sunday, when some of the more prominent clergymen and citizens of the city took part. In the evening of that day a rousing temperance meeting, under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, took place, Mr. Francis Murphy being the principal speaker. During the week following the opening a series of concerts were inaugurated that eclipsed anything ever heard in northern Ohio. Such artists as Emma Nevada, Ciara Louise Kellogg, Mrs. S. C. Ford, of Cleveland, and others, supported by the Cleveland Vocal, Haydn, and Northern Ohio Chorus societies. Ohio has taken such a step forward in musical matters of late that she will be ranked as the leading vocalist among her sister states.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1885.

THE ETHICS OF OUR EDUCATORS.

By the term educators in the above title, we have reference to the teaching fraternity generally, all who are actively and constantly engaged in the work of training the young.

In this province they are a very large and influential body of men, numbering considerably over seven thousand. Upon their shoulders rest serious and weighty responsibilities—the care and training of about half a million of souls. The effects of their teaching and example, therefore, are far-reaching, and it is needless to say, the impressions they make and the influences they wield, should be all for good and not for evil.

We very naturally enquire then, how are these men to whom the guidance and instruction of so many souls have been intrusted, fulfilling the duties incumbent upon them? Or in other words, what are the defects and blots upon one much-lauded system of free education for the masses?

Ontario's expenditure for schools foots up an enormous and steadily increasing sum year by year. Each of the half million pupils in our schools costs the province an average of $6.69 annually.

Are the results quite satisfactory? We do not to-day enquire whether the children are taught with tolerable care and accuracy, all the subjects of the ordinary school curriculum. Everybody knows there are some things which the scholar necessarily and almost intuitively acquires by contact with his fellow-pupils, and by witnessing the habits and practices of his preceptors. His manners and his morals are largely affected by the example and influence of his instructors. It is an old and a true saying that "as is the schoolmaster, so will be the school." A teacher's influence should be towards reverence, towards purity and truthfulness, towards fidelity and charity. It should be away from meanness and falsity and transgression of God's law. Above all things else the teacher and inspector should be careful in speech and careful in act. They are supposed to be moral, upright men, of unexceptionable good character. The inspector who is guilty of misconduct, or who is inefficient can be expelled by the vote of the County Council, the Board of Education, or the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, as the case may be. The school teacher who loses his good moral character can be suspended from office.

Lord Bacon tells us true ethics are a handmaid both to divinity and religion. If there is any class of men whose morality should be pure and strictly correct, it is those engaged in our public schools. Like Cæsar's wife, they should be above suspicion.

Profane or irreverent speech, blasphemous words, and slang phrases should never be heard from the teacher's lips. If the educator is coarse, slovenly, rude or ungentlemanly, he is utterly unfit for his position. It is quite clear, that the teaching of the home, be it ever so careful or good, cannot counteract the baneful example of the school with such a teacher. Yet the use of vulgar speech in school is not known among our educators.

Bad as this is, there is however, a lower level still. Coarse words and slang phrases corrupt our youth in the school and in the playground, the example being set by the teacher. But it is a still more scandalous reproach when our educators mingle with associates of questionable morality and keep company with those whose chief resort is not of the most refined and and edifying character. Even when his day's duties are over, the school teacher must remember he is always a public character and as such his acts are open to criticism. He ought not to be seen where he should be ashamed to be discovered. When those having the care of the young under their supervision are seen under the influence of liquor, when they so lose their self respect, we submit they are utterly unfit for any responsible position as educators. Their example is most baneful and pernicious.

The morality of those engaged in the instruction of the youth of this country is a subject of vital interest to every taxpayer. The time has fully come when at all hazards offenders must be made step down and out.

The moral character and habits of those engaged on any of these positions must be of the highest possible type. Then shall the ethics of our educators be, not in supposition merely, but in reality, what they ought to be, pure and unquestionably good.

A Half-Hour in Africa.

Mission Work in the Heart of the Dark Continent — The Moral and Physical Condition of the Natives—Polygamy Slavery and Cannibalism.

On Wednesday afternoon a representative of THE EXAMINER had the pleasure of an interview with Rev. Father Nowlaerts, one of the two missionaries now in town in the interests of the mission in that portion of Africa, made historical and full of interest by the explorations and writings of Livingstone and Stanley.

Rev. Father Nowlaerts is a comparatively young man, yet he has seen a vast deal of service in the cause of missions, and for many years among the most degraded of heathens.

HE SPEAKS TEN LANGUAGES,

European, Asiatic and African with fluency, and it must evoke admiration, that a cultured gentleman, especially fitted to enjoy the refinements of civilized life and adorn the highest society circles, should from a sense of duty to his Master and for love of Mother Church, gladly bury himself in the sweltering, fever-fraught climate of Africa, amidst the most degraded of environments with naked savages,—only a remove from the brute—or cruelly fanatical Mohammedans, as his sole companions and associates. Rev. Father [illegible] confirm all that Livingstone and Stanley have said respecting the unhappy condition of the people of Central Africa and the Congo district. Slavery with the most revolting and cruel barbarity, is the blackest blot on the dark continent. In the districts designated are made every year by Mahomedans and sold to the Arabs. Heathenism of the most abject character, involving human sacrifices, fetishism, or the worship of evil spirits, and cannibalism flourish like evil weeds on a fertile soil—with veritable tropical luxuriance. The condition of the females among the natives is appalling. Polygamy prevails to a frightful extent. For instance, King Mtesa died recently leaving a thousand wives, as Father Nowlaerts quaintly expressed it, "inconsolable and to be consoled." The treatment extended to women is worse even than that extended to animals. No woman is allowed to go abroad unaccompanied by the husband, and if he goes out riding on an ass, his wife follows on foot and bears whatever burden there may be. In a city of twenty thousand inhabitants, not twenty of the women can be seen at one time on the streets.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND SLAVES

The Mohammedans, with their perverted ideas of the Deity and His attributes are little better. They hold that but she is consoled by the glorious prospect, if she is faithful and obedient, of one day sharing the husband's heaven after death. The little difficulty of her having no soul is got over by the generous and self-sacrificing husband, giving the women a share in the little soul he possesses. They also practice polygamy, the number of wives being limited only by the ability of the husband to feed them, and when the wives become old and lose favour they are turned out to shift for themselves. A wife is not espoused and married as in Christian lands, but the husband pays her price to the father, never seeing the face of his future wife till the transaction is complete, and he takes her as a man might take home a pair of boots, "on approval." Woman is a veritable cypher. Not only is she the slave and drudge for the husband, but she is robbed of the delights of maternity. Her children are taught to despise her and to hold her in as little esteem as the husband does. An infant in any of its childish griefs and mishaps does not seek the mother for consolation; it is taught to love and trust in the father alone.

WOMAN HAS NO SOUL,

THE HORRORS OF SLAVERY

are almost beyond description. The Mahomedans principally live and flourish on slavery, and Rev. Father Nowlaerts is of opinion that if England, France and Germany, which are represented in this district by commercial interests, could do away with slavery, Mohammedanism would fall. The Mohamedan mode of making slaves is to surround a native village with soldiery, so that none can escape. All are captured and enslaved except the old men and women, who, having no commercial value, are slaughtered out of hand. The value of a slave sold on or near the spot of capture, is $1.00 each, nearer the sea coast $7.00, and at the coast itself, $15.00. The Arabs are the chief purchasers of slaves from the Mohammedans. The horrors of the "middle-passage," that awoke our sympathy in American slavery days, are repeated in the trip from the interior to the coast. Two slaves are bound together with a rope around the waist, and a contrivance called a "cangue," or sort of yoke, connecting the slaves. If, during the journey, any slave becomes exhausted and unable to proceed with the others

HE IS KILLED AT ONCE,

but his head is cut off and his late fellow is forced to continue his journey, carrying by the "cangue" the head of his dead comrade. Thus the route from the interior to the sea shore is white with the bones of the wretched slaves who have thus been slaughtered. So remarkable is this that Livingstone has stated what is literally true, in asserting that anyone travelling from Zanzibar to Central Africa would be guided on the right way by the ghastly heaps of bleaching human bones that mark the route of the slave caravans.

CHILDREN OF ISHMAEL.

From the Mahommedans can be expected neither honesty nor a respect for the rights of others. One dogma of their religion is that everything belongs to them. They are the descendants of Ishmael, and to compensate for the loss of his birthright, their religion teaches them that whatever can be taken from a Christian or Jew is legitimate spoil. This dogma is not only applied to the possessions, but to the persons of Jews and Christians—a "good" Mahommedan thinks he is doing God's service and the Prophet's, by slaying a Jew or a Christian. For this reason the lives of the missionaries in Central Africa are often in danger. But under the influence of the mission work the is disappearing. Their battle cry to the sound of which they "cry havoc and let slip the dogs of war" upon the Christians is less frequently heard. When Mahommedans massacre Christians their cry is "La Allah ila Allah ous Mohammed rousseul Allah," meaning "There is no God except God and Mahommed is his prophet." It will therefore easily be seen that the missionary's lot is not a very pleasant one in some respects. In the last ten years no less then ten missionary fathers have been massacred by the fanatical Moslems.

FANATICAL SPIRIT OF MOHAMMEDANISM

THE MISSION WORK.

The work has been established in this darkened region twelve years. There are now fifteen missions, and about twenty villages are under Christian influence. As may be expected, the progress of the work is necessarily slow; the missionaries arrive in the country entirely ignorant of the "lingo" of the natives. The first work is to catch a few words of the native tongue—there is no written language—and commit them to writing, spelling the words phonetically. Next a grammar is formed, and thus by slow and tedious steps the missionary is enabled to communicate with the natives. The mode of operation is to buy on the slave market young children. These are taught the Christian faith and doctrine and when they are sufficiently instructed they are baptised and then given their freedom. In due course of time the only one wife—to Christian young men who are strictly charged to instruct their wives and love and cherish them according to the grand doctrines of the Christian religion, and to bring up their children in the Christian faith. In addition, the principles of civilization, the natural complement of Christianity are taught the people, such as regular industry, the cultivation of the soil, etc., and the rudiments of general education are imparted in the schools that have been established. It is to that Rev. Fathers Nowlaerts and Vignon are in town now. To enable the general public to contribute to the fund for Central African missionary work, these reverend Fathers will give a lecture on the Holy Land in Bradburn's Opera House, this (Thursday) evening, which will be illustrated by three hundred panoramic views of the Holy Land, shown on seven hundred square feet of canvass. The admission fee is only 15 cents, reserved seats, 25 cents.

FEMALES ARE GIVEN IN CHRISTIAN MARRIAGE,

PROMOTE AND EXTEND THIS WORK

Sister Celeste.

BY C. C. GOODWIN.

(Concluded.)

ANOTHER YEAR PASSED BY and Sister Celeste grew steadily in the love of the people. With the winter months smallpox broke out in the village. The country was new, the people careless, and no particular alarm was felt until the breaking out of ten cases in a single day awakened the people to the fact that a contagion was upon them.

Sister Celeste, almost without rest, labored night and day until the violence of the epidemic had passed; then she was stricken. She recovered, but was shockingly pitted by the disease.

She was in a darkened room, and how to break to her the news of her disfigurement was a matter of sore distress to her sister nuns. But one day, to a sister who was watching by her bedside, she suddenly said:

"I am almost well now, sister; throw back the blinds and bring me a mirror!" and with a gentle gayety that never forsook her when with her sister nuns, she added: "It is time that I begin to admire myself."

The nun opened the blinds, brought the glass, laid it upon the bed, and sat down trembling.

Sister Celeste, without glancing at the mirror, laid one hand upon it, and shading her eyes with the other hand, for a moment was absorbed in silent prayer. Then she picked up the glass and held it before her face. The watching nun, in an agony of suspense and hardly breathing, waited.

After a long, earnest look, without a shade passing over her face, Sister Celeste laid down the glass, clasped her hands, and said:

"God be praised! now all is peace; never, never again will my face bring sorrow to my heart."

The watching nun sank sobbing to her knees, but as she did so she saw on the face of the stricken woman a smile which, she declared, was radiant as an angel's robes.

With the return of health Sister Celeste again took up the work of mercy, and for a few months more her presence to the place. At last, however, it began to be noticed that her presence on the street was less frequent than formerly, and soon an unwelcome rumor began to circulate that she was ill. The truth of this was soon confirmed. Then, day by day, for several weeks, the report was that she was growing weaker and weaker, and finally one morning it was known that she was dead.

WAS A BENEDICTION

A lady of the place, who was a great beneficiary of the hospital, and to whom Sister Celeste was greatly attached, was permitted to watch by the dying couch of the glorified nun. Of the closing moments she gave the following account:

For an hour the dying woman had been motionless, as though hushed in peaceful sleep. When the first rays of the morning sun struck on the window, a lark lighted on a tree near the window, and, in a full voice, carroled his greeting to the new-born day. Then the sister opened her eyes, already fringed by the death-frost, and, in faint and broken sentences, said:

"A delicious vision has been sent to me, Deo Gratias? In the vision, every act meant in kindness that I have ever performed had become a flower giving off an incense ineffable. These had been woven into a diadem for me. Every word said in comfort and sympathy that I have ever spoken had been set to marvelously sweet music which voices and harps, not of this world, were singing and playing while I was being crowned; every tear of mine had become a flashing gem. These were woven into the robes of light that they drew around me. A glass was brought and held before me; from face and neck the cruel scars were all gone; to eye and brow and cheek the lustre and enchantment of youth had come back, and near, all radiant——"

The eyes, with a look of inexpressibly joyous surprise and happiness in them, grew fixed, and all was still save that the lark outside the casement once more warbled his morning song.

Among the few effects left by Sister Celeste was found a package addressed to the lady who had watched through the closing hours of her life. This was brought to her by the mother superior. On being opened, there was found within it another package tied with a ribbon of black. This, in turn, was opened, and a large double locket was revealed. On one side was the picture of a young man in the uniform of

A FRENCH COLONEL.

From the other side a picture had evidently been removed, for there were scratches on the case, which seemed as though made by a too impetuous use of some sharp instrument. On the outer edge of the case was a half-round hole, such as bullets make, and there were dark stains on one side of the locket. Below the picture, in the delicate handwriting of a woman, were the words: "Heart. Died at Magenta."

The lady showed the locket to the mother superior. Tears came to the faded eyes of the devoted woman.

"Now God be praised!" said she, "three nights since, as I watched the poor child, I heard her murmur the name in her fevered sleep, and I was troubled, for I feared she was dreaming of the youth she nursed back to life in the hospital. It was not so; her work was finished on earth; she was nearing the sphere where love never brings sorrow; her soul was already outstretching its wings to join——" the poor nun stopped, breathed short and hard, and incoherently began to tell her beads.

The lady, on pretense on looking for the last time on the face of Celeste, slipped the locket beneath the folds of the winding-sheet, and left it concealed on the pulseless breast.

The whole population of the place were sorrowing mourners at the obsequies of Sister Celeste, and for years afterward, every morning, in summer and winter, upon her grave a dressing of fresh flowers could be seen.

On the day of the funeral the miners made up a purse and gave it to Mrs. De Lacy, the consideration being that every day for a year the grave of the sister should be flower-dressed. The contract was renewed yearly until Mrs. De Lacy herself died. In the meantime, a wild rose and a cypress had been planted at the head and foot of the grave, and they keep watch there still, and shield the lowly couch from storm and sun. One who passed there last year heard, from under the rose bush at the head of the grave, a mourning dove calling her mates, and the answer came back from where the trees grew dense a little way off; and the call and the answer were low and sweet and plaintive, as though there lingered still around the spot a tender sorrow for the beautiful dead.

Keene.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Oh for one more sight of the glorious sun. We miss his invigorating presence sorely.

It is needless to tell the public that we, in Keene, have had a most delightful open season so far this fall; even the feathered bipeds and all the quadrupeds well know it, and rejoice. And well, too, may it rejoice the heart of man to behold the fine condition of the winter wheat, green, thick and strong like great carpets, spread everywhere; indeed, we can hardly call to mind a time when the fall wheat looked more promising.

We, of this locality, are a staid people, and though the whole world may be in a whirlwind of war and politics and patriotism, unmoved we look calmly down upon our beautiful lake from our home of picturesque security on its northern shore. The boom of the British cannon on the Irrawaddy is unheard by us. The victorious shout of the brave Bulgarian as he scatters the legions of fierce aggression, reaches not our ears; and the still greater strife, under the banners of peace, a strife pregnant with weightier consequences to this world than any of the others, is our own bright little island across the Atlantic, causes scarce a flutter in our hearts, or in any degree disturbs our supreme serenity. Truly, we are a wonderful people, and yet there is a dearth of events among us. Of late, we have stolen from nobody, have robbed nobody, have abused nobody, and nobody has died, so we have buried nobody.

Week before last we had a beau (bow) social in the town hall. 'Tis said the girls liked it, but we don't know; at any rate, we realized over $20. The main feature of the affair was a "whistler at the piano," and this young gentleman is peculiar, he always endeavors to Hyde his talents.

Last week we had the Norfolk Jubilee Singers, a troupe of dark people, who shed much light on the musical horizon, bless them! We would go to hear them to-night again if they were coming, for, truly, they deserve our patronage. Their rendition of Southern music was capital, and the scenes from plantation life simply delightful. Their whole entertainment was a pleasant surprise, as it was, from beginning to end, far better than they promised. We hope to see them soon again.

Six of us went last Monday night to Peterboro' to visit St. Andrew and the Bairnsfathers. There was a gran' turnout to hear Bairnsfathers, but, dae ye ken, (ye maunna tell onybody noo) I think we should ca't "the father an' his bairns," an' the bairns best. But the chiels wi' the swoor is an' beighnots —Anith! they were a gran' nicht, an' well worth gann to see. I dinna think I can write ony mair the noo, sae "guid nicht, an' joy be wi' ye a'."

Hamilton is doing well. While in November, 1884, there were 54 deaths, 43 marriages and 78 births in that city in November, 1885, there were 50 deaths, 79 marriages, and 98 births.

Effigies of Sir John Macdonald, Hon. Mr. Chapleau, Sir A. P. Caron and Sir Hector Langevin were burned at Plantagenet, Ont., by French Canadian residents on Friday night.

A motion is before the Montreal city council to take away the corporation printing from La Minerve, on account of that paper's attitude on the Riel question, and to give it to La Presse.

The mayor of Montreal being about to leave for a trip to the Southern states the council yesterday afternoon passed a resolution of confidence in him, Ald. Jeannotte alone objecting.

Samuel Blakely, employed in Inglis & Ryley's planing mill, Lindsay, Ont., was so badly injured by a flying board on Saturday that he died on Sunday, leaving a wife and nine children.

Patrick Ryan, a brakeman on the Toronto, Grey & Bruce, fell between the cars near Alton, county Peel, yesterday, and was instantly killed. He leaves a wife and family at Orangeville.

The inland revenue receipts in Hamilton during November were $27,096 against $23,219 in the corresponding month last year. The customs receipts were $49,549 against $40,592 last year. The exports were valued at $135,296.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Windsor Hotel company, Montreal, was held Wednesday afternoon, when the annual reports were read. No dividend was declared owing to the absence of travellers on account of the epidemic. The old board was re-elected.

The Winnipeg Free Press tells of an artesian well that is belching forth frogs by the million. It is on the premises of John Benson, on Notre dame street. They choked up the tank, and the squirming mass had to be shoveled out, but the supply was practically unlimited; they came in as fast as they could be taken out. The frogs could be seen bobbing up serenely through the tube in a continuous procession, and it kept two men busy ladling them out out. The hens in the neighborhood are having a regular jubilee over the unexpected supply of frogs, while several restaurant keepers are negotiating with Mr. Benson for large quantities of them.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

"The Fantastic" in Future.

A grand ball under the auspices of the Social club will be held in Bradburn's Opera House on Friday evening, December 4th. Tickets for couple to ball and supper, $1.00.

Ladies' Aid Society Meeting.

A meeting of the Ladies Aid Society in connection with St. Paul's church will be held in the ladies' parlor in the church, on Friday afternoon next, at 3 o'clock.

English Literature Class.

The class in connection with the Y.M.C.A., conducted by Mr. B. Earle, will meet to-night at 8 o'clock. Goldsmith's "Traveller" will be studied. To-night will be the last time that admission will be free.

Morning Exercise.

The old broom and shovel were unceremoniously brought out from their dusty corners of rest this morning, and caused to remove the snow from off the sidewalk. All along the principal streets the utmost expedition was exercised and the work was soon completed.

Mission Services.

On Sunday afternoon next at 4 o'clock p. m. Rev. T. B. Angell, curate of St. John's will hold service in the mission school house, Dalhousie street. This will be the first of a series to be held regularly every Sunday afternoon, which have been instituted for those unable on account of the distance to attend services at St. John's.

Irish National League Meeting.

A regular meeting of the Irish National League was held in their rooms last night. It was largely attended and the interest evinced in the organization was undiminished. Dr. O'Sullivan, President of the Peterborough branch of the National Lague, was appointed delegate to attend the League convention to be held in Chicago on or about January 17th, 1886. A committee was also appointed to solicit, throughout the town and Ashburnham, contributions for the Parliamentary fund.

Bravado Nipped in the Bud.

Last night a young man returning home with some companions, was telling them how he had seen some young men defy Cop McQuinty to arrest them for some supposed offence. Just then that worthy, who had overheard the conversation, stepped up beside the defiant youth, and asked him how he would like to be run in now, to which he answered he would not, and was allowed to go. The bravo quietly stole away from his companions and went to the Salvation Army. They suppose he went up to the penitent form.

Tramps not Marching.

After all said and done tramps are still on the increase. No less than thirteen registered at the police station last night. They were informed on retiring to rest that should any of them return seeking admission they would be brought before Magistrate Dumble for vagrancy, and that he would furnish them with a Government pass for Toronto Central, where they would be oblived to spend their Christmas holidays at hard labor. The New Year would see them in said prison. There must be some special attraction in Peterborough for these fellows.

A Racket at the C. P. R. Depot.

The usual good order maintained at the C. P. R., depot was broken into yesterday by M. Dunn assaulting E. Crow, porter at the Oriental. It seems that Crow was stooping checking some baggage, when Dunn struck him a blow on the side of the head with his hand; Crow thought some one did it as a joke, and only looked around to see who did it, when he was kicked in the face by Dunn. Some parties interfered and the racket ended. Crow's face was pretty severely injured. The matter will be brought before the Magistrate to-morrow morning for investigation and adjudication.

The Lacrosse Raffle.

The much talked of lacrosse raffle came off at the Oriental on Tuesday evening. It was well patronized by the sporting fraternity of the town, and was in every way successful. Of course every one did not win. Mr. McDonald won the first prize, $25 in gold, with a throw of 49. Mr. Harry Roper secured the silver watch, throwing 45; and Mr. F. Scrimager won the suit of clothes, having made the lowest throw, 15. Over five hundred tickets were sold and the club realised enough to pay off all debts, which was the object of the raffle. They are indebted to Mr. LeBrun for the donation of the suit of clothes, and to W. A. Sanderson for the watch. The club is pleased with the support they have received, and are determined next season to make a good showing.

Philharmonic Society.

The regular practise of the Philharmonic Society will be held at the rooms over Hartley's music store to-night.

An Artistic Article.

There appears on the counter of Morgan's drug store to-day, a crayon portrait of Mr. A. St. A. Smith, of the Ontario Bank. The portrait is bust size, and was taken from a photograph. The work is that of Mr. W.G. Sabine, and he may well feel gratified at his success in producing an excellent likeness. fect as can be transferred to paper with crayon. On the excellence of the work Mr. Sabine has secured three orders, though it has only been on exhibition since last night.

Migratory Movements.

Mr. John Poyd left for Luddington, Mich., to-day via G.T.R.

Lieut. Franks left town for Exeter by the evening train of the G.T.R.

Miss Maloney left town to-day for Luddington, Mich., via G. T. R. and connections.

Miss Brown left town this morning for New York via G. T. R. and connections.

Mr. T. Menzies, G.T.R. ticket agent supplied the above with tickets.

Mr. Daly, of Grand Rapids, Mich., left for home to-day via C.P.R. and connections. Mr. Alex. Elliott of C.P.R. Agency ticketed him.

What We May Expect.

A meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of St. Paul's Church to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Lacrosse Club to be able to pay all their debts except those they owe to their generous patrons—LeBrun, Sanderson Calcutt, et al.

First Blood for the Small Boy.

A horse belonging to Mr. Bell, grocer, of Auburn, ran away this morning from Mitchell's store and narrowly escaped wrecking the new town buildings. Mr. Bell left his horse tied at Mitchell's, when a small boy on a sleigh drawn by a dog came along the sidewalk at a rapid rate. This frightened the horse so that it broke the tie which held it and it bolted down street, going straight for the new town buildings. It turned off enough to escape running against it, but one of the shafts of the buggy struck the corner of the building and was smashed, bringing the horse almost to a standstill. The animal was here captured. Mr. Bell adjourned to a harness shop and had the harness, which was considerably broken, repaired. The vehicle also received attention. He complains that those boys who harness dogs to sleighs and drive them on the sidewalk are a nuisance and the practice should be prohibited.

St. Jerome's Protest.

Mr. Chapleau's Condemnation.

(From Globe Correspondent.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 2.—The Riel meeting at St. Jerome yesterday was a great success. Everything passed off quietly, though Mr. Chapleau's supporters condemned him heartily, as well as the whole Ministry and will assist in overthrowing them. Mr. Chapleau did not appear but sent a long letetr of explanation of his action which was read. The letter was hissed throughout and "traitor" was the most prominent cry heard. Messrs. Desjardins Girouard, Bergeron, M.P.'s. and Beaubien, M. P.P., his one-time followers, dressed him down in soathing terms, and which was the more emphasized by the reading of the following letter from his particular friend, Mr. L. A. Senecal:—"Mr. A. Desjardins, M. P.:—Dear Sir, I had the intention of going to St. Jerome to attend the meeting on Tuesday, but I am compelled to go to Sorel on important business and cannot, therefore be present. Please inform the meeting that I sympathize with all my heart in the immense protest against the odious act of the 16th of November. In the presence of the cruel hanging of Louis Riel, party ties are broken and former friendships cease to exist, and I think I would be failing in my duty as a Canadian, if I did not resent the injury which has been done us." The ravings of the Toronto Tory organ came in for spirited remarks from the previously mentioned speakers. Messrs. Mercier, Laurier, and other Liberals were present and received an ovation. Fully 2,000 electors were present. Chapleau is almost insane over the results of the meeting as he thought his letter would fix up the matter.

Sick and Wounded Soldiers.

Class of Claims that Will be Investigated by the Medical Board.

The medical board to report on the claims of soldiers wounded in the Northwest service met in Toronto on Wednesday afternoon, but no cases being ready an adjournment was made until 1 o'clock to-day. Col. Grasett had engaged to have six men before the board, but none of these had their certificate in proper order. Each case must be certified separately, and all the particulars furnished. The horrors of war were recalled on seeing the maimed and halt that gathered at the drill shed: men with their arm in a sling, others limping along in terrible agony and complaining of rheumatism, a ruined constitution, etc. The following regulations are taken from the Canada Gazette, and all those interested should read them carefully:

The cases to be investigated are divided into two classes:

1st. Cases of militiamen who have received wounds or injuries, or have contracted disease on actual service, such as to incapacitate them wholly from following their usual trade or profession.

2nd. Cases of militiamen who have received wounds or injuries, or have contracted disease on actual service, such as to incapa- profession.

The Board will take such evidence as may be produced, and will report their own opinions thereupon, either as to the total or partial disability of the claimant. If the disability is partial, the board will state the amount of injury or incapacity under which the claimant is suffering at the date of investigation, and its probable duration. Each case is to be investigated separately. The proceedings in each completed case are to be forwarded with as little delay as possible to the Deputy Adjutant-General of the district, in order that they may be produced as evidence before the board of officers.

Our instantaneous groups are considered by all to be marvels of art.

Prices to suit the most economical.

No necessity now to take the children to inferior studios because of the price.

Nothing can surpass the beauty and delicacy of finish, artistic posing and effective lighting, for which prizes have been awarded us wherever exhibited.

The excellence and artistic character of our work has given us a wide reputation, and we receive orders from all parts.

Now is the time to order, especially coloured work, as time is required to finish such.
